Company Plans To Double Plant

WESTERN CLOCK PLAN ERECTION FIFTH BUILDING

Management May Build Addition To Plant If Market Warrants It

FOLLOW ORIGINAL PLAN

Company Has Made Great Strides Since Its Inauguration Here

Plans for a fifth new building, to be even larger than the present plant, and likely to almost double the present capacity, are now being considered by the Western Clock Company management of this city so that in the event of increased market and other conditions warranting the extension, it will be made next Spring. That the consideration of the plans does not necessarily mean a definite decision to build, and that in the event of a new building being erected, the staff will not be immediately increased, where the two points stressed by J. H. Vernor, General Manager, in conversation with The Examiner this morning. "We have no desire to raise the hopes of many people who may be seeking employment, and that is why I stress these points," said he.

Following Original Plan.

"Should we decide to build, we shall follow out this original comprehensive plant of a complete factory (indicating a sketch of a plant much larger than the present one). It will be of structural steel and cement construction of four stories and a basement, and will be number 5 building. In the original plan, there are ten sections to the plant—four are already built and this would be the fifth," said Mr. Vernor by way of explanation. "However, as I said before, we have not definitely decided to build. If conditions warrant, in the Spring, we will follow the plans now being considered, as we always like to be one jump ahead of the market."

Plant Has Grown.

The Western Clock Company is a comparatively new industry in Peterborough, yet over a period of eight years, it has made genuine strides of progress. Its original quarters were in the building on South George street, now occupied by the Canada Crayon Company. That was in 1920, and two years later, though some wonderment was expressed at the choice of a site, three sections of the present plant were built. In the year 1927 the fourth building was added while the number of employees had increased from between 80 and 90 in 1923 to approximately 280 at the present time.

Number 5 building, if it materializes, will likely be erected to the east of the building now standing, taking up part of the hill.

PETERBOROUGH'S LATEST ADDITION TO SECONDARY EDUCATION

Affording ideal facilities for an increased and wider range of academic, industrial and domestic studies, the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School to-day stands a triumph of which the Board of Education and the city may be proud. Shown above is the new wing, housing workshops, commercial department, domestic science department, auditorium, double gymnasium, heating and ventilating system and other features, which was formally opened last night and handed over to Mayor Denne, representing the city, by Chairman E. Bruce Fowler, of the Board of Education, in the presence of the Minister of Education, Premier Howard Ferguson, and Mrs. Ferguson.

Large Assembly Which Filled Auditorium To Capacity Hears Masterly Address—Long and Spacious Corridors Were Thronged By Approving Visitors

Justifiable pride was the keynote, when the Peterborough Board of Education, satisfied in the knowledge of a work well done, and in the presence of the Minister of Education Premier G. Howard Ferguson last night formally turned over to the city, a triumph of the builder's art, and a triumph for all in any way connected with it—the new Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational school which has come into existence during the past two years through the industry and ambition of those most interested, and best informed in the needs of Peterborough educationally.

Graced by the presence of Premier Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson, the formal opening of the new Collegiate wing was an occasion long to be remembered in the city's history. Masterly addresses by Premier Ferguson, members of the Board of Education, Principal Kenner and others, preceded or followed the acceptance of the building by Mayor Denne, on behalf of the city, as presented by chairman E. Bruce Fowler of the Board of Education. The entire ceremonies, taking place in the beautiful new auditorium which was taxed to capacity, could not well have been more impressive, and in happy contrast, was the joy of the occasion, as evidenced among the student body which enjoyed a dance in the new double Gymnasium, situated immediately below the auditorium.

On last night's program, the Scottish Rite octette, including four members or ex-members of the Educational staff of the city, played a prominent part, contributing several numbers in splendid voice, under the direction of John Crane, and the Collegiate orchestra which came in for much favorable comment, was heard to advantage.

Throughout the evening, the long, spacious corridors were thronged by approving visitors, especially before and after the main gathering in the auditorium, while the members of the student body, enjoying the occasion to the utmost, were unfailing in their courtesy toward the visitors.

Illness of the King

In the face of such a pleasurable occasion, there was a beautifully thoughtful note struck in the singing of the National anthem at the close of the main gathering. Chairman Fowler, in calling for this number, spoke of the sorrow and anxiety occasioned by His Majesty's illness, and drew special attention to the significance of the wording of the National anthem.

"Turn Building Over to City.

"I am sure it is gratifying to the Board of Education to turn this over to the city, to be known as the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School. We are honored this evening to have present the Minister of Education, who, with Mrs. Ferguson, has spared time from a busy life, to come to our city for this very important event," began Mr. Fowler.

"It is not necessary for me to say much regarding the building itself, for you have had, or will have, an opportunity to inspect it for yourself, and we hope it will meet with your approval. In such an undertaking, there must have been much unselfish giving of time by the members of the Board of Education. It was in the year 1926 that the Board, under the chairmanship of John A. McKone, visited and studied various vocational schools, gathering data to give them some idea of what would meet local conditions. In 1927 the plans were laid before Mayor Holloway, and later before Mayor Roland Denne and his Council, who confirmed them and made the necessary financial arrangements.

"On behalf of the Board, I wish to thank ex-Mayor Holloway and his Council, and Mayor Denne and his Council, for their co-operation, and also to thank the citizens for their splendid support. I would also take advantage of this opportunity to express my appreciation of the members of the Board who have always accorded me loyal support as chairman of the Board of Education, for they turned out to the many necessary meetings with a spirit that made my duties light."

Support of Department.

"I would like to thank the Minister of Education for the unfailing courtesy and support which his department has given us throughout the whole proceedings. His department seemed to be of the right men in the right places, using sound judgment and giving valuable assistance. Director Campbell of vocational training and his assistant, Mr. Rutherford, have even come here on several occasions to give us advice and have always been most courteous in adjusting regulations to suit the particular needs of Peterborough, so that industries of this city may have a bearing upon the vocational courses."

In conclusion, Mr. Fowler declared that "our object has been to give Peterborough students a course of studies best fitted to their needs, in a school where studies and athletics go hand in hand, to teach the boys and girls how to live in the world and make it a better world, and receive their share of the wonderful heritage which awaits them in this more than wonderful country of ours.

"Mayor Denne, I ask you to accept on behalf of the city, this building, presented by the Board of Education, and I hope our efforts will meet with your approval."

Accepts Building for City.

"I accept this school for the citizens and also welcome the Minister of Education, Premier G. Howard Ferguson, who, with Mrs. Ferguson, has so kindly come to Peterborough. We welcome you, Mr. Premier, for we have a real town and real people to show you," said the Mayor.

"I congratulate the Board of Education as an ex-member of it, and would give special credit to the members of the Building Committee, and Secretary Harry Thompson. Also, I would state that we have a staff of teachers in Peterborough that are a credit to the Province, Mr. Ferguson. They are sincere in working under a big responsibility. I had twelve years of membership on the Board of Education, and I know of their work, but I think it is the duty of every citizen to serve his town or city. We are sometimes criticized by people who do not make quite sure of the grounds on which they base their criticism, and if they would pull together with us and serve, it would be for a bigger and better Peterborough. Again, Mr. Ferguson, I welcome you."

Principal H. R. H. Kenner.

"The long-expected day has at last arrived, and to no one is it more welcome than to myself," began Principal Kenner. "For many years my cry has been 'How long, O Lord, How long?' and to-night I wish to express my personal appreciation of the presence of the Minister of Education. He leads a busy and active life and his duties are not light as the head of the most difficult department—the Department of Education."

After making the startling declaration that he was a firm believer in the doctrine of evolution, Mr. Kenner went on to describe the little old building that had been the original Peterborough Collegiate; of how on two occasions, due to crowded quarters the Commercial Department had been forced to seek new quarters once away from building of creeky stairs, dingy class rooms and smoky walls, and again from the Collegiate main building; of the opening, in 1908 of the older part of the present Collegiate building, and then of the necessity for larger quarters that had brought about this latest addition, which had not only increased accomdations but had made possible more courses not only for education, for the training to professions, but also in commercial and industrial pursuits. Next year, he hoped, there would be added an agricultural course so that an equality of education for all secondary school pupils of adolescent age would be available at the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational school. He announced that early in the new yeaf a survey would be made of all Peterborough industries, to find out wherein the Vocational school might be of most value in training boys and girls to take their places in Peterborough industry. "We want to create the most cordial relations with the manufacturers and hope that in time we may render a real service to them," said Mr. Kenner.

"You will learn all about the building, but in so doing do not forget the teachers. We have a splendid staff in the academic, Vocational and Commercial departments, and after all, is it not the teacher who makes the school?"

A THOUSAND MEN ACING PLANES WOULD QUIET WARLIKE NATION SAYS SPONSOR OF AIR POLICE

Pilots Would Serve All Countries In Endeavour To Avert War

PRESENT ILLUSTRATION

New York Man Thinks Bolivia and Paraguay Could Be Quickly Reconciled

LUGANO, December 15.—Canadian Press. — League of Nations circles to-day had under discussion a proposal that wars be prevented by an international air police force. The plan was submitted to the League by Colonel Clifford S. Harmon of New York, President of the International League of Aviators.

Foreign Minister Briand of France was understood to be enthusiastic over the proposal. The project will probably be discussed by the League Commissions studying international security and methods of strengthening machinery for the consolidation of peace. Many persons believe that a weakness of the League is its lack of a police force empowered to act to settle conflicts when pacific means fail.

Colonel Harmon explained that the underlying idea of the plan was that all countries would place at the disposal of the League ten per cent of their trained pilots. These pilots would serve as units of an air force of peace which would always be ready for mobilization where war threatened.

The present dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia was cited by Colonel Harmon as an instance where an international air force operating under the League or the Kellogg-Briand pact denouncing war, would be a powerful deterrent. He believes that a thousand aviators surrounding a hostile country could force it to submit to the will of the League.

One difficulty seen by League circles in the project was the task of deciding which was the aggressor nation in an international crisis.

TORNADOES KILL THREE; INJURE 20

Storm Sweeps Eastern Texas and Western Louisiana On Thursday

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Three were killed and a score of persons were injured by a series of tornadoes that lashed scattered communities in eastern Texas and Western Louisiana late Thursday.

The storm accompanied by heavy rain and a brilliant electrical display, swept northeastward from the gulf, with small twisters dipping here and there to crush buildings and uproot trees.

Striking first at Pearland, near here, where a garage employee was injured and several buildings were demolished, a tornado fell on the Sulphur Springs, Texas, community, near the Louisiana State Line. There Mrs. C. C. Fridell, 42, was killed, and her mother and Allen Shievers, his wife and children were injured.

3 Wolves In 2 Weeks; Open Season At Orillia

ORILLIA, Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press).—The third timber wolf within a fortnight has been killed within a few miles of this town. John McKerroll, a lumberman of Jarratt, shot one of these animals, after it had nearly killed one of his two dogs on the Joyce farm at Marchmount.

MILD EPIDEMIC FOUND IN CITY

No Serious Complications Have Been Noticed By Local Doctors

KEEP OUT OF CROWDS

It is reported that there are numerous cases of "flu" in the city, although here as elsewhere the nature of the present form of the malady is not so severe as it was during some of the past epidemics. However, an attack of this "flu" is severe enough to cause some serious discomfort to those having it, and they are made incapable of carrying on their usual endeavors. The disease saps the pep and energy and causes a listless, dizzy feeling, according to the local doctors.

Dr. E. H. Wood, speaking to The Examiner this afternoon about the "flu" epidemic, said "there are a large number of cases all over the city and district, and the number seems to be increasing, but it is certainly not a severe form of the disease since there are present no serious complications. Although 'flu' is prevalent in many parts of the province at the present time it is not causing any alarming difficulties to the profession because it is such a mild form."

"Yes," said Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, to The Examiner, "there is a sort of mild epidemic of 'flu' at present in the city, but it has no complications and generally takes the form of a severe cold."

Dr. Young said that one of the best ways to keep from catching the disease was to stay out of crowds.

Pay Attention to Diet.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., December 15. — Canadian Press. — Professor W. C. Russell, research worker in Nutrition for the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, in a statement to-day, urged persons to pay careful attention to diet, recreation and adequate rest as a means of warding off an attack of influenza.

Leafy vegetables, such as lettuce and spinach and citrus fruits, should have a promirient place in the diet, he said, as their vitimin and mineral content promotes proper elimination of body waste.

SEEK TO END WAR TROUBLES

LUGANO, Switzerland, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—An official communique was issued this afternoon by Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Minister Briand and Foreign Minister Stresemann, the essence of which was that the ministers are determined to do everything in their power to arrive as soon as possible at a complete and final settlement of the difficulty arising out of the war.

APPOINTMENT IS NOT CONSIDERED

Government Will Not Appoint Successor to Hon. Narcisse Peredeau Until January

GOVERNOR OF QUEBEC

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—No appointment to the Post which will be rendered vacant when Hon. Narcisse Perodeau retires as Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, has yet been considered by the Government, declared Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice here yesterday, when asked with regard to a report that Sir Lomer Gouin would succeed Mr. Perodeau. The present incumbent of that office does not retire until January, and until then the government would not consider who his successor would be.

Signs Of Open Winter In East Emily District

(Examiner Correspondence)

EAST EMILY, Dec. 15.—Signs of an open winter abound in some parts of the district. In East Emily, it is reported, that the bright yellow of blooming dandelions can be seen along the roads and that ground hogs still roam the fields in the bright sunlight so long after the usual time for the commencement of the long winter's sleep.

Raspberries were being picked from the bushes until a few weeks ago in many gardens in the district and there are really many indications that are taken to mean that the coming winter will not be severe.

TWO NEW DOCTORS SUMMONED TO BEDSIDE OF KING TO-DAY; ANXIETY EVIDENT IN PALACE

Queen Foregoes Daily Drive and Princess Mary Cancels Engagement

NO PROGRESS

Non-Committal Bulletins Admit Setback Of Royal Patient Yesterday

LONDON, December 15 (Canadian Press, 6.00 p.m.)—Unusual activities of the doctors about the King's sick room late this afternoon occasioned keen interest not unmixed with anxiety for possible new and unfavorable developments in the Royal patient's condition.

Two More Physicians.

LONDON, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Four physicians, two of them making their appearance for the first time, were in consultation at Buckingham Palace late this afternoon.

Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett, the King's regular physicians, conferred at length early this afternoon. Afterwards Dr. William Adlington Howitt and Dr. Robert Stenton Woods called at the palace. All four were still in consultation at 5.00 p.m. It was the first time that the latter two physicians had attended a consultation. Both new physicians are members of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Dr. Howitt's residence is at Nottingham. He is a member of the British Medical Association, a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, and one of the honorary medical officers at the Samaritan Hospital for Women at Nottingham.

The customary authoritative statement on the King's condition, which has been available recently during the afternoon, was omitted to-day.

Dr. Woods is best known as a specialist in electrolysis and radiology.

MAKING BRAVE STRUGGLE

King George worn by his long and trying battle with illness, to-day was still struggling bravely for a new foothold on life.

His Majesty had something of a setback yesterday after his ordeal of Wednesday when two operations were performed for the removal of purulent fluid from the base of the right lung. Yesterday was a disturbed day, but the King succeeded in getting a number of hours sleep last night and emerged to-day with a steady pulse and without further exhaustion.

This morning's bulletin, which served to alleviate somewhat the dismay felt last night, was as follows:

"The King has had several hours sleep. The local condition is so far satisfactory. There is no increase in the exhaustion and the pulse remains steady."

This bulletin was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn, His Majesty's regular physicians and by Sir Hugh Rigby, noted surgeon, who performed Wednesday's operation.

It was indicated in palace circles this morning that today's bulletin was regarded as satisfactory. It was held to confirm the view taken last night that the somewhat less reassuring bulletin then issued merely indicated one of those temporary setbacks which were to be expected in the course of the ebb and flow of the King's long and difficult struggle.

The fact that His Majesty was able to obtain several hours sleep was pointed to as a favorable sign, while continuation of the steady pulse coupled with a slight improvement in the local condition which the bulletin mentioned was regarded as reassuring.

Four Weeks' Duration.

It was just four weeks ago to-day on Saturday, November 17, that the first symptoms of the King's illness appeared. During all that time his progress has been followed with the closest syampthy by his subjects and to-day there was a considerable crowd on hand at the palace gates for the posting of the morning bulletin. There was anxiety among the spectators not only because of last night's rather unfavorable bulletin but also because the doctors had delayed issuing their report sometime after the customary hour.

There was much relief when it was learned that the King had had a better night, that the local condition after the operation was thus far satisfactory and that at least His Majesty was no weaker.

LEADS CORPS IN PRAYER

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Gene Tunney today led the marine corps here in a silent prayer for the recovery of the King.

The incident, touching and dramatic, came while the retired champion was presenting to the British Marines a cup given as a gift by American Marines. At the end of his address Tunney said quietly to the assembled officers and men who were drawn up in a square in the marine barracks:

"I now have the privilege of asking that you join me in bowing heads in silent prayer for the recovery of King George."

Tunney then bowed his head as did the officers and men and for several minutes the marine square was hushed in silence.

In his speech making the presentation of the cup, Tunney empha-

Premier's Automobile Carries License One

This city had an important visitor, last night, and along with him he brought a very interesting vehicle which had upon it a license plate of significance. While the chaffeur carried on his duties, little did he realise that pedestrians were taking note of the figure that was on the plate. The only thing visible to the eye was a large black stroke on a yellow back ground, with the word Ontario below, on the plate, which indicated that the Right Honorable Howard Ferguson had number one license. Local city plates run from 200 to over 300.

Moonshiner Opens Fire On Man Roaming In Bush

SAULT STE. MARIE, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Oscar Noble, 30, is in a Sault Michigan Hospital to-day with bullet wounds in his right arm and left leg, which he claims were received when around 100 shots were fired at him when he stumbled upon a moonshiner's plant while roaming in the bush 24 miles south of St. Ignace yesterday. An investigation is being conducted.

ONTARIO FACES LACK OF POWER

Commission Has Only Two Years To Prepare For Crisis

FINANCES GOOD

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 15 (Special to The Examiner). — A prospective power shortage in the Niagara and Central Ontario systems early in 1931 is facing the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. That gives only two years in which to begin and complete development works on a scale large enough to avert the crisis.

The complete Gatineau Power Company supply of 260,000 h.p. to be fed into the systems will, it is said, fall short of the normal demand by the end of 1930. There is an addition 100,000 h.p. to be supplied by the Gatineau interests to Eastern Ontario as demand arises, but that will not help this part of the province. Hence the decision to add a tenth unit of 65,000 h.p. to the Queenston-Chippewa plant, and to begin work without delay. The commission is said to have signed up one customer lately whose ultimate demand will be 30,000 hp. on a long term contract.

It is also stated that work is to be pushed on a generating plant in the Bala district, with the Muskoka and Moon rivers as the primary sources. This may give as high as 60,000 h.p. and help to relieve the strain in the more settled parts of Ontario. Possibility of a generating plant on the Madawaska river in the Eastern area is also reported under advisement. This source might supply 100,000 h.p. or more, according to reports.

Tentative consideration for development plants are reported based on the belief that the Gatineau power cannot be augmented to any appreciable extent, and that the projected developments on the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers are too dependent on circumstances over which Ontario has no direct control.

When the St. Lawrence power is ready on the scale that the International Waterways plan would provide, it is asserted that Ontario will be able to absorb all of its share without any difficulty, notwithstanding completion of all or part of the other projects outlined.

In the meantime, it is said that the Hydro-Commission's next annual report will show a financial condition beyond the hopes of the most optimistic.

ARRESTED IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Emily Forbes, 413 Ossington avenue, was arrested last night by Detectives Todd and Glasgow, on a warrant charging her with desertion. Last August she is alleged to have deserted her five children, leaving them in Owen Sound. She will be taken there for trial.

TWO HUNDRED FARMERS ATTEND ANNUAL FIELD DAY AT LOCAL PACKING PLANT

Men View Various Operations In Factory During Morning Session

EXCELLENT ADDRESS

Hog Prices Are World Controlled Declared G. S. Matthews, Plant Manager

The presence of nearly two hundred farmers, fine instructive talks by specialists on the raising and marketing of hogs and a complete tour of inspection through the large plant of the Canadian Packing Company were some of the features that made the Farmers' Day held yesterday most successful in every way.

In the morning over one hundred and twenty-five farmers were shown through the C. P. C. plant, one of the most modern packing plants in the province. The usual time of the killing of the hogs was changed from the afternoon to the morning to allow the visitors to see the manner in which their produce is prepared for the consumer under most up-to-date conditions. The farmers were shown through the plant in small groups of ten under the direction of company men. They saw the pigs scientifically killed and then traced the course of the carcasses through the many details of operation until the meat was prepared in the final stages for the table either cooked or in the many other forms. All were impressed by the skill and dexterity of the workers and the amazing speed at which the work is completed in the departments. All too remarked on the completness of the machinery and the absolutely sanitary conditions and care under which the work is carried on. From a complete visit to every part of the plant the visitors were taken to the yards in which the pigs arek ept until ready for the plant. Here under the direction and coaching of W. F. Dunsmure of the Central Experimental Farm Ottawa the farmers were given some lessons in judging and grading hogs.

Market Hall Demonstration

At one o'clock the farmers gathered in the market hall over two hundred strong, where they heard many instructive lectures delivered by men employed by the Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture, specialists in different branches of the raising and breeding of hogs.

D. A. McKinnon, Dominion live stock hog grader at the C.P.C. plant, acted as chairman for the meeting and to him much of the success of the program is due. He outlined the purpose of the getting the farmers together on such occasion saying that they were all livestock producers and they came to learn something more about livestock generally and especially the hog industry.

Mayor Denne welcomed the livestock producers to the city and intimated that quality counts and only quality could compete with the hogs produced in foreign countries. He said that it was a fine thing that the farmers had, at their disposal, expert advice from men employed by the Dominion and province to aid them in producing the best.

The mayor also intimated that very soon, if present plans do not go astray, the market hall will be remodelled to make it comfortable for the farmer's wives to come to the city to market their goods.

"The prices paid to the Canadian hog raiser is generally one to one and a half cents higher per pound than paid to any other producer in spite of the fact that the Canadian market is largely controlled by that of the American," said Gordon S. Mathews, manager of the C. P. C. plant, in the course of an illuminating talk on hog market conditions throughout the world.

He said that if the packing companies could make one-quarter of a cent a pound on their product they would consider that a very good profit. "You have been dissatisfied with hog prices lately, and rightly so, but it must be remembered that hog prices are world controlled, and that the Canadian market is almost completely under the influence of the American market. At the present time there is a half cent per pound duty on live Canadian hogs going into the United States, so that you men can sell your hogs in Buffalo at only one half a cent more than it would cost you to market your hogs in Toronto."

The speaker pointed out that President-elect Hoover has promised the American farmer more protection by increasing the tariff on Canadian produce, and if this occurs then the Canadian farmer must necessarily go back to the British market. Quality hogs, it was said, was the only thing desired on the British market, and this would mean that the farmers must increase their standard of hogs" A brighter outlook for hog prices was seen, because there is seven per cent. less hogs in the States this year than last, and that the hog supply in Denmark was also lower. The hogs killed in Ontario in one week average 26,000.

S. E. Todd, of Toronto, secretary of the Council of Meat Packers, said that he worked between the producers and packers, and could see how the one depended absolutely on the other. There are two halves to the live stock —one is the producing and the other the packing, and the packer can not turn out good finished meats unless the farmer sends him quality hogs. It was demonstrated how difficult it is to follow the prices of hogs because there are three determining factors which control the Canadian price. "It has been said that when the

Children's Aid Society Inspector Fined $400

KINGSTON, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Rev. William Black, Inspector of the Children's Aid Society here was found guilty by the jury in County Court on the case against him, that of trespass and wrongfully taking from Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald of this city, a ward of the society which was in their custody, and a judgment for $400 was given in favor of the plaintiffs.

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

Annual Meeting of Ayrshire Breeders' Association Is Held At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—There were not many members of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association present for the annual meeting of the Central Ontario branch. But the men who were in attendance represented some of the finest herds in the country of this breed of cattle. The meeting was held in the council chamber of the Public Library at one o'clock yesterday afternoon and was for the purpose of election of officers for 1929 and the discussion of general business. The first-mentioned item did not require much time. As soon as the election was announced, a motion was made and seconded that the same slate of officers as elected last year, retain their offices for another term. Charles Macoun, president, objected to this procedure. He believed that the offices should be passed along and was of the opinion that Mr. Mann from Peterborough would be a good man to preside. But Mr. Mann refused the honor by reminding the members that he was not living close to Campbellford, and could not always arrange to attend the meetings. The secretary, John Locke, also wished to be relieved of his office, but it was not the pleasure of the meeting.

Favors More Frequent Meetings

After the minutes and customary opening procedure had been dealt with, Charles Macoun, president, spoke briefly. He was strongly in favor of more frequent meetings, believing that the younger organizations, those composed of younger men, met with much of their success because they met oftener and kept better acquainted with the affairs of the minute. The past year, he said, had been very successful both from the sale of stock and from the dairy standpoint. Much of this success was due to the tuberculosis tests made under government supervision, he believed. But the milk production in Canada per cow, was less than that in other countries.

On motion of two of the members, the president's address was ordered to be published in the local press or in the journal of the association. There was only one of the auditors present, but he reported verbally that he had audited the books of the association and found them in good condition, correct to the date of auditing. They showed a substantial surplus for beginning the new year.

Mr. Hayes, the next to speak, was the field man for the Ayrshire breeders. He expressed himself as in favor of the resolution passed by the Western Ayrshire Association, that the province be divided into districts and a field man be appointed to each district. At the present time, the work of the field men was not as efficient as it might be under other conditions. In order that they might get better service, he suggested that the breeders co-operate more closely with the field men by writing to them any information which might come to their attention. He was also in favor of more frequent meetings and suggested that members of the association here, visit breeders in adjoining districts and establish contact between them, forming smaller clubs wherever possible, or adding to their own. Mr. Hayes also suggested that trophies be awarded for prize stock. He thought the past year had been the best in the history of the association.

Alex. Hume, recognized as an authority on Ayrshire cattle, and an ardent member of the association, said that the field work question had been a sort of bugbear at the meeting held recently in the city of Montreal. Members of the executive had discussed this question for one entire day, each member expressing his opinion and suggesting what he thought the best plan to adopt. It had been a difficult matter to deal with. Certain funds were appropriated to each province for the work and for advertising purposes. The secretaries will have more funds for this purpose. The association was of the opinion that in Ontario, the clubs were too large, taking in too much territory. Smaller clubs, and more of them, were favored. At the present time there are only three main organizations in the province, Western, Central and Eastern Ontario Associations. Mr. Hume also thought it a good plan to advertise more freely. He did not think it would be expensive and would attract buyers to the district. He was in favor of a full page advertisement in the Ayrshire Review.

Favors Advertising.

Mr. Stewart of Rawdon did not think there was much left to be said. He was strongly in favor of more frequent meetings as a means of getting in touch with each other for discussion of various matters from time to time. He was in favor of more advertising, and thought that the members should take a more lively interest in the affairs of the association. J. G. Mann, Peterborough, thought the past year had been a successful one, and believed that there should be more members from his section of the country. There were some real live breeders there who would be good members for the association.

Some discussion arose regarding the transfers of pedigrees. There was considerable dissatisfaction aired regarding the delay in returning the transfers, and thus delaying the sale and shipment of cattle. One of the members pointed out that the Holstein breeders got their transfers back in three days. Ayrshire men often waited two weeks. It was pointed out that this complaint had been previously aired and investigated, but that nothing, apparently, could be done about it. That the club took in too much territory was also agreed, since it was impossible to get the members from distant points to attend the meetings. Advertising received the general favor of the meeting, and the secretary was instructed to write for rates to the Ayrshire Review. Several members present cited cases where sales had been made as direct results of advertising in this publication, particularly suited to their requirements, and meeting their market. The executive committee was instructed to arrange for more frequent meetings. It was understood that these meetings would be held at the various breeders' residences, and not in the town, since it did not seem suitable for their purposes. Any increase in membership fee was not favored. But any member may subscribe for space in the association advertisement which will be arranged by the executive. Alex. Hume, Robert Little, John Locke and J. G. Mann were appointed a committee to interview the board of directors of the Peterborough Exhibition.

PULSE STEADY; KING SUFFERED DISTURBED DAY

Condition Last Night Was Less Favorable Than Had Been Hoped

NO RELAPSE

Approach To Convalescence Must Be Slow and Gradual Say Doctors

LONDON, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press)—The condition of King George last night, 48 hours after an operation had been performed for draining the infected area around his right lung, was less favorable than had been hoped. The evening bulletin recorded that His Majesty had passed "a somewhat disturbed day."

It added that the general condition was less satisfactory, although the pulse remained steady.

Official circles at Buckingham Palace interpreted this, in connection with yesterday morning's bulletin, as indicating that there had been no definite setback. The steady pulse was taken as indicating that the heart action, which in the King's case is a matter of prime importance, had continued satisfactory.

Supporters of the idea that the situation should not be considered alarming founti additional reason for their stand in fact that both bulletins were signed only by Sir Hugh Rigby, the surgeon, and Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn, the regular physicians. They thought that the fact that the other physicians had not been called into further consultation proved that the symptoms were not unduly disquieting.

Despite the encouragement of the past two days, the phyisicians will watch anxiously over His Majesty during the week-end.

Their warnings to the public that any approach to convalescence must of necessity be slow and gradual coincide with outside expressions of medical opinion that for some time to come the element of danger will exist, and that there will be no decisive crisis when it can be assumed that all danger is past.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

IT was just one page of a great daily newspaper setting forth some of the utterances which fell from the lips of a number of so-called "popular" preachers the previous day. Some of it was good; some was very ordinary and superficial; some was positively stupid; and some was as heretical as it could be! Of course, I am willing to admit that such criticism might very easily be explained by the viewpoint of the critic, and need not necessarily be correct. But there it is as I see it, and I am quite willing to stand by it and defend it if called upon to do so. Just how many people will read such a page as appears every Monday in a number of great newspapers is not easily determined, but I, for one, am always glad to see it even if I find myself in hearty disagreement with much of what is in this way dispensed. I am sorry, of course, for those who have to listen to such preaching and teaching; and more sorry still if they are satisfied with it. If I tried to feed my soul with such stuff I would put Pharaoh's lean cattle all to shame. Better far to fast and pray than to let some preachers prey upon you in giving what is nothing better than chaff when it is not poison.

A BISHOP SPEAKS.

He is a celebrated Episcopal bishop addressing a great congregation in a cathedral service. His argument is, that mystery is essential to faith, as he challenges those who would rationalize religion. Religion in its very essence necessarily includes an acceptance of the supernatural.

"There are those to-day," he said, "who very strangely seem to want to exclude mystery from religion. They never can succeed. A religion without mystery can never become a power in the lives and hearts of men and women. In our egoism we try to rationalize religion, bring it all into the light of fact and bring it down to our daily level of life, but when we have finished we are sure to find that somehow the religion itself has disappeared."

Then he gave a clarion-like call to Christians to awake, to repent and to prepare for the life to come. He said that people must awake to the fact that Christ is the same power to-day in their lives that He has ever been, and that He can do as much for them as ever on the one condition that they surrender their lives completely to Him. People to-day need to be reminded that their time is short. We need to think more about Christ as our saviour and our judge in order to give our religion a reality and a power. We should seek to realize who He is, what His relation is to the world and to each of us individually, and so to prepare for the hour when we shall stand before Him and see Him face to face as He is, and when in the light of His presence we shall be judged. For in that light we shall be seen and known, not as we would like to be seen and known, or even as we would like to think of ourselves, but absolutely as we are.

A BAPTIST SPEAKS.

He has carried on a unique ministry for many, many years in New York. By some he is much disliked, but all who know him love him; and multitudes will rise up at last to call him blessed. The chief emphasis of his preaching has been upon the prophetic side of the Word of God, and to that many have taken strong exception. But when we have in mind how few say anything about that particular side of revelation we can well thank God that one has spoken so insistently and so eloquently upon the doctrine of the Second Advent.

The world's sins are fast bringing it to a terrible end, said this fearless preacher. "Do you know what God is going to do with this world?" he asked. "Earthquakes shall come and rip it wide open. Lightning from heaven will burn up everything. Tidal waves, war, famine and pestilence will strike the earth. There is a time when the earth is to be shaken. We are getting a little bit of it now, and this system which is so beautiful and so perfect—God will wipe it out and bring in His own world.

"Think of these modern dances—a boy and girl swinging around in that mad, wild impulse of animal passion! It is killing the earth. God does not mean anything any more to the man in the street. Yet you are a part and parcel of the purpose of God, just as much as the stars in their courses. It is an enormous dignity and we ought to keep up with it."

A METHODIST SPEAKS.

Away down in the lower part of New York City, close to Wall Street, is a church, squeezed in among piles of tall buildings all about it, that is known as "The Mother Church of American Methodism." True, the crowd is not a large one, but the quality may be there even if the quantity is lacking. The preacher is speaking with something of the old-time Methodist fire. "The past year has been one of pleasure-seeking and mad adventure in materialism, and the church is in duty bound to redouble its efforts during the last month of the year to bring men and women to a realization of their spiritual needs. It is now time that all men and women be made to stop and realize the opportunities they have missed during the year. We constantly hear men and women decrying the fact that they did not enter into a certain real estate deal, or that they failed to follow a course that would have added to their knowledge or ability for material success. But how many friends has each of us lost during the past year? How great has been the spiritual loss of each of us?

"It is the church which must aid men and women to partake of the grace of Jesus. The time has now come for every individual to decide what his relations to God have been during the year 1928. During December let each man examine his conscience and let the church aid him in adjusting his life so that he will live in accord with Christ's teachings. What better than this could the church do in this age of pleasure-seeking and adventure along materialistic lines? I do not ask that men be prepared to pass an examination in theology, but I do ask that they create in their lives a harmony with the Saviour."

A LUTHERAN SPEAKS.

It is a morning congregation, having all the appearance of culture. He speaks with a quiet force and with some restraint. In the course of his sermon he criticizes a recent article by James Hervey Robinson, in which it was said that men should be engineering their lives "in the light of already existing intelligence," rather than through their religions.

"If thought processes mean anything, Christianity is the sum and substance of such intelligence as may be said to be already existing. Jesus Christ may be denied, but He cannot be ignored. Science itself is coming in now for its share of skepticism. Science at last has joined religion at the bar, and must stand trial with some of its own professors as witnesses for the prosecution. Leading scientists are beginning to hint that most so-called scientific laws are human conventions."

A PRESBYTERIAN SPEAKS.

He is a charming Christian gentleman, but by many of his brethren he is classified as a liberal—too much so—in theology. This is what he said, or at least a part of what he said. It speaks for itself. And without further remarks, I set it down as it reached me:

"Life is a constant challenge, bringing us meddlesome steeds and bidding us to bestride them. A regiment of cavalry is a potent force. It has won many battles and determined history. But a small herd of two thousand runaway horses can throw a camp into panic and leave it in panic. Life supplies us with wild horses in our racial instincts. These instincts go back to our pre-human ancestry and have come to us through a long line of savage and barbarian progenitors. They arrive on the scene with every baby born into the world—instincts of hunger, of curiosity, of fear, of acquisitiveness, of gregariousness, of sex. They have developed and thrived under conditions other than those in which we find ourselves. They are the instincts of a herd of beasts or of a clan of cavemen. They functioned in the ice age or in the primeval forests. They have been disciplined in relatively brief thousands of years of civilized lives.

"In us all primitive instincts are born unbroken and undisciplined. Each individual and each generation has to take them in hand and train them. They are the driving forces which furnish human beings with power. Every achievement is the release of this heritage of instincts, drilled and guided by a man's intelligence."

A PROFESSOR SPEAKS.

He is a professor of English at Yale. By that all who are well informed will know his name. He was preaching in the Community Church in New York on "What Is Man?" Declaring that he was a mystic and that he would not have missed being born, he said that the difference between the mystic and the man who had no beliefs was the difference between man and the animal. There is a divine spark in man which can be seen in the range of character alone. There is slight difference between a good dog and a bad one, but there is a great divide between a good man and a bad one.

Strange that we creatures of the petty ways,
Poor prisoners behind these fleshly bars;
Can sometimes think us thoughts with God ablaze,
Touching the fringes of the outer stars.

—Allan Fairbairn.

The Minister Remarks—

—Modesty with some folks is only egotism turned wrong side out.
—You have got to start early when you go to fool with some people or they'll make you feel mighty unpunctual.
—It is fine to be a Canadian or an Englishman but to be nothing else is terrible.
—Some church members fight church members more than they fight the devil.
—Deliver me from the sermon which begins nowhere and ends at the same place.

—A. F.

Friendship

YOUR friend must never be a mere echo of yourself. It ought to be possible to tell the truth to a friend and to receive the truth from him. Flattery—always sickening and exasperating to decent people — is simply fatal to friendship.... The joy of true comradeship is being able to think aloud—to say even foolish and ill-considered things without being misunderstood. Apart from this, friendship is only a frail dream.

—F. A. A.

If conscience smite thee once, it is an admonition; if twice, it is a condemnation.

NO SHORT CUTS

WHEN will people waken up to see that there is no short cut to healthful results? When a physician spends his time and uses his skill in trying to cure symptoms he will end in killing his patient.

When will the Christian Church come to see that her function is to improve the breed, not to paint the breeding-place? When will we remember that the issues of life are from within?

Every man's business is to take care, as far as he is able, of his circumstances. The Church's business is to take care of the man. This, for both, carries a solemn responsibility.

With some people it is easier to pay a man's board than to take the trouble of trying to help him qualify to pay his own board. I know a man who positively refuses to find a job for any man; but he will go to all sorts of trouble to put a man in the way of finding a job for himself.

That thinking is all wrong which leads to the idea that the Church is responsible for the hard conditions under which some people live. Christian men as citizens and employers may have some direct responsibility for the conditions under which so many have to live their lives, but that is something for which the Christian Church is not directly responsible. Many deficiencies may be charged to her, but this is not one.

What is needed to-day is for the Church to keep to her real business and distinctly announce to mankind what that business is. That business is not to dole out dimes or dollars to satisfy the gastric cravings of the hungry and think the incident is closed there. By such a dole you may have relieved a man's circumstances without having given him any real help. It is easier to put a suit of old clothes on the naked Gadarene than it is to get the devil out of him. The former can be done by any pagan, but the latter is the business of the Church.

—A. F.

POOR wanderer—what a journey he has had, how long a time he has been on the road! On that terrible summer's night when he escaped, and through scenes of death and horror made his way down the hill, how little could he have imagined the weary pilgrimage that lay before him! Rivers had to be crossed, long tracts of country traversed, dangerous regions to be dared, strange and foreign lands had to be passed through, perils of robbers and perils in the wilderness to be resolutely faced, for "they must know, they must hear this message of sorrow."

* * *

More than sixteen months have passed, and now he is nearing his journey's end. Foreign languages have been heard for many a month, but now from one and another he hears his mother tongue. At last he comes to the man whom he seeks; how shall he adequately picture the woes of last year's catastrophe? He dare not trust himself to speak at length, two or three words will do it, and in two or three words he gently announces a nation's fall.

* * *

The key to the previous Pen Picture is to be found in Joshua 10: 1-28. I am happy to report that one reader, a lady, discovered it several days after the above key appeared. The present picture has been taken from Jeremiah and Ezekiel and will be found somewhere between chapters 1 and 40 of each book. There are four verses in Jeremiah and only one verse needed in Ezekiel.

—A. F.

Wherever a true Christian goes his life ought to be an inspiration.

* * *

God sometimes lets us have what in our wilfulness we persist in choosing, just to teach us that our own way is not the best.

Don't Try It

IF you wish to be miserable, think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you; and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch, you will make misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you: you will be as wretched as you choose.

—Charles Kingsley.

Look at your sorrow, and you are restless, and long to escape. Look at the cause, and you grow passionate and angry. Look at God, and you are strong and trustful.

MEN IN MID-AIR.

SPIRITUALLY, there are thousands of people who, like a man in mid-air, are hoping sometime and somewhere to land on their feet. The hopeless and helpless drifting toward headlands where wreck is inevitable is due to the foolish assumption that everything in the nature of religious belief is in a state of flux. It is something for one to be willing to die for his convictions, but it is much more important to have convictions worth dying for.—"The Seven Finalities of Faith," by A. Z. Conrad, Ph.D., D.D.

MAKE IT A SAFE CHRISTMAS.

The annual warnings to the proprietors of business establishments, occupants of public buildings and citizens generally to exercise unusual caution for the prevention of fires during the Christmas season are being given, and the fact that such warnings are issued each season at this time should not cause their importance to be overlooked.

There have been enough disasters as a result of carelessness in this respect to give a tragic emphasis to the advice that is being offered.

Fire hazards redouble during the Christmas season with flimsy and inflammable material used for decorating purposes, and candles often employed in large numbers.

In the home, as well as in business places and public buildings, there should be constant vigilance and more than ordinary care exercised.

Especially is this true of Christmas gatherings in which hundreds of children are gathered together in rooms often poorly constructed so far as fire exits are concerned, and where an outbreak of fire might easily lead to tragic results.

Make it a safe Christmas by maintaining a consistent guard against fire hazards.

HON. FRANK OLIVER'S APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of Hon. Frank Oliver to act in an advisory capacity on the staff of the Board of Railway Commissioners has been greeted with approval, not only because Mr. Oliver, whose life has been devoted to public service, has richly merited consideration from the country, but because he is qualified from experience and ability to contribute much to the solving of the problems with which the board is concerned.

Although he had reached the age which made his retirement from the board compulsory, it was a good stroke of business on the part of the Government to ensure that his practical knowledge of Canadian conditions and of railway matters should not be lost to the country.

He has already been assigned the most important and responsible task of conducting an inquiry into the problem of level crossings and preparing a report suggesting the best methods of dealing with this menace to public safety.

Hon. Frank Oliver is perhaps as well qualified as any man in Canada to grapple with this problem, and his findings and advice ought to be of very real value, not only to the Board of Railway Commissioners, but to the people of Canada.

THE FORMAL OPENING.

The formal opening of the new vocational wing of Peterborough's Collegiate Institute marks a very important stride forward in the development of education in this city.

The Examiner fancies there were among those who attended last night's function citizens who have been deprecating the advancing cost of education, and who saw for the first time the possibilities offered by this splendid new building, and said to themselves, "This is well worth what it has cost us."

General satisfaction was shown in the completeness of the new wing, in the facilities that have been provided for vocational training, and in the evidence offered on all sides that Peterborough is now in position to give her sons and daughters a fair chance to get a good start in life.

The members of the Board of Education whose vision and foresight made this fine new school possible deserve the thanks of their fellow-citizens for their progressive and businesslike handling of the matter, which has had such entirely satisfactory results.

BE A PAL OF SANTA'S.

The Examiner is providing an opportunity for all citizens of Peterborough to become pals of Santa Claus this Christmas.

In most homes in Peterborough there are delightful reminders that Christmas is close at hand; the very atmosphere is fragrant with suggestions of the happy time ahead.

But there are other homes in which the near approach of Yuletide brings little hope of the joy and happiness associated usually with that season, homes where food is none too plentiful, clothes none too good, fires none too warm, homes that are battling so hard to keep the wolf of poverty and starvation from the door that there is little use thinking of Santa Claus.

It is such homes that The Examiner hopes to do something to help, and so we are calling upon the good people of Peterborough who are in a position to assist to be Santa's Pals this year to contribute toys, books, clothing, candies, food and everything else that goes into the making of a happy Christmas.

The Examiner will act as a clearing house, leaving the distribution of the gifts to the social service organizations already in the field and in touch with the families most in need of assistance.

If you have anything to donate, will you let us know as soon as possible.

Examiner trucks will call for your parcels if you desire, or you may bring them or mail them to this office if you prefer to do so.

Most citizens are able to help this movement through to success.

THE CANNED HEAT EVIL.

A few days ago provincial enforcement officers raided quarters used as a hide-out by canned heat addicts and found a condition of unspeakable filth. And in the cellar was a pile of empty heat cans that extended almost to the ceiling, it being estimated that the heap contained thousands of containers from which the "kick" had been extracted. It was hoped that Government control would put an end to the canned-heat problem, but it seemingly hasn't worked out that way. And the reason it hasn't, we have it on the word of addicts themselves, is that once a man acquires a taste for the alcholic dynamite he finds whiskey has lost its charm for him. Thus it seems that though the policy of Government control, which makes it easy to secure pure alcoholic beverages, will reduce the number of recruits to the ranks of the canned-heat army. It will not aid addicts in breaking off the vicious habit. On several occasions, the Government has interested itself in the canned-heat industry, intent upon discouraging the use of the article as a beverage. It has had the co-operation of the manufacturers, who have put a poison label on the containers, with a warning that the stuff is not for internal use, but there was mute testimony in the King street west dive a few days ago that a considerable percentage of the output falls into the hands of those who buy it for beverage purposes. It is possible to cite the prevalence of canned-heat drinking either as an argument for or against prohibitory liquor laws. Those who are in the clutches of the habit, whose self-respect is so forgotten that they squeeze the paraffin through a dirty cloth to extract its alcoholic content, are objects of pity, but most of them, we think, are beyond rehabilitation. The police can do little more than close up their hang-outs wherever they find them. The records reveal that after two or three months spent in jail or on prison farm, during which they had no opportunity of securing canned heat, these unfortunates, given their freedom, immediately started in where they left off when the police bagged them.—Hamilton Spectator.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS APATHY.

With many of the municipal elections over for another year, following the usual lack of interest on the part of the voters, newspapers are discussing the results, and especially the perennial question of how to arouse the electors to a sense of their responsibilities. This apathy has created a problem in many countries and has brought numerous suggestions by way of remedy, but it still hangs like a cloud over municipal affairs. The voters will not take the trouble to vote; inexperienced and often incapable men get into office; business is conducted in routine fashion along the well-beaten bath, but taxation and expenditures grow without bringing outstanding results by way of justification. Frequently the whole situation is dominated by a clique which is able to control in the absence of a general protest.

"In many of the contests throughout this Province," says the Chatham Daily News, "whole boards have been elected by acclamation, some of the men elected being entirely new to public service of any kind and therefore untried. In very few instances have these new men given the slightest inkling of what they intend to do or how they propose to conduct themselves. They merely asked for votes upon their reputations as business or professional men." It contends that this sort of thing is wrong and that if there is to be good municipal government more must be required than a mere promise to do one's best.

Fortunately municipal government in Canada has been generally free from scandal or other serious difficulties. It is conducted creditably, within limits, but when it comes to constructive enterprise it too often reflects the indifference shown at the polls. Yet, considered collectively, it is more important than Federal or Provincial government, especially in growing towns and cities. It has to do with the entire organized country, involves vast expenditures and determines the well-being of the people. Few realize, for example, the responsibility they are under in selecting or neglecting to select a competent Board of Education. If they did they would give more serious thought to the men or women who have to do with the moulding of the rising generation. What should be their qualifications? A Watford correspondent, writing to the Globe on this subject, says: "I believe a fair proportion should be men or women with some education. I do not think a board should be made up of men who have never attended high school and who judge teachers by their salaries." How many voters have thought this far when casting their ballots? How many know or care what the policy of a candidate for the Board of Education is? In large cities the board is guided by expert advice in selecting teachers—or, at least, is supposed to be. In other places even the principal of a school, who is responsible for results, has little or nothing to say about his staff. A school board which appreciates the importance of education would give the Principal considerab le, if not complete, authority in making recommendations, but to attain this the voters must choose the proper board.

Similarly in other branches of municipal government a knowledge of requirements, with an eye to the future, should be demanded from candidates. Many cities are paying dearly to-day for past negligence in town planning. Who can say that the future will not face a heavy bill because of lack of forethought now, not only in planning, but also in providing other services which the public is constantly demanding?

In Canada there are over 4,000 municipal governments, with more than 20,000 elected administrators holding office without adequate mandate because the people do not consider the duties of this army worthy of a few minutes of their time each year. In Ontario municipal officers administered property of an assessed valuation of $2,862,920,000 in 1927, with a debenture debt which has risen in ten years from $226,754,000 to $434,464,000. Assets involved amounted to more than $630,000,000, and liabilities more than $506,000,000. Taxes imposed and spent reached $106,000,000, of which $36,000,000 went to schools. Still Ontario's municipal government is too trifling to concern the average taxpayer!

It is with good reason the Chatham News calls for more public discussions of municipal affairs. In a Federal or Provincial election there are pre-election meetings, where the candidates define the policies which they will support. The voters go to the polls with some knowledge of what the ballot means. In municipal affairs there are many acclamations, and in contests little opportunity is given to decide between the merits of the respective candidates. A live campaign would help to bring out the electors. It is a suggestion worth following up by those who deplore municipal apathy. If there is no "issue," one can be made by the nomination of a few wide-awake candidates.—The Globe.

There is natural wonder as to what kind of a Christmas card Hon. P. J. Veniot will send the editor of the Globe.

OPPORTUNITIES

How many opportunities are missed by our waiting for them to come to us—the positive factor waiting for the negative. Opportunities are less movable than souls and wills. Why not search for them instead of waiting for them to search for us?

GOD'S MINUTE.

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus; Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: But made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men; And being found in fashion as a man. He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name.—Phil. 2:5-9.

* * *

Our Prayer to Thee, O Father, is in the name of Thy Son, Who forgave our sins in the cross. Help us by Thy Holy Spirit to separate ourselves from sin and enter into the inheritance of Thy redeemed children. May we this day give the world in spiritual blessing far more than we receive in material gain. May we realize that our safety of soul and body is in Thee, and upon Thee we can depend for all our need. May we have a genuine love for all humanity, and seek the salvation of all people. May we be of real help to someone, and may all see in us more of Christ than they can see of self.

Unto God our Father, Christ our Saviour, and the Holy Ghost, our Comforter, be all glory. Amen.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS — the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for he thought Marna had everything heart could wish — youth, beauty, wealth and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna was unhappy. She had married without loving GEORGE PAGET, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her heart. He had gone to China, but after years of separation they find that they love each other as much as ever. As the Little Flapper grows older she realizes something of the situation and worries about it. On the night of her eighteenth birthday ball, Hugh returns. She wants to warn Marna.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

IX—MARNA FAINTS

But it was too late. Marna was already coming towards them.

Her face was quite colorless, even to her lips, but in her eyes was such a look of blind joy that the Little Flapper caught her breath on a strangled sob as Marna went straight to Hugh Hubbard and held out her hand.

"I heard your voice," she said; and then again, as if she could hardly believe the truth of her own words: "I heard your voice."

The Little Flapper turned away. She felt it would be wickedness to stand there and watch that meeting, although the hall was crowded with people—but then, Biddy told herself, they did not know what she knew.

There was nothing in Hubbard's quiet greeting to mark it as anything unusual.

He just touched Marna's hand and let it go, turning at once to greet her husband, who had followed her.

"Sorry to be so late! I got detained. Well, it's good to see you both again."

Paget's hearty laugh rang out.

"Good to see you, too. You're lookin' fit and well. Not putting on flesh like I am, though—eh? And Marna? How do you think my wife looks?"

"She hasn't altered at all."

Paget let his monocle fall, and adjusted it again with a delighted chuckle.

"Just a girl still—eh?" he asked eagerly. "That's what I tell her. Doesn't look a day over twenty, does she? How do you like her with her hair shingled?, Was dead against it myself at first, but, 'pon my word, I think it suits her don'tcherknow!"

His delighted laugh rang out once more.

"And the Little Flapper! Grown up, hasn't she? Here, Biddy, come and speak to Hugh."

Biddy obeyed reluctantly.

"I have spoken to him," she said shyly. "He knew me at once, and I knew him."

She looked quickly at Marna and away again. At that moment what George Paget had said was quite true. Marna didn't look a day over twenty—she was just a girl again. And it was because Hugh Hubbard was there.

The Little Flapper knew it, and was afraid. In books happiness never seemed to come from such tragic situations.

Marna was married, and she could therefore never be anything to Hubbard, and yet, if she loved him and could look so utterly different just because he was with her, how could she ever be happy without him?

"Perhaps she doesn't really like him any more," Biddy told herself hopelessly, and tried hard to believe it.

After all, five years was a long time, and besides, she was married to George Paget, and George was such a dear.

The Little Flapper's eyes filled with tears as she looked at him and realized, more acutely than ever before, how much a dear he really was. He deserved every happiness, he was so good to all the world.

Then she looked at Hugh Hubbard, and her heart contracted with apprehension.

"Why has he come home? Oh, why has he?" she asked herself desperately.

George Paget was holding Hubbard affectionately by the arm, laughing and talking like a delighted schoolboy.

"I didn't tell Marna you were home. Wanted to surprise her. She's been a bit down in the dumps lately."

He had turned smilingly to his wife; then suddenly his cheery voice broke off in a sharp cry as, without a word or a sign, Marna suddenly swayed like a flower which is ruthlessly cut from its stem, and fell at his feet.

Hubbard was on his knees beside Marna in a flash. He raised her head gently against his arm; he laid a hand above her heart.

"It's all right—she's only fainted. Move back!" He raised angry eyes to the people crowding around them. "Move back, I say! It's the heat, that's all."

He looked at Biddy, white-faced and terror-stricken, clinging to Marna's hand, sobbing tearlessly.

"Oh, darling—darling——"

And then up at George Paget, standing like a stricken boy, his monocle dangling, his mouth half-open in terror, stammering: "Hugh—Hugh—for God's sake—" Strange how they both seemed to depend on him.

Hubbard lifted Marna in his arms. He pushed his way through the crowd of scared people and crossed the hall to Marna's own little sitting-room, kicking open the closed door with an impatient foot.

He laid her down gently on the couch by the fire, and someone brought water; someone else brought brandy. An elderly woman with kind eyes and an unfashionable frock knelt down by Marna and bathed her face with Hugh Hubbard's handkerchief dipped in the water. Presently Marna stirred faintly, and a touch of color came into her white lips.

The elderly woman looked at George Paget.

"She's all right," she said briskly. "My good man, don't stand there staring! Go and tell the band to start again. Have you never seen a woman faint before?"

George Paget adjusted his monocle with a shaking hand.

"Sure she's all right?" he asked hoarsely. "Sure it's nothing serious? Never known her do such a thing before. Do you think it was my fault? Do you think it was too much of a surprise for her—about Hugh, I mean, don'tcherknow?"

Mrs. Blair smiled at him as she might have smiled at a mischievous boy who has broken a window and who fears a thrashing.

"Nonsense! It's no one's fault," she declared. "Run away. She'll be all right in a minute. Well enough to go on dancing, I expect." She looked at the weeping Biddy. "And you go with him," she ordered; but the Little Flapper would not move.

"I'm going to stay. I love her, and she'll want me." Unconsciously she raised her tear-drowned eyes to Hugh Hubbard. "Let me stay!" she implored, as if he rather than Marna's husband had the right to deny or to give permission.

Hubbard took George Paget by the arm.

"Come along, old chap. Marna's all right."

The two men went away together, shutting the door behind them, and presently, in the distance, Biddy heard the band starting again.

Marna had raised herself on one arm, and was looking at Biddy with apologetic eyes.

"I'm so sorry. Did I frighten you? It was silly of me. I've never done such a thing before. No, please—no more brandy."

She pushed away the glass which Mrs. Blair held to her lips.

"I'm quite all right, really. I'm so sorry. Were people very upset?"

Mrs. Blair shook her head.

"They've started dancing again. I told George you'd be able to join them directly."

She rose to her feet, her stout, unfashionable figure towering above Marna.

"Do you really feel all right?" she asked, with a subtle change of tone.

"Quite all right," Marna rose to her feet. She still felt a little weak and unsteady. "Don't you wait, Mrs. Blair," she begged. "Biddy will stay with me, and I'll come in a minute."

Mrs. Blair hesitated. Her lips moved as if to say something, then she shrugged her stout shoulders and turned to the door.

"You young people all live too hard nowadays," she said bluntly. "No wonder the least thing makes you faint."

When she had gone, Marna went over to the fire, one shaking hand clutching the edge of the mantelpiece to steady herself.

Biddy followed, and put an arm round her.

"Are you sure you are all right, darling?" she whispered. "You frightened me so."

"Quite all right. It was only the heat of the room. It came on so suddenly. I was feeling ever so well, and then all at once—everything seemed to go."

She looked at Hugh Hubbard' photograph, which stood on the mantelshelf on a level with her eyes, and suddenly she gripped the Little Flapper's hand hard and whispered:

"It is true, Biddy, isn't it? He has really come home, hasn't he? I didn't just dream it, did I?"

The Little Flapper flushed scarlet and looked away, tears rushing to her eyes.

"No, darling—he really has come home," she answered gently.

And she wondered why it was that she felt suddenly very wise and grown-up, and not quite like a Little Flapper any more. But she was young, and as the night wore on and Marna seemed perfectly recovered, Biddy grew happier again.

Marna did not even dance with Hugh Hubbard. She introduced him to all the pr ttiest girls in the room, and seemed quite calm and self-possessed. George Paget followed at her heels like a troubled, faithful dog, asking every few minutes if she was quite sure she was all right.

"I want to send for a doctor," he said to the Little Flapper anxiously, "but Marna hates doctors. Do you think she looks all right? Don't you think she's very pale?"

"I don't think we need worry," the Little Flapper answered hopefully. "After all, some women are always fainting, aren't they?"

"Marna's never fainted before in her life," George Paget declared. "She's run down, that's what it is. She wants a change. I'll take her to the South of France again. It did her a lot of good before when she was seedy."

"Yes, I should. She'd like that," Biddy agreed; but she knew that nothing would induce Marna to leave London while Hugh Hubbard was there. Marna came up to them. She was smiling happily enough, but there was a terrible look of nervous train in her eyes.

"Enjoying it, Biddy dear?" she asked.

"I think it's perfect," Biddy answered.

Marna smiled and nodded.

"Yes, I think o, too," she said, and looke d across the room to where Hugh Hubbard stood.

It may have been an unintentional glance, but the Little Flapper's heart contracted.

"Why has he come home? Why has he?" she asked herself again in distress.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY YOU CAN'T READ CHARACTER FROM PHOTOGRAPHS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

You can't tell a thing about a man's character and intelligence from his picture. Every laboratory test so far made has failed to show any better results than might be obtained through pure guess work.

The experiment consists in sending out a group of photographs of men or women who are well known to the experimenter. He knows their character traits and their intelligence rating by actual measurement. The would-be judge of character by looking at pictures is asked to rate the pictures for certain definite character traits, such as intelligence, honesty, stability, etc. The results show that so far as judging character from photographs is concerned you might just as well be blindfolded, or look at the back side of the picture while you make your decisions.

In a rogues' gallery containing 37,000 pictures that the writer examined carefully he found practically every type represented, also every type and size and shape of head. There were some who bore a very marked resemblance to our presidents as well as to many other prominent public and professional men of world fame. There were many that were decidedly good looking and had a kindly expression, the type you would never associate with crime. Perhaps the most that one can say is that the vrey extreme types alone may have some significance. But even then you may be deceived.

Any one who would judge character by the facial features alone should remember that one of the wisest and best men that ever lived was an ugly, flat-nosed man called Socrates. Our own great Abraham Lincoln was no prize beauty. There is no science in the art of reading character through facial features. Every such effort is pure guess-work based on some other considerations.

Ordinarily, when we judge people by their pictures or by their features we really reverse the process. What we are doing is reading characteristics into the features, the traits that we know belong to the man. But the very next person we meet possessing the same kind of chin or mouth or whatever it is we have associated with some character trait may fool us completely.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

General List Firm On Toronto Exchange

NEW YORK, December 15. — Canadian Press. — Violent fluctuations in the high priced specialties again featured the mixed price movement in to-day's stock market. The general list showed alternate periods of weakness and strength, reflecting, in some measure, the usual week-end readjustment of speculative accounts and the struggle of opposing speculative forces for control of the price movement. Trading was only moderate in volume, indicating an absence of any widespread public participation.

Aeroplane shares were buoyant, Wright and Curtiss each soaring about 11 points Despite reports that the Radio Corporation-Victor Talking Machine merger was nearing completion, the flocks fluctuated in an erratic manner. Radio advanced 2 points to 352, broke to 335, rallied to 348 1-2, and dropped back to 342. Victor Talking Machine advanced 2 points to 144 1-2, slipped back to 137 1-2, and then bobbed up and down just above the 140 level. A. M. Byers dropped from an early high of 191 1-4 to 181 1-2, and International Nickel dropped from its record high price of 258 1-2 to 248.

Green Cananea Copper sold off nearly 4 points after yesterday's brisk advance; bus scale buying was noted in the other coppers on recurrent rumors of a further advance in red metal prices within the next month. St. Joseph's Lead advanced 3 1-2 points to a new high at 56.

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal and Pittsburgh Coal advanced 8 and 6 1-2 points respectively, to new highs. Johns Manville, Liquid Carbonic, Sears Roebuck, Goodyear, American International and Warne Bros. pictures were among the score or so issues to sell down 2 to 3 points. U. S. Steel dropped to within a fraction of last week's low, but General Motors, which broke through last week's low yesterday, received better support today.

Establishment of the highest price in several years by Chicago Great Western preferred featured the trading in the railroad shares.

Corn Offerings Scarce Chicago Prices Increase

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Corn made a prompt advance in price to-day, responsive to the bullish showing of the government crop report. Buying of corn future deliveries was on a fairly large scale and offerings were scarce. Opening ¾ to 1¼c higher, corn held near to the initial range. Wheat developed weakness, starting at ¼c off to ¼c up, and subsequently undergoing a general sag. Oats were firm. Provisions kept steady.

General List Fluctuates Trading Light at New York

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Although New International Nickel reached a new high peak at 44 on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, the issue slid back toward the close at noon to 41¾ for a net loss of ¼ of a point. Oil stocks showed more activity and the market in general was firm.

British American Oil closed at 49¾ up 1½, shortly after the opening the issue sold strong at 50. Super Petroleum advanced 3 points to 35, while Service Station gained ¾ at 53; Imperial Oil dropped ¼ to 89. B.C. Packers recovered 8 points over yesterday's severe drop and closed at 31.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN WILL HEAD BRANCH

Barclay's Bank (England) Would Form Branch In Dominion

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Robert Borden, former Premier of Canada will become president of the Canadian branch of Barclay's Bank, (England) upon its incorporation, it became known here to-day. Public notice is given in the latest issue of the Canada Gazette that application will be made at the forthcoming session of parliament for an act of incorporation. Head offices of the bank will be established in Montreal. Asked for verification of the report that he would head the new bank, Sir Robert replied: "I would rather not discuss the subject of the appointment at the present stage, as an announcement of such nature essentially should come from the executive officials on the other side."

Apart from his outstanding record in Canadian politics, Sir Robert has had much experience in the financial world. At present he is a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Eastern Trust Company. He is also interested in a number of other concerns.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

A South Porcupine report states the ore body recently encountered at Dome in the new ground some 150 feet north of any former ore shows a width of 25 feet. The body is said to have been driven on already for a length of 300 feet and is said to show free gold continuously, indicating that the body is typical of the numerous rich ore bodies which the mine revealed in its palmier days.

Interesting results are being secured by the Gordon Lebel Mines, according to the company's officials. This property adjoins the Bidgoods and Moffatt Hall in the east Kirkland Lake camp. Recent work consisted of sinking a prospect shaft on one of the more promising looking veins. This is now down some 25 feet and the management report that channel assays at this point show $19.60 over 11 feet. This vein graded $8 at surface and values increased steadily on the way down. This vein is very close to the Bidgood line and is believed to be a continuation of the sensation showing uncovered on the latter property this summer, and on which they are now sinking a shaft. If this proves to be the extension—and indications are that it is—it means that Bidgood has an ore shoot some 400 feet in length to the Gordon Lebel line— and of unknown dimensions in the other direction. The Gordon Lebel property comprises some 400 acres. Geology is typical of the area, consisting of porphyry, lamporphyry, diorite and conglomerate. Another promising lead consists of an undeveloped vein which shows a width of 60 feet on surface and carries values. This property is being handled by the former Moffatt Hall promoters, W. C. Brant & Co.

MACASSA

Following the favorable results being had by Kirkland Lake Gold on their 1,850 and 1,975 levels, we understand Macassa have decided to sink a new shaft to at least a depth of 2,000 feet. Work is slated to commence around the first of the new year and it is not likely any stations will be cut until a depth of 2,000 feet is attained, as this would appear to be their most favorable horizon.

TOWAGMAC

Our field man in Rouyn reports that diamond drilling on the bottom level of Aldermac indicated a width of 140 feet of medium grade ore. This was followed by six feet of high grade ore with the drill still in it when last reported. The important part of the high grade is that it will act as a sweetener for the lower grade material and thus give a much better general average grade. The crosscut on the 500 is being carried further following a diamond drill indication which gave good values beyond the 14 feet of six per cent. chalcopyrite already opened up on this level.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

It is expected that the old stock of International Nickel will be taken off the board around December 20th. Industrial brokers here are of the opinion that New Nickel will come in for much attention and should rally sharply following the disappearance of the old stock.

OTTAWA, Ont., December 15. Canadian Press. — Barclay's Bank (England) will make application at the next session of the Parliament of Canada, for an act to incorporate a branch in the Dominion. The bank would be capitalized at $500,000, with its head office in Montreal, Que. Public notice of this intention was given in the current issue of the Canada Gazette.

SHIPS IN PORT UNTIL SPRING

Great Lakes Season Is Officially Closed—Re-opening April 15

TRADE INCREASES

There is also an increase in the number of ships wintering in Toronto Bay. Freighters number 29, and there are six large passenger boats, a steam barge or two, and seven island ferries.

CANCELS ENGAGEMENT

In announcing at a Windsor gathering to-day that Princess Mary had cancelled an engagement to be present at exercises at a nursery there, the Dean of Windsor said:

"We only heard a short time ago that the Princess felt she could not come. She did not want you to think that there was anything seriously worse at this moment, but of course the condition of the King is very grave and she does not care to be away too long from the palace."

Princess Mary left Buckingham Palace about noon and returned an hour later in time for lunch. The Prince of Wales went to the palace shortly after 1:00 p.m., and lunched with the Queen and his sister.

VAPAUS TRIES NEW DEFENCE

Says Newspapers In English Language Are Permitted Seditious Libel

COMMUNISTS POWERFUL

SUDBURY, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Vapaus, the Finnish newspaper whose editor is facing a charge of publishing seditious libel against the royal family, in a midnight edition seeks to defend itself on the grounds that other papers, printed in the English language, have published similar statements. While a literal translation was not avilable, The Vapaus mentions a publication, London Life and The Workers, as having printed "material of the same character," and says that the reason no prosecution was directed against them is because they are published in the English language.

The reaction caused by The Vapaus editorials promises to have a far-reaching effect, in that the activities of the Red element in the north country have been emphasized. From reliable sources it was learned yesterday that the "Pioneer School" organized by the Communists has secured an alarming foothold.

STORES WILLING TO CO-OPERATE

Committee of Retail Merchants Association Interviews Local Managers

CONFORM TO PRACTICE

Indicating an amicable settlement of a situation which for a time threatened to disturb the spirit of harmony existent among Peterborough merchants, and which resulted in a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association appointing a committee to look into the matter, the following letter from Chairman T. M. Barrie of that committee to the retail merchants is self-explanatory. It points to a willingness to co-operate on the part of the Metropolitan and F. W. Woolworth Stores management for the securing of uniform closing hours of local business places. The letter reads:

"Your committee report on interviewing the present managers of Woolworth's and Metropolitan Stores they found the desire to conform to the practice instituted among merchants of this community as to the hours of closing, etc., and had only followed the precedent set by the former manager of Woolworth's who had during previous years remained open evenings two weeks before Christmas.

"Owing to the short time at their disposal now (only two days) until all the stores will be open every evening, and to the fact they had advertised being open, it was practically impossible to change the situation for this year, but are willing to go on a committee to arrange and secure a schedule for hours before holiday and the Christmas season, so as to give uniformity in hours of service, granting no special privileges to any.

"Your committee regret the premature publishing of an adverse criticism of these two stores, before they issued their report, as there was nothing to warrant the implications therein voiced, as the above statement will indicate."

GAS PLANT BY-LAW

It would be a natural question for any citizen to ask in seeking information regarding the purchase of the Gas Plant, what will the City get for the $335,000 it is asking the ratepayers to invest and what will the purchase add to my taxes.

The answer is this:

For the $335,000.00 the City of Peterborough would secure a going concern that has paid all running expenses, maintenance, and the upkeep of the plant in excellent shape and returned a profit to the Hydro Commission. The plant consists of equipment sufficient to produce about three times the gas that is at present sold, storage tanks, mains, etc., and the return to the city of a franchise granted in 1869 which is also very valuable.

If there was no gas plant in Peterborough the present site secured and the present plant, with its machinery, mains, storage tanks, etc., built, it would cost, at an estimated figure, over $616,000, and the depreciated value of the present plant, including $35,000.00 of other property which is to be handed to the City without cost is more than $395,000.00..

These estimated values have been made by a man who has been all his lifetime in the business of the manufacture of gas, and are believed to be fair and reliable. From these figures it will be seen that the Council has made it possible for the citizens of Peterborough to make an excellent business deal if they so desire, so far as values are concerned.

However, the purchase of any concern, whether by a private company or a municipality, is only good business if it is a money-making business or serves some useful purpose (in the case of a municipality) at small cost to the ratepayers.

In the case of the Gas Plant purchase, this transaction should not cost the citizens of Peterborough a cent, in fact it should be a revenue-producing investment, as shown by the following figures:

The statement furnished by the Commission of the revenue and operating expenses of the gas plant in 1928 showed after allowing for the reduction in rates made this year:

Revenue	$92,639.39
Operating expenses	59,368.64
	$33,270.75

The debentures, issued in serial form instead of with a sinking fund, and bearing 4¾ per cent. interest, would require $21,127.42 each year to pay the interest and the yearly instalment of principal. The financial result on this basis would be:

Surplus of revenue over operating expenses	$33,290.75
Interest and principal payments on debentures	21,127.42
Balance	$12,163.33

This leaves a balance of $12,163.33 to go towards replacements or improvements or other purposes, without allowing anything for the other properties included in the purchase, such as the car barns, which could be used for storing the city's street machinery and the part not so used rented to bring in some revenue.

In concluding this article, it would appear from all the facts that can be obtained from every reliable source to be approached, that the citizens would be making an excellent bargain for themselves by purchasing the property at the figure of $335,000.00, comparable with the replacement value of over $600,000.00 and the depreciated value of over $365,000.00 and the other property in the city of over $35,000.00 thrown in on the deal.

It would also appear that the terms of purchase over a period of years to be covered by serial bonds was also a fine piece of business on the part of the City Council, as it makes it possible for the plant to pay for itself without a dollar of the ratepayers' money being required in taxes.

If there is any question any ratepayers would like to ask of the City Council, the answer will be cheerfully given on application to the City Clerk.

THE RABBIT MYSTERY

As soon as school let out on Monday, I hurried down to the river bank. We boys have been holding meetings there every day, since we were little kids, in a little old shack we call our clubhouse. When we first started our club we used to meet in an old stranded houseboat, but we got in trouble once and old Judge Granbery chased us away from the river and had the houseboat torn down. We've got a good friend though, Doc Waters—he always had a liking for us boys and he got the Judge to let us hold our club meetings again, and we took this little old shack that had been built by three boys who had run away from college and started to live for themselves down on our river bank. They got enough of it before many days passed, and they decided it was much better back at college, so they deserted the shack. Then we got it. Doc Waters fixed it up for us, with a little porch around the front and side, and had a long pine table and chairs put in, around which we could hold our meetings. Believe me, we boys sure liked Doc Waters.

There were only nine of us boys left in the club now. There had been a lot more, but one thing or another made them leave the old river bank, and today we only had nine members. That's not counting the twins, Oliver and Harold Court, who are up in a fancy school in Massachusetts. They'll be back in another week, now, as they always come home for the Christmas vacation and then we'll have eleven members for about two weeks. Of course, it's nice to have as many boys as you can get in the club, but I always say it's a lot easier for me to have fewer boys, because it's always up to me to get out of all the fights and trouble we get in. Dick Ferris is our captain, but most always he comes to me to figure out things. Shadow Loomis lives up in Watertown and comes down every day in his motor boat. Jerry Moore is the biggest and roughest member in our club, but he's a real, true blue scout at that. Roy Dobel lives on the nearest farm to our town, his pop being a farmer. Bill Darby and Johnny McLarren are two old pals of mine—we used to know each other ever since before the club started, and we always stuck together. Lew Hunter is our Music Master, he plays the old battered organ which we have in our clubhouse, and we all get around him and practice singing so we can sing in the church choir on Sundays. Perry Stokes is the last member, he calls himself overseer of the clubhouse, but the other boys all call him the janitor, because he cleans up the place every day and sets things straight after we get through with our meeting.

Well, on Monday as I hurried down the river path, I heard the rattle of a motorboat on the water, and I knew Shadow Loomis was just arriving. So I went on down to the little landing to meet him. He had the boat tied already as I walked on to the landing, and as he leaped out I saw he had some shiny metal things hanging from a piece of chain.

"Hi, Hawkins," he says, "look at the fine new traps!"

"Yeah," I says, "what you goin' to do with 'em?"

"Goin' partners with Jerry Moore," he says, with a grin. "Jerry's goin' to set 'em, and we are goin' to sell the skins of all the animals we catch, and sell 'em. Then we're goin' to divide the money."

"If you get any, you mean, "I said, with a grin. "Believe me, you got to know how to coax a fox into one o' those things, and I kind o'think a fox is smarter than Jerry is, so you'd better pick out somebody else instead o'Jerry. He hasn't got any too much sense—"

"Aw, we don't expect to get any foxes," broke in Shadow, as we started to walk up to the clubhouse together. "Most likely we will get nothin' but rabbits and skunks, and the rabbits we can sell for meat and the skunks for their pelts."

"If the skunk sees you first," I said with a laugh, "you'll have to buy yourself a new suit of clothes. You know that—"

"I know," said Shadow with a frown; "but I don't think there'll be many skunks caught—most likely nothin' but rabb'ts—"

"And if the fellow whose farm you catch those rabbits on ever finds out about it," I said, "You'll have to pay him for every one you catch—"

"Aw, shucks!" says Shadow, "it ain't likely we'll catch any rabbits, Hawkins. But just for the fun of it, you know—I'd just like to see if we really can trap anything in these things."

"Most likely you won't catch anything," I told him. And with that, then, we walked up the steps and into the clubhouse. All the other boys were waiting for us, to begin the regular meeting. Jerry Moore jumped up as soon as he saw Shadow with the traps, and all of the other boys ran over, too, and listened to the two trappers telling about how they were going to set these traps and get rich by selling the animals they would catch.

Perry Stokes, however, did not seem to be interestgd in the traps. He watched for a chance to catch my eye, and motioned for me to come back in the little room where I did all my writing.

"Well," I said, "what's wrong, Perry? Your face looks like you're worried—"

"That," he says, suddenly, pointing toward my desk. And then I saw. My inkwell had been upset, and the ink had made a great big blot on the blue blotter on top of my desk.

"Golly!" I exclaimed. "How many times did I tell those guys to stay out of my writing room!"

"They didn't do it, sir," said Perry, shaking his head. "It wasn't there last night when I locked up. And I was the first one down here today. I came right in with my own key, and you are the only other boy who has a key, sir. You know that. We only have two keys to this clubhouse, sir, and for the life of me I couldn't imagine you tipping over your own inkwell and leaving it like that, all blotting up the desk-top, sir—"

"No, of course not, Perry," I said; "I wouldn't let it lay like that, smearing up everything, anyway. Now, tell me, this—do you think some stranger has been in here while we were at school?"

"What else can a fellow think, sir?" asked Perry, with big eyes.

"You were the first one down here, you say?" I asked. And as he nodded: "Well, then, Perry how did he get in? Was any window open?"

"No, sir. The door was locked, and all the windows closed. There's no way he could have got in unless he h. d broken a window. But all the windows were locked, too."

"By Jinks! That does sound funny. You don't think somebody could have borrowed your key, Perry—"

"Not a chance, ir! The key was in my pocket all the time. It's a mystery to me, sir."

"Well, how the dickens did anyone get in here, then? He couldn't come down the chimney unless he was Santy Claus, because our chimney pipe is too narrow for a cat to squeeze through."

"I'm not sayin,' sir. I was minded to tell you, only that, but what else could have upset that inkwell."

"An earthquake, maybe. But I don't seem to remember anything like that happening last night. Any earthquake that would upset that inkbottle would surely have thrown me out of my bed, and by Jinks! I slept sound all night—"

"Hey, Hawkins!" came Jerry Moore's voice, calling from the meeting room. "Come on, we're going to set the traps."

So we forgot the mystery of the upset ink bottle, and went along to watch Shadow and Jerry place the traps. Through the woods we went, stopping everywhere there seemed to be a good place to fasten the trap to a peg in the ground. Jerry knew all the different ways to hide the trap so that the animal, coming for the bait nearby, would step into it. By the time we got back to the clubhouse, it was dark, and we went home.

We got another bottle of ink the next day. We held our meeting as usual and went to look at the traps. The first one was just as we left it the day before. The second one was sprung, but nothing was in it. A hind foot of a rabbit, cut clean as a whistle, was lying a little to one side of the trap.

"That one caught something all right," says Jerry, "but it got away—look at that, cut his hind foot off."

We went on. The next trap was sprung, too, but empty. Jerry was down on his knees in an instant, and picking up something, held it up to compare with what he took from his pocket. Two rabbit feet!

"By golly, Shadow!" he exclaimed. "These traps you brought are too sharp—they cut right through, and the animal gets away. You got to get some that ain't so powerful."

"No," said Shadow, "that trap's guaranteed to catch a rabbit—"

"How's it goin' to catch 'em if it cuts their hindfoot off all the time?"

"Listen, fellas!" spoke up Bill Darby. "Maybe we can catch that rabbit whose foot was cut off—listen, here, a rabbit on three feet can't run very far—"

"Can't it, though!" exclaimed Jerry Moore. "Say, boy, you don't know rabbits. My pop told me once a rabbit what had two feet in front cut off—

"Got up on it's hind feet and danced away," broke in Bill, with a laugh which every boy joined except Jerry. I could see there might be a fight in a minute if this went on, so I said:

"Look here, if that rabbit's foot was bleeding, Jerry, why don't you track it by the blood spots—"

"Oh, boy! I never thought of that!" he exclaimed. "Sure! It will lead us right to the rabbits hole—maybe we will find a nest of 'em—"

But they didn't find a nest. No. They didn't even track any rabbit. There wasn't any blood spots to follow. Perry Stokes said most likely the crippled rabbit flew so fast he wouldn't leave a blood spot but every twenty feet or so, but nobody listened to Perry. We came upon the next trap and found it just as it had been set. Nothing had disturbed any of the others except the last one, and in this we found a struggling little brown bunny with a white cotton-tail. He was caught by the forefoot. Jerry almost fell on him, in his eagerness to get him, and the little thing squealed and began to squirm so that Jerry couldn't get hold of it, and Shadow had to finally come and take it out.

"Now, look here, Jerry," said Shadow, "see where the trap claws caught his foot? If these traps were too powerful, why, wasn't this bunny's foot cut off, too, like the others?"

"Oh, that one trap might not be as strong as the others," said Jerry.

"Let's prove it," said Shadow. And he led us back to where the nearest of the two traps were in which we had found a rabbit's foot.

"Gimme one o' those foots," he says, and Jerry reached in his pocket and handed him one.

"Now, look here," said Shadow, holding the tip of the foot just so it would be caught by the claws of the trap. He took a stick and from underneath the claws he set off the spring. The claws snapped up and caught the rabbit foot, but did not cut through. The claws held it tightly, but neatly.

"There you are!" exclaimed Shadow. "These traps are all right. Three rabbits they caught for us today, but we've only got one. What's that mean?"

"Somebody stole the other two!" exclaimed our captain.

"Sure," said Shadow, nodding; "see how clean this rabbit foot was cut off? That trap's claws couldn't make such a clean cut. No. Somebody came along and killed the rabbits they found in the trap, then cut off a hindfoot to make us believe the rabbit got away."

For a few seconds we all stood there without saying a word, watching Shadow as he took the one rabbit they had caught, and which Perry Stokes was holding. Shadow smoothed down the long ears and snuggled the creature in the flap of his topcoat.

"Well, I be doggone!" exclaimed Jerry Moore, at last. "I'd just like to see somebody doin' that when I'm around—"

"You won't," said Shadow; "trap thieves don't usually work when you're around. They sneak around when nobody's lookin' and empty your traps and then try to make you think your traps were too powerful and cut the animal's foot off, or maybe they expect us to believe the rabbit chawed his foot off to get away—"

"This foot wasn't chawed off!" broke in Jerry, holding up the other hindfoot. "Well, we got one live one, anyway, Shadow—you keep that other hindfoot and I'll keep this one—for good luck—rabbit foot's always good luck if you keep it in your pocket, you know—and maybe tomorrow we'll have good luck and catch a lot of 'em—"

"All right, Jerry," says Shadow; "but let's sell this one—we can get twenty-five cents for it, anyhow—I'll take it up and kill it and skin it—"

"Ah, no!" cried Jerry, stepping up and taking the rabbit away from Shadow. "Ah, no, Shad," he repeated, in a softer tone, "don't let's do that."

"Well, how we gonna divide the profits—?"

"Yes, but don't kill the little fella—ah, look, how cute he looks!—and how scared. He can't help himself. Say, how would you like to get caught in a trap and then get killed besides?"

"Well, for the love of Mike!" said Shadow. "How'd we ever get any meat to eat if we didn't kill it first?"

"Ain't nobody goin' to eat this little fella!" chuckled Jerry. "Look! Wait a minute, Shad, here, I can't get it for you while I'm holdin' this little fella—he might get away—but you just reach in my coat pocket and I got a dime and a couple of cents—take out fifteen cents for your profit on this little fella, and I'll take him home for my profit, and give him a good bed in a nice little box and feed him every day till his foot gets well again—"

"Well!" I exclaimed. "I'd never think you were soft-hearted, Jerry—"

"Soft-hearted!" he exclaimed. "Who's more soft-hearted than you are, I'd like to know! You couldn't kill this little bunny yourself—"

"I know it, I wouldn't want to kill him myself—"

"Well, what you want me to kill him for then? No, sir, you guys ain't goin' to get me to hurt this bunny-rab—I don't care what you all talk about. Here, Shad, reach in my pocket and get your profit—"

But Shadow smiled. He stepped up and laid his hand gently on the little rabbit's soft fur.

"No, Jerry," he said, "I don't want any profit out o' that one. It's the first catch, you know, and since you took such a liking to him from the start, why, he belongs to you. Take him home and keep him—if you can."

"Thanks, Shad!" said Jerry, talking hurriedly—"and tomorrow if we catch another one like this, he will be yours to take home and keep alive—"

"You can't keep wild rabbits alive, penned up in a coop!" broke in Bill Darby, who knows it all.

"Is 'at so?" said Jerry. "Well, you can if you know how. And do I know how! Ask me do I know how. I'll say I do, and then some. I can teach you fellas a lot you never know—you want to ask me something, sometime—"

"I'll ask you something," spoke up our captain. "Since you think you can tell us so much—who was it that took the other rabbits out of the traps and left just a hind-foot for us to find?"

Jerry stared at Dick for a moment, with a foolish look on his face. Then he grinned, as he answered: "That was smart of you, Dick, to think of that. But 'tain't fair to ask questions like that. You might as well ask me how far is up! Silly, you see. But I'll answer you that question some time—very soon. Hold me to it—'cause you'll get the answer."

And with that, then we all wended our way back to the river bank. It was getting dark, and most of the fellows went home, because Jerry and Shadow went to take the rabbit up to Jerry's barn where they were going to make a hutch for it. I had to smile as I followed Perry Stokes up the steps of the clubhouse.

"Well, Perry," I said, as I waited for him to unlock the door, "I think we're going to have a lot of fun with these two trappers, don't you?"

"May be, sir," he answered, as he turned the lock and swung the door open, "but I think we are going to have some more trouble on this river bank, sir."

"Ah, Perry," I said, "why do you always croak about trouble—"

My voice died away and I stopped dead in my tracks as I gazed at the meeting room. Two chairs had been placed close together near the cupboard in the corner, and a third chair stood on top of the two. One of our lamps had been knocked from its nail on the wall and lay in a mess of broken glass and oil on the floor. I stepped over the mess as I walked around the long table to my writing room and gazed inside. Perry had put a fresh blotter on top of my desk, after we had blotted the ink bottle upset upon it the day before, and had bought a new bottle of ink. The first thing I saw was the ink bottle open; the cork was gone. And upon the blotter, as though it had been daubed with the stopper, were two big letters—"G. G."

"By Jinks!" I exclaimed. "Look here, Perry!"

"As I was telling you, sir," came Perry's voice over my shoulder, "I think we are going to see some more excitement on this old river bank."

Which we did.

Dear Seck:
MY FUNNIEST EXPERIENCE

As I was walking the path one day,
With my dog along by my side,
He made a quick jump and he growled like a bear,
As though he had lost his guide.

I looked around to see what was wrong,
And lo! I saw afar,
A dismal object so dark and long,
A late modelled "Ford Car."

No wonder the pup was frightened,
And hastened as though he were a star,
And hastened as though he were
Because nothing will frighten a person so much,
As the late modelled "Ford Car."

Dear Seck:

Here I am again with another story and I hope it wins a prize.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

The book I like best is "Rainbow Valley," by L. M. Montgomery—the famous Canadian writer.

The main characters in the story are, Gem, Walter, Nan, Dec., Shirley and Rilla, Blythe, who live in "Ingleside," on one side of Rainbow Valley, with their father and mother, and Jerry, Faith, Karl and Una Meredith who live in the manse, with their father and Aunt Martha, on the opposite bank of the valley. The characters I like best are Jerry, Faith and Gem, because they are the leaders in all the fun.

Mr. Meredith is very absent-minded. Once he forgot that he was to attend a wedding until the wedding party came for him. He ran to the church in his carpet slippers and began to read the burial service. Quite often he forgot to go to bed at night and he never knew what his children were doing. Faith had a pet rooster who used the house quite freely and Karl had pet frogs and toads which he kept in the parlour. The Blythe children were much better behaved for they had a good mother and father.

Rainbow Valley was their play ground. Walter, who was fond of poems would sit down there and read while Gem and Jerry fished and the rest built a fire to cook the trout.

I like this book because it tells of pure, wholesome fun and there are places where you could "double up" with laughter.

Hoping anyone who reads the story will enjoy it as much as I did.

Yours fair and square,
Margaret Lancaster.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

My favorite book is called "Ann of Green Gables." It was given to me as a present. I have read it many times.

It is about a little orphan who comes to live with an old-fashioned brother and sister. Ann, as she is called, gets into many scrapes. She has a great imagination. She would imagine she was a beautiful princess. Her greatest sorrow a that she has red hair.

One of the scrapes she got into over her hair was, one day the lady had gone out, Ann had bought a bottle of black hair dye. When the lady came home she found Ann had dyed her hair not black but green.

Dear Seck:

MY FAVORITE BOOK
ROBIN HOOD

Many years ago in the time of Richard of the Lion Heart there lived in the Sherwood Forest a band of seven score outlaws who had escaped from the hands of Guy of Gisbourne, a notorious tyrnat. At their head was Robin Hood, who at one time was a rich Earl, but now had lost his land through the unjust barons.

Robin wanted to marry Marion, daughter of a good knight. Evil-minded Barons did not want this to come about so they did their best to stop them from getting married but could not stop Robin, so Marion became his wife and lived in the forest with him.

Robin Hood robbed the rich Barons and gave the spoils to the poor serfs so that he became a terror to the Robber Barons.

Robin helped collect the ransom of King Richard who had been captured by the King of Germany.

When the King heard of this he gave Robin a free pardon and asked if he would help him fight his brother John.

Robin's money gave out and he could not pay his men so they went back to the forest. Soon after Robin followed and they went back to their old ways of living.

He died by the trickery of his last enemy, who, a nun where he went to be bled (for people at the hospital that time believed in bleeding for illness), to put him in a room and let him bleed to death. When he could think of nothing else to do Robin put his horn to his mouth and blew a weak blast.

Little John, so called from his great stature, broke down the doors and got to his master's side. Robin asked for a bow and an arrow and to be buried where his arrow fell.

So Robin Hood died in this manner, and was buried where his arrow fell with only a stone to mark his grave.

Dear Seck:

I can hardly decide which one of my books is my favorite one. You said you would say "Treasure Island." I have a book of Child Play, and in the front there is 62 titles of books also a coupon to send away for three of them. In the list there is Treasure Island, and as you like it so well I think I will send for it.

Among my books I like "Little Prudy" best. She is such a funny little girl. She is always doing and saying funny things, and very often getting into trouble. Her sister Susie thinks she is always in the way, but she is only four years old, of course.

Dear Seck:

Perhaps you will have forgotten me but I have been reading your page, and it is very interesting.

I received your very nice pin for which I thank you very much. I am very proud to be a member of your club.

To-day I am going to tell you about my favorite book. The name of it is "Rose Red and Snow White." Rose Red and Snow White were two little girls. They made friends with the wild animals. One day when they were in the house there was a rap came at the door, and the little girls opened the door and a bear walked in and lay down in front of the stove. The little girls brushed the snow off him.

In the morning when they let him out he got in the door when a nail ran in him and tore off some of his fur and they saw gold shine and he ran off into the woods.

This shows how kind Rose Red and Snow White were with the bear and we could treat them just as kindly if we would only think so. This is all for this week.

Dear Seck:

Perhaps you will think I have forgotten your page but I have been sick with the cold for quite a while. However, I have been reading your page since, and I think it is very interesting. Those three wild boys from the West were certainly doing a great deal of harm to your club. Here is my story and I hope it may win a prize.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

I have read many books, but I have gotten tired of them but there is one book I have read over and over and I never seemed to get tired of it so it must be my favorite book. The name of this book is "A Dear Little Girl."

The first thing I noticed about this book that interested me was the cover. It had a green cover with a red border and a picture of a little girl counting her pennies.

The name of this little girl was Edna. One time she went to visit her Aunt Elizabeth who lived in a brick house near a house where some poor children were.

One day her aunt took her to see the children. When she came home she asked her aunt if she could do anything to help those poor children. Her aunt told her she could save her pennies and buy fancy shoes and fill them with candy. The little girl counted her pennies and found she had only five. She went to the store and asked the storekeeper for a fancy shoe. The storekeeper said they were ten cents. The little girl began to cry. The storekeeper asked her why she was crying. She said she was going to buy a fancy shoe for the poor children, but she didn't have any money. The storekeeper thought she was verykind and he gave her the fancy shoe. This shows us we should be able to do a favor for some poor children.

Well, this is the end of this story till next week.

Olive Condon.

Dear Seck:

I received your pin about a week ago. I think it is very nice. I am very glad to be a member of the club.

To-day I am writing on my favorite book.

My favorite book is Nature Stories. I like it very much because there is a nice cover on it.

There is a nice story in it which I like and it is my favorite. It is about how Mother Nature wakes her children.

First she sent the rabbit to wake the bear. The rabbit was afraid of the bear, so he jumped up and down on the ground to wake him but he could not. So there was a wind blowing and it blew a pine tree down and the bear ran after the rabbit, but he could not catch him.

I like this story very much. I hope you will like it also.

Dear Seck:

I am enclosing a two-cent stamp and wish you to send me another pin as I lost my other one. I also thought I would write a story so here it is:

MY FAVORITE BOOK

I read many books from the town library but I think the one I like best is "Partners of Chasa." It is a story of the West and of a man who, broken-hearted by his wife leaving him, set out to seek his fortune other than his homestead, and with only his young son as a companion.

Dear Seck:

MY FAVORITE BOOK

My very favorite book is the book that I got from the Seckatary Hawkins Club. It was so interesting that I wanted more chapters in the book, but I could not have that. It told me of Seckatary Hawkins. There was a story called the Chinese Coin. Perhaps Hawkins will explain to you what they are like. I was reading the book every chance I got. Another book is called "Audrey." It was very interesting, but I liked the Seckatary Hawkins book better. I will close my letter, hoping I will win another book.

Dear Seck:

I do not know what you will think of me for not writing to you. Many thanks for the birthday card you sent me. I am going to write a story and I hope it will win a prize.

MY FAVORITE BOOK
BEAUTIFUL JOE

This story is about a dog. There was a man in the country called Mr. Jenkins. He was a milkman and was very cruel. He had a dog and this dog had little puppies. Mr. Jenkins came in and killed them all but one with a fork. The next day he came in the little puppy jumped and bit him. He caught it and took an axe and cut its ears and its tail off. The dog howled and a man came in off the road and gave the man a beating. He took the dog home and gave it a good home. The man was Mr. Murray. They had five boys and one girl. They had many pets but they cared for the dog. They called it Beautiful Joe. They had three dogs called Billy, Jim, and another dog. They had a rabbit, a rat, a canary and goldfish. One night a man came when Mr. and Mrs. Murray were away and tried to burn their house down. Beautiful Joe caught him. This man was Jenkins.

Dear Seck:

I am sending my sister's name in. I have been reading the letters in the Examiner. So I am going to try for this contest.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

I think that my favorite book is "Scottie." It is a story about a collie dog. He was ugly looking but he had a very good temper. He and his brother Laddie were given away. It tells about the fun and adventures they had.

I am sure that people that love dogs would like this book. I have a dog at home called "Prince."

Dear Seck:

MY FAVORITE BOOK

I have read three very nice books lately. The names of them are: Jack's Baby, Adventures with Poor Mrs. Quack, and The Adventures of Old Man Coyote. I like the book of Old Man Coyote the best. The part of Old Man Coyote meeting the porcupine is very interesting.

Hoping this will win a prize.

Dear Seck

MY FAVORITE BOOK

The book I like the best is "David Copperfield," written by the noted English novelist, Charles Dickens. I like "David Copperfield" because it is so realistic. Parts such as "in the blacking house, Salem House and Dr. Strong's school," picture his own life when he was young. I also like the way he describes different people and things. I, for one think it is Dickens' best book.

I'm sorry these letters arrived too late for the Christmas Stocking Competition.

Dear Seck:

I am going to write another story to-day. Here it is:

CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS

On Christmas Eve the twins Mary and Bill found a hole in their stockings.

Mary said, "Santa won't want to fill a stocking with a hole in it."

So they told their mother to mend the stocking. When mended they went to bed to dream of the surprises they would find next morning in their stockings.

When they woke up there were dolls, cars, trains, oranges, candies, etc. They were happy because they got so many presents.

I hope I haven't taken up too much room.

Dear Seck:

I am still trying for a prize and having sent in two poems I am sending in a story for a change, hoping it will win one of your well praised adventure books.

CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS

It was growing late on Christmas Eve and a poor mother was rocking in her chair and watching her two ragged children hanging up their meagre, holly stockings taken off their own cold feet.

Many Christmas Eves had passed in this same dreary fashion, but they still clinged to the old tradition of having their little stockings filled, hoping some day it would come true.

At last, worn out with cold and hunger both mother and children fell fast asleep on the creaking ragged couch.

About twelve o'clock midnight the door opened softly and a neighbour accompanied by her son and many mysterious parcels came in and started filling the stockings, and departing as noiselessly as she had come.

In the early dawn the eyes of the sleepers awoke and as they rested on the over-filled stockings across from them they (the children), leaped out of bed with a cry and regardless of the cold they went to examine everything they contained.

So let us leave them amidst the joy and happiness of the "Christmas Stockings."

Jeanne L. Gray.

Dear Seck:

I am writing a story hoping to win a prize. Well, here goes, I guess I'll try my luck.

CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS

One year there were two twins about twelve years old. The boy's name was Alfred and the girl's Freda. Their parents were very wealthy. Each week the twins were given a dollar between them. So, about four weeks before Christmas they began to save their money to buy each other a present. About two weeks before Christmas a poor family moved near. There was a little girl five and a little boy five. One day as the twins were going to school they heard the poor children say that Santa Claus wasn't going to bring them anything because they were too poor. The twins felt sorry for them.

The day before Christmas Alfred and Freda went shopping. They bought enough toys to fill two stockings. The night before Christmas the twins got a ladder and climbed into the poor children's bedroom. They took a new pair of stockings from a parcel and filled them with pretty toys. Then Alfred and Freda climbed out the window and went home happy.

When the poor children woke up and found the Christmas stockings they thought Santa Claus had brought them. This made them very happy indeed.

Yours fair and square,

Here are some interesting letters from members:

Dear Seck:

Just a line to say that I received my card and pin. I guess I will tell you about some things around here.

1. We live on a farm.
2. We have three horses.
3. We have fourteen cows.
4. And two calves.
5. I have nine turkeys.
6. We have a hundred hens.
7. I have a police dog, he is four months old. He will roll over for his food.
8. We have a coolie dog and a hunter.

Would you like me to send you some good songs, and many verses. I will send you in one now.

I never see anything in about your club. My father goes hunting every year.

Well, I guess I will close now.

Yours fair and square,
Marjorie Imroy.

Dear Seck:

As I am a new member to the club this is my first letter, and I am writing to thank you for my card and pin which I think very nice. I will do my best to keep the motto "Fair and Square." I enjoy your page on Saturday nights and think the stories are good.

In looking over the names in the paper to-night I see my birthday dated July 27, which should be June 20.

Will write again but must close now.

Yours fair and square,
Jack Spargo.

Heart Trouble Hands and Feet Numb and Cold

Mrs. Wm. Fowler, Auburn, Ont., writes:—"Several years ago I was troubled with my heart and nerves, so bad, at times, my hands would become numb and cold. I took doctor's medicine, for a while, but it did me little or no good. I happened to see

A NEW YEAR'S PASSWORD

Last week our password was "Yuletide," which means the happy season that we call Christmas time today. In the old days they used to say "Yuletide" instead. In some places it is still called by that name.

Now some of our younger members could not get our last week's puzzle. So, to be fair and square, and to give all an equal chance, this week we will give the following:

—A—P—N—S—.

It is only one word, but it means a whole lot, in fact, everything there is in life, if we are fortunate to have it. There is one sure way of getting it, too, and that is by following out our motto —"Fair and Square." As you see it above, the dashes represent the missing letters. Fill in the right letters, and you will have a word that means what we are wishing you for the New Year. Now it ought to be easy. Let's see you work it out.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, December 16. Canadian Press. — The domestic and export trade in all lines of grain here yesterday was decidedly quiet but prices were unchanged. A moderate amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat flour and values were firm.

The inquiry for all lines of millfeed was good and the tone of the market was steady. Standard grades of rolled oats were in good demand.

The undertone to the butter market continued strong and prices were marked up another fraction. This was attributed to the good demand and the small supplies available. Receipts were 218 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade but prices remained about steady. Receipts were 197 boxes.

The feature of the egg trade was the weakness that developed in the market for fresh grades and values were reduced two to three cents per dozen. Storage eggs were unchanged. Receipts were 927 cases.

Potato prices were reduced two cents per bag owing to the inactive demand. Prince Edward Island whites sold at 75c and Green Mountains at 83c per 90 lbs. in bags.

Beans held firm in the face of lack of imported grades. Sales were made at $5.25 per bushel.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 15—Heavy receipts of the week, augmented by stock from off the road, pulled the good prices of the opening Monday market down to lower levels, and closed weakly. Plain and unfinished cattle sell very slowly to a poor demand and a great part of the run are made up of these inferior quality cattle. Around 800 head are still unsold and will be held next week. The closeness of the holiday is also having an adverse effect upon sales, as buyers say they have already acquired enough supplies for their kill.

A drop of 50 cents a cwt. was noticed on butchers, unless it was on some real choice, which were sold at $9.50 to $10.50 for steers and heifers. Common brough $7.50 to $8.50. Heavy steers sold between $9 and $10.

Cows declined 50 cents per cwt. with tops at $8. Good $6.75 to $7.25. Cutters and canners brought between $4 and $5.50. A quiet feeling was noticed on stockers and feeders. Some Ontario short-keep steers sold up $9 for tops. Yearlings heifers from the west $7 to $7.50.

A few sales of baby beef were made at $14 on Monday, but at the closing market choice brought between $12 and $13.

Trading was active on calves all week, but most of the veal was poor. Choice $15 to $15.50. Fancy sold at $16. Medium $13 down. Grassers $6 to $8.

Lambs prices received a severe cut, values dropping from $12 on Monday to the closing quotation of $11 for choice at the week's end. Commission men are advising their customers to hold until after the New Year.

A gain of 50 cents per cwt. was made on hogs during the week. Closing hog tickets were marked at $9.25 f.o.b. selects. Packers bids for weekend are out at $10.25, weighed off cars.

Receipts for the week: Cattle 9,696; calves 794; hogs, 4,204; sheep 4,619.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Suggestions that domestic winter wheat is now in danger of widespread damage such as witnessed last year did considerable to lift wheat prices yesterday. Trade readjustments to anticipate any surprise in the government crop report, tended likewise to make all grain values average higher.

An unexpected reduction of 55,000,000 bushels from the government November estimate of the 1928 yield of corn was generally construed last night as bullish. Otherwise, the government crop report was about as had been looked for.

Last quotations on wheat yesterday were firm, at a rise of ¼ to ½c net. Corn finished a shade to ¼c up; oats at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions, varying from 7c setback to an equal gain.

Although many wheat traders were inclined to hold off from new commitments pending issuance of the government crop figures late yesterday; special interest was taken in a report from a leading unofficial authority here that out-of-season conditions "are prevailing in United States winter wheat territory. He said that, with unusual mild temperatures, plentiful rains have been soaking the soil to an extent which may result in a serious situation should severe frost occur. This condition, he added, is similar to that which in December, 1927, brought about big injury to winter wheat east of the Mississippi.

Advices that Argentine farmers are refusing to sell wheat at current prices tended further to give an advantage at times to traders here who were friendly to an advance. Another fact which helped the bull side of the market was fair demand for wheat from North America, European purchases yesterday being estimated at 500,000 bushels. Canadian wheat exports for November were announced as having established a new top record for that month, 80,830,000 bushels compared with 58,171,000 bushels last year.

Forecasts of continued adverse weather in the corn belt likely to delay movement of the corn crop was a strengthening influence in the corn market. Besides, Argentine corn quotations were firmer, and there was some corn buying here that looked like fresh export business. Oats trade was relatively meagre.

Market Re-actionary, Favorite Issues Drop

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 15. (Canadian Press).—Violent fluctuations in the high-priced specialties featured to-day's irregular stock market. The main price tendency was upward, with buying influenced by the further easing of money rates, the decline of nearly $219,000,000 in brokers' loans and the retention of the 5 per cent. re-discount rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Except at the opening when several blocks of 5,000 to 40,000 shares changed hands, trading was relatively light in volume.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent., and dropped to 6 with loans quoted in the "outside market" as low as 5½ per cent. in the early afternoon.

Reports of merger negotiations between the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Companies furnished the only important business development of the day.

Radio was the spectacular performer in to-day's market, breaking from an early high of 340 to 326 and then rebounding to 349 for a net gain of nearly 41 points. Victor Talking Machine dropped from 140 to 135, rebounded to 150, a new high, sagged to 138½, and then rallied again to around 145. A. M. Byers opened 12 points higher at 177, fell to 171¾, and then climbed to 183½, up 18 3-8 points. International Nickel soared 18½ points to a new high at 251, and Western Union advanced 9 points to 186. Burroughs Adding Machine climbed 5 points to a new high at 229. Greene Cananea Copper and American Express sold about 7 points higher.

Rails again displayed evidence of group strength. Delaware and Hudson jumped 8 points and Erie Common, Western Maryland Common and Second Preferred, Norfolk and Western, Canadian Pacific, and New York Central sold 2 to 5 points higher.

There were several soft spots. National Tea broke 20 points. Houston Oil, which has been under pressure all week, dropped 13 points to 79. People's Gas, Motor Products, Woolworth and General Railway Signal sold down 3 to 6 points. General Motors touched another new low on the current re-action at 183½, off 3¼.

Suffered From Indigestion Was Afraid To Eat

had relieved her. I took two bottles and I will never regret the day I did as I am happy to say I can now eat anything and not be bothered with indigestion after."

ve have between 650 and 700 students." In one class, stated Mr. Kenner, it was composed of foreigners who were studying English.

"What do we teach in the school?" you may ask. "We are and will endeavor to teach precision and accuracy in the Mother tougue; to cultivate an intense love of Canada and a realization of the meaning of citizenship; we will encourage them in sports, to learn to play fairly, win modestly and lose gracefully, and we will encourage students to take part in student activities that they may learn to live better. We will also teach them ready obedience to constituted authority which is the best means of preventing juvenile delinquency and finally, we will teach them the great object of life—that to give is better than to get, that Manhood should be placed before money, and that God is higher than gold.

"In closing, I wish to say that I have no apology to make for the teaching profession, for its rewards are the greatest. We want co-operation, not sympathy. To teachers, I would say, your greatest reward comes, not in money but in a consciousness that the effect of your work will continue through generations yet unborn, long after material rewards have passed beyond recall.

Introduces Premier Ferguson

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., recalled that he had been a pupil at the old school, with the Rev. Father Phelan as a desk mate. "We, as citizens of Peterborough, have every reason to be proud of the educational system of Ontario. And we have reason to be proud of the Minister of Education, who is with us to-night. We know of his interest in the Bowmanville institution, which served so great a need and it is my pleasant duty to introduce him to you to-night."

Regarded as a Privilege

"I regard it as a privilege to come here tonight, and the people of Peterborough have a right to be proud of their achievement. I came here to say that other than people of Peterborough are proud of the manner in which educational matters are handled here, and by coming here, I wish to show not anly the approval of the department, but also to offer its enthusiastic support and hearty congratulations.

"The department of education is indeed, the most important department and it is, as well, the most interesting. To train people how to live is the fundamental purpose of education, while knowledge gained from books is important, but secondary. The teacher who looks after the personality and character of students will have little difficulty in getting them to study, as I have found on visits, even to little school houses in many parts of the province.

"I would like to tell of the work and problems of the department in getting educational facilities to those who live in the isolated districts, for it is the government's duty to see that everyone has a fair chance to prepare for mature years. No government can achieve anything unless it has an objective and unless it has a great vision of a constructive character. The improvement of the citizens leaves its mark upon the community in which they live, and so, from year to year, the courses of study are being gradually altered to meet the needs of the community. That is the idea of the vocational school.

"In carrying on a government," continued the Premier, "two sides are encountered—the material phase and the human or moral side. In the first, we think of the immense natural wealth, but in the second we must have skilled men, trained and efficient to properly handle those resources. We must make available, education in living by high standards with adequate remuneration and opportunities for all to become skilled workmen for the community."

Premier Ferguson went on to tell of his visit, while in Europe during the past year, to the headquarters of the League of Nations, and to the International Labor Council. A representative of the former had told him that the League did not expect to banish wars merely by convenants, but that by bringing together the representatives of 52 countries, it was hoped that causes of friction and irritation would be removed. Canadian representatives at the latter council, learn to appreciate Canada, where there has been no violence associated with strikes, as has been the case in the republic of the south.

Two Sides to Education.

"There is the moral or health side of a community and there is the academic side which make up the main problem of the Department of Education", said the Minister in introducing another phase of his address, dealing with special facilities being provided for those who are at a disadvantage, either through geographical situation, or through disadvantages, physical or mental. He told of the work in the north, where, by means of specially equipped coaches, the children of isolated people are educated in surprisingly successful manner; of the Boys' school at Bowmanville; the training school for backward children at Orillia, where more than 1,400 attend; the Belleville institute for the deaf and the Brantford institute for the blind.

Must Disseminate Education.

"There must be more dissemination of education if it is to be better than it is to-day," continued Premier Ferguson, "for we must bring higher education to the children of the man who is so located as to be unable to send his children away from home for further education. We hope to give more advanced courses in the lower schools and I would increase the Public school age to 15 or 16 years. A primary course for those between the ages of 7 and 11, and a higher course, including lower school work for those between 11 and 15 would enable the boys and girls residing on farms, for instance, to obtain more education without leaving home. Then I would put into the Collegiate Institute work, first year University work, I am convinced that this would be proper from the large percentage of first year casualties at Universities, and from inspecting the University courses of the Old Land."

"In conclusion, and this is for the boys and girls here present, I am going to tell the Board of Education that it shall lengthen your Christmas holidays in honor of this occasion, by closing the schools on Thursday instead of Friday before Christmas."

G. A. Gillespie.

As chairman of the Vocational Committee, G. A. Gillespie was heard with interest, following the Premier's address. He spoke of the cordial relations that existed between his committee and the Board of Education, and expressed his sincere approval of the proposed Agricultural department. He went on to congratulate the Board of Education on its excellent achievement, and in conclusion declared that the new school coming just at the right time, had made the Peterborough facilities for education equal to the best in any city in the Province.

Expressing the appreciation of the Board, and the citizens generally, for the splendid address of Premier Ferguson, J. F. Strickland, a member of the Board of Education, was heard previous to the close of the meeting. He spoke of the industry of the Building Committee, paid compliment to the Minister of Education, and extended congratulations to Chairman Fowler of the Board. He mentioned also the contractors, the architect and the building inspector who had worked in such co-ordination, and in conclusion invited an inspection of the new building.

demand and prices went up above the American or British prices. When the supply was renewed the price was again controlled by one of the outside markets and at the present time the price of bacon in England is supporting it.

Demonstration Given.

A most thorough demonstration on samples of hogs loaned by the C.P.C. was given by the speaker, in which it was clearly pointed out why the quality bacon hog is so far above the ordinary smooth fat back. A few years ago 163 million pounds of Wiltshire bacon was sent from Canada to the British market, but there is only one fifth of that amount sent over because the market has been stolen and flooded by European countries, principally Denmark.

There is considerable readjustment taking place in the efforts of all the countries of the world to raise the quality of their hogs, and Canada has a headstart of some thirty years, and that start must be maintained, urged the speaker. The exhibit of Canadian bacon at the recent International Live Stock Show in Chicago was the greatest attraction at the whole show. All the rest of the world is turning away from the production of the fat hog to the bacon types of hog.

The name wiltshire is given to a certain method of cutting the hog but the wiltshire bacon sent to the Old Country by the Canadian Packers is a special mild cured side to suit the fine taste of the modern Englishman who is more particular about his bacon than any other race on earth. The packers have spent more time and money on this cure than on any other branch of their business. It is mild salt, sweet pickle and it is not smoked until it reaches England. The best and only sides suitable for the English market are those running from 55 pounds to 65 pounds or from a hog running around 180 to 220 pounds alive. He especially mentioned that the hog must be lean as the Englishman will not eat fat pork and this also has a slow sale on the home market. The select hog should be long between the shoulder and the ham and the sides wide. The shoulder small because that is the cheapest part of the side and the belly thick. The ham should be round and smooth but not bulgy.

Selecting Best Grades

George W. Foster, Government hog grader at Kitchener, gave a lecture on the selection of the best grade hogs for market requirements. The term market requirements was said to be vague but it was of vital importance being determined not by the producer or the packer but by the final consumer. The most important solution was thrift breeding which was pointed out to be raising hogs that get a good price on marketing and which were not bad feeders. Good tips were given on improving the strain and a warning was given on the necessity of having first class sows if results were to be favourable. The lecturer went into important details describing the signs of good stock and the Yorkshire breed was recommended to be the best.

Arthur J. Reynolds, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, in a brief talk gave some of the great results to be gained from the formation of pig clubs among the boys and girls and pledged the support of his bank to such an effort.

Novel Competition

D. A. McKinnon announced a novel competition that should be of interest to all the boys in the district. A pair of pure bred small pigs will be sold at current market prices, with payment arranged to suit the boys to each of twenty boys. The boys will each raise their two pigs and bring them to the Peterborough Exhibition and show them in special competition. A prize list of one hundred and twenty-five dollars and some very valuable feed will be given as prizes. This competition is being run and managed by the C.P.C. and for further information concerning it application should be made to that firm at the local office. Mr. McKinnon also showed his willingness to co-operate with producers who desired to increase the quality of their stock by saving them on a few days order a good brew sow, often pure bred, that come frequently to the local plant. These will be sold to farmers desiring them at current market prices.

Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Provincial Zoologist, demonstrated the great loss to livestock producers by the presence of parasites in their stock. "Animal parasites are taking a tremendous toll and 65 percent of your troubles are caused through them. In all 95 percent of hogs have worms and the greatest parasite is the round worm which grows in the intestines. Of the young pigs 10 percent, of those born die of worms and the annual loss is $5,000,000. It is the young pigs that suffer because the old pigs have become immune to the worms." The speaker advocated that the sow be given a verimifuge two weeks before she was due to farrow. The substances to be used being various such as the Nema Capsule, Arecanut and Oil of Chenopodium. Two days after dosing, the sow should be washed with soap and water in order that her skin and hair be free from eggs. With the worm egg production stopped, and the sows body clean she should be moved to a pen that has been especially prepared for her to farrow in. In preparing the pen it is important that all the eggs on the floor of the pen should be removed or destroyed. This can be best done by scrubbing the floor with hot water and lye (30 gallons of hot water to 1 pound of lye).

Dr. Stevenson gave description of the many other worms that reduce the growth of livestock and the signs that make their presence known to the breeder.

Two men from the C.P.C. plant, Jack Seamore and Harry Lalave, gave a demonstration of cutting, pointing out the great waste caused by the fat on poor grade hogs and the fine results gained when a select hog is cut up.

price goes up, that is the demand greater than the supply; but when the price goes down, that is the packers playing tricks with the market." The three things that control the Canadian hog prices, the speaker said, were: The price of hogs on the American market; the domestic demand in relation to the supply; the price of bacon on the British market. Examples of how these three factors worked on the prices was given as they have influenced them during the present year. For the first four months of the year there was a lively export of hogs to the United States, which mean that American hog prices were higher than they were here or on the British market. During the next three months there were very few hogs coming to the market, and as a result the domestic supply was not sufficient to meet the

Ontario Lady Suffered from a Severe Backache

"I am very glad to be able to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills," says Mrs. Linton Robbins, Monk Road, Ont. "I have taken two boxes and I have great faith in them. I suffered with a severe Backache and Urinary Troubles. At times I was not able to do my housework, but thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills I am much better and able to do my own work. I cannot recommend them too highly." When you have Backache it is often a timely warning that the Kidneys are not working as they should. Do not delay, but make and keep the body healthy by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. For over a third of a century they have been the favorite for treating ailing Kidneys.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK

Speaking of the general health work done by the Institutes, Mrs. McMillan, of West Lorne, has this to suggest: "But when we see that there are no germs in the drinking-water, are we as particular to inquire if there are any germs of evil being instilled into the morals of our children? We need supervised noon hours. It may mean paying a teacher a higher salary, but could we pay for anything more important? Let us not be hesitant about going to the school board to see that this is done. We are concerned in this province now about pre-natal care, but we must not overlook the fact that certain prenatal care begins with building fine morals in childhood. Would we not be justified in going to the government, thirty or forty thousand strong, and asking for the removal of those things that undermine the health and the morals of the young people of our homes?"

"Something New Every Month" is suggested as an ideal for Institutes to live up to in planning the program for the twelve months, and from another source comes the idea of a contest, offering a prize for the best verses beginning with the letters: I-N-S-T-I-T-U-T-E in order; also for the best humorous story told during the refreshment hour when the social atmosphere sometimes needs brightening. An exhibit of articles of historical interest, family heirlooms, for example, with the story attached to each, makes a splendid way to fill out during the social time at the close of the business program, and if any of the members would dress in old-time costume, and give a little talk on the period to which it belongs, or some story of the life of the one who first owned and wore the dress, both interest and instruction would be stimulated.

One Institute chartered a motor bus and had an excursion party through the Niagara district during "Blossom Week," and the outing was thoroughly enjoyed. Of course it meant an early start, and a late return, but they saw the Falls illuminated, took their own dinners with them, and at a comparatively low cost had a delightful time tickets to others who were not members of the Branch were sold, so the full amount required for the bus contract was practically guaranteed before the day for the trip arrived.

A "Shower," for a needy family in a community, at the December meeting, is suggested as a practical way of securing a good basket of "Christmas Cheer," with no particular burden falling on any one, and the happy sense of feeling that the Yuletide spirit has found suitable expression will result.

CAVAN

In recent years there has been a great increase in the number of literary societies and debating clubs in rural districts and it is hoped that Institutes will use their influence to establish more.

Those who are founding a literary society should not forget that it is much easier to start anything than to keep it going. In the first enthusiasm which accompanies a new idea, people are apt to think that a society, once begun, will run by itself; but the fact is that public interest soon fades unless those in charge are continually looking ahead and planning to make their meetings lively, interesting and full of variety.

In organizing, the first meeting might take the form of a banquet with songs, recitations or games.

The most favourable moment for discussion is of course after the meal. The people or society who are putting the idea forward should have their details thoroughly in order. The chairman should state the object of the meeting and having outlined the benefits of a society such as is proposed, should call upon someone for a motion.

After the motion has been proposed and seconded, the chairman should invite a general discussion of the subject. Supposing the idea to be generally approved, he will put the motion to the meeting, and announce that the motion is carried. It is important to have a list of members as soon as possible; therefore the next step should be to pass round a paper on which those who wish to join may sign their names, while the business proceeds.

The chairman should nominate a secretary to look after this, and to keep a record of motions passed, officers elected and committees appointed.

The chairman then calls for the election of officers. The number of officers depends, of course, on the size of the association and its membership.

Responsibility should be distributed over the greatest number possible. A society run by one or two men is less likely to live and prosper than one in which each member takes his turn in office. Create as many officers as you can employ profitably and see to it that each has something to do.

The following list of officers is suggested: president; two vice-presidents; secretary; treasurer; critic.

It will not always be possible to find a man who is able and willing to be the official critic, but if such a person is available, he should be induced to act in that capacity. The critic should be a man of some influence in the community, well-educated, broad-minded, and possessed of a sense of humour. Constructive criticisms are a great help to inexperienced speakers, and they can be made interesting and amusing as well as instructive.

The officers, having been elected, the chairman now retires in favour of the new president. The latter's first duty will be to acknowledge the honour of election to office. His next will be to provide for a constitution and by-laws. For this purpose he nominates an executive committee; he may appoint the two vice-presidents and the secretary to act with him in framing a constitution, etc.; or he may think fit to appoint a special committee for this purpose alone. The constitution should contain a statement of the guiding principles of the society. The by-laws deal with rules for debate, amount of subscriptions, etc.

The officers should be elected for six months or the season when the society would hold meetings. No person should be eligible for the same office during two consecutive terms.

At the second meeting the constitution and by-laws are read and voted upon.

One of the greatest benefits of a literary or debating society is that it uncovers local talent. The committee should be constantly on the watch for those who are natural entertainers and should persuade them to help with the programme.

Any Institute who organizes and sponsors such a society is doing a great deal for the community. In every rural district there is a great deal of latent talent, and a live debating or literary society is a good way to develop it.

Where there is a community hall, it, of course, is the proper place for a literary or debating society to meet. If there is a library in the hall it is a great help.

Some subjects suggested for Debate are:

Resolved that Literature has had more influence on Life, than Life on Literature.

Resolved that the Canadian National Railway can become a Paying Concern.

Resolved that it is in the best interests of Canada to remain a part of the British Empire.

Resolved that "Transportation is Civilization."

Resolved that a society should be formed in Canada for the preservation of the English language.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Certain rules of table etiquette are too well known nowadays to bear repeating, but here are some of the fine points of table manners that no one need be ashamed not to know.

A large dinner napkin should not be completely unfolded. It should be laid across the lap with the last fold unopened.

When baked potatoes are served they should be broken in two with the fingers—not cut in two with a knife.

Thin soup such as bouillon served in a cup should be drunk. The spoon should be used only for the first taste or two.

Only one sort of food should be taken on the fork at the same time. If you have let crumbs of bread or roll drop on the tablecloth—never attempt to brush them up or otherwise collect them.

If you are passing cream pitcher, sugar dish or other small object at table do not attempt to hand it directly to the one you are helping. Place it near her on the table so that she can pick it up for herself.

If you are asked whether you prefer dark meat or light meat, whether you would prefer tea or coffee, whether you like your tea strong or weak—give a definite answer. To say, "It makes no difference," or "I am not particular," is not so satisfactory as a direct answer.

If you drop a fork or anything else at table do not attempt to pick it up for yourself. If there is a maid she will doubtless pick it up—otherwise it is best to overlook the occurrence.

FAVORITE RECIPE.

ORANGE BISCUITS

(Contributed by Mrs. B. T., Lindsay)

These are splendid, Mrs. B. T. says, for winter parties. Ingredients: 2 cups flour; 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon sugar; 2 tablespoons grated orange rind; one-third cup shortening; ¾ cup milk. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, and add orange rind. Cut in shortening. Add milk to make a dough. Toss on floured board and cut in small rounds. In the centre of each biscuit place a small lump of sugar which has been dipped in orange-juice. Bake in a hot oven. I have an electric, and at 425 degrees, 15 minutes is enough.

BAKED CORN AND CHEESE

(Contributed by L.E.M., Omemee.)

2 cups corn (drained)
1 egg (beaten)
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup milk.
Salt and pepper to taste; mix and put in buttered baking dish; cover with grated cheese and bread crumbs and bake until nicely browned.

For a change sometimes I use this without the cheese or bread crumbs and it is really good. In summer time I use fresh corn.

STANDARD CAKE

(Contributed by Mrs. F. P., Norwood)

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar (white)
2 eggs
2 cups flour
2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
¼ cup milk.
Cream butter, add sugar gradually, add the well-beaten eggs, sift flour and baking powder, then add milk. Bake in moderate oven thirty minutes. Have tins well buttered.

Icing—boiled: One cup sugar, ⅓ cup water, 1 egg white and vanilla. Boil sugar and water without string until syrup spins a thread, then pour very slowly over the stiffly beaten white of egg. Beat till smooth — add flavoring; allow to stand a few minutes before spreading.

This cake is very nice with butter icing, or coffee icing as I change the icing occasionally.

SUET PUDDING

(Contributed by Twin Sis, Madoc.)

1 cup currants
1 cup raisins
2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
2 cups suet, chopped fine
¾ cup molasses (corn or maple syrup)
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
Lemon, orange and citron peel
Mix these all together, then add 3 or 3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder, mix thoroughly.
Steam for 2 or 2½ hours in double boiler.

Sauce: 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, grated nutmeg to flavor.

Mix together and pour on it 2 or more cups boiling water.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

(Contributed by "Gary Ann." Port Hope.)

1 cup sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs (save white of one for icing)
2 tablespoons chocolate idssolved in a ¼ cup boiling water.
½ teaspoon soda in
½ cup sour milk
1½ cups flour
Level teaspoon baking powder.

Icing: 1 tablespoon chocolate, 1 cup icing sugar, butter size of walnut, teaspoon cream. Beat until foamy.

PUMPKIN MARMALADE

(Contributed by Silver Locks.)

8 pounds pumpkin
6 pounds granulated sugar
Cut pumpkin in little cubes, put sugar on it and let stand over night. Next morning cook until tender, then add juice and outside rind of 3 oranges and 3 lemons. Put through food chopper, cook a little longer and can.

FISH CREAM

(Contributed by "White Heather.")

4 ozs. scraped fish
1 oz. butter
2 ozs. bread crumbs
1 gill milk
½ gill cream
2 eggs
1 squeeze of lemon juice
Cayenne pepper and salt
Put butter and bread crumbs and fish in basin. Pour hot milk over and beat with fork till butter is melted. Season, add cream to beaten eggs and mix. Steam half an hour. Serve with white sauce.

This is delicious as a supper or luncheon dish.

WHAT IS CORRECT?

On What Page?

Mrs. M. B.—The reason I write on page three of my notepaper is because I know all I have to say will go on two pages—one and three. When writing a long letter it is correct to write straight on from page to page—not jumping from page one to three then to two and then to four. But, when the note is short, it is usual to writ it on pages one and three.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

HAVING been reading up on furniture recently, I don't think it will be amiss if I take up part of to-day's Whatnot in a discussion of periods and styles. So many people are seen examining the splendid displays in Peterborough stores, these days, evidently with a view to Christmas purchases.

* * *

Any hing I write must, of course, be my own opinion, and cannot be taken as a guide that will lead anyone into purchases of articles which would not fit in with a preconceived ideal for her home. It will at least interest the prospective purchaser to know what another thinks!

* * *

The first question to be decided is whether one will choose modern or antique-style furniture. You can find both styles in Peterborough stores.

* * *

A tour of the stores indicates, however, that the furniture on display here, as a whole, has a character all its own. And, as such, it has its recommendations.

* * *

I admire the old, but one must keep in mind the function of furniture. After all, that function is the same now as it was in past ages, to give concrete expression to our needs, to our wants and to our taste, in the age in which we live.

* * *

Insofar as our wants, desires and aims may be those of our ancestors, so we may introduce into our homes the furniture of our ancestors without any alteration, but in other cases we should differ.

* * *

We live in a mechanical age. We have harnessed all the forces of nature to our use. We differ in our home life, in our manner of living, and in our household requirements, from our ancestors. A few days ago I told in the Whatnot of the difference between the Christmas of the Peterborough pioneers and the Christmas of 1928.

* * *

Therefore, much as I like the old, and I thoroughly appreciate those who desire the old, yet I fully recognize the necessity of the new. Maybe the cult of the Antique has gone too far.

* * *

By all means let us admire the antique, by all means treasure it, by all means learn from it what it has to teach, but I don't believe in making a fetish of it. It is possible, you know, to admire furniture simply because one is told it is old—which, by the way, very often it is not.

* * *

If one is going in for old-style furniture, one should be careful to get good representations. I don't mean that some is faked, but it has none of the spirit and tradition and style of the old, and is, at the same time, minus the good characteristics of to-day's product.

* * *

If you are going to discuss period furniture, here is a table which may prove of benefit. It is the chronological history of British furnishings: Tudor (1509-1558); Elizabethan (1558-1603); Jacobean (1603-1649); Cromwellian (1649-1660); Carolean (1660-1668); William and Mary (1688-1702); Queen Anne (1702-1714) and Georgian (1714-1820). These periods include the work of Gillow, Chippendale, Heppelwhite and Sheraton.

* * *

There are two or three books in the Library, dealing with furniture and housefurnishing. If starting out in your home, or refurnishing, it will be good for you to look them over.

* * *

Have you done all your Christmas planning? Decided on the menu? Plotted out the entertainment? Reached agreement with the family on the decorations? Prepared the trimmings for the tree?

* * *

If you haven't quite finished your scheming, why not send for the Christmas helps and draw them into the discussion? There is one telling about parties, what to serve, games to play, how to brighten the table. Another gives details of making tree trimmings from old scraps of paper and empty spools and such-like. A third tells about Christmas gifts you can easily make at home between now and Christmas, and attractive packages in which to send them.

* * *

Then, perhaps the very thing for which you are looking, there is the diagram pattern for the Christmas negligee—a gift that would surely be appreciated by any woman.

* * *

There's a way in giving Christmas gifts, by the way, that is pleasant, and another that is not so nice. And in carrying these spirits into Christmastide we only show a reflection of our year-round natures.

* * *

We have all been repelled, I suppose by the person who does little acts of kindness in a rough, untutored way, as described by P.O'D. in "Imperfectly Proper," the person who announces his kindness in the voice of a bull-moose so that all can hear . . .

* * *

And one has wondered—

"When you began with so much pomp and show,
Why is the end so little and so low?"

* * *

I don't like people who talk a lot about what they do, may do, or have done; the empty vessel makes the greatest sound.

* * *

Nor do I like the kind of person described by Shakespeare—

"This is some fellow,
Who, having been praised for bluntness, doth affect
A saucy roughness, and constrains the garb,
Quite from his nature: he can't flatter, he!
An honest mind and plain—he must speak truth!"

* * *

But probably the manner of giving, as well as the gift, must be left to the individual. There's no rule, for the very reason that the act DOES reflect one's natural habit of mind.

* * *

There came to my desk this week a dispatch from New York telling about the wedding of Miss Manville and Count Bernadotte, laying stress upon the fact that the bride wore a coronet of diamonds instead of the usual orange blossoms.

* * *

Her attendants, the story continued, replaced the usual hat or cap with chaplets of myrtle leaves. But this is nothing NEW—it is a revival of a custom of ancient Greece, where the brides wore chaplets of the fragrant myrtle. It was held sacred to Venus, the goddess of love, and was symbolic of youth and beauty.

* * *

But it's an idea for you Peterborough girls who are planning your marriage for next year.

* * *

It is nice to know the new "Reading" column is so well thought of by the neighbors. I have quite a few suggestions for selections—if you have any favorite author from whom you would like me to take an extract, please let me know.

* * *

Here is a real neighborly idea that the Women's Department is sponsoring, and I commend it to your good graces.

* * *

Every Christmas there are many organizations in Peterborough that look after the cheer of those in less fortunate circumstances than the majority of people. But in many cases they are short of material with which to work.

* * *

Can't we remedy this, neighbors? Haven't we all things which we can give up for the comfort of others? Aren't there toys in every home that would brighten the life of some child?

* * *

My idea is that neighbors send or bring these things to The Examiner, or call up and The Examiner truck will call for them—and we will see that they are given to one of the organizations spreading Christmas cheer. The Examiner will not do the distributing; we believe there are sufficient organizations already looking after this in an admirable way.

* * *

My only thought is to aid these agencies by adding to their stock of Christmas cheer; to aid the people who need cheer by supplying an extra store; and to give our neighbors a new opportunity to put into practice the Christmas spirit.

* * *

A list will be made up of all the agencies engaged in this work, and parcels will be divided among them without discrimination.

* * *

And I will be glad to have those who would like toys or other cheer write to me, telling how many in the family and what ages—and will the distributing agencies send me, also, a note of the name and address to which the parcels should be sent?

* * *

We will not send out parcels to individuals; but we will gather them to be distributed by others. Will everyone help?

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1928.
(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

According to astrology this is a day of varied influences and a time to attend strictly to church or domestic affairs.

It is a time to hold communion with one's own conscience, deciding just what one's besetting weaknesses may be.

There is a sway supposed to be favorable to spiritual aspiration, and for this reason churches should be well attended.

The direction of the stars is fortunate for friendly meetings and for visiting with relatives.

Domestic conditions should be more than usually pleasant, for the Christmas spirit already is active.

The afternoon should be a time for rest and recreation, but nothing important should be begun, even in the matter of plans.

Women should benefit from this rule of the stars which is supposed to incline them toward household activities.

All the signs appear to presage a holiday season of great happiness and much traveling "back home" to see relatives.

Theatres are subject to the best planetary government which will increase their artistic achievement.

The evening is an auspicious time for music and for the associations that assure light-heartedness.

As the lunation is read there may be expected in New York and Washington a storm of unusual features and extraordinary consequences.

Exciting debates in both houses of Congress may be expected early in the new year, the seers foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is should beware of acting at cross purposes in the coming year which may be vexatious but prosperous.

Children born on this day probably will be extraordinarily gifted. The subjects of this sign may have many talents, but they should concentrate on the development of only one.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1928

Benefic aspects are strong today, according to astrology, which finds the morning most favorable to many activities on the planet Earth.

Literary and educational matters are especially well directed today which seems to promise great achievements in the intellectual world.

America is to pay especial attention to art interests in the new year which will bring a widespread appreciation of beauty.

There is a first-rate promise for those who deal in land and it seems that in several cities slums and rundown sections are to be marvelously reclaimed to loveliness.

Intense interest in agricultural problems will reflect upon the public mind in a way most beneficial to gardening.

The seers foretell that the United States will possess parks and gardens more beautiful than any in the world.

The landscape artist is to come into great demand and more than one man will make fame for himself by splendid achievements.

This is not an especially auspicious day for starting ocean journeys, but astrologers forecast much travel to America from foreign countries.

Industrial enterprises should prosper under this rule of the stars which indicates increased trend toward combinations or trusts.

Through the modern system of co-operation or chain stores there will be immense profits reaped in the new year as never before.

Money is to be obtained by those who deal in small and those who deal in large things, but between there will be much real cleverness necessary to succeed, the seers declare.

Again many changes in customs and in scale of living are prognosticated. The wealthy will attain a sumptuous standard not hitherto possible, it is predicted.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will find that the year brings them a sense of safety and security in financial affairs.

Children born on this day probably will be rather too mild and modest to succeed in their own business projects. They should make fine employees. Girls will be admirable wives and mothers.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The white linen cap of the girls of Holland is said to have inspired this type of hat, which is enjoying decided favor this winter.

Those who have wished to see a return to favor of the much trimmed hat—with flowers and feathers and bows of ribbon used in profusion—have been disappointed. For the hats of this season are really no more trimmed than those of last.

Some women seem to feel that those old-time hat burdened with trimming were generally more becoming—that they were more feminine—but if they were to try hats of that same sort on today they would, I am sure, see that such was not the case. The thirty-year-old woman remembers the hats she wore when she was twenty, and if perhaps she does not find herself looking as youthful in the new hats as in those fussier hats of a decade ago, she is inclined to lay all the blam on the hats.

Surely we have a wide variety of hats to choose from, not just a single sort of hat which we must take whether it becomes us or not. To be sure we still have the loche but it is only one of many possible sorts of hats rom which we h ve to choose.

There is omething decidedly smart about the new ricorne, and the breadth of this hat above the eyebrows—a sort of upward flar —is more becoming o som women than the downward drooping lines of the cloche ty e of hat.

There are small, round hats with narrow cuff brims turned martly back without any marked off-the-face tendency— losely tittin soft felts of the skullcap sort—toques draped in a variety of ways; and for resort wear after Christmas we shall surely see considerable interest in light-weight felt shapes with decidedly wide brims.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office

"Dear Marion:

Just a few lines to let you know how I appreciate your wonderful columns in The Examiner, a paper we have taken at home for several years. Had you been here last Monday evening when our issue did not arrive on the rural mail, you would have known how we all missed it for just one evening.

Each evening there is a genuine scramble for it—Dad wants the advertising sheets, my brother wants the front page and sports co mn, Mother has a special liking to find out about the funnies, while I want the women's page and continued story. So the paper is not together very long. I have a large notebook in which I paste all recipes and household hints.

I am enclosing a stamp along with the household help coupon as I hope I am not too late in securing the Christmas Gift suggestion folder. To show my appreciation of the helps received each day I shall forward a recipe for "Suet Pudding" which we make a great many times during the cold weather. I hope some readers will like it.

Sincerely,
"Twin Sis."

Madoc.

• • •

Your recipe is greatly appreciated, "Twin Sis," and I'm certainly glad to know our paper is so well liked in Madoc.

Dear Marion:

I do enjoy the Daily Readings very much and I for one, wish that you could have a little more space to print a larger extract from the different authors.

The readings are such a change from the inane stories that run in another part of the paper. To my mind they give the young folks a wrong impression of life. For instance the heroine and her lover stay clasped in each other's arms alone in her flat, till 4 a.m. Now in real life, such things as that cannot be done with impunity and the idea s they get that it can, leads so often to tragedy as our social workers can testify.

I have discussed the matter with several of the neighbors and they all agree and wish that you had the choosing of the stories as we feel they would be more edifying and still entertaining.

Excuse me for writing at such length but have often heard this subject discussed,

Yours sincerely,
"Mack."

• • •

It is very nice of you, "Mack" to suggest that I would do better were the choosing of stories in my hands. But, as a matter of fact, it is necessary to the well-being of a newspaper that it cater to all classes, and the stories to which you refer have a following.

If our "Daily Reading" column serves another section of readers, that is its object—and it was because I believed such a need exists that I accepted with open arms "Mariana's" suggestion.

"Dear Marion:

Do you know what I would like to do with the man who calls himself "Thinker"? Just bury the memory of him forever. There are many of his kiad in the world, and perhaps we meet and like them, until we are called to see the inside workings of their homes.

Jane's nerves have given out. They are well off. Jane has a beautiful home, pictures, music, flowers, servants, car, dresses beautifully, travels. Everyone wonders why she gave out, perhaps accuse her of selfish indulgence. A nurse is called, perhaps two of them. They soon find the trouble, a man like "Thinker" wears the title husband. Jane's mind and soul is crushed, and it is much more difficult to deal with that trouble than with the most severe physical illness.

When he signs himself "Thinker," he only thinks he is a thinker, he does think, but as you so well pointed out, he does not think logically. He does not know what he is, therefore he is an uncertain quantity, and there are no facts on which we can have any certainty, so he is no good.

Sincerely yours,
Quid Est."

• • •

Thanks for your letter, "Quid Est," It would, indeed, be terrible to have to live with a man who held ideas such as "Thinker" propounds.

"Dear Marion:

I want to congratulate you and the women in making the Women's Page so interesting. I get many useful helps out of the page each night. Although I have never written before, it was not because I did not want to, only Marion I am a very poor person to express my thoughts. As it is I feel very awkward this time as I read so many nice letters you get. No doubt you will think mine expressed funny. Oh well, I have tried anyway. I am sending the coupon for the Christmas helps and am taking this opportunity in thanking you.

Yours sincerely,
Icicle."

City.

I appreciate your letter a lot "Icicle"—but kindly thoughts such as yours should not bear a pen-name so chilly.

"Dear Marion:

Thanks so very much for the helps you sent me. I'm afraid I cannot enter my story in the contest as it is so long. My pen ran away with me. However, if you can use it at all do what you think best with it, Marion. It will likely need alterations.

I enjoyed the Whatnot in to-night's paper. What brave souls those pioneers were. Have you ever been in the old cemetery on Hilliard street, next to Nicholl's Hospital? Many of the old settlers are buried there. The stones tell their story.

Best wishes, Marion,
Oriole."

City.

• • •

I know the old cemetery well, "Oriole" and think it a disgrace to the City of Peterborough that the graves of pioneers should be so neglected. There is a stone there with the name "Rev. Marsden" on it—I have tried many times to get some information about one who must have been one of the early ministers in this district, but no one seems to have recorded anything.

They WERE hardy souls who braved the wilderness to lay Peterborough's foundations, and we should never forget them.

"Dear Marion:

I wonder how many people know why the special cut of beef called "Sirloin" is so called? I, myself, did not know until this week when reading Edward Bok's, "Perhaps-I am."

It appears that James I. of England was so delighted with some beef that was served him that he drew his sword and knighted it, "Sir Loin." Quite interesting, was it not?

Yours truly,
Reader."

City.

• • •

This is a very interesting sidelight, "Reader." I'll take a new interest in the next sirloin I see!

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy reading all the letters that are sent in for the Women's Page, and so many helps and good hints are given, that I'm sending in a favorite recipe. I hope you will publish it sometime soon.

Sincerely yours,
White Heather."

City.

• • •

It's nice of you to say you enjoy our page so well, "White Heather," and to send the recipe.

"Dear Marion:

I am sending in a coupon for some helps and must tell you how much I enjoy your page.

We have just taken your paper a short time but I have got quite a few helps from it already.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,
Yours sincerely,

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

One of the most entertaining journeys one can take is into Tarascon, where the celebrated Tartarin lived and told the famous untruths. To-day we have the section of the story entitled "Tartarin's Garden." The story is written by Alphonse Daudet, French novelist.

December 15, 1928.

My first visit to Tartarin of Tarascon has remained a never-to-be-forgotten date in my life; although quite ten or a dozen years ago, I remember it better than yesterday.

At that time the intrepid Tartarin lived in the third house on the left as the town begins, on the Avignon road. A pretty little villa in the local style, with a front garden and a balcony behind, the walls glaringly white and the venetians very green; and always about the doorsteps a brook of little Savoyard shoeblackguards playing hop-scotch, or dozing in the broad sunshine with their heads pillowed on their boxes.

Outwardly the dwelling had no remarkable features, and none would ever believe it the abode of a hero; but when you stepped inside, ye gods and little fishes! what a change! From turret to foundation stone—I mean, from cellar to garret—the whole building wore a heroic front; even so the garden.

O that garden of Tartarin's! there's not its match in Europe! Not a native tree was there—not one flower of France; nothing but exotic plants, gum trees, gourds, cottonwoods, cocoa and cacao, mangoes, bananas, palms, a baobab, nopals, cacti, Barbary figs—well, you would believe yourself in the very midst of Central Africa, ten thousand leagues away. It is but fair to say that these were none of full growth; indeed, the cocoa palms were no bigger that beet root, and the baobab (arbos gigantea—"giant tree," you know) was easily enough circumscribed by a window pot; but, notwithstanding this, it was rather a sensation for Tarascon and the townsfolk who were admitted on Sundays to the honor of contemplating Tartarin's baobab, went home choke-full of admiration.

Try to conceive my own emotion which I was bound to feel on that day of days when I crossed through this marvelous garden; and that was capped when I was ushered into the hero's sanctum.

His study, one of the lions—I should say, lions' dens—of the town, was at the end of the garden, its glass door opening right on to the baobab.

You are to picture a capacious apartment adorned with firearms and steel blades from top to bottom: all the weapons of all the countries in the wide world—carbines, rifles, blunder-busses, Corsican, Catalan, and dagger knives, Malay kreeses, revolvers with spring bayonets, Carib and flint arrows, knuckle dusters, life-preservers, Hottentot clubs, Mexican lassos,—now, can you expect me to name the rest? Upon the whole fell a fierce sunlight, which made the blades and the brass butt plate of the muskets gleam as if all the more to set you flesh creeping. Still, the beholder was soothed a little by the tame air of order and tidiness reigning over the arsenal. Everything was in place, brushed, dusted, labeled, as in a museum; from point to point the eye d sried s m obligin; little car reading:

POISONED ARROWS! DO NOT TOUCH!

LOADED! TAKE CARE, PLEAS!

If it had not been for these cautions I never should have dared venture in.

In the middle of the room was an occasional table, on which stood a decanter of rum, a siphon of soda water, a Turkish tobacco pouch, "Captain Cook's Voyages," the Indian tales of Fenimore Cooper and Gustave Aimard, stories of hunting the bear, eagle, elephant, and so on. Lastly, beside the table sat a man of between forty and forty-five, short, stout, thick-set, ruddy, with flaming eyes and a strong stubby beard; he wore flannel tights, and was in his shirt sleeves; one hand held a book, and the other brandished a very large pipe with an iron bowl cap. Whilst reading heaven only knows what startling adventure of scalp hunters, he pouted out his lower lip in a terrifying way, which gave the honest phiz of the man living placidly on his means the same impression of kindly ferocity which abounded throughout the house.

The Town of Tarascon, and the "Cap Poppers."

At the time I am telling of, Tartarin of Tarascon had not become the present-day Tartarin, the great one so popular in the whole South of France; but yet he was even then the cock of the walk at Tarascon.

Let us show whence arose this sovereignty.

In the first place you must know that everybody is shooting mad in these parts, from the greatest to the least. The chase is the local craze, and so it has ever been since the mythological times when the Tarasque, as the county dragon was called, flourished himself and his tail in the town marshes, and entertained shooting parties got up against him. So you see the passion has lasted a goodish bit.

It follows that, every Sunday morning, Tarascon flies to arms, lets loose the dogs of the hunt, and rushes out of its walls, with game bag slung and fowling piece on the shoulder, together with a hurly-burly of hounds, cracking of whips, and blowing of whistles and hunting horns. It's splendid to see! Unfortunately, there's a lack of game, an absolute dearth.

Stupid as the brute creation is, you can readily understand that, in time, it learnt some distrust.

For five leagues around about Tarascon, forms, lairs, and burrows are empty, and nestling places abandoned. You'll not find a single quail or blackbird, one little leveret, or the tiniest tit. And yet the pretty hillocks are mightily tempting, sweet smelling as they are of myrtle, lavender, and rosemary; and the fine muscatels plumped out with sweetness even into bursting, as they spread along the banks of the Rhone, are deucedly tempting too. True, true; but Tarascon lies behind all this, and Tarascon is down in the black books of the world of fur and feather. The very birds of passage have ticked it off on their guidebooks, and when the wild ducks, coming down towards the Camargue in long triangles, spy the town steeples from afar, the outermost flyers squawk out loudly:—

"Look out! There's Tarascon! Give Tarascon the go-by, duckies!"

And the flocks take a swerve.

In short, as far as game goes, there's not a specimen left in the land save one old rogue of a hare, escaped by miracle from the massacres, who is stubbornly determined to stick to it all his life! He is very well known at Tarascon, and a name has been given him. "Rapid" is what they call him. It is known that he has his form on M. Bompard's grounds—which, by the way, has doubled, ay, tripled, the value of the property—but nobody has yet managed to lay him low. At present, only two or three inveterate fellows worry themselves about him. The rest have given him up as a bad job, and old Rapid has long ago passed into the legendary world, although your Tarasconer is very slightly superstitious naturally, and would eat cock robins on toast, or the swallow, which is Our Lady's own bird, for that matter, if he could find any.

"But that won't do!" you will say. Inasmuch as game is so scarce, what can the sportsmen do every Sunday?

What can they do?

Why, goodness gracious! they go out into the real country two or three leagues from town. They gather in knots of five or six, recline tranquilly in the shade of some well, or wall, or olive tree, extract from their game bags a good-sized piece of boiled beef, raw onions, a sausage, and anchovies, and commence a next to endless snack, washed down with one of those nice Rhone wines, which sets a toper laughing and singing. After that, when thoroughly braced up, they rise, whistle the dogs to heel, set the guns on half-cock, and go "on the shoot"—another way of saying that every man plucks off his cap, "shies" it up with all his might, and pops it on the fly with No. 5, 6, or 2 shot, according to what he is loaded for.

The man who lodges most shot in his cap is hailed as king of the hunt, and stalks back triumphantly at dusk into Tarascon, with his riddled cap on the end of his gun barrel, amid any quantity of dog barks and horn blasts.

It is needless to say that cap selling is a fine business in the town. There are even some hatters who sell hunting caps ready shot, torn, and perforated for the bad shots; but the only buyer known is the chemist Bezuquet. This is dishonorable!

As a marksman at caps, Tartarin of Tarascon never had his match.

Every Sunday morning out he would march in a new cap, and back he would strut every Sunday evening with a mere thing of shreds. The loft of Baobab Villa was full of these glorious trophies. Hence all Tarascon acknowledged him as master; and as Tartarin thoroughly understood hunting, and had read all the handbooks of all possible kinds of venery, from cap popping to Burmese tiger shooting, the sportsmen constituted him their great cynegetical judge, and took him for referee and arbitrator in all their differences.

Between three and four daily, at Costecalde the gunsmith's, a stout stern pipe smoker might be seen in a green leather covered armchair in the center of the shop crammed with cap poppers, they all on foot and wrangling. This was Tartarin of Tarascon delivering judgment—Nimrod plus Solomon.

Little Eleanor O'Hara, the "Baby Eleanor" of the "Our Gang" comedies and child actress in several adult productions also, the last of these being Bebe Daniels' picture, "The Palm Beach Girl," is appearing at the Capitol Theatre in person during this week end. She is a dainty small lady whose parents travel with her and her father tells several anecdotes about her.

One of these stories has to do with Baby Eleanor and Farina, a small nigger baby with kinky braids, who takes a large part in the "Our Gang" comedies. Farina, so Mr. O'Hara declares, boasted of his father's superior attainments and said that electricity came out of the senior Farina's head when his hair was rubbed. Little Eleanor, according to her dad, wasn't to be outdone, and boasted in turn that her father had gas in his stomach.

A series of merry Christmas parties for every branch of the Young Women's Association will be the program, as usual, of the next week at the big building on Simcoe street.

Starting about the 17th of December, each class and club holds a Christmas gathering of some sort, right up until Christmas Day. There is a Christmas Gift Exchange also, where novel and pretty hand-made gifts are on sale.

This year, as in other seasons, a lighted tree will be placed on the Y.W.C.A. lawn and on Friday, the 21st, a program of carols will be given in the open air.

The children of the Shelter and the Orphanage will be entertained at a Christmas party, as has been done in other years.

Altogether, the big institution, with its many hundreds of members in various classes, does its bit nobly to keep up the Yuletide spirit in the community.

A tired editor of a small paper in the Middle Western States had waded through many pages of a lengthy story which he had promised to publish. Finally, in exasperation, he shortened the finale in a spectacular and time-saving way. It read like this:

"Von Bissell took his hat, his departure, no notice of his pursuers, a drink from the flask in his pocket, the revolver he carried with him, and finally, his life."

At the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club on Wednesday, the speaker, Professor P. G. C. Campbell of Queen's University, cited as a wonderful example of wifely devotion the energy of Queen Matilda, consort of William the Conqueror, who spent, with her handmaidens, between three and four years in devising a magnificent tapestry, two hundred and thirty feet long and two feet wide, which commemorated in careful stitching the deeds of her warlike husband up to the time of the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

The ladies who made this lengthy sewn document must have become exhausted at times. They developed a curious device called a "wiggle" by the speaker, who said that several words were cut short and this sign placed over them. It indicated that the sewer either could not spell the word or else there wasn't room for it above the picture it was meant to describe. So the women of that far-off day had their methods of getting out of difficult situations, just as modern women have.

The tapestry, as shown in lantern slides, was a wonderful piece of work. The action in some of the episodes was extraordinarily fine. The scene depicting the wrath of Harold, when compelled to swear fealty to the Norman William, was especially keen, the angry man turning away from the altar on which his oath was sworn. Again, there was a bit of humour in the "rubberers," as the Professor called them, who peeked in the crack of the door at a coronation scene.

William the Conqueror, by the way, was a cave man in his wooing. When his suit was not listened to with immediate acquiescence, he sacked and burned a city as a sign of his wrath, went to the castle where Matilda resided and, as she had spurned to his suit, took her by the hair of the head and dragged her about the room, leaving her unconscious. Nevertheless, the maiden went some time later to her father and asked to be betrothed to the unceremonious wooer. And, later on, she spent a great deal of time, as noted in immortalizing in colored wool his martial achievements.

The Women's Canadian Club is bringing the noted Canadian poet, Dr. Charles G. D. Roberts, to the city on Monday, January 14th, when he will speak in the new auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

THE OLDEST AILMENT

If you were asked what was the oldest ailment known, you might have to think for a time, and then simply make a guess.

What you have always known as rheumatism, now called arthritis, is the oldest ailment of which we have historical record; joint disorders affected men in the stone age and even the animals previous to that, says Dr. D. L. Tabern.

It is pretty definitely believed now that the majority of cases of arthritis are due to an infection of some kind.

In Great Britain, where rheumatism is so prevalent and causes so much distress and loss of time from employment, most intensive study of the cause of rheumatism is being made.

It is agreed that about 80 per cent is due to infected teeth and tonsils, 15 per cent to the intestine including gall bladder, and the other 5 per cent from other points in the body.

However after the infected teeth and tonsils are removed there are often further attacks of rheumatism, much to the distress of patient and physician.

This simply means that although the factory that is manufacturing the poison has been destroyed, the product of the factory, the poisons, are still in the body, and set up trouble in the joints and in the heart itself.

The natural treatment therefore would be, after the infectious part has been removed, to use any and every means to hurry the circulation and so remove these poisons from the system.

Accordingly, heat in various forms, electricity, and drugs which increase the circulation (especially of the lymphatic system from which the joints receive their nourishment and give up their wastes) are being used.

Another point, and it is most important, is that once the infected teeth, tonsils, or gall bladder have been removed, that in addition to the heat or drugs used, every effort should be used to move the affected parts and thus prevent stiffness; that is in cases where the X-ray shows that it would be safe to do so.

The idea then is that although rheumatism is the oldest ailment known, it is only in the last thirty years that we have learned something of its cause and how to treat it intelligently.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.
By LAURA.

Twentieth Anniversary

A "Chinese" dinner seems to be the only fitting way to celebrate the twentieth wedding anniversary. If it is possible to have the guest number eighteen and with the host and hostess, the figures twenty would stand out to commence the party.

In the centre of the table place a small ship and fill the decks with its cargo of chinese tea. The tea is packed in small silk bags of figured Chinese silk and tied with knotted Chinese cords of yllow. The bags might serve as souvenirs for the guests at the closing of the dinner.

For place card holders, wee chinamen dolls in native costume are most unique. Each holding a small yellow card bearing the name of the guest. If the names can be printed in letters made to look as much as possible like Chinese characters, it would add originality. This can be done with a fine brush for the printing of the names.

The menu would, of course, vary according to your own judgement. One dinner given for this occasion consisted of: Bird's Nest Soup, which was merely clear bouillon served in cups which were wrapped in Dennison's paper 'moss' so they really did look like nests. Next came "Pekin Chicken with Mandoun Biscuits". The chicken was broiled and on each portion were many petalled flowers cut from slices of apples, used for garnishing. With this was served sliced canndied sweet potatoes cut in flower designs; carrots cut in the same fashion; and individual pots of rice. The biscuits were quite ordinary, but had been cut with a fancy cake cutter before cooking.

Following this were "Chinese Pomegranates" which were baked apples topped with whipped cream. This was accompanied by coffee.

If there are to be a number of girls serving, possibly the daughters of the bride and bridegroom of twenty years ago, these could be quaintly gowned in Chinese costume and would add to the Chinese note of the evening.

Of course, if you didn't desire to have a dinner party, a bridge party, at which twenty couple participate, would also be fitting. China dolls could adorn each table and make the tally cards such as the place cards for the dinner, in Chinese characters. Prizes would be some piece of china, and lunch which could be entirely of a Chinese nature, would also carry out the Chinese scheme. Individual pots of rice for the luncheon, which have to be eaten with the usual Chinese cultery.

GENARO DELCARED WINNER ON FOUL

FLYWEIGHT CHAMPION DEFENDS TITLE AGAINST STEVE ROCCO

Struck Low By Opponent In Second Round of Match

BLOW UNTENTIONAL

Bout Ends With Dazzling Suddeness, Few At Ringside See Blow Land

DETROIT, MICH., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—A low blow, unintentionally delivered, brought to abrupt halt the Frankie Genaro-Steve Rocco ten-round bout for the flyweight championship of the world here last night. Genaro, the champion, was declared the winner after he had been carried to his corner after being struck during a mix-up in a neutral corner early in the second round.

The bout ended with dazing suddenness. Rocco, the Canadian champion, and out of the amateur ranks less than a year, was concentrating his attack on Genaro's body. The blow, which occurred so suddenly that few at the Ringside saw it land, dropped the champion writhing to the canvas.

FOURNIER TIES SCORE IN FINAL

Cataracts Sink Winning Tally In Overtime to Defeat Panthers 3-2

GAME FULL OF THRILLS

NIAGARA FALLS, December 15.—Canadian Press. — Last night's Canpro argument resulted in the Cataracts winning from the London Panthers by a score of 3 to 2 after ten minutes overtime. The game which was witnessed by 3000 fans was crowded with exciting moments after the first period, which was listless in spots. The Falls goal that tied the count and sent the contest into overtime came in the last minute of regular time from the stick of Rene Fournier, and was strongly disputed by the London players, but was finally allowed by Referee Ike Masters.

Jim Maloney Outslugs Mitchell In Fast Bout

BOSTON, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, outslugged Andy Mitchell of Long Beach, Cal., here last night to such an extent that Mitchell's seconds tossed in a towel in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Both fighters slugged furiously all the way, but Maloney had the better of the going in all rounds but one.

YOUNG FARMER GETS JAIL TERM

Joseph Douglas Found Guilty Of Theft in Lindsay Court

GIVEN 18 MONTHS

LINDSAY, Dec. 15.—(Special to The Examiner).—A court case of great importance to the farming community was disposed of at the General Sessions of the Peace of the County of Victoria, presided over by His Honor Judge Thompson, Senior County Judge of the County of Victoria. A young man from Fenelon Township named Joseph Douglas, was charged with the theft of a steer. The Grand Jury returned a true bill and the trial proceeded before a petit jury composed wholly of farmers selected from seven townships in Victoria and Haliburton counties. The charge was laid under Section 392 of the Criminal Code and the jury returned a verdict to the effect that Douglas was guilty of having in his possession a stray steer with his own private mark. The Judge sentenced the accused to eighteen months' determinate sentence in the Ontario Reformatory to be followed by an indeterminate sentence of six months.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

DUKES VICTORS IN OPENING TILT

Students Surprise the Toronto Canoe Club With 2 to 1 Victory

STARTS O.H.A. SEASON

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—The Ontario Hockey Association championship season started last night with the first scheduled games of the Big Four junior group, at the Arena Gardens, University of Toronto providing a surprise in the initial encounter of the twin attraction by beating Toronto Canoe Club, 2 to 1, while Marlboros mowed down Parkdale Canoe Club, 7 to 1, in the second tilt. The hockey was high-class, with the first game producing the thrills and excitement, while the second was a test of stamina for the mighty men of Marlboro, as two of their regulars were forced to retire in the opening period, leaving six players to carry on to the final bell.

The pre-season prediction that Marlboros would sweep through the Big Four series was not substantiated by the scores, and play last night for Toronto Canoe Club, who gave the Dukes a stubborn battle in the S.P.A. junior final, were checked to submission by the Varsity students, which makes three powerful clubs in the circuit. Parkdale was below expectations, unable to halt the Marlboro machine, although it was almost wrecked by injuries, but stage fright may have been the cause of their poor display, for they faced a feared foe and seemed beaten before the game was a few minutes old.

Marlboros started out in all their might, with Charlie Conacher back on right wing after an absence of several games due to an internal injury sustained in London, but the all-star six did not last long, for Convey received a deep cut on the instep and was taken to the hospital for repairs in the latter part of the first period, while Harvey Jackson, the brilliant left-winger, collapsed in the dressing-room during the first intermission, suffering from an attack of influenza. The injury and illness left Marlboros with only six players, but they proved good enough to stop the Paddlers, although they were forced to travel the remainder of the game without rests.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I'm writing this Thurs., and the weather ain't no encouragement to talk hockey. True, the boys has had a couple of workouts outdoors, but even that chance has faded, and the result is that while them bergs that has artificial ice feels like the middle of the season is approaching down this way, we can't even kid ourselves the start is in sight. They ain't no use worrying about it, Mac. Mebbe we'll get more cold weather than we can handle before long, and anyway if we don't nothing can be did about it that I can see.

Them ancient hockey articles, Mac, has the old-timers talking about the good old days, and you hear lots of guff about how the stars of 25, 30 years ago compared to present-day aces. Well, that's a tough one to answer. The game has changed a lot, and them old defence men which depended on their lifting ability to hold their jobs would be outa luck to-day when every player except the goolie has to be a rusher. At that they was plenty of good skating and clever stick-handling defence men in the old days, and birds like Mister Eddie Howell and Harold Armstrong would be assets even to modern teams. And so would cyclonic forwards like Mister Fred Whitcroft what could do everything a forward of to-day can do and probably do it a lot better than some of the boys who is yanking down big jack. Anyway them articles in The Examiner is educating a lotta the new generation to the fact that this has been a famous hockey town for many a moon, something that some of them never even guessed.

In the cash and carry major circuit, Mac, Mister Connie Smythe's Toronto Leaves has took a coupla bumps since my last, and that one from the Ottawa Senators musta hurt. It looked like King Clancy and his playmates was satisfied with a tie and wasn't even trying to cop off a win, when Mister Chabot happened to glance up at the clock long enough to lose track of a drifter from the stick of Mister Boucher, and it was all over. The serious is all bunched up, however, Mac, and anything can happen in the next 2, 3 weeks. Our Mister Irvin Bailey continues to turn in a good card, and them 2 points he picked up in ole New Yawk the other nite will help to keep him up with the leaders in the scoring list. Mister Smythe knows his groceries, of course, but from what I know of Mister Bailey, the former Peterborough right-winger would go even better if worked oftener with Mister Lowery and Mister Horne instead of on the other shift.

That battle at the Amateur Athletic Union meeting, Mac, didn't bring much credit to nobody. hey was a lotta things happened over in Holland last summer and some of them was poor advertising for this country. In fact, if it hadn't been for the fleet feet of Mister Percy Williams, the Vancouver school boy, and the good work of the Canadian girls the whole affair woulda been a washout so far as Canada was concerned. Next time we oughta send more athletes and fewer debaters. They ain't no points given for arguments in the committee room, and it might be just as well in future to cut down the number of officials and let a few more athletes get to the games. Certainly it woulda been better for Canada this year if some of the moguls in charge of the Olympic team hadda missed the boat.

Well, Mac, I'm getting my Christmas shopping in shape—that is, I've decided some of the things what I ain't going to give, and now all I got to do is decide what to give and then go out and get them, if I can secure enough jack to finance the thing. Long about the end of next week, I figger, I may be ready to look round a bit, and then a week from Mon. I oughta get everything cleaned up. That's me, Mac, system all over. No rush, no waste motion—just pick 'em out and go and get 'em.

Well, I suppose the customers will be busy on the same job, so far be it from me to delay them. I'll just take the parachute now and leave them to it.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F. D. C.

Peterborough's intermediate champions of 1906 moved up into the senior series of the O.H.A. next season and found themselves grouped with the Argonauts and Marlboros of Toronto, the 14th Regiment of Kingston and Midland. Although the Petes made a splendid showing in higher ranks their chances were affected first by injuries to players and secondly by an arrangement by which Kingston and Midland played a sudden death game at Toronto, instead of two home and home games. Two wins went to the victorious team, and Kingston nosed out the Petes who only broke even in home and home games with the Midland team. Had the Kingston team had to make the trip to Midland they would undoubtedly have suffered the same fate for the Northerners were invincible on their own ice.

Of the championship team of 1906, Wasson broke his collar bone at the beginning of the next season, and was out of the game, as was Chris Graham who hurt his knee and missed the earlier games. Later Fred Whitcroft was snapped up by the famous Kenora Thistles, the sensational Stanley Cup team and went west to play professional hockey.

New recruits to the team were Lang, goalkeeper, and Walter Miller, forward of the Charlotte street City League team. Miller later made the jump into professional company.

One of the outstanding games played by the Petes in 1907 was the battle here with 14th Regiment of Kingston on January 11, which was won by the homesters 7 goals to 3. The Kingston line up included the famous George Richardson, ex-Queen's star and one of the greatest wing players of all time, who was destined to give up his life in the Great War, where he was an officer with the 2nd Battalion. Geo. Van Horne, now a popular member of the O.H.A. executive and "Senator" Jack Powell, who is generally found hooked up in some capacity with Kingston teams of the present day, usually as a coach or trainer.

Peterborough played brilliant hockey to win this game. Early in the battle Richardson who was well looked after by the young 'Jakie" Moore, took a pass from Potter and put the visitors in front, but before half time the Petes had scored four times, Whitcroft getting three of the counters. They ran in three more in a row early in the second half and then Kingston soldiers got the last two counters of the game.

One of the features of this tightly-fought battle was the bumping duel that developed between Geo. Van Horne of the visitors and Rollie Glover, which both men talk of yet when they get together at O.H.A. meetings. Van Horne was much the heavier of the two but honors were about even when they clashed, which happened every few minutes.

Kitchener Scores Three In Last Five Minutes to Win 3-2

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—The Kitchener Flying Dutchmen registered their second consecutive victory over the Detroit Olympics last night in veritable Frank Merriwell style, for with only five minutes of play remaining, the homesters were trailing by 2 to 0, and the visitors' sound defensive game gave apparent assurance of a Detroit win, but the most thrilling offensive seen here in many a long year turned that seeming defeat into glorious 3 to 2 victory for the Dutchmen, with the winning goal coming with only 25 seconds to go.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History
—with Marvelous New Bodies by Fisher!

Only a short time has elapsed since the Outstanding Chevrolet was introduced—but already it has swept on to one of the greatest triumphs in automotive history. Never before has the public so overwhelmingly endorsed a new Chevrolet—for never before has there been provided, at prices within the reach of everyone, such a generous measure of beauty, comfort, performance and dependability!

The marvelous new bodies by Fisher—longer, lower and roomier, with all closed models equipped with adjustable front seats that may be moved forward and back to suit the comfort of the driver—represent the most original contribution that Chevrolet has ever made to motor car comfort and beauty. The hood streams back from the voguish new chromium plated radiator in straight, unbroken lines and blends flawlessly into the body contours. Body mouldings divide at the cowl line—giving a paneled effect to the cowl and hood that is both distinctive and pleasing. Concave front pillars lengthen and smarten the profile. And distinctive new Ternstedt hardware lends a final touch of custom elegance.

The great new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine was developed from more than a hundred motors that were built and tested over a period of four years by Chevrolet engineers. Not only does it develop 32% more power than any previous Chevrolet engine . . not only is it sensationally faster and swifter in acceleration—but it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that are almost unbelievable in a low-priced automobile. It idles along in the traffic line with remarkable ease and quietness. It leaps ahead at the signal light like an arrow from a bow. It takes the hills, no matter how steep, with truly astounding ease. And it delivers this amazing performance with an economy averaging better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

But sensational as this performance is—it is matched in impressiveness by the marvelous comfort and handling ease that have been engineered into the chassis. The heavy, rigid, channel steel frame extends beyond the entire length of the body and rests on four semi-elliptic shock-absorber springs—set parallel with the road. The front springs are 36 inches long and the rear springs 54 inches—while all spring shackles are equipped with Alemite fittings. The steering mechanism is designed with ball bearings throughout, with complete lubrication at all points of contact. Brake pedals are correctly spaced for easy and safe manipulation. The two-beam headlights are controlled by a foot button located on the floor boards. And a slender, flat-type steering wheel fits snugly into the hands.

FIVE TEAMS ARE LINED UP

Age Limit Set At Seventeen Years For Juvenile League

OFFICERS ELECTED

The first steps were taken last evening to draw up a City Juvenile Hockey League at a meeting held in the Raybestos Company's office. Representatives were present from five teams as follows: Tigers, by H. Jay; Canuck Hockey Club, by William Coursey; South End Beavers, by William Murphy; West End Maroons, by W. Rogers, and East City Maple Leafs by R. Brady. It is likely that a sixth team will be secured, rounding out the League nicely.

It was decided to make the age limit under 17 years and this league will give all the hockey players at that age a chance to play in well organized hockey games. It is probable that the games will be played at the Sacred Heart rink and the Cognawaga rink.

The following officers were enthusiastically elected by the boys to run the affairs of the league: President, William Kay; secretary-treasurer, H. Corrin, and an executive consisting of D. Neary, William Prindible and M. Bredin. All these are actively interested in the development of athletics among the boys of the city, and all those present were certain that the league management would be in good hands.

The next meeting is called for 6.30 Monday evening in the Raybestos plant and it is expected that final arrangements will be made for a successful season.

CANUCKS FORM TWO LEAGUES

Club Will Also Enter Two Teams In City Hockey League

DOUBLE GROUPS

Two teams will be entered in the city hockey leagues by the Canuck club of the Sacred Heart Parish this year. William Meagher to take charge of the junior team, while William Coursey will manage the juvenile entry. A parish league was also organized composed of four senior and four juvenile teams, the games to be played on Friday evenings of each week throughout the season.

Arrangements were also made to provide a trophy for the senior group. Following the business regarding the formation of the hockey leagues, officers for the year were elected as follows.

Honorary Presidents—Rev. J. J. O'-Brien and Rev. J. C. Maloney.
President—Oswald Corkey.
Vice-President—Bernard Jones.
Secretary—Michael Murray.
Treasurer—James Fleming.
Counsellors—Joseph Paquette, Leo Jones and Jack Hefferman.

JOHN GILBERT AT THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY, IN HIS LATEST PICTURE HIT, "FOUR WALLS." SIX MONTHS ON BROADWAY—UNDERWORLD STORY, WITH JOAN CRAWFORD.

What's the first thing a man would notice on returning to civilization after an absence of four years?

John Gilbert supplies the answer in his new starring picture, "Four Walls," which come Monday to the Capitol Theatre. Gilbert plays the role of an ex-convict who returns to the East Side of New York after four years in Sing Sing.

On the day he is released, he hurries directly to his home in the Ghetto where his mother (Vera Gordon) and Bertha (Carmel Myers) are waiting for him. After greeting them Gilbert stands at the window of the apartment and looks down on the busy streets below him.

"Gee, Ma," says Gilbert, "skirts have gotten shorter and legs longer, haven't they?"

It is but such human touches as this that Director William Nigh has made "Four Walls," one of the most human pictures that Gilbert has ever brought to the screen. Joan Crawford has the leading feminine role, while the cast includes Carmel Myers, Vera Gordon, Louis Natheaux, Robert Emmett O'Connor and others of note.

AT THE REGENT.

Newsreel Man and Camera make 'We' Combination Like Lindbergh and Plane—Sharing of Dangers in Search of Good Shots Develops the Feeling of Camaraderie Shown in 'The News Parade.'

The "We" of Lindbergh and his airplane has a counterpart in the "We" of the newsreel cameraman and his camera. Numerous illustrations of the newsreel man's love of his camera are included in "The News Parade," an adventurous comedy co-featuring Sally Phipps and Nick Stuart, which opens a the Regent Theatre on Monday.

In casting about for a new story, Director David Butler and William Conselman hit upon the original idea of making a newsreel cameraman the hero. Although little known to the public these intrepid camera reporters live a life packed with adventure and romance. In conference with Truman H. Talley, director-in-chief of Fox News, Butler and Conselman came upon one incident after another that added thrills and interest to their picture.

A newsreel cameraman takes chances. Anyone looking at the visual presentations of big events of the world would realize the fact at once. Filming airplane bombing scenes from high altitudes, with the projectiles passing within a few inches of the lens; turning the crank far aloft on great sky-scraper structures; getting close to flood and fire havoc and countless other death defying stunts, are all part of the day's work to these fearless men.

Nick Stuart, who plays the role of an adventurous cameraman in "The News Parade" can bear witness that it is a precarious vocation. This young man was chosen because of his daring, in addition to his athletic prowess and strength. The first dangerous sequence was taken from the roof coping of one of New York's largest hotels. Here Stuart was obliged to swing over the edge, gripping the inner coping with his hands while his feet dangled thirty two stories above the street. Russell Muth, a star cameraman for Fox News, who acted as technical director as well as playing a small role in the production, caught Stuart as he started slipping. It even made him feel a bit squeamish.

Another thrilling scene was shot from the twenty-third floor, where two planks were projected out about ten feet from the window ledge where Stuart and Muth straddle their airy perches in the act of shooting an airplane view of New York.

At Curtiss Field, Long Island, Stuart took a parachute jump from a plane with a hand camera strapped to his chest, and at another time rode a speeding fire truck down Broadway, grinding away at his camera, which was securely lashed to the ladders. Oddly enough neither of these experiences gave Nick the thrill that he got in hanging over the hotel roof. It was a tough role and he has managed to extract the maximum from every scene in which he appears.

DEPUTY URGES UNIFICATION OF PLANE BUILDING

G. J. Desbarats Tells Conference Certain Standards Of Aircraft Worthiness Needed

CONVENTION DRAWN UP

Countries Should Import Aircraft on Equality With Own Standards

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Members of the International Civil Aeronautics conference were urged yesterday by G. J. Desbarats, Canadian Deputy Minister of National Defense, to work toward unification of aircraft standards.

Mr. Desbarats pointed out that after the Great War an international air convention was drawn up, specifying certain standards of air worthiness of aircraft, and added that the United States has not ratified this convention but had formed its own air worthiness requirements.

Inporting Countries

In countries such as Canada which import considerable numbers of aircraft, he said this variance in standards of air worthiness has resulted in some confusion. "It is very desirable therefore," he added, "that these imported aircraft and aircraft parts should be built to the same standards as the aircraft actually manufactured in the importing country."

Henry Ford, technical adviser to the American delegation to the conference, was introduced from the floor to-day when the plenary session convened.

VIEWS ON SPORT

There are five teams lined up already for the Juvenile City Hockey League and the boys elected their executive at a meeting last night.

The young players in the city have already organized five teams and have prepared the way for an early start by electing their executive. Bill Kay was their unanimous choice for president.

* * * * * * *

The Church Hockey League also had an organization meeting at the "Y" last evening. With the Church and the City Leagues operating every boy in the city who likes to play will have ample opportunity to mix-in the game under the best conditions.

* * * * * * *

Leigh Glover, the hard tackling outside wing of the P.C.I. rugby team, was presented with Principal Kenner's prize for the all around best boy at the school showing that he possesses the same keenness with his studies as he did for rugby. Leigh was one of the outstanding tacklers on the team and the manner in which he downed the big fellows as they tore around his end was a joy to see.

* * * * * * *

With Max Swanson as coach of the senior ball team and a strong executive working with him things look promising for the Petes next summer. The feeling was expressed that all young players desiring to try out with the team would receive all the help that good coaching could give. It is rumored that the other teams in the Central League are bolstering up their teams with some imported players but if some of the good young material in the city turned out with the Petes, a team that could be anything in the league, would soon be the result.

* * * * * * *

The O.H.A. season officially got underway last night with games in Windsor and Toronto. In only a few districts were artificial rinks are not operated have the players yet had a chance on their skates and this is said to apply even to Northern Ontario were a mild season has as yet prevailed. The Petes have no doubt been lucky and have two workouts under their belts.

* * * * * * *

Great reports come out of Northern Ontario and it is predicted that the teams up there will be stronger this year than they have been for many years. Dr. Lou Hudson is practising with the Timmins team.

The highest bridge in the world is the railway bridge which crosses the gorge of the Zambesi just below the famous Victoria Falls in South Africa. It is 400 feet above the water.

ATTEMPT MADE TO RECONCILE TWO REPUBLICS

Pan-American Conference On Abritration Offers Services As Mediator

KELLOGG CHAIRMAN

Views Are Exchanged By League of Nations, Telling Objectives

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Determined to avert war between Bolivia and Paraguay, if possible, the Pan-American conference on arbitration yesterday offered its services to the two countries to act as a mediator in their frontier dispute.

The conference reached this decision during its day's deliberations by voting to maintain the committee which it already had set up to devise the most practical way of effecting a reconciliation between the two South American countries. Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, the conference's chairman, then notified the Bolivian and Paraguayan governments of the parley's action.

Notes Exchanged

LUGANO, Switzerland, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—The secretariat of the League of Nations last night prepared communications to Paraguay and Bolivia, each containing the other's notes on their border dispute received thus far by the League council.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SUSIE'S SWING.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Is Uncle Wiggily at home?" asked Susie Littletail politely one Saturday morning as she tapped on the door of the rabbit gentleman's hollow stump bungalow.

"Why, yes, I think so?" asked Nurse Jane who came in answer to Susie's tapping. "What are you laughing at?" the muskrat lady housekeeper wanted to know for she saw a smile on Susie's face.

"If you please, Nurse Jane," said Susie, "I can't help it and I don't mean to be rude, but you've got some flour on the end of your black nose and it looks so funny—oh, dear!"

Susie didn't want to, but she burst out laughing. However, Nurse Jane didn't mind being laughed at when she had flour on her nose from baking a cabbage dumpling for Uncle Wiggily.

Susie had the first swing.

So she just wiped the flour off and invited Susie in. Uncle Wiggily was just going out but he stopped when he saw his little rabbit girl friend Susie and asked:

"Did you come to go adventuring with me?"

"No, thank you," Susie answered, "I came over to see if you would make me a swing. I've got a rope and a board but I'm not tall enough to make the swing."

"A swing!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "A swing in winter when it's so near Christmas! Why, you'd freeze, Susie dear, if I made you a swing out under the apple tree. Wait until summer comes again."

"Oh, I don't mean a swing under the apple tree, though that is very nice," spoke the little rabbit girl. "What I want is a winter swing and you can put one up in our attic if you like and I can have my girl friends in and we'll be ever so much obliged."

"Oh, a swing in your attic! That's different!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "Yes, that can be done, if you have the rope and board. And it will be just the place for a winter swing. I'll be right over, Susie, and put it up for you."

In the Littletail rabbit home, which was almost next door to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, there was a large, open attic where Sammie, Susie and their chums often played games on a rainy Saturday afternoon or on one when it snowed too hard to be out of doors.

As Susie has said, she had the rope and board all ready for the swing and it did not take Uncle Wiggily long to fasten it up. Then he sat in it himself to try it to be sure it was safe and then Susie had the first swing. Uncle Wiggily gave her a hard push and she went so high that she almost touched the inside roof of the attic.

By this time word had spread around Woodland and many animal girls came to see Susie's new attic swing. Sammie came also, though of course Sammie wasn't a girl, being the brother of Susie.

"Are you going to let Sammie use your swing?" asked Jennie Chipmunk of Susie when the girls saw Sammie coming up the stairs.

"If he wants one swing he can have it," said Susie. But Sammie did not intend to play with girls. He wanted a swing, though, so this is what he said:

"I think, Susie, you ought to let me try that swing to be sure it is safe for you girls."

"But Uncle Wiggily tried the swing for us," mewed Kittie Kat. "And he is bigger and heavier than you are."

"That's all right," spoke Sammie. "But Uncle Wiggily doesn't know how to swing as many different ways as I do. So I'll try the swing in a lot of different ways and if it's safe then you girls can take turns with Susie." So Sammie got in the swing and went to and fro, faster and faster and higher and higher. Then he stood up. Then he kneeled. Then he got in it backward and he swung upside down and still that swing didn't break and it seemed very safe.

Uncle Wiggily had gone down stairs when Sammie said he was going to "loop the loop." He meant he was going to try to swing all around the beam on which the swing rope was tied. Higher and higher Sammie pumped himself, until, all at once, over the beam he went, high up toward the roof. And there his little trousers caught on a nail and there Sammie hung! The swing came down and nearly hit Susie on the nose but Sammie was hung by his knickerbockers on the nail in the floor.

Dear me! Such a screaming time among the girls as there was until Uncle Wiggily came running back up the attic stairs. Then he got a step-ladder and lifted Sammie down and Sammie said:

"I guess your swing is safe, Susie. Go ahead! Have your fun!" So the girls and Susie took turns and had a good time and Sammie went out to play in the snow after his mother had sewed up the hole made by the nail. So everything was all right.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE

When in the house there's so much laughter
You always have a headache after,
And so much romping up and down
It seems the noisiest place in town,
When books have fallen, skates have clattered,
Until your nerves are nearly shattered,
When all worn out with children's fun,
Then something really should be done.

When up and down the house they tear it
Until it seems you just can't bear it,
When you are weary of the noise
Of singing girls and shouting boys,
Yes, when you have to reprimand them
Until it seems you just can't stand them,
Then something really should be done—
But not to them, for you're the one.

LEIGH GLOVER IS WINNER OF KENNER PRIZE

Annual Commencement Exercises Of Collegiate Institute Held in School Auditorium

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED

Dorothy Bamforth Is Winner Of Prize Donated By Miss Faint For French Prose

Leigh Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terrot H. Glover, was the winner of Principal Kenner's prize, an annual award to the boy scholar of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute who stands highest during the scholastic year, as judged from four angles — character, scholarship, activity or interest in sports, and leadership.

The presentation of this prize, which was only one incident in the program, was outstanding, as it is every year, on account of the interest taken in the Principal's choice, was made at yesterday afternoon's annual commencement exercises of the Collegiate Institute, held for the first time in the new school auditorium. These exercises were peculiar in one way, in that they were held before the official opening of the hall, which took place last night in very formal fashion.

The auditorium, which has a seating capacity of about eight hundred and sixty-five, held over seven hundred people yesterday afternoon, including parents, teachers and scholars the latter taking part, en masse, in the school choruses which enlivened the speech-making, the majority of the girls in their trim middy costumes of dark skirts, white blouses, and bright ties.

On the platform were seated Principal H. R. H. Kenner, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, E. B. Fowler, Dr. J. J. Craig, F. H. Dawson, and Inspector A. Mowat. Mr. Fowler presided and made the announcements of a very enjoyable program of speeches, presentations, and musical selections.

Mr. Fowler, who is chairman of the Board of Education, in a brief opening address, spoke of his pleasure in presiding over the first commencement exercises in the new assembly hall, "which has been the dream of every member of the Board for many years past." He spoke of the facilities afforded Mr. Kenner and his staff by the new addition to the building, and said he was delighted with the progress which had been during the year in spite of many handicaps. He referred in turn to the prowess of the school orchestra, the Glee Club, the Literary Society, and the "wonderful rugby organizations." Quoting the saying that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, he said that the instinct for playing the game, whether to win or to lose, was latent in the heart of every person of British birth, and the thing which had made Britain mighty to the ends of the earth was the ability to take a drubbing in a right spirit and to never withhold admiration from a beaten enemy who had fought well.

Scholarships and Diplomas.

The presentation of prizes for the Nicholls Scholarships was made by Dr. J. J. Craig, the presentation of commercial diplomas by F. H. Dawson, and Rev. Dr. Blagrave presented graduation diplomas.

Dr. Craig, who confessed that he had always wanted to win a scholarship, but had never achieved that ambition during his school days, referred to the munificence of the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, who had been a benefactor to the city through her gifts in connection with its parks, its library, its Y.W.C.A., and its Protestant Home. She had also set aside the sum of $2,000, which, invested at 5 per cent., yielded the sum of $100 annually, to be used in making first and second awards to each one of the five classes in the Collegiate Institute.

"There are two values in a scholarship," said Dr. Craig. "The first, the lesser value, is in the financial return afforded by receiving it. The second, the more important of the two, is the competitive instinct which must be employed in winning it. Competition in studies is just as excellent an incentive to work as it is to success in business life."

F. H. Dawson, in presenting the diplomas to successful students in the Commercial Department, said that an all-round business education was an essential to success in later life. Modern methods of teaching commercial work were much better than old-time ways. Now, the student may learn much from classes in economics, history, commercial geography and salesmanship.

"There are four people who will never tell a child what is wrong," he asserted. "These are your parents, your clergyman, and your teacher. All are united at all times to help you in every possible way to be and do your very best."

Mr. Dawson congratulated C. E. Jamieson, head of the Commercial Department, on the splendid success of that department this year. One hundred pupils tried the examinations, and sixty-two of these were successful.

He also referred in terms of strong appreciation to the work of the Principal, H. R. H. Kenner, speaking of him as "one of the greatest educational authorities in the Province," and to the efficient support of his staff of teachers.

When Mr. Dawson presented the diplomas, he created a widespread gale of laughter among the scholars by saying that several of the successful pupils who were absent, were "engaged," when he meant to say "employed."

Inspirational Address

The Rev. Dr. Blagrave spoke eloquently to the pupils along inspirational lines, commending to their attention the "three Cs", as he called them, to be considered at this point in their careers. These were Commerce, which represented a laudable desire to benefit financially from their studies and to set about the best way of making a living; the acquisition of Culture, which helps to train one in the art of living for something beyond material values, and Conquest, which means the ability to go out and conquer and achieve, against odds.

To these Dr. Blagrave added another trio of Cs, in Character, which enables the pupil to manage the education he has received and to turn it to the best possible uses, in Conscience, and in Christianity, so that the ambitious scholar may take as his guiding words those inspired utterances: "My need is to do the will of Him that sent Me and to finish His work."

Dr. Blagrave congratulated Mr. Kenner on the splendid school building he now had control of, with its fine possibilities for better work, and he also congratulated the pupils on having Mr. Kenner as a principal. This utterance brought applause from the assembled scholars, and Dr. Blagrave went on: "I have known Mr. Kenner for nearly eight years, since I first came to the city, and during that time I have learned to respect and admire him."

Alluding to the opportunities afforded by the increased buildings and their splendid equipment, the reverend speaker reminded his youthful hearers that the success of their efforts in school depended mainly upon the manner in which they utilised the opportunities offered to them.

"They way in which great ones of the past have attained to success of what you have set out to achieve.

"It is a splendid thing to be endowed with mental ability and to be able easily to assimilate and remember what you learn. But the gift of industry and application is a far greater gift. Many a boy or girl possessing only average mentality has been enabled to attain to greater things than more clever companions, simply because he or she had the will and the determination to work hard and steadfastly."

With a final word of admiration for the virtues of the Royal family of England, as exemplified during the King's illness, the Rev. Dr. Blagrave concluded his discourse.

Mr. Kenner's Prize

The presentation of the prizes for French prose and to the "Princeps Alumnus" or head boy of the scholastic year, were made by Principal Kenner, who received a great deal of appreciative applause from students on the announcement of his choice for the prize-winning scholar of the year and also for the little bits of dry humor which he characteristically inserted in his remarks, which were brief but much to the point.

The prize for French prose, a pair of silver candlesticks given by Miss Pearl Faint, who is head of the Modern Languages Department at the Collegiate Institute, was won by Miss Dorothy Bamforth, who obtained highest standing in this suoject at the Honor Matriculation Examinations.

In the absence of Miss Bamforth, who is an undergraduate at Queen's University, Kingston, and is at present engaged in writing Christmas examinations there, the prize was accepted in her name by Miss Dorothy Henry.

Recounting his reasons for choosing Leigh Glover as the winner of his own special prize given to the head boy of the year, Mr. Kenner paid a high tribute to the character and disposition of the successful student.

"He has a very fine character indeed," he said. "I don't think he ever visited me in my office. He has also a very fine attitude toward his studies and his teachers in the classroom. He was always ready to answer a question and give a teacher some support, whether the answer was right or wrong. There are some pupils who absolutely refuse to answer a question unless they are dead sure they are right, and they do not help a teacher at all.

"In his attitude towards his fellow students, he got along very well with them. He has learned the art of agreeable living, which is a very fine art indeed. He has always passed his examinations creditably, although he is not a scholarship upil. And he has a sense of humor, which is a very fine thing in a boy or girl."

Rugby Cup Presented

The presentation to Principal Kenner and the school of the large silver cup donated by Dr. Frank G. Nell to winners in the new Central Interscholastic rugby league, which was an achievement of the boys of the Collegiate Institute this year, was made by the captain of the team, Nell Gemmell, who, in a short, much to the point speech, made the presentation. The large cup is competed for annually, being held by the winning team during the interval, and with it goes a smaller silver cup which is kept by the team in perpetuity.

Mr. Kenner thanked Captain Gemmell, spoke of the interest taken by Dr. Neal in this sport, and referred in terms of admiration to the fine spirit of all-conquering courage exhibited by the players this year. Although none of the boys were brilliant rugby performers, still, with average skill, they combined in a great degree a bulldog tenacity which was bound to win, and a desire to fight to the finish. They were able to win modestly and to lose gracefully.

Captain Gemmell, saying that the success of the team this year was due in a great measure to their coach, C. S. Browne, presented the latter with a handsome silk lounging-robe as a mark of the boys' appreciation of his assistance.

Mr. Browne, acknowledging the gift, reiterated the words of Mr. Kenner as to the grit displayed by the players. He said that brains and muscle and backbone were necessary to go out and win as this year's team had won, characterizing it as "a team which we will never forget for the courage it displayed and the way in which it was able to win against teams of much greater weight." The P.C.I. team, he said, played eight games for this cup, winning seven of them. It scored 118 points and was only scored against 13 times.

"That is a wonderful record," said Mr. Browne. "And we hope the time will come when we can wipe the slate clean of all the defeats we have suffered at the hands of teams from Hamilton and Toronto."

Valedictory Address.

In the absence of Miss Dorothy Bamforth, the Valedictory address which was to have been given by her, was read by Reginald Howden, president of the Literary Society. It was a short, beautifully worded address, summing up in a few eloquent sentences, the impressions of a graduate of the P.C.I., and impressing several ideas of extreme worth on the minds of those also leaving its portals for wider fields of endeavor.

Miss Bamforth, in the Honor Matriculation Examination, wrote on nine papers. She obtained first class honors in French authors and French composition, German authors and German composition, Latin authors and Latin composition; second class honors in English literature and English composition, and third class honors in Modern History.

Also in addition to winning Miss Faint's prize for French prose, she won a scholarship at Queen's University for the highest standing in French and German at the honor matriculation examination.

Her valedictory address impressed upon her hearers the necessity of keeping within the walls of the new building "the same fine spirit of loyalty to the school and love of fair play which the walls of the old building have always known.

"We should extend our hearty appreciation for the able and impartial instruction of our teachers, their patience at all times, their drilling in difficulties and their advice, which was often needed. Such patience we need not look for in other places."

Miss Bamforth spoke of the familiar phrase, often heard at the Collegiate: "Use your head."

"That was excellent advice, but, for some of us, a physical impossibility. One of the professors at Queen's puts it thus:

"'Most failure in the university are caused by stupidity, not natural, but acquired, and most assiduously practised.'"

Mr. Fowler spoke in terms of praise of the address by Miss Bamforth and the manner in which it was read by Reginald Howden, and asked the audience to join in a very special way in the singing of the National Anthem, striving to make it a prayer for the recovery of the King.

Musical Program.

The musical program which formed a portion of the exercises was extremely well presented and made an attractive interlude of melody in the series of speeches.

A brisk opening number played by the Collegiate orchestra, an organization of fine young musicians, with Miss Mildred Morphet at the piano, was followed by a second orchestral number, the Intermezzo Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana."

School choruses in which the scholars joined en masse, rising from their seats to sing the merry verses of bright vocal numbers which were led by the conductor, Carl S. Browne, M.A., included "Rule, Brittania," "A Song of Canada," "Constantinople," and "I'm Wingin' Home."

The Boys' Glee Club was responsible for two snappy appearances and two well rendered selections by the grouped voices of nearly two score youths, with a quartette of small lads in the treble section. With their director, M. B. Chennall, at the piano, and the orchestra in accompaniment, they sang "The Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore," and "Seein' Things," the latter a humorous affair with a comedy atmosphere. Another humorous number which formed an encore to the first song, had a quartette of vocalists in Scott Medd, Alan Heideman, Victor Johnson and Kenneth McCannan.

A trio of singers for their last appearance was composed of Scott Medd, Alan Heideman and Kenneth McCannan.

One of the outstanding numbers in the musical program was the splendidly played violin duet by Arnold Spencer and Stanley Northrop, with Harry Northrop as accompanist. Two smoothly-played, beautifully-toned selections by the clever young violinists were Dancla's Symphonie Concertante No. 4, and its encore, a Turkish March.

EPIDEMIC MILDER THAN ANTICIPATED

Health Board Issues Bulletin Urging Public Guard Against Dread Diseases

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Responses from requests for information on the present influenza outbreak have been brief, bringing only the information that the cases seem milder than in the 1918 epidemic and that the symptoms are less distinctive.

The requests were made by a "Board of Strategy" named by Surgeon-General Cumming and were sent to physicians on the west coast. The Board urges isolation of recognized and suspected cases; avoiding contact with crowds and treatment of cases at home rather than in hospitals. At the same time it was said that the hope of preventing the spread of the disease was an illusive one.

With more than 40,000 cases reported, health officials have declared that they believe this represents only about a fifth of the actual cases.

ELECTION PROTEST TO BE SENSATIONAL

Counsel For Alderman At Sault Ste. Marie Promises Stir

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The most sensational evidence ever disclosed in a municipal election protest in Ontario was yesterday predicted by J. R. MacInnis, counsel for Alderman Brewer, who is attempting to upset the re-election of Mayor Irwin.

Alderman Brewer was first declared elected by a majority of 31. A recount reversed this to a majority of 51 for Mayor Irwin. Yesterday two deputy returning officers stated that they could not understand how the result in their own polls had been changed.

Charles Rose, who has been an election official for 20 years, plainly stated his belief that ballots in his box had been tampered with after being placed in the city hall.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

BISHOP URGES CLEARANCE OF LONDON SLUMS

"Are Reproach To Our Common Christianity", Says Winnington-Ingram

BREEDS DISEASE

London Borough Councils Have Done Nothing In Last Seven Years Towards Clearance

LONDON, Dec. 15. —(Canadian Press Cable).—"The slums are a reproach to our common Christianity. It is possible a country which could spend five million pounds daily in the war can do so little to remove this intolerable evil in time of peace?" This is the main indictment of a pastoral letter by Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London, which will be read in all London Churches.

A memorandum by the Bishop's housing committee says fifteen London Brough councils have done nothing in the last seven years towards clearance of slums. It is estimated a few pence added to the income tax would totally eliminate the slums. Millions have already been spent, "Mostly wastefully" says the Bishop, on rheumatism and tuberculosis, which he calls typical slum diseases.

James Webber Allowed His Freedom On Suspended Sentence

Five hours after the jury had retired to consider the evidence that had been so ably presented, they reappeared with a verdict of guilty against James Webber on the charge of seduction. Contained in the verdict was a strong plea for leniency. Judge Huycke, after careful consideration of the youth and general good character of the man, allowed him his freedom on suspended sentence.

HEALTH FACTS

The Chiropractor knows that pressure upon nerves at the spine interferes with the functional activity of tissues supplied by the impinged nerves. If nerve fibers supplying the arm are pinched the strength, sensation or movement of the arm will be impaired. If nerves supplying the liver or stomach are pinched those organs cannot work properly. This is true of any tissue of the body.

pressure from these impinged nerves normal health and activity is restored to the weakened tissues. There are many different diseases because there are many nerve trunks and they are affected in many different ways. Wheat King Needs Financial Support

Prize Grain Fails To Pay

Thrice Crowned Wheat King Declares He Is Going Broke.

MAY LEAVE CANADA.

No Money To Be Made Growing World's Finest Wheat Says Trelle.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 17.—(Special.)—Unless he can obtain financial support, Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, thrice crowned king of the world's wheat growers, will leave Canada to accept one of the many tempting offers made to him in the United States, or resume the gorwing of commercial wheat in Canada and allow show wheat to go by the board.

"I am quickly going broke growing high grade wheat for show purposes," Trelle said, on his return to Winnipeg from another triumphant visit to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, and the world grain show at Chicago.

"Practically everything I have made has gone into experimental work with registered seed. There is not any money to be made in growing wheat that is pronounced the world's finest, although it gave me a thrill. If I had all the money I have been offered recently to accept all sorts of positions in the United States, I would be on easy street. As it is, this money I have made growing wheat for the market is almost gone and unless I can get some support from somewhere in Canada, I will have to get out of the game for I have my family to think of. Up to now I never considered the financial aspect of growing prize wheat, to me it was an interesting game and I liked it but now things have changed. I have to think of the money end. Why, if it was not that the railways give me free transportation I could not go to shows like the one at Toronto or at Chicago.

"I can go to the United States in any one of half a dozen or more positions I have been offered. If I go under contract to produce prize winning wheat I can make more money than in Canada, but I prefer to remain in the Peace River and go on as I have started if that is at all possible, but it is all a question of money. If I don't get help I shall have to call it a job and quit." Mr. Trelle left to-day for his Peace River farm.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17.—The Minister, Deputy Minister and officials of the Department of Agriculture expressed to-day regret that Herman Trelle was considering leaving Canada. The Department could give Mr. Trelle every assistance and co-operation possible, but financial aid could not be extended, it was said.

The Weather

The dull, murky and disagreeable weather that has prevailed lately bears little resemblance to the typical weather that we usually associate with the Christmas season. Christmas without snow seems unnatural—at least in this section of Ontario. Some people have asked me as to whether we will have a "white Christmas" or a "green" one—meaning whether there will be snow on the ground or not. I do not know; but the chances are there will be. I have taken the trouble to go back for 32 years in old weather registers, and find there has been some snow on the ground on Christmas Day every year with the exception of 1923. There was no sleighing on Christmas Day in 1921, 1919, 1904 or 1900, although there was several inches of snow. On practically all the other Christmas days the sleighing could be classified as good. These dates apply to the city of Peterborough alone. Conditions ten and fifteen miles south and the same distance north of the city sometimes tell a different story.—W. P.

SUNDAY FINDS ROYAL FAMILY MORE HOPEFUL

Queen Mary Leaves Palace For Luncheon With Duke of York.

KING IMPROVES.

Short Bulletins Announce Continued Slight Betterment Over Week-end.

LONDON, December 17 (Canadian Press). — The spirit of hopefulness which prevailed in royal circles on Saturday became more pronounced yesterday with the issue of two favorable bulletins on the condition of the King. Both were very short, but both announced continued slight improvement.

The evening bulletin, issued at 8 p.m., said: "The King had a quiet day, and the improvement in His Majesty's condition noted this morning has been maintained." The morning report was: "In spite of a restless night, His Majesty's condition has slightly improved."

Both bulletins were signed by Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Sir Hugh Rigby.

Members of the Royal Family are beginning to move with greater freedom as the result of their relaxation from the anxiety which held them in the critical days following the operation on Wednesday. Queen Mary yesterday ventured for the first time in a long while to take a meal abroad. She, with Viscount Lascelles and Princess Mary, visited the Piccadilly home of the Duke and Duchess of York to take luncheon with them

Continues Favorable.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—News from Buckingham Palace concerning the condition of King George continued favorable today.

While it seemed too early to conclude that he definitely was on the road to recovery, he not only was holding his own, but the physicians report said that a slight improvement that had been noted in his condition on Sunday was continuing. To this, the period of natural sleep that the King had in the late hours of last night, was doubtless a valuable contributory factor.

The morning bulletin said:

"The King had a fair night, with some natural sleep towards morning. The slight improvement in His Majesty's condition noted yesterday, continues."

It was signed by Sir Hugh Rigby, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Lord Dawson of Penn.

Later a statement from an authoritative quarter confirmed the public impression in this respect. This statement interpreted the bulletin as meaning that His Majesty, for the first time since his illness became serious, had passed 24 hours without a sedative. This is regarded as encouraging, as the natural sleep which the King was reported as having had is exactly what is wanted to enable him to build up his strength.

It was noted that to-day for the first time the bulletin mentioned "natural" sleep in reporting developments in the King's case, although there had been frequent mention of how well or ill His Majesty slept. This led to the supposition that much of the sleep that he had previously been reported as having, might have been artificial induced. The wording in which the bulletins are couched is so carefully chosen as to lend strength to this supposition.

There was general satisfaction that this morning's bulletin was the third consecutive one in which slight but noticeable improvement was reported.

Authoritative circles interpreted this as meaning that His Majesty's condition was still slightly on the upgrade.

Ray Treatment being Watched.

Physicians interested in ray therapy are watching the results of this treatment with keen interest, and an eminent radiologist, in expressing his view of this morning's bulletin, said it was the best yet. "It is more than likely that this new condition is due to the ultra-violet ray treatment because

GREAT POWER OF ADVERTISING IS SET FORTH

Rotarian Orley De Graw Defines It As Creation of Mental Impressions.

GIVES EXAMPLES.

Speaker Tells Rotary of How Salesmanship Is Helped By Adds.

"Advertising was defined by Rotarian Orley De Graw of the Western Clock Company as "the creation of as many mental impressions as possible," in a most interesting study of advertising and salesmanship, before the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day. Rotarian De Graw's address was thoroughly appreciated by his fellow Rotarians.

President W. R. Morris expressed the congratulations of the Rotary Club to Rotarians H. R. H. Kenner and G. A. Gillespie upon the successful opening of the new school. Peterborough was proud, he said, of the educational facilities provided by this splendid building.

The president also announced that International oRtary had opened nine new clubs in various countries of the world during the last month, and referred to the cordial reception given Rotary representatives by the Italian government.

Rotarian De Graw, the speaker of the day, was introduced by the president.

"There are plenty of people who will admit without hesitation that advertising pays," said Rotarian Degraw. "Like many other statements that they make, it's made without thought. They're heard it a number of times and they repeat it as a truth, as a matter of fact.

"This is an excellent example of advertising. The statement 'Advertising Pays' has been reiterated so many times or in other words been advertised so well that people accept it without question.

"But advertising does not always pay. There have been thousands and thousands of dollars lost through advertising and there are still millions wasted every year in advertising.

"Ask any person who will glibly remark: 'It pays to advertise,' how much a page in a well known magazine, costs, and he will not have the slightest idea. If you tell him a page in the Saturday Evening Post costs $7500, he immediately begins to question his statement for he cannot possibly see how advertising can pay when a single page in one issue of a magazine costs $7500.

"Yet the page in that publication at $7500 is one of the most economical buys in the advertising field. For each cent of money spent on that page, Post advertisers can tell their story to six and one-half people. That is taking into consideration the circulation of approximately two and one half million and figuring that every copy is read by two people, which is a conservative estimate.

"Why do people say 'It pays to advertise?' Simply because it was repeated so many times that they have come to believe it. They have received a great number of mental impressions to that effect.

Done Through the Mind.

"Selling is done entirely through the mind. You call on a dealer and talk to him about Quaker Oats, Westclox or about any other line of merchandise. You are seeking to make a mental impression on that dealer. You are trying to impress on him the fact that your goods are good for him to buy, and to the extent that you are successful in impressing him with the desirability of his owning your goods, depends your success as a salesman.

"There are a certain proportion of people who can be sold the first time around. It's easier to sell a thing that has never been made before than to sell a new product in a field that's strongly competitive. The new thing in a field has no opposition.

"A certain number of merchants are progressive enough to be willing to try something new. Their minds have not been influenced one way or another in regard to it.

"But take some field that's considered staple—for instance, soaps. Then go out to introduce a new line of soap, and see how far you get. It makes little difference which field you take, whether it's laundry soap or toilet soap. You'd find that Ivory, Palm Olive and a few others were rather difficult to supplant."

"You could get in small trial orders with an occasional dealer, but when it came to getting volume of business, you'd see the Ivory man walk out with an order for several cases, when you'd be lucky to get one case and you'd see this happen with such astonishing regularity that it would be easy for you to get discouraged.

"What's the answer? You have a soap. Nobody knows about it. Its name means nothing. When the average person things of soap, he thinks Ivory or Palm-Olive or some other well-known brand. And why? Not because the salesman has been around talking Ivory or Palm-Olive, but be-

Conference Offers To Act As Mediator In Settling Dispute

Pan-American Body Has Not As Yet Received Acceptance, But Spokesmen For Two Countries Are Agreeable To Move.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL CALL SPECIAL SESSION IN EVENT OF WAR BEING DECLARED IN SOUTH AMERICA

Foreign Minister Briand, of France, Sends Cablegram To Both Disputants Insisting Upon Dangers To Peace Which Results From Armed Conflict.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Notification that Paraguay had received the offer of the Pan-American conference to assist in mediating the dispute with Bolivia, and an indication that it would be accepted, was given the State Department to-day by Dr. Juan V. Ramirez, Paraguayan charge d'Affaires.

Definite acceptance of the offer has not yet been communicated to the conference or the state department but spokesmen for the two countries have indicated they were agreeable to the move although Bolivia has been expected to first require reparations from Paraguay as an outgrowth of the attack on Fort Vanguardia.

Earlier in the day the Paraguayan legation sent to the state department a note setting forth its position in the most recent hostilities, charging Bolivia with having opened warlike activities on the frontier near the Pilcamayo River. The note explained that Paraguay was taking the most urgent measures for its defense.

The Pan-American conference's special committee on the controversy is inactive pending acceptance by the involved countries of the mediation offer. Dr. Victor Maurtua of Peru, chairman of the committee said he thought it best to await replies from both Paraguay and Bolivia but indicated that he might forego this formality if reports from them should continue to indicate a state equivalent to warfare.

League Takes Action

LUGANO, Dec. 17. —(Canadian Press).—If either Bolivia or Paraguay formally declares war a special session of the Council of the League of Nations will be convoked at Paris by Foreign Minister Briand as president of the Council.

M. Briand made this announcement to newspaper men to-day shortly after sending new cablegrams to both the disputants insisting upon the dangers to peace which result from contact between the military forces of the two countries. He urged Bolivia and Paraguay to avoid incidents which might compromise the specific settlement of their dispute.

Special advices received during the night from league representatives in Paraguay said that mobilization was proceeding actively along the Paraguay and Bolivian frontier.

Word of the attack on the forts started a tremendous demonstration of patriotism in the capital. Citizens bearing banners with patriotic inscriptions paraded the palace, headed by brass bands. There they cheered President Guggiari and the country. Many marched in the parades, some wearing dress adorned with the national colours—red, White and blue.

Hundreds of men, including cadets from the military academy, volunteered their services before the mobilization order was issued. They asked to be sent immediately to the scene of hostilities. Political parties united in the face of the crisis and organized automobile caravans which drove about the city urging all to volunteer their services to the government.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Minister of War last night made public a communique from the commander of the Paraguayan forces in the Chaco, setting forth his version of the recent encounters with Bolivian forces in that district.

The communique said:

"The Bolivians, without previous declaration of war, and violating the elementary rules of the rights of men, attacked Forts Marischal Lopez, Valois, Rivarola and General Genes. The Paraguayan forces resisted the attack of the Bolivian infantry for eight hours in spite of the numerical superiority of the attackers.

"At five o'clock in the afternoon, the Bolivians were repulsed by Lieut. Castagnino, commanding a squadron, who re-occupied Forts General Genes, Valois, Rivarola. The Bolivians withdrew, badly beaten.

"Our losses amounted to six soldiers dead and some wounded. Lieut. Figari was killed during a counter-attack made to recover Fort Mariscal Lopez. Two Bolivian officers were killed and many soldiers and uniformed Inrians were killed.

Lieut. Castagnino remained the victor of the battlefield with his brave squadron covering itself with glory in the National defense."

Mobilization Decreed

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 17 The Paraguayan Government has decreed a general mobilization of all citizens between the ages of 18 and 28 years. There is tremendous excitement throughout the country.

It is announced that Bolivian troops attacked the Paraguayan garrison, retiring to its base in view of the numerical superiority of the Bolivians.

The Ministry of War, in an official bulletin yesterday, announced that a Bolivian airplane had flown over Cahis Nega Saturday and dropped four bombs, none of which exploded, however.

In the announcement, too, was an official Paraguayan version of Saturday's fight at Fort Boqueron. No mention is made of dead or wounded, and it is said that the garrison, of only thirty men, retired after an energetic resistance.

The Ministry's announcement was:

Attack in Force

"A large force of Bolivians attacked our fort, Mariscal Lopez, which was defended by only thirty men, under the command of Lieutenant Russo Padin. In view of the superior strength of the enemy, after an energetic resistance, the Paraguayans retired. Also the Paraguayan forces at Fort Valois and Rivarala have fallen back in view of the Bolivian advance.

"At Bahia Negra Saturday a Bolivian airplane frew over and dropped four bombs, none of which exploded, however.

"The President of the Republic met with the Cabinet and reserved sanction to their decree of mobilization of all male citizens of between 18 and 28 years of age, pointing out to them there were still other methods of organizing national defense."

Bahia Negra is located on the Paraguay River, about 350 miles north of Asuncion, and is called more generally by another name, Puetro Pancheco. A great many maps show it in territory ascribed to Bilivia, near the south-eastern corner of the Bolivian Province of Santa Cruz.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Reports of new conflicts in the disputed region of the Gran Chaco indicated Saturday night the growing seriousness of the situation between Bolivia and Paraguay, despite offers of mediation from many sources.

The Bolivians had revenged the loss of Fort Vanguardia on December 6 by the capture of Mariscal Lopez (Fort Boqueron), and had raided by air the advanced Paraguay position at Bahia Negra. The Paraguayan Legation at Lima reported that a third fort was threatened by Bolivian forces, and declared that "measures in accordance with the situation will be taken."

BODY FOUND NEAR BOAT.

GANANOQUE, Ont., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— On investigating the presence of an upturned boat and oars floating in the St. Lawrence river, searchers discovered the body of Wesley Landon, 45, of Ivyle, Ontario, in four feet of water here. The body was discovered a short distance from the boat. An inquest will be held to-morrow.

COMMITTEE TO DISCUSS BILL

Harbor $48,000,000 Project Involves Whole Great Lakes Region.

COMPLETE MISSISSIPPI.

WASHINGTON, D.c., December 17 (Canadian Press). — Whether Congress is to act on the $48,000,000 rivers and harbors authorization bill involving legislation of great importance to the whole Great Lakes region will probably be decided at a meeting of the Rivers and Harbors Committee in a few days.

The bill, which covers many river and harbor projects, is especially noteworthy becausee it makes provision for deepening the Great Lakes channels to enable deep draft freighters to load to capacity. A 24-foot depth is the minimum provided for in these channels. The bill also contemplates completion of improvement of the vast Mississippi system, including the Ohio and Missouri It would mean great advances in inland waterway transportation in the United States.

President Coolidge is opposed, for reasons of economy, to the bill at this time, but there is powerful sentiment for it in Congress. The bill does not deal with Representative Dempsey's proposed All-American canal across New York State. It is understood Mr. Dempsey does not purpose to press this until the St. Lawrence project comes before Congress.

RIVER THAMES GIVES UP BODY

Student Missing Since October Found By Boys On Saturday.

INQUEST ORDERED.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The body of Ralph McKay, University of Western Ontario student, who disappeared in October, was found in the Thames River here on Saturday. McKay came from Regina to study at the University. His parents came east and assisted in the search for him, but returned to Regina some time ago when their efforts proved fruitless.

The body was in a badly decomposed condition, but city detectives who have been conducting the investigation state that so far nothing has developed to indicate that death was due to any other cause than drowning.

An inquest was opened Saturday and adjourned until Wednesday.

The body was found in a small cove near a bath-house by three boys. The authorities were immediately notified. Identification was established from a Y.M.C.A. membership card and other papers found in the pockets of the clothing. The body was fully clothed and a small sum of money was found in the pockets.

McKay's parents have been notified, and have informed the authorities that they will be in London next Tuesday to accompany the body to Sarnia, where burial will take place.

Burowski Must Die If Evidence Is Not Filed

OTTAWA, Dec. 17. — Since the stay of execution granted in the Burowski case there has been no further evidence placed before the Department of Justice to justify commutation of the life sentence. The Minister of Justice has announced that, unless some further evidence is submitted in justification of commutation, the death penalty will be given effect.

FAMILY DOCTOR KNEW PATIENTS

Say Immigration Officials in Explaining Change in Regulations.

CANADIANS RETAINED.

OTTAWA, December 17. — Canadian Press. — The decision to authorize several hundred British doctors to conduct examinations of intending emigrants to Canada, as announced here on Saturday was largely due to the value of the family physician's knowledge of the individual, officials of the Department of immigration explained to-day. The fact that the applicant prefers his own doctor was also given consideration.

Until a year ago, examinations in the British Isles were conducted exclusively by British doctors. At that time it was decided to change the system by employing 20 Canadian doctors, who were directly responsible to the department.

It was pointed out that the new method is not a return to the earlier one. Difficulties arose because the family doctor was sometimes reluctant to advise an emigrant against shipping to Canada. The Canadian doctors are being retained in a supervisory capacity, and in cases where some doubt arises in the mind of the examining physician the applicant is referred to the departmental doctors.

The expectation is that all previous difficulties in connection with medical examinations will now be removed, it was stated, and the possibility of an immigrant being turned back at the port of landing will be practically obviated.

"FLU" EPIDEMIC NOT PREVALENT

Dreaded Disease Has Not Reached Any Serious Proportions in City.

NUMEROUS COLDS.

From information gathered by The Examiner this afternoon it is not to be supposed that the "flue" epidemic, which is so prevalent and so serious through the province, has as yet reached any serious proportions in Peterborough.

On interviewing numerous druggists it was discovered that there is no great demand for the medicines needed in combatting the disease. It was said by all that the sale of cough and cold remedies is at present not much greater than it was at the same period other years. This is the time for colds, with the damp, changeable weather having the effect of reducing a person's general fitness, and colds are numerous throughout the city but of Health, in an interview with The extent.

No one has been admitted to either the Nicholls or St. Joseph's Hospital suffering with "flu."

Helpful Suggestions

Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer by the frequent use of the tooth brush Examiner this afternoon, gave some timely tips on the prevention of "flu."

Dr. Young said, "Cleanliness and plenty of fresh air are absolutely necessary to keep the vitality at normal. It is advisable to leave the windows of bedrooms open at night. Keep the mouth clean and antiseptic socks with frequent changes and and use mild antiseptics as gargles. Wear warm clothes but have light or heavy flannels as suits the person and his occupation next the skin. Warm sacks with frequent changes and well-solded shoes and overshoes should be worn to keep the feet warm and dry. In keeping the body clean, if possible daily warm baths with cold sponges afterward are advisable, as this helps the circulation. Hands may be clean, but it is always well to wash them carefully before handling food, as the hands are the greatest carries of disease germs. Stroke or pet neither dogs or cats and do as little hand shaking as possible. It is very necessary to be well supplied with handkerchiefs and us separate ones for nose and eyes when one has a cold. At least eight hours' sleep is necessary to keep the body up to its normal resistance to disease. Do not keep houses too hot and ventilate them well, opening the doors at least once a day. A moderate amount of food, most people eat too much, and a moderate amount of exercise in the fresh air daily."

Firemen Trapped In Capreol Fire Hall By Blaze Are Rescued By Comrades and Help Put Out Fire

CAPREOL, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Reversing the usual order of things, three members of the Capreol fire brigade on Saturday morning starred in the role of the rescued. The three men, John McClean, Edward Metcalfe and John Daley, were awakened at 3:45 o'clock to find the lower part of the fire hall in flames and their escape by the stairs cut off. There was a drop of 40 feet to the street level. Volunteers set up ladders and the three firemen descended to safety in their night attire. Then they turned to and helped extinguish the

GRILLS WILL CONTEST SEAT

Final Business For Year Wound Up at Meeting of Seymour Council.

REBATES GRANTED.

CAMPBELLford, Dec. 17.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—As required by the statues, the Seymour Township council met at eleven o'clock Saturday morning in their rooms in the Ferris block for the purpose of winding up the business of the present year. At the conclusion of the official session, Reeve Grills was tendered a vote of appreciation for the courteous and efficient manner in which he had presided at the meetings and fulfilled the duties of his office. When the council adjourned, it was to meet again at the Royal Cafe as the guests of the reeve. During the conventional oyster supper which followed, Reeve Grills announced that he would be a candidate for another term of office and Robert Innes allowed it to be known that he would be a candidate for the office of Deputy-reeve. Councillor Allan announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election. Thus an election for the township council was made necessary. This, however, would have been the case regardless of the withdrawal of Councillor Allan, since the chair of the deputy-reeve was left vacant by the death of Russel Peake, deputy-reeve for the past two years.

Mrs. Thomas Dunham, tax collector for the township, showed by her report that the amount of taxes uncollected was $4,000.00. Mrs. R. Maybee was granted a rebate of dog tax, since she showed proof of having paid the tax to the town of Campbellford. Thomas Southworth was granted a rebate in his taxes on the township rate due to his recent loss by fire. For the sum of one dollar per day for the time used and and on condition that the grader was returned in the same condition as when taken, Wilson Thain was allowed to use the machine during the winter to keep the road open from Campbellford to Lock number eight. Accounts amounting to $2,019.60 were ordered paid.

TEN INJURED IN C. P. R. WRECK AT CLAREMONT

FOUR CARS DERAILED WHEN RAIL BREAKS UNDER PASSENGER TRAIN.

Four trainmen and six passengers were slightly injured shortly after midnight on Thursday when Canadian Pacific train No. 34 was derailed at Claremont, about 30 miles from Toronto, due to a "transverse fissure" or hidden break in one of the rails. The train was on its regular run between this city and Ottawa. The railway employees were rushed to this city, but the passengers, who suffered only bruises, were able to continue on their journeys. Wrecking trains from Havelock and Toronto were hurried to the scene and had the tracks cleared shortly afterwards. Panoramic view ABOVE made by The Star photographer, shows the extent of the damage, with the four steel cars lying on their sides after tumbling about 25 feet from the top of the embankment.

U. S. SENATOR SAYS BRITAIN SEEKING NAVAL SUPREMACY

Three Meetings Hear That United States Must Increase Navy.

"BRITAIN IN DREAD."

League of Nations Obligations Make British Isles Subject To Danger.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Charging Great Britain was engaged in a struggle for naval supremacy, Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, said in the United States Senate on Saturday if Great Britain is "unwilling to reduce her naval armaments," he could see no other safe course but to increase the United States navy. Similar charges were made at the twin luncheons on Saturday in Philadelphia and New York of the Foreign Policy Association.

At Philadelphia, Rear Admiral Charles L. Hussey, U.S.N., retired, declared, "The best guarantee of peace with our trade competitors is parity of naval strength."

In New York the argument developed into a dramatic situation. After the close of the formal debate Rear Admiral Charles T. Plunkett, U.S.N., retired, asked the question: "Against what nation is Great Britain building? They are building against some nation. Who is it?"

In reply, Dr. John Martin of Staten Island, who recently addressed several British audiences, said:

"Great Britain is living in partial dread of what the United States will do to Great Britain, under its obligations under the League of Nations covenants, being called upon to enforce a blockade against an aggressive belligerent nation of Europe."

"Great Britain is asking herself in trepidation whether she will, in fulfilment of her League of Nations obligations be brought into conflict with the navy of the United States. Great Britain is not consciously building against the United States. She is building slowly against an undefined enemy, because she sees her food lines are so vulnerable that another European nation, such as France, or Germany, or Italy, may put her in jeopardy."

This order marked the abandonment of the centuries of celebration in accordance with the lunar calendar.

BANK MANAGER IS TRANSFERRED

George Nicol To Take Charge of Montreal Bank Branch in Toronto.

WAS AT CAMPBELLFORD.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, December 17.—Changes in the staffs of the local banks have not been infrequent occurrences during the last few weeks. The major portion of these transfers have been on the Bank of Montreal staff, and the latest move is that of the manager, George Nicol. Mr. Nicol was advised on Friday of last week that he was to take charge of the Dupont and Christie Street branch of the bank in Toronto. The exact date of his departure was not known yesterday, but Mr. Nicol stated that he was required to take over his new duties before the New Year. He expected that he would be leaving town before another business week was ended.

Mr. Nicol came to Campbellford as branch manager in 1922. During his time here he has established many friendships in the sporting world as well as in financial and business circles. As a lawn bowler, he was considered among the leaders of the local club, and represented it on numerous occasions when rinks were sent to participate in outside tournaments. During the winter months, the "roarin' game" claimed much of his time outside business hours.

20,000,000 TREES TO BE PLANTED

Yearly Program Doubled To Increase Pulpwood Resources of Ontario.

TORONTO, Ont., December 17 (Canadian Press). — Increase in the planting of pine trees from 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 annually and the establishment of a forestry police to perpetuate the timber and pulpwood of New Ontario, were announced by the Hon. William Finlayson, Provincial Minister of Lands and Forests, in an address before the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall on Saturday night.

"In the past we were so wealthy in timber that we never made any attempt to formulate, until quite recently, a business policy that would conserve and foster our resources," he said. "On the other hand we cut and burned good timber lavishly.

"Now, however, we are trying to get the people of the province interested in forest preservation."

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL HOLDS FINAL MEETING

Deputy-Reeve Davidson To Enter Field For 1929 Mayoralty Seat.

KINGSTON DROPS OUT.

James Boyle Awarded Contract For Market Scales—By-law Passed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence)—With only twelve days business to consider, the meeting of the council which is required by the statues to be held December 15th, was of brief duration. One hour and forty minutes was all that the councillors required to complete the business for 1928. Among the special items to be dealt with were the appointing of a court of revision to hear any complaints regarding the paving under the local improvement act, and the passing of the election by-law, appointing polling places and officers to take charge of the vote. When the session was concluded, Mayor Kingston announced that he would not be a candidate for the chair for 1929. Deputy-Reeve Davidson announced, when he heard the mayor's decision, that he would be in the running for the mayoralty. Other election "dope" was not forthcoming in anything like an official statement, but it is understood that J. R. Wilkinson will be in the field for deputy-reeve. It is also rumoured that there will be more than one candidate for this office. From the general discussion, it is only just to presume that there will be a lively election January 7th, which is the date set by the statues.

Awarded Contract

The first item of business, Saturday night was the opening of the tenders for the market scales. There were two applicants, and the contract was let to Jarvis Boyle for the price of $195.00. George Third also tendered. A letter from the engineering firm of James Proctor and Redfern advised the council that acting on instructions from them, they had instructed a liquid chlorinator to be installed in Campbellford at the earliest possible date. The engineers also stated that they had advised the Provincial Board of Health of this action in behalf of the town. A communication from the Globe Indemnity company advised the council that the claim of C. R. Ramsden had been settled for thirteen dollars.

Since the previous meeting, it had been brought to the attention of certain officials of the town that the department of Railways and Canals considered that the rights to connect with the main trunk sewer in the canal walls, was vested in that department of the government. This condition was discussed for some time and it was decided to pass a resolution assuming responsibility by the corporation for the proper connections being made with this sewer, and which would be approved by the department. This was in order to do away with an inconvenience of the part of property holders while waiting for the approval of the department. A second resolution was also passed whereby the citizens of the town will be required to apply to the corporation before making such sewer connections and that these connections will have to be approved by the town.

F. W. Wood, treasurer of the corporation, advised the council by letter, that it was necessary for them to arrange for a loan of $30,000 from the Bank of Commerce, Campbellford Branch, in order that he might be able to close his books for the present year. The necessary resolution was passed and the bylaw followed. It provided for the loan up to the amount required under the construction bylaws numbers 893, 897, 906, 910, 912, 915, 917.

The second bylaw to be presented was brought in by Councillor Abernethy. It was to establish a uniform assessment for corner lots of regular shape abutting on the pavement. The lots will be assessed along the entire front and a portion of the side or flankage, as it was termed.

Before the third bylaw was brought in Deputy-Reeve Davidson suggested that the colored lights be placed on the streets throughout the business section of the town during the holiday season. Before he sat down he made it a motion, which was seconded and carried. Mayor Kingston advised the council that the Water and Light Commission had given another $2000 to the town, making a total of $22,000 for the year.

The next motion was to pay the grant of $25 to the Northumberland County Bacon Hog Fair board, if it were necessary. The latter had been discussed at several meetings during the year, but no action was ever taken on the matter till the meeting on Saturday night.

The third bylaw was to provide for the municipal election. The nomination meeting will be held in the Regent Theatre in the evening of Dec. 31st. The poll, if necessary, will be taken on Monday, January 7th. The four polling booths provided were for ward one, the Town hall, for ward two, the Herald office; for ward three, the Armouries, and for ward

She's always

ON THE JOB

THIS YOUNG LADY is coming to work. She is an operator. She is always on the job whether it is stormy or not. And at whatever hour you call her she is pleasant and efficient.

The people in the telephone service make courtesy a habit. It is part of the efficiency with which they serve.

There are 15,000 men and women engaged in the telephone system of Ontario and Quebec. They handle over four million calls every day and, in spite of the constant cry for speed, there is scarcely a case of conscious discourtesy or neglect.

THE COMPANY IS PROUD of these 15,000 men and women and has endeavored to make their work as agreeable, healthful and stable as possible. Several hundred present employees have been with the system for more than twenty-five years.

This stability of staff maintains high standards of operation and is encouraged by the Employees' Pension and Benefit Fund, established in 1917, to protect employees in illness or accident, and to provide for their future and for their dependents.

There is also a plan of Employees' Life Insurance, by which out of salary, employees may carry without undue burden insurance to care for their dependents. This plan has been arranged in co-operation with Canadian insurance companies at regular rates.

IN ADDITION to this factor of stability an active interest in the telephone system is encouraged by the plan of employees' purchase of shares and by the plan of employee representation.

Some years ago telephone employees were given opportunity to become shareholders in the company and 10,390 of them have subscribed for shares on instalment payments. For some years also, spokesmen selected by the staff have met with representatives of the management to discuss such matters as wages, hours, tools and working conditions. This has not only stimulated interest but promoted efficiency.

THESE THINGS are the basis of the alertness and enterprise which have become a tradition of telephone work.

It is demonstrated among the 4,900 men in the plant department. Over 3,500 of them have qualified for St. John's Ambulance Corps first aid certificates and because of their outdoor duties they are frequently nearby when accidents occur. There have been many instances in which their voluntary response has saved life and relieved suffering.

The same spirit has become familiar in the enterprise and courage with which operators rise to an emergency.

WHETHER IT BE the night operator on the job at midnight or the lineman fighting a winter storm, the men and women of the telephone service give their best in contributing to Canadian progress and well deserve whatever benefits the company is able to offer.

Published by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada to tell you something about the telephone business and the people in it.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Quebec, December 17 Canadian Press. — The trade in all lines of grain continued fair here on Saturday and prices were firmly maintained.

The undertone to the flour market was steady under a fair demand for spring and winter wheat grades.

A fairly active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and values were unchanged. Standard grades of rolled oats ruled firm.

An active business was done in butter and the tone of the market was steady. Receipts on Saturday were 397 packages.

Little business was done in cheese but values showed no change. Receipts were 517 boxes.

MANY HERE END COLDS QUICK, PLEASANT WAY

Unique Method Doctors Advise for Home Use Gives Almost Instant Relief

Glad that she took her doctor's advice instead of allowing neglect to make her feel more miserable, Mrs. Albert H. Haines now realizes how quickly one can get rid of a cold. For doctors are now advising home use of a pleasant hospital method that has brought surprisingly quick relief to numbers of people in Peterborough, Lindsay, and vicinity.

Mrs. Haines had neglected her cold three days in the hope she would be all right again. Instead, congestion started spreading so that she called the doctor, who advised double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Relief began almost instantly, he reports. In another hour or so the medication of wild cherry, terpin hydrate, etc., was absorbed by her system, loosening up congestion. By night her temperature was normal, the "achy" feeling was gone, and in a day or so there was no trace left of the cold.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

This hospital certified medicine quickly penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the air passages. Absorbed by the system it helps allay congestion and drive out the cold from the nose passages, throat, and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person to-morrow. At all druggists—60c and twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

"I talked him out of it - - -"

'IF I had only known this would happen! So suddenly! So unexpectedly! And when everything looked so promising!

"And to think that time after time he wanted to increase his life insurance and I talked him out of it. How hard I worked against myself and against my own interests. I wanted a bigger house. I wanted luxuries! I wanted everything except the protection he was urging me to accept.

"I got my own way, of course. The Life Insurance was not taken. I robbed the children of their education, of my care, perhaps of their future success in life. I robbed myself of the children's companionship. For now I must leave them to earn the money needed to keep our little family together - - the money that Life Insurance would have given me if he had had his way - -

"- - and I talked him out of it."

It has been truly said that, "If every wife knew what every widow knows, every man would carry adequate Life Insurance".

And too often it is the children who must pay the penalty of the wife's prejudice.

SUPPORT THIS BYLAW.

The Examiner is of the opinion that the bylaw providing a fixed assessment of $10,000 for ten years for the Johnson Outboard Motor Company should receive unanimous support when it is submitted on New Year's Day.

The proposed concession is one that has been granted without hesitation to other local industries, and it should be as freely made in this case.

The Johnson Outboard Motor Company is, we believe, a notable addition to Peterborough's industrial life and an enterprise that justifies optimistic predictions of growth and expansion.

The company proposes to manufacture its products here for the Canadian and British markets and eventually for export to other parts of the British Empire, and there is reason to believe that it will show a rapid development with corresponding benefit to Peterborough.

The manufacture of outboard motors has increased on a tremendous scale with this form of marine transportation coming into general popularity and the Johnson Company, which enjoys an enviable reputation in its field, is reaping a full share of the increased business.

The Johnson bylaw should be given a record majority because of what it means to this city, and also as an encouragement to Mayor Denne and the City Council to redouble their efforts to bring other industries here.

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUGH.

As an example of the splendid advertising that is given Peterborough by industries, the current issue of the Silver Edge, the official publication of the Raybestos Company of Bridgeport, Con., the parent company of the local Canadian Raybestos Company, may be cited.

The cover of this number, which is, of course, widely distributed, is a most striking aerial photograph of Peterborough's celebrated lift-lock, and The Silver Edge commenting on this feature, says:

"Considerable space in this issue has been devoted to Canadian Raybestos stories, revealing many interesting brake service activities, which indicate that our neighbor to the north is right with us in tackling the safe brake problem with Raybestos brake lining. The manufacture of Raybestos in the Dominion is conducted at Peterborough, Ontario, by the Canadian Raybestos Co., Ltd. Therefore, it is altogether fitting and proper that our cover for this issue should present another of the outstanding features of Peterborough—the half-million dollar hydraulic lift-lock."

Then follows an interesting description of the structure itself, the whole article and cover being most desirable publicity for Peterborough, not only among potential tourists, but among manufacturers who, like the Raybestos Company, may be contemplating the establishment of a Canadian branch.

THE EXAMINER'S APPEAL.

It is easy to be one of Santa's Pals.

Just telephone The Examiner that you have something to donate to help make this a happy Christmas for some Peterborough youngster and you are automatically a Pal.

If you prefer we will send an Examiner truck for your parcel; otherwise you may send or mail the gift to this office.

The Examiner will, through the medium of one of the social service organizations interested in the work of dispensing Christmas cheer, make sure that your donation reaches a family really in need of assistance.

Toys, books, games, candies, clothing, food, etc., will be gratefully received and distributed to the best advantage.

The Examiner is confident that its readers will welcome this opportunity of bringing some of the joy and happiness of the Christmas season into homes where illness or lack of employment or some other twist of fate is causing privation and suffering.

There are such homes in Peterborough—more perhaps than most people imagine—and this will be a joyless and sad Christmas for their inmates unless Santa's Pals comes to the rescue.

The church organization, the Salvation Army, the service clubs, Boy Scouts and others in touch with conditions and needs will carry on the work of distributing good cheer, and The Examiner seeks to serve as the connecting link between such organization and the public which desires to give.

The time is short.

Santa's Pals must respond quickly if the effort is to be a real success, and if every home in Peterborough is to be assured of Christmas joy.

HELP THE GAME FISH COMMITTEE.

Members of the Ontario Government Game Fish Committee, headed by Hon. F. G. MacDiarmid as chairman, are to be commended upon the painstaking efforts they are making to secure the fullest possible information in regard to the problems they have been asked to investigate.

Not satisfied with having conducted exhaustive enquiries not only in Ontario but across the border, the committee is now asking sportsmen's organizations and individuals throughout Ontario for opinions and comment on the game fish situation.

The committee is anxious to know what waters are badly depleted, what in the opinion of the local and summer residents are the chief causes contributing to depletion, and what steps would be satisfactory for the rehabitation of the fisheries, so far as possible, with particular reference to individual species.

This enquiry refers principally to the purely game fishes, speckled, rainbow and brown trout, large and small-mouthed black bass and maskinonge, but also to the semi-game fishes such as pike, pickerel (wall-eye) and lake trout.

It is suggested that where there is an organized sportsmen's association the local committee should send in their report to the secretary of the Federated Anglers of Ontario to be incorporated in the comprehensive return that organization is preparing.

This, however, is optional and the reports from local associations, clubs and individual citizens will be given the same consideration by the committee as those from the Federated Anglers of Ontario or other large associations.

There are many guides and veteran fishermen in this district, and The Examiner believes they could be of real service in supplying useful information to the committee were they to take the trouble to do so.

Those who desire to submit personal recommendations or comment are advised to write Prof. J. F. Harkness, secretary of the Game Fish Committee, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

CHEAPENING THE BIBLE.

(From the Kitchener Record)

A group of Kalamazoo people claim to have established a record by reading the New Testament in fifteen hours and twenty-five minutes. Regardless of locality there are always a lot of boneheads ready to tackle anything in order to "make a record." But it would seem as if our neighbors across the line are capable of thinking up more idiotic schemes than any other nation under the sun.

The United States has been responsible for dance derbies, bunion derbies, coffee-drinking derbies, bike derbies, flagpole-sitting derbies, and a host of other imbecilities. But when it comes to dragging the Bible into such idiotic contests it is time to call a halt in the name of respectability, if not of reverence for holy things.

If a certain brand of mentality can lend itself to such foolish demonstrations of staying power as find relief in toddling for days and nights in a sweat-permeated dance hall, or in sitting through endless hours on a pole intended to display a flag instead of a fool, well and good. That is their own show. But these record-breaking enthusiasts might leave the Bible out of their endurance tests.

The Bible is not adapted by form or association to the vulgar demands of a speed-crazy generation. Its dignified language, rhythmic form and exquisite sentiments should be treated with reverence. To have the names of the Godhead and of holy personages dragged into a speed contest, and to hear sweet-sounding scriptural passages read with the sole object of beating time, is to belittle the Word of God.

There is no excuse for any such contest. Nothing is gained and much is lost. The affair was irreverent as well as inane.

TRADE WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

It is interesting to see how great is the progress which has been made during recent years in the direction of trade within the Empire as a result of the preferential rates which the Motherland and different Dominions and colonies enjoy. For more than thirty years the Liberal party in Canada has had as one of its principal objects the development of Empire trade. It began in 1897 by incorporating the principle of British preference in the first Fielding tariff, and it has continued to follow the same principle in its subsequent trading relationships. There are now few British possessions which do not enjoy the same advantages and a marked growth in Canada's trade has been the result.

The present year has witnessed even greater increases in the volume of this trade between Canada and the remainder of the Empire. Imports from the United Kingdom have increased from $176,266,328 to $191,394,170, and exports to Britain from $418,400,407 to $453,121,282. The Dominion's imports from Australia dropped from $6,976,578 to $4,682,315, while her export went down from $17,831,987 to $14,812,339. Curiously enough, the trade with New Zealand increased, the imports from $5,386,318 to $8,984,698, and the exports from $12,263,276 to $14,250,520. This year, therefore, Canada sold almost as much to New Zealand as to Australia, and New Zealand also benefited by the fact that Canada bought considerably more from that Dominion than from the larger Antipodean Dominion.

British India is becoming Canada's third largest customer within the Empire. Canada buys more from India than from any of the other British countries. Her purchases from India increased from $9,590,375 to $10,281,548. Her sales to India increased from $11,111,737 to $11,361,078. Newfoundland has become an important customer, her purchases being $11,833,381, and her sales to Canada $2,752,249.

Other countries within the Empire with which Canada does a substantial business are the British West Indies, British East and West Africa, Ceylon, Fiji, Hong Kong, Iraq, Irish Free State, Jamaica, Malta, Newfoundland, New Zealand and the Straits Settlements. The West Indies are perhaps the most promising area with which Canadians may trade. There has been an increase of 12 per cent. in trade with the Islands during the past year, and there is every indication that with new steamship services in operation and improved refrigeration and other facilities, the business done between Canada and the Indies will soar to new heights.

The departmental reports show that Canada is now selling twice as much to countries within the Empire as she buys from them. Her imports from within the Empire in the twelve months ended in October totalled $255,977,008. Her exports over the seven seas to the countries in the British Commonwealth totalled $547,647,009. That is to say, the effect of the British preference is that Canada is selling double the quantity of goods she buys within the Empire, but is buying more from foreign countries than she is selling. The exports to other countries were $787,639,168, and the imports from other countries, $846,327,851.

The new regulation which raises the requirement of British content to 50 per cent. of labor and material should be influential in fostering trade in imports from British countries and so making mutually advantageous the policy of trade within the Empire. Since goods imported under the British preference must be imported through Canadian channels, the development of Empire trade, as the Halifax Chronicle points out, means increasing business for our ocean ports.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Well, anyway you can do it early in the week—and early in the day.

Most people are trying to figure how they can stay out of crowds to dodge the "flu" and still get their Christmas shopping done.

C. C. Pyle is planning another bunion derby, this time from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific. Contestants in this race may run across the tail-enders in the first trans-continental marathon.

If you want to be a pal of Santa's please notify The Examiner that you have something to donate towards making somebody's Christmas a happy one.

A Thought

"OF COURSE YOU CAN"

A lady was greatly perplexed over complicated matters, and there seemed no way for her to straighten things out, she was about to give up discouraged when she picked up a small piece of paper on the floor on which there were only four words, "Of course you can." This has been part of the heading of an article, but the rest of it was gone.

"Of course you can." These few words opened up a little rift in her dark mind, let in a little light. They made such an impression upon her that she pinned them to a wall of her bedroom, and every time she was attacked with discouragement or the blues, she would look at the paper and repeat the words. This seemed to be a turning point in her far slaverey.

A little slogan like this will often change the whole career. It will often furnish the match which will start the giant powder within us and release pent-up powers which will deliver us from our slavery.—Marven.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate)

Fairly good aspects are strong today, according to astrology which reads in the stars much of pleasant promise for inhabitants of the Earth.

Industrial lines of business should benefit today which favors expansion and reorganization.

Merchants and contractors should profit exceedingly, for there will be an amazing amount of constructive work in the coming year, astrologers foretell.

Mechanics in many branches of activity have the augury of great activity in 1928, which will surpass all previous periods of progress, it is foreshadowed.

This is not an auspicious date for starting an ocean voyage, for winds of extraordinary velocity are indicated.

The coming year is to be a time when past events are to be exceeded, if the stars are wisely interpreted. It will be marked by emphasis that seems exaggeration of previous happenings.

This is a favorable rule for those who use their minds in intensive work. Inventors should prosper greatly.

Books of superior quality will be published and a woman of the west will win high place as a poet, the seers foretell.

Woman today may count on another first-rate profession of hours in which they should be able to accomplish much.

Women are warned of small jealousies which may impede their best attainment in public work.

Peace movements, which will engage the best efforts of women as well as men, will have a tremendous impetus, owing to some threatening international disagreement.

Many distinguished visitors to the United States will be gorgeously entertained this year, astrologers foretell, and the social season in Washington, D.C., as well as New York City will be exceedingly gay.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have surprising experiences that bring benefits. They will hear numerous confidences and confessions.

Children born on this day probably will be restless and fond of adventure. The subjects of this sign usually enjoy the best the world can offer and are fond of travel.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE BORE

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

"A gentleman never hurts another person's feelings except on purpose." It takes a clever and well-bred person not to give offense inadvertently. The common bore is offensive without knowing it.

Women have a reputation for stabbing each other in the most gracious manner. Professor Ross says that under velvet endearments they stretch their claws and scratch like cats. The word catty has come to have a definite meaning as describing this type of conduct.

But any attempt to discriminate against women in this as well as in any other respect is a thankless and unscientific job. The fact is that both men and women are guilty of this type of conduct. Most men, however, are too blunt and impatient to go about it in a cold, calculated manner. There is an unwritten law that the regular fellow must not be over-polite.

We bore, then, because we intend to and because we do it unwittingly. The reasons for the deliberate bore are all based on the motive of getting even, of humiliating the other person and in consequence of fattening one's own ego.

The true bore is one who makes a fool of himself without knowing it. He may think all the while that he is making a big hit.

Except for one who has developed an inferiority complex it is difficult even to suspect oneself of the possibility of being a bore. We are interesting enough to ourselves and it is natural to assume that we are also interesting to others. There is no other way of accounting for the things some people say and do.

"You may be a wonder with the women, but you're only a pain in the mess kit to me," says a character in a recent popular moving-picture play. This suggests the idea that a person may be regarded with genuine interest and admiration in one group and be a great bore in another. In this sense the bore is one who is out of his element, like a fish out of water. The "wise cracks" that go over "big" in one situation may be conducive to nothing but yawning and disgust in another.

Why do you do what you do. Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper enclosing stamped envelope for reply.

CHARGE OF SLAYING JOHN DOE.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Gordon Stewart Northcott will face trial for the murder of "John Doe," a Mexican, whose headless body was found near Puente, Calif. last February in Riverside, Calif., January 2. District Attorney Byron Pitts of Los Angeles County announced yesterday.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS — the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth, and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna had married without love, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her heart. As the years pass, though Hugh has gone to China, they realize that they love each other more than ever. On the night of the Little Flapper's eighteenth birthday ball Hugh returns. Marna, overjoyed at seeing him, faints.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

X—WHAT DOLLY SAID

Presently Hubbard asked Biddy to dance.

"I'm not much of a dancer," he apologized, "but I'll do my best if you think you can put up with me."

It was all nonsense, of course, as the Little Flapper discovered, for he danced divinely, and she loved the strong feel of his arm around her little body, and the careful way in which he guided her through the crowded room.

He was so kindly attentive. He listened to her simple chatter with so much interest.

In spite of her shorn locks and fashionably abbreviated skirts, the Little Flapper had not the modern sangfroid of Dolly Benson and her friends. She still knew the discomfort of occasional shyness, and the painful doubt that she might not always be saying or doing the correct thing.

But with Hubbard she was quite at her ease, and she laughed and chattered away to him happily enough of her own small affairs and interests.

Amongst other things, she presently told him how she adored Marna.

"She's such a darling. I don't know what I should do without her. I was terrified this evening when she fainted." She shivered in his arms. "I thought she was dead. Oh, what should I do without her?"

Hubbard did not answer, and, looking up, afraid lest her chatter was wearying him, Biddy was struck by the deep sadness of his eyes. And she remembered that for more than five years he had done without Marna, and would have to again. Impulsively she dashed off to another subject.

"When are you going away again, Mr. Hubbard?"

That hardly seemed the right thing to ask, either, seeing that he had only just come home, but Hubbard answered at once:

"I am only over for a few weeks on business."

"And then you will go back again?"

"I must."

"Why must you?" the Little Flapper asked, true to her policy of trying to get to the bottom of every question, and Hubbard answered:

"Because my work is out there, and there is nothing for me in England."

An ordinary enough reason, but in the light of the Little Flapper's new understanding it seemed fraught with a deep significance and sadness, and once again back came the memory of herself as a child of twelve, clinging to the polished baluster rail and looking down on this man and Marna talking together.

". . . Don't you think I am suffering, too?"

The Little Flapper raised her eyes kindly to Hubbard's face, and the thought came into her mind that it must be a very wonderful thing to be loved by this man; it must mean something so much greater and more profound than the almost boyish adoration which George Paget gave to his wife—something that would last for ever and ever—something which, as Marna herself had said only that evening, all the wealth in the world could not give to one for one's own.

"A penny for your thoughts, Biddy," Hugh Hubbard said lightly; and the Little Flapper roused herself with a start to answer:

"I was thinking of something Marna said this evening."

"What did she say?"

The dance was over now, and together they walked out into the hall and found seats on a big couch in a corner.

The Little Flapper clasped her hands behind her head and leaned back against the cushions with a sigh.

"She said there are such heaps of things in the world that money cannot buy."

"Did she? What sort of things?"

"I think she meant happiness."

Hubbard made no comment. He sat leaning a little forward, his hands clasped loosely between his knees, his eyes fixed on the floor.

Biddy looked at him with sorrowful eyes. When they first met that evening she had thought him unchanged, but now she could see that there was much grey in his close-cut hair, and many lines about his eyes.

"He doesn't look happy," she thought, and felt almost glad.

If Marna was to be unhappy, it was only fair that this man should be unhappy, too.

Dolly Benson came flying up to them, her eyes bright and eager.

"I suppose you don't remember me, Mr. Hubbard? I used to go to school with Biddy years ago, when you were home. Mr. Paget always called me the Big Flapper."

Hubbard rose to his feet, a polite lie on his lips.

"Of course I remember you. You haven't changed at all—except that you're so grown-up. I feel afraid of you."

Later, when Hubbard had gone to find another partner, Dolly Benson flung herself upon the Little Flapper.

"Isn't he too divine?" she demanded, with her usual extravagance. "Quite the most striking-looking man in the room. Fancy him remembering me! I always adored him years ago—you remember how I always adored him, don't you, Biddy? Oh, I do hope he will ask me to dance!"

The Little Flapper looked rather scornful. She was accustomed to Dolly's sudden violent fancies, and never took her outbursts very seriously.

"I thought John Blair was the only pebble on your beach," she said unkindly.

The Big Flapper hunched her white shoulders.

"I've done with him," she announced calmly. "He took that hateful Hall girl to Ciro's last night, and if he thinks I'm going to dance with him after that, just because she isn't here, he's made the mistake of his young life. I'll make him eat out of my hand before I've done with him!"

She flung a half-smoked cigarette into the fireplace.

"And that's where I'd like to fling him as well," she added viciously. She took a lipstick and mirror from a tiny vanity-bag and retouched her lips.

"Where's my darling Mr. Hubbard now?" she asked rapturously, when her toilet was completed. "Oh, there he is, talking to Marna. My dear, did you ever see such unashamed happiness in any woman's face?"

The Little Flapper's heart gave a sudden throb as her eyes followed the direction of Dolly's eagle glance.

Hubbard and Marna were standing together, talking and smiling like ordinary people, and yet there was something so different about them—something that seemed to radiate contentment and perfect happiness.

"If I had not known the truth before, I should know now," Biddy Saunders told herself in panic, and she wondered how long it would be before George Paget's kindly, unsuspecting eyes were open to the truth. But she scowled at Dolly Benson.

"And why shouldn't Marna look happy?" she demanded crossly. "She's always trying to make other people happy."

"My sainted aunt!" the Big Flapper ejaculated blankly. "Anyone would think I was running Marna down. I merely said I never saw such unashamed happiness in any woman's face." She paused and a twinkle grew in her eyes. "I never even suggested a reason for it," she said wickedly. "Not that I couldn't if I chose—" Then, seeing Biddy's growing wrath, she relented. "There; I'm only teasing," she declared. "It's fun teasing you. And now tell me, is Mr. Hubbard going to stay in the house?"

"Yes, I think so," Biddy admitted reluctantly.

The Big Flapper gave an ecstatic sigh.

"How heavenly! I'm so thankful Marna asked me to stay for a few days, too."

Biddy screwed up her little nose scornfully.

"You don't imagine Mr. Hubbard will ever take any notice of you, do you?"

The Big Flapper sighed, and stuck out her long, slender legs, regarding her silk stockings and daintily buckled shoes with pride.

"Well, there's no harm in hoping," she said sententiously. "And anyway, nobody can prevent me adoring him from afar."

She sighed again.

"He's the sort of man I've always dreamed about—the sort of man you could go to if you were in any trouble or if you were unhappy, and be quite sure that he would understand and put things right for you," she said sentimentally.

"Any nice man would do that," Biddy declared positively, and thought of George Paget who never turned a deaf ear to a tale of distress.

"Oh, would they!" the Big Flapper scoffed. "You ought to hear what my old man says when things go wrong and the mater is silly enough to go to him about it. I often wonder how it is she hasn't learnt better, after all these years. Of course, in his way he's quite a kind old bean, but you might as well go to that"—she kicked the leg of the couch—"as to go to father for help or comfort."

She sat up with renewed enthusiasm. "Hugh Hubbard's quite different. He has that sort of look in his eyes. I suppose you haven't noticed it, but it's the sort of look that seems to put protecting arms around you, if you can understand!"

Biddy looked profoundly amazed. She had always considered Dolly Benson rather shallow and superfluous, and she found this sudden plumbing of the depths very perplexing.

"You certainly sound as if you rather adore him," she said resentfully.

The Big Flapper sighed.

"It's no use, as I know he doesn't even approve of me," she said disconsolately. "I read it in his eyes at once. I suppose my skirts are too short, or I'm too cheeky, or something, but oh, Biddy, don't you just love the back of his head?"

Biddy stared.

"The back of his head!"

"Yes, of course, you haven't noticed that, either. You wouldn't. But I always notice odd things like that. The back of his head is divine—such a lovely square look."

Biddy's eyes were angry.

"You are talking rubbish," she protested.

"Am I?" The Big Flapper laughed, then suddenly sprang to her feet. "They're playing that divine fox-trot!" she cried breathlessly. "Listen, Biddy!"

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

BOW AND ARROW DAYS

Again to bow and arrow days
I often wander, when the haze
Of memory softens all the hard,
Hard lines of all the afterward.
Ah, those are lovely days indeed,
When joy, not gold, is what we need,
When life is simple, life is kind,
And joy, not gold, is what we find.

Perhaps a hickory sapling stood
In the bright edges of the wood,
But, if no hickory was around,
A barrel hoop we always found.
From half a hoop we made a bow,
For little fellows learn to know
With something poor one can be glad
When something rich may not be had.

And then I wandered through the fields
And knew the joy a good bow yields,
My whittled arrows shot in air,
My arrows followed here and there,
And knew again the sweet delight
That came to many a doughty knight
When, life a harp, he heard the twang
Of music that a long-bow sang.

Ah, yes, I learned the lesson, too,
That even boyhood archers do,
Aye, missed the target now and then
But learned to laugh and shoot again.
And, if the man shall win the prize
For which he tries and tries and tries,
It is because he learned life's ways
In boyhood's bow and arrow days.

McLEOD'S TEAM LEADS CONTEST

L. J. Pettit Discusses United States' Civics To Friday Night Club

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION

The membership campaign of the Friday Night Supper Club of the Y.M.C.A. is booming. Hec. McLeod's team is piling up a big lead, and it will be hard for the other teams to catch up if they don't dig in and grab some points. However, there is a long time yet before the campaign will be over and the other teams do not intend to let Mr. McLeod's team walk off with the honors without a fight. At last night's meeting there was a smaller attendance than usual, due to the functions at the Collegiate. Next week will be the Christmas celebration with a real Christmas and all that goes with it, so that a large number of the fellows are expected to turn out. The standing of the teams in the campaign is:

	Points.
Hector McLeod's	32
Crawford Hall's	22
Bob Allin's	22
Bruce Fraser's	20
Terry Hall's	20
Keith Copping's	19
Francis Hewett	19
William Sangster, Jr.	17

The speaker last night was L. J. Pettit, B.A., of the staff of the Collegiate Institute. Mr. Pettit spoke on the recent Presidential elections in the United States. "We Canadians do not know as much as we ought to about our neighbors to the south, especially in relation to their politics. In many ways they differ from us. The Canadian executive is taken care of by the Cabinet chosen from the House having the mapority in the House of Commons. The Americans leave the matter in the hands of the President alone. He is not responsible to the House of Representatives or to the Senate. He also chooses the secretaries of the different departments of the national government such as the Secretary of State and Secretary of War.

Their method of election if different. In the States the president is elected by the people. In each state they elect a certain number of representatives called electors for the electoral college. The state is divided into constituencies with an elector for each constituency and two delegates besides. The minority of electors count with the majority. For example, in the state of New York there are 45 electors elected. If 25 are for one side the whole 45 are counted on that side and the same applies to each state. The total number of electors in the college is 531. At present there is little difference in the policies of the two parties. The strength of the Democrats lies south of the Mason-Dixon line while the strength of the Republican lies north of it. One of the biggest issues of the election was that of the canals. Smith had favored the Erie canal system, keeping it all in American territory while Hoover favored the deepening of the St. Lawrence.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

Probably the first official advice out from Red Lake since the freeze-up is the following message from the Rand Ore Mines to the effect that the Dunkin or main vein has now been traced entirely across the property. Mine Manager A. L. Guest states that this shows free gold and native copper with good quartz replacing decomposed schist with depth.

A despatch from Sydney, N.S., states that the new power plant on the Coxheath property of Arno Mines is now in operation. The pumps with which the mine will be de-watered have been set up on a floating platform on the No. 2 shaft and are, most likely, in full operation. Complete de-watering will take place in about six weeks.

It is understood that Copper Hill Mines is endeavoring to secure the property owned by the East Bay syndicate at Duall Lake, Rouyn. This property is said to have on surface one of the largest showings in the Rouyn district. The sulphides are principally iron, but indications are that these may change to copper with depth. It is understood that no work is being carried on by Copper Hill at present. Nothing definite has yet been decided in regard to the acquisition of the above property.

Capital Rouyn is continuing exploration on the Sterling property in Hess Township, Sudbury district. Encouraging values are understood to be encountered, but so far, it is said, these appear to lack concentration.

It is announced that Demara Mines, Limited, is now preparing a circular letter to be sent to its shareholders dealing with activities to date on its various holdings. The company operates three properties, one of 900 acres adjoining Abana Mines, on the south and west, in Desmoloizes Township, northern Quebec; another of 27 claims in Fourniere Township in the vicinity of the Malartic Gold Mines, and a third group adjoining the Sherritt Gordon Mines in northern Manitoba.

J. McWilliam, director and secretary of the Duparquet Mining Company, has just returned from a visit to the north, and reports steady and satisfactory progress is being made on the No. 2 shaft of their property. Erection of shaft sinking machinery is going ahead rapidly and sinking will be carried out with three shifts per days. It is planned also to do some exploration work on the north part of the property, where interesting mineralization is said to have been uncovered in a survey made of the territory this spring.

This district is having the attention of big operators, who have the ground staked or optioned. It is understood that Consolidated Smelters are getting satisfactory results from their diamond drilling, and the Rochester property, which lies in a direct line between Smelters and the Duparquet, and now taken over by the Aconda Mines, are expected to start diamond drilling within the next few days. Bunker Hill Extension is working the Dugas property in this area. A rich strike is reported to have been made here recently and this was instrumental in Bunker Hill Extension taking over the group.

Mining Corporation.

Particular significance is attached to the work now being carried out by the Mining Corporation on their property some two miles east of Keeley in South Lorrain. A shaft is now down to a depth of about 100 feet and will be carried to about the 400-foot horizon. At this point a crosscut will be driven in the Keewatin conglomerate contract. Since all values were found in association with the conglomerate in Cobalt, it is believed Mining Corporation have a good chance of bringing in another producer here.

Arno.

A despatch from Sydney, N.S., states that the new power plant on the Coxheath property of Arno is now in operation. The pumps with which the mine will be dewatered have been set up on a floating platform in the No. 2 shaft, and are, no doubt, in full operation by now. Complete dewatering will take about six weeks.

Central Manitoba Mines.

At a meeting of the directors of Central Manitoba Mines Friday it was decided to recommend an increase in capitalization from $4,500,000 to $5,000,000. While complete details of the financing have not as yet been worked out, it is possible 200,000 shares will be offered to present shareholders. Should these not be fully taken up, it is expected the W. A. D. Syndicate will take care of the balance.

Nipissing.

The directors of Nipissing Friday declared their regular quarterly dividend of 7½ cents, payable January 20th, to shareholders of record December 31. At December 10th Nipissing held cash and marketable securities amounting to approximately $3,000,000, with ore and bullion on hand valued at more than $600,000.

Noranda.

While no official announcement has been made by President Murdoch of Noranda, following his inspection of the property over the week-end, with several other directors, it is understood they were decidedly well pleased with both smelter and underground conditions. As the trip was more or less informal and for the purpose of opening the new Noranda Hotel, it is just possible no official announcement will be made.

MARKETS BRANCH HEAD IS APPOINTED

J. A. Carroll is Promoted to the Position Vacated By Professor Hart.

TORONTO, Ont., December 17 (Canadian Press). — J. A. Carroll, who has been assistant director of the Agricultural representative branch, has been appointed by Hon. John S. Martin Ontario Minister of Agriculture, to the position of director of Co-operation and Markets Branch of the Department of Agriculture, in succession to F. C. Hart, who recently joined the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, as Professor of Economics.

Concurrently with his appointment the name of the branch is changed to that of Crops, Co-operation and Markets Branch, to indicate the broader nature of the work coming under its jurisdiction.

CALGARY OIL GOSSIP

It is understood a meeting of the directors of East Crest was held in Calgary on Friday. One of the resolutions to come before the board for consideration was that of changing the head office from Calgary to Toronto.

We understand the British Dominion well has now reached a depth of 3,270 feet, and should soon be in the McDougall-Segur sands.

New McDougall-Segur No. 2 is reported to be making some gasoline now, and looks decidedly promising.

The Mayland well has reached a depth of 4,740 feet, and also looks decidedly promising. Drilling is continuing.

Heavy Selling Lowers Chicago Wheat Values

CHICAGO, Ills., December 17. Canadian Press. — Selling on the part of houses with connections northwest led to an early downturn in wheat prices to-day. On the other hand, prevailing adverse weather for the corn crop movement tended to strengthen the corn market. Opening unchanged to 1-4c up wheat later underwent a general decline. Corn started unchanged to 3-8c higher and subsequently scored a moderate advance all around. Oats showed a downward slant; provisions held about steady.

Siscoe Leads Advance On Standard Exchange

TORONTO, December 17. Canadian Press. — A steady tone prevailed on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Siscoe early became the leading issue and rapidly gained 4 1-2 points to 83 1-2, when more than 68,000 shares changed hands; Noranda regained its early loss of 1.25 and climbed to 61.00, only to react toward noon to 59.00, for a net loss over Saturday's close of 50c.

Coast Copper dropped 1.00 to 56.00, and Pend-Oreille lost 5 cents to 9.90; Central Manitoba was up 1 at 66 and Jackson Manion 1 at 19, while Hudson Bay, Mandy, Sherritt-Gordon, Howey Gold and Mining Corporation were unchanged.

Toronto Market Irregular Following Steady Opening

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Following a steady opening the market took on an irregular trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. International Nickel New maintained the lead it has held during the past few days, and more than 31,000 shares changed hands, while the price slipped from 42 at the opening to 40, but rose again toward the noon close to 41 for 1 ⅛ point gain.

Charles H. Labarge, president of the local concern, will continue to direct the management, the announcement stated.

New York Prices Drop Under Heavy Selling

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Fears of another credit stringency over the year-end had a restraining effect on trading in to-day's stock market, which moved irregularly lower. A few rails and specialties were marked up 3 to nearly 24 points on pool buying, but the general list was under selling pressure most of the day, several of the extreme declines ranging from 4 to nearly 10 points.

Call money renewed at 7 and dropped to 6, but the ease in rates is expected in banking circles to continue only a day or two longer with a strong likelihood of another flurry to 12 or 15 percent; possibly higher before the end of the year. Time money and commercial paper rates continued firm. With the bulk of brokers' loans now made for the "account of others" Wall street fears that the heavy withdrawal of these funds for year-end readjustments might temporarily impair the volume of credit available.

Except for the gathering of war clouds in South Africa there was little in the week end news to influence the price movement. Secretary of Commerce Whiting was quoted to-day as saying that business is in a very healthy condition and that no sign of any recession is seen.

National Bella-Hess common was the spectacular individual feature, soaring 23 1-4 points to a new high record at 182, while the preferred moved up 5 points to a new high at 116. Western Pacific common and preferred also were in brisk demand, the former touching a new high at 38.

Violent fluctuations continued in the high priced specialties. Radio, Wright Aeronautical, International Nickel, Packard Motors, A. M. Byers, Dupont and Curtiss Aeroplane fell 5 to nearly 10 points, but good recoveries were made in a few cases. International Telephone, Western Union and Greene Cananea Copper sold down four points or more and a long list of others reacted 1 to 3 points below Yesterday's final quotations.

Around the City

A motor accident, of no serious results occurred at the corner fo Charlotte and Rubidge street at noon today when a Peterborough Milk Products Ltd. truck, turning on to Rubidge street, came in contact with a sedan, driven by a Toronto man, which was proceeding east on Charlotte street.

The truck was not seriously damaged, but the sedan suffered a broken windshield and injured fenders.

The property of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, north of the Queen Mary School on Monaghan Road, is being surveyed with the final object of breaking this extensive piece of property into building lots.

"FLUE" EPIDEMIC NOT PREVALENT

Twenty Cases Admitted

TORONTO, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Although twenty cases of influenza were admitted to the large hospitals of the city over the week-end the spread of the disease is not alarming according to local physicians it was stated last night. It is estimated that 150 cases are now being treated in the five chief hospitals of the city.

As a precaution against the spread of the epidemic all local hospitals have been closed to visitors to prevent the carrying of germs to the patients.

About ten per cent of the children attending Toronto Public schools and ten per cent of the teaching staff are sick, according to an estimate made by the Board of Education. Henry Rowland, secretary of the local board of health, stated last night that there had been no suggestion of closing the schools to check the epidemic.

Though the epidemic is general over the province only two education institutions were closed over the week-end, while several high and public schools closed during last week. The Ontario Agricultural College and Macdonald Institute at Guelph closed Saturday in the midst of examinations, after seventeeen students had been admitted to the hospital and eight more weer ill in the residence.

Teachers Off

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Sixty-five teachers of the Ottawa public and separate schools are absent from their classes to-day because of the prevalent "grippe."

At the public schools it was reported that forty teachers were laid up out of some three hundred. Separate schools reported twenty-five out of two hundreds teachers ill.

ENGINE BACKFIRES SETTING CAR ON FIRE

Fire Department Had a Call To 587 Chamberlain Street On Saturday Night.

A. Townshend, 587 Chamberlain Street, sent a hurried telephone call to the Fire Hall at 11.20 on Saturday night when his car caught fire when it backfired as he was backing it into his garage. The car was badly damaged, the seats, upholstering, and top being completely burned, and only the timely aid of the Fire Department prevented the garage from burning, one corner of the building having caught from the flames of the car.

The Fire Department received another call to a burning car at 11.03 on Sunday night at the corner of Dalhousie and Aylmer Streets, but the damage there was slight, the fire being quickly squelched.

GAS PLANT BY-LAW

If the citizens of Peterborough decide to take over the Gas Plant on January first next, they will find themselves in the business of manufacturing and selling gas, a business that for years past has been a profitable one, and should continue to be so. This is not a new experience for municipalities in Ontario, as the following places are running municipally-owned plants, with the results as given below:

Brockville reported a profit of $13,833.18; Guelph $16,309.06; Kingston $13,700.75; Kitchener $1,021.31; Owen Sound $5,564.76; St. Thomas $13,113.35; Waterloo $395.39; and Leamington, with a natural gas service, $25,120.53.

Belleville had a net loss of $2,519.18, and Stratford reported a deficit of $2,466.62, the rate in Belleville being $1.85 per 1,000 feet and in Stratford $2.00 and $1.85 per 1,000 feet.

Peterborough's revenue under Hydro Commission operation in 1928 was	$92,639.39
Operating expenses	59,368.64
Gross surplus	$33,270.75

which is sufficient to pay the sinking fund and interest yearly and leave a balance of $12,163.33, an excellent showing on this investment, and no doubt would readily attract private interests should the City not purchase the plant.

The reported profit of over $13,000.00 by the St. Thomas municipal plant was sufficient to interest private capital in the investment, and an offer was made to the City of St. Thomas to sell out for $500,000, which was voted on by the ratepayers last week and the offer was not accepted by the citizens.

It would appear that the Peterborough investment should compare favorably with St. Thomas, and when the latter city turned down $500,000.00 for their plant, it should be good business for Peterborough citizens to pay $335,000.00 for the Gas Plant here. It should be an asset that could be turned over at quite a considerable advance if at any time it was thought advisable to do so. It is not the intention to do so, however, but this statement is made to show the asset is a most liquid one.

AIRPLANES NEEDED BY MISSIONARIES

Bishop of Keewatin Stresses Requirement for Work in North.

TORONTO, Dec. 17 (By The Canadian Press) —Pleading for an increase in the appropriations of the Church of England for missionary work so as to make it possible for missionaries in the northern section of the Dominion to use airplanes in carrying the gospel to prospectors, and miners, railway builders and trappers, Eskimos and Indians Rt. Rev. Dr. A. D. A. Dewdney, Bishop of Keewatin, in an address in Toronto emphasized the cost of long trips and the great length of time to make them. Speaking of trips made by himself he said that one trip took him 300 miles inland from Hudson Bay and 400 miles north of Hudson on the Canadian National Railway. Past Island Lake, where prospectors for gold were working, he went through muskeg, over rocks, through almost impenetrable Canadian jungles and over 55 portages. His destination was the northern Trout Lake, where 800 souls were dependent upon the Anglican missionary for church ministrations. That journey cost him $500 and took three weeks. For $250 more he could have gone in an airplane and saved all of the three weeks except a single day.

Bishop Dewdney said that what was true of his diocese was true to some extent of all missionary dioceses. His covered an area of 750,000 square miles. In the seven years that he had been its leader the work had doubled with 22 men now employed where there were eleven before. Where previously the farthest north mission was Churchill, now it was Baker Lake, 660 miles further on.

OLD POLLEN WILL POISON BUSY BEES

Dominion Apiarist Tells Beekeepers of Dangers That Lie Hidden.

TORONTO, Dec. 17 (By the Canadian Press).—That there is danger of the busy bee being poisoned while in pursuit of its occupation of making honey was brought out at the convention of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association in this city recently, by C. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist, Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Mr. Gooderham stated that for years apiarists had been puzzled by the fact that their bees died off during the winter although properly protected against the cold weather, and also provided with an abundance of supplies of winter feeding honey in the comb, and in consequence he had made a special study of the situation.

The Dominion Apiarist discovered that the deaths of the bees were due to an insiduous poison compact in the wild flowers from which the bees had gathered nectar in season, the trouble being that poisonous qualities had developed long after the season was ended. The honey gathered from fruit blooms and dandelions in the spring of the year, if kept until winter, proved fatal to the bees, giving them what Mr. Gooderham called "apicultural ptomaine poisoning." He found out also that nectar gathered in the fall from goldenrod or wild asters became poison in the winter store of food for the bees.

Other dangers to bees came through the use of sprays and powders to prevent fruit trees from attack by caterpillars, worms and bugs, Mr. Gooderham said.

POLICE FORCE IS DEFENDED

Sir John Anderson Points Out Splendid Opportunities for Criticism of Officers.

PUBLIC OPINION

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 17 (By the Canadian Press).—A defence of the police was submitted by Sir John Anderson, Home Office Under Secretary, in a recent address at Sheffield. The history of the Metropolitan Force, said Sir John, was literally punctuated by committees of enquiry.

"When one considers the almost sacred character with which human liberty is invested in this country," Sir John continued, "and the magnificent opportunities for criticism that exist through Parliament and the public press, the marvel to me is not that there are complaints, but that there are not far more complaints. I think public opinion is rightly sensitive in these matters and when public opinion is disturbed it is essential that there should be the fullest ventilation of the matters involved. I feel, however—and I take it upon myself to state this quite frankly—that there are certain circumstances at the present time for which the police are in no way responsible, but which tend to make their work appreciably more difficult, and to multiply causes of friction.

Must Have Public Opinion.

"If the police are to do their work properly, sane and responsible public opinion must be on their side. In the Motor Car Acts we have at present a law, to the detailed enforcement of which an enormous amount of police time was devoted, and which is frankly out of date. Speaking purely from the police point of view, I wish this state of affairs could be altered. It is daily putting the police at variance with large numbers of decent and normally law-abiding citizens—with the very class of people on whose sympathy and support they should be able to reply. The Streets Betting Act constitutes another difficult problem for the police—a problem not rendered easier by the institution of the Betting Duty and other more recent legislation. Respect for law and the instruments of the law is bound to be diminished if the penal statute is not enforced."

Then there was the whole question of moral offences where the police had the difficult task of steering a middle course —of maintaining a reasonable standard of decency and good order in public places without incurring censure as "Nosey Parkers" or "Peeping Toms," he remarked.

IN POLICE COURT

In police court this morning three Peterborough young men appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley charged with being intoxicated in a public place, namely on Rubidge street. They pleaded guilty and were each fined $10 and costs.

KING SERVED WITH FLEET AT HALIFAX

When Stationed on "The Canada" Plot Was Discovered to Blow Up Vessel.

DYNAMITE FOUND

Men Were Arrested and Given Six Months Terms in Jail.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 17.—The recent illness of King George recalled his visits to this old British port where he was well known, particularly when stationed here as a midshipman on the "Canada."

One of the outstanding incidents associated with His Majesty as a midshipman here was a sensational discovery of what was believed to be a plot to blow up the "Canada" with its royal sailor, and one of the men involved was afterwards said to have admitted the intention of himself and an accomplice to destroy the vessel.

Investigation of a burglary revealed a large supply of powerful dynamite, hidden in a grip in a local hotel. The two occupants of the room, who gave their names as James Holmes and William Brecken, of Philadelphia, were arrested, and a railway baggage check in Holmes' possession was exchanged at the station for a large, white, canvas bag, in which were found a new rubber floating suit, a quantity of copper wires, dynamite caps and detonators, with a number of small hooks, screws and chisels, and a small six-barrel revolver, similar to those used for exploding dynamite. At a subsequent investigation, it was discovered that the two prisoners had been rowing nightly around the naval ships, including the "Canada," anchored off the dockyard. The case aroused great excitement. Admiral Commorall told the police that an attempt had been made to destroy naval property at Halifax, and that Sir Percy Sherwood, in charge of the secret service and Dominion police, had been informed that dynamiters would make a raid on military and naval property here, his department possessing information regarding the plot. When this discovery was made the Prince was ordered from Halifax to the West Indies.

Holmes and Brecken were sent up for trial on a charge of having explosives in their possession contrary to the law. Sir John Thompson, Chief Justice, found there was no law against their possessing dynamite in Canada, but the prisoners were convicted for creating a nuisance, and sentenced to six months each in the jail.

After his discharge from jail and before leaving for the United States, Brecken was quoted as saying:

"It is just as well we were captured, anyhow, as the thing we came here to do might have been far more serious, as we intended when coming here to blow up the H.M.S. 'Canada' with the 'Prince'."

SINGER OVERCOMES NATIVE HANDICAP

Foreign Name is Distinctly More Value, Edward Johnson Says.

TORONTO, Dec. 17 (By the Canadian Press).—A foreign name has a definite advantage over the Anglo-Saxon name in music or the other arts, Edward Johnson, native of Ontario, who has won world recognition as a famous tenor, told The Canadian Club here recently. While in Europe he used the Italian version of his own name and when he returned to this continent under his proper name his "market value" fell 50 per cent, he said.

Similarly, Isidore de Lara, an Englishman born and bred and christened Cohen, had to leave Britain to get a living and change his name. His operas have been performed with great success in France for years. And Sir Thomas Beecham, renowned supporter of opera, told a group in London that the chief tenor in the Vienna Opera was a man named Packover from Lincolnshire, England, but singing under the name of Piccaver.

Edward Johnson, however, has triumphed over this "handicap" and on his return to his native city of Guelph this month was acclaimed with the greatest warmth. He had left Guelph at the age of 20, having established a reputation as a singer and student of good music. After years of strenuous study in the United States he studied in Paris, Florence and other great musical centres of the continent. In Florence he achieved his first real success; and in Florence he met the lovely girl who became his wife. She died not long afterward, but his only daughter was born in the Italian city and named after it, "Fereinzi." She is now 18 years of age and is studying music in the finest of the world's schools.

FIXED ASSESSMENT SOUGHT IN BY-LAW

Johnson Outboard Motor Company Will Manufacture for Dominion and Overseas Trade.

The by-law to fix the assessment of the Henry Hope plant, now occupied by the Johnson Motor Company, at ten thousand dollars per year for municipal purposes for ten years, will come up for the consideration of the ratepayers at the January first elections.

The fixed assessment referred only to the assessment for municipal purposes. The company would pay full school and local improvement taxes.

The Johnson Motors Company is the Canadian branch of the parent company, established at Waukegan, Illinois, where they employ about one thousand hands.

The Canadian company leased the Henry Hope plant in Peterborough last spring, where outboard motors were assembled during the summer to try out the Canadian market. The company is satisfied that there is a future for their product in Canada, and with the carrying of the by-law their intention is to purchase the plant, put in more machinery, and manufacture more of their product here.

In addition to filling the wants of Canadian boat owners for outboard motors and pumps, it is the intention of the company to export to Great Britain and other British possessions.

The company is a strong one, with a great field to be sold with their product, and the carrying of the by-law should ensure the permanent establishment here of another important industry.

The company is manufacturing and intends to manufacture outboard motors and pumps.

The public is asked to consider the by-law granting fixed taxation for ten years at ten thousand dollars, and give it the support they believe it deserves.

Apsley Women's Society Proposes to Purchase Three Street Lamps.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

(Examiner Correspondence)

APSLEY, Dec. 17.—The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. W. H. Taylor on Thursday afternoon and spent an enjoyable and profitable session. The visiting committee reported one sick visit made to the Red Cross Hospital. Two new members were admitted bringing the membership up to eighteen. Mrs. C. S. Windsor read an account of the convention recently held in Toronto, after which it was suggested that each member propose some way in which the Institute could be of benefit to the community. Mrs W. Lean proposed that three street gas lamps be procured, one to be placed in front of the post office and the other two in front of the two churches, and a committee consisting of Mesdames J. Downing, F. McFadden, J. Tucker and C. S Windsor was appointed to interview the municipal council with a view to obtaining assistance to carry out the project. Mrs. T. Tanner sang a solo and Mrs. C. Smith gave a violin solo, both numbers being much appreciated. After a dainty lunch had been served by Mrs. Taylor, the meeting adjourned. The next regular monthly meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Downing.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Millbrook L.O.L. No. 79 held its annual meeting on Friday evening, Past County Master, Brother James Roddy, presiding and conducting the installation ceremony, when the following officerse were elected for 1929:

Paul; Brother R. Williamson, Worshipful Master of Fallis Line L.O.L. No. 40, the newly-elected officers, and others.

The reports of the year's work, received at the annual meeting were quite satisfactory, and showed interest and activity well sustained.

Annual Meeting.

Fallis Line L.O.L. No. 40 held its annual meeting on Monday evening, in the Orange Hall, with a large attendance, and every evidence of enthusiasm and interest manifested throughout.

Reports of the year's activities showed that this Lodge, though a comparatively small one, had held a meeting on every regular night, and had called two special meetings besides—a record that is not likely to be excelled in the county.

Brother H. A. Graham, of Kingston, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, and a present Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of British America, presided, and conducted the installation ceremony.

The following is the list of officers for 1929:

W.M.—Brother W. R. Williamson.
D.M.—Brother Austin Sutton.
Chaplain—Brother William Lynn.
R.S.—Brother W. A. Leech.
F.S.—Brother Wesley Fallis.
Treasurer — Brother Nathaniel Belch.
Marshal—Brother Louis Morton.
Lectureman—Brother Albert Jones.
Deputy-Lectureman—Brother Roy Ferren.
Committeeman— Brother Stewart Fallis.

At the conclusion of the business session a public gathering was held, the families of the Lodge members being admitted, when Brother Graham gave a most interesting account of his trip to England to attend the meeting of the Triennial Council in 1927, and also devoted part of his address to enlarging on the benefits and obligations of the Orange Order, urging its claims particularly upon the men present who had not joined up with the local Lodge. The opportunities which membership in the Ladies' Lodges offer were likewise stressed.

Harry Preston, of Bethany, enlivened the program with a number of comic selections that elicited a demand for an encore each time, Miss Gray playing his accompaniments.

A fowl supper completed one of the most successful annual meetings in the history of the Fallis Line Lodge.

MASONIC LODGE HOLDS DINNER

Ionic Chapter of Royal Arch Masons Entertains Guests at Campbellford.

GOOD PROGRAM.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17. — As ideal hosts, the officers and companions of the Ionic chapter, Royal Arch Masons, No. 168, G.R.C. proved their merit when they entertained at a dinner, more than one hundred of their friends in the Parish Hall, Rear street, at seven o'clock Friday evening, December 14th. Harry Tinney, first principal, occupied the toastmaster's chair and proposed the toast to the King and the Craft. His address was brief, but sufficient to extend the most hearty welcome to the guests of the order.

Mr. J. B. Taylor, Toronto, was the speaker of the evening and his humorous anecdotes which punctuated more serious matter, added greatly to the evening's entertainment. Mr. A. Hazel and Mrs. F. Free also appeared on the program. Mr. Hazel sang two numbers, "The Pretty Creature" (Wilson) and 'The Carey Dance' (Holloy). The second number was encored. Mr. Hazel responded with "Invictus" by Bruno Kuhn. Mrs. Free also sang two numbers, both receiving an encore. She sang "The Irish Love Song" (Lang) and "Lie There My Lute" (MacCunn). As encores to these numbers she sang, "The Little Coon's Prayer" (Hope) and "Long, Long Ago" by Bailey. The accompaniments for the evening were played by E. C. Dolman.

There were two lucky chairs at the tables, and prizes were awarded to the ladies who occupied them. The first prize went to Mrs. Roy Scott and the second to Mrs. Arthur Armour. Dancing was the order of the evening after the program was concluded. Music was furnished by a local orchestra.

EAST EMILY COUPLE ARE GIVEN LAMP

Members of Epworth League Hold Regular December Meeting.

(Examiner Correspondence)

EAST EMILY, Dec. 17.—A very pleasant evening was spent on Thursday in the basement of Bethel church, when the members of the Epworth League and church gathered on the occasion of presenting Mr. and Mrs. Marwood McCarrell with an Alladin lamp and silverware.

The regular league service took place after which Rev. Mr. Blanchard asked Mr. and Mrs. McCarrell to come to the front where the presentation was made. The groom, in his usual manner, made a very pleasing and appropriate reply on behalf of his bride and himself and gave all present a very warm invitation to come and visit them in their new home.

A social hour was then much enjoyed by all, when contests and games took place after which lunch was served by the young people of the league. The evening was brought to a close by singing of the National Anthem.

Farmer Saves Entire Hay Crop by Reading Weather Report in Examiner.

While in Northumberland recently an Examiner representative was informed by John Woods that the weather report in his paper had been the means of saving his entire hay crop.

In glancing through his paper one evening he ascertained that the probabilities for to-morrow was fine and warm, followed by thunder-storms by night, and although he had intended to go to a neighboring auction sale, he decided to stay home, and telephoned to the village for a man to help him, and with the aid of two of the children, he succeeded in housing the entire crop of twenty tons. He said that he had not finished the chores that evening before it began to thunder, and it rained all night. He said the amount of hay that was spoiled in his section was very large, and that there was no doubt had it not been for the warning of the weather forecast in his daily paper he would also have been a heavy loser.

At the time hay was worth ten dollars a ton, and because of the amount of hay that was spoiled this summer, the value of his hay increased seventy-five dollars. At $4.80 a year he considered that this saving alone had paid for his paper for a good many years to come.

GRAIN HAULAGE SETS RECORD

Largest In History Of the Midland to Belleville Division

CONGESTION AT MONTREAL

LINDSAY, December 17 (Special to The Examiner). — The unusually heavy grain traffic over the C.N.R. from Midland to Belleville during the past few months has taken quite a decided slump during the past few days owing to the congestion at Montreal. The grain haulage this year has been the largest in the history of the division, and necessitated the transferring of a large number of men from other divisions to Lindsay in order to handle the millions of bushels of grain from the West. There is at present three million bushels of wheat at Tiffin, and railway men state that this must be moved before the close of the year. As a result of the temporary cessation of grain hauling activities, some fourteen railway men from the province of Quebec who were engaged on this division left for their homes this week.

The record grain traffic this fall has meant much to Lindsay, as the payroll had decreased considerably following the introduction of the high-powered locomotives and the corresponding decrease in the train crews.

COLBORNE, Dec. 17.—Stuart Cox had the misfortune recently to lose a number of his Angora rabbits, valued at about two hundred dollars. Hounds broke into the pen and killed the rabbits.

Things are rather quiet in the village at present. Christmas excitement has not yet started. The highway is very busy, heavy trucks running from Toronto to Kingston daily.

Mr. Harnden has moved into the Simmonds place and has started his milk route.

Mr. Rosebush, of Oshawa, is moving into the Teal place.

Ariadne's Great-Grandparents Shovelled Snow on Christmas Day!

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

Just three weeks until Christmas; just imagine it! Maybe it's just imagination, but it seems to me that the festive season is earlier than ever this year.

It was nice of you to print both my letters and was much more than I expected.

In the 'Whatnot' I saw an article on how the immigrants spent Christmas. Well, Marion, I have a dear grandma who read that article and who told me about her grandmother.

Her grandfather and grandmother were Irish immigrants and it was Christmas Day when they arrived at the little shanty that the government had built for them. There they settled just four miles from Peterborough.

Grandma says "The shanty was half full of snow when they arrived and in the centre of it was the stump of a large tree. They didn't do much decorating that Christmas day but spent it clearing out the snow and chopping down the remains of the tree."

Many are the tales Grannie tells us and all so interesting!

Well, I feel I have again trespassed on your valuable time; I never mean to but it seems so easy to write to you—just like an old friend.

I am enclosing some Christmas poems that I have copied from my scrap book.

Hoping I have not completely tired you out.

I am,

'Lest You Forget,'

Ariadne."

Warkworth.

* * *

Indeed not, "Ariadne"! I thoroughly enjoy your interesting letters, especially this one because I am intrigued by all stories of the pioneers. Thanks for the poems, which I have no doubt I will find room for between now and Christmas.

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy reading your page very much, also the recipes which I have found real good. I am sending for some helps. Would you have one of the hat pattern left? If so, I would be pleased to receive it and the others I have marked for which I thank you in advance.

I wonder if any of the neighbors have tried a cup of maple syrup instead of the molasses in their Christmas cake? I have and found it an improvement and it darkens it just as well and has a much nicer flavor.

Yours sincerely,

Mrs. D. D."

City.

* * *

Thanks for your hint about maple syrup, "Mrs. D.D." I never heard it before, but it sounds attractive. All the helps I have were sent you, and I hope you find them useful.

"Dear Marion:

I am again coming for a few of your helps. Those I have had before have been a great help. Thank you for same, also the many interesting hints one gets in the daily paper. I am looking forward to seeing your Christmas stories. Thanking you once again, I remain,

Sincerely,

Topsy Too."

City.

* * *

I'm glad the helps were of assistance, "Topsy." It's a real pleasure to me to send them out. I hope you liked the Christmas stories by our neighbors.

"Dear Marion:

You have added so much interest to our local paper that I have often thought of writing to tell you so, but as I never wrote to a newspaper before I feel a little timid about doing so. I see you are full up of Christmas and asking suggestions on anything connected with it. Some of our neighbors are interested in Sunday school and its activities.

All over our Christian world Christmas is a festive season and children look forward to it. In some Peterborough Sunday schools it has come to be almost a custom to entertain only the younger set from the cradle roll up to the 'teen age. By entertain, I mean give them a real party or Christmas tree. All they get and sometimes not that is a concert, where they are supposed to put on the program themselves.

I would like to send in a plea for these pupils this year and suggest that the churches give them all a real party at Christmas tree, teachers included. The parents would help. The men who get so many banquets prepared by the Ladies' Aid would not grudge giving up one of them at least surely to provide the younger element with a "bun feed" as in days of yore.

Hoping to see my humble effort in print, and perhaps someone else's opinion on this subject—which is a 'Christmas thorn' to many Peterborough boys and girls.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

John Grumble."

* * *

I like your idea, "John Grumble" because I remember what we used to call "bun fights," and they were surely jolly affairs. The events to which I went were arranged so that every child received a selection of pastry in a bag, with nuts and candy. What we could-n't eat (we were so excited) we used to take home to enjoy next day.

"Dear Marion:

I am enclosing a coupon for some helps and hope I have not put off until all are gone. I have had previous helps and thank you very much. I would like to send some helps or recipes to show my appreciation, but you seem to have so many.

The following I have found very helpful and know others who have received great benefit by using it, perhaps someone else suffering would like to try it.

'Cure for Neuritis,' also good for rheumatism. Take 1 oz. of celery seed and put in a saucepan with 1 pint of water and soak over night. In the morning bring to the boil and simmer down to ½ a pint. Strain and take 1 teaspoonful in water twice a day.

Thanking you and wishing you every success, I am,

Yours truly,

Mrs. W. A. W."

City.

* * *

I'm sure many neighbors will appreciate your hint, "Mrs. W. A. W." because many are afflicted. I am pleased to know you like our page.

"Dear Marion:

Please forgive a very tardy acknowledgement of your helps, I was so pleased with the Crush Collar, it is lovely.

I read your page every night and have derived a great deal of benefit from it. I hope some time I may be able to return the compliment and send you some helps you desire.

Yours sincerely,

E. I. F."

City.

* * *

It's nice to know, "E. I. F." that the helps are of practical value. I tr to make them so, but one is always doubtful whether one is succeeding.

"Dear Marion:

I read your pages every night and enjoy them, especially the Whatnot.

Would you please send the helps I have marked?

Thanking you in advance, and wishing you every success in your work.

Anne."

City.

* * *

Thanks, "Anne." Won't you write me another letter about something in which you are interested?

"Dear Marion:

I received some of your helps, so I thought I should write and thank you for them. I enjoy your page very much. We have been regular readers of The Examiner for the past fourteen years, and have always enjoyed reading it. Your page makes it more interesting.

I remain,

Yours truly,

Another Friend."

City.

* * *

It is indeed a pleasure to hear from one who has been so long a reader of The Examiner, "Another Friend," and I'm glad you like the addition of our pages.

Some One Some Day

By A. W. PEACH

Irma raced from the gate to the vine-clad porch where her invalid mother was busy with her knitting.

"Mother, what do you think? Uncle Ren did remember us. Here's a letter from his lawyers, saying that he left us $50,000 in cash, that the money had been forwarded to our local bank, and—well—now—"

Her mother laughed at the long sigh that followed the "now." "Now, Dark Eyes, I suppose you will want to be doing missionary work with it. Ren never liked us, but I guess he thought better of his family as he grew older. What are you going to do with it?"

Irma looked into her mother's twinkling eyes. "Well, with this and what father left us, I guess we won't worry any more; and then—mother dear, Im going to give Mrs. Jameson enough to have Bobby opererated on, and I'm going to buy that home for old Mr. and Mrs. Peebles, and——"

"Gracious, child, get your breath! I hope you will do happy things with what we don't need, and our needs are not luxurious. We—here comes Del Stewart!" Her mother added, looking up the walk.

Irma went to meet him, a little of the happiness of her plans going from her face. Stewart was a persistent suitor almost to the point of being annoying; but he was regarded in the village as a good catch for any girl, and the village had been unable to understand why Irma had not accepted him. As a matter of fact, she ha on the verge of doing so, but always the realization that she did not love him as she wanted to love some one some day held her back.

She told him the good news, but he did not seem in any sense overjoyed by the information. She guessed the reason. The son of the richest family in the village, he had made her realize what he could do for her and her mother. In dark moments that thought had tempted her—but only for moments.

The next week she proceeded to make a few dreams come true. Mr. Peebles, limping home from work, found the deed of his home waiting for him in his wife's trembling hands. The old people wept softly in each other's arms, and then went slowly down the street together to the Raines cottage. The little Jameson boy, his pale face alight with hope that he was going to be made like other boys, went with his mother to the great city.

Then out of the clear sky came the word that left her almost fainting—a letter from the western firm of lawyers, telling her to cease drawing on the $50,000, that a later will had been discovered in which the money had been left to Mr. Starr Kingston, a friend of h r uncle: that a representative would see her about the matter.

She was at her wits' end. "What shall I do? What shall I do?" was the bitter question she faced. She had spent the money for things that could not be returned. She might take the little money in her mother's name—and that would mean poverty for them.

In desperation she told Stewart. He smiled. "Marry me, Irma, and I'll take care of the whole thing," was his solution.

She looked at him with frightened eyes, and started to offer herself, for the gateway he mentioned seemed the only one. Just as his greedy eyes were growing triumphant, the door bell rang and Irma had to go.

At the door she found a tall, clean-cut young man, and looked up into gray pleasant eyes. She guessed who he was. "You are from Stetson & Stetson?" she asked fearfully.

He nodded. "Yes, I am here to explain the situation and arrange for the return of the money. It is very unfortunate."

Stewart was forgotten as, her mind in a whirl, Irma led the tall lawyer into the cottage living room and began the terrible explanation.

He listened quietly, then said, "I would like to see Mr. Peebles' home and the Jameson lad—in fact, just what you have done."

He came the next day and she told him what she had done. The day drew into a week. Evenings found him at her house, a part of the little circle of home life. Under the quiet friendliness of his ways Irma almost forgot the tragic import of his errand. Then came the evening when he announced his departure. That night in the quiet of her room Irma saw with a soul's clear vision that in him she had found the some one she could love some day. But tomorrow he would come, tomorrow he would suggest some arrangement for the return of the money she had used. Very quietly she came to her decision to marry Del Stewart.

The next afternoon the attorney came. He asked her to walk with him in the old-fashioned garden her mother loved. In the summer house he paused and took her hands. She looked up into his fine gray eyes—to start and tremble at what she saw there—something that sent a wild cry through her heart—"He loves me!"

"Irma, confession and apology shall come. First, however, let me say not a penny need be returned. You have used the money too beautifully. Second, I am a lawyer, but not a member of the Stetson firm. I am Starr Kingston. Last of all, I love you."

The next thing she knew she had evidence that it was no longer a matter of some one nor some day.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

CAN YOU CHANGE THAT BODY OF YOURS?

I met a man some months ago who said that he had derived a great deal of comfort from the teachings of a book he had been reading. The book taught that as our whole physical existence was determined for us at birth, the kind of a stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, and so forth, that there was nothing that could be done to change it.

Therefore this man was not bothering about what he ate, about exercise, sleep, or anything else, and was getting more "kick" out of life because he didn't have to think of all these things.

What about this?

Well, it is only too true that we are just what our parents and circumstances made us, and it is truly a great thing to be well born; to inherit brain, heart, lungs, and mental and moral inspiration. But that is not the whole story just the same.

A writer recently compared life with life in nature, the farmer's crop at harvest time.

The soil is that body of yours as given to you by your parents, but while the farmer is glad to get good soil, nevertheless he takes pains to cultivate and to enrich that soil, removing the weeds so that the energy or power of the soil will not be expended in growing weeds. And so you and I can fertilize the soil, can enrich and strengthen our bodies by "proper food, rest, recreation, and the like so that what looked like a stony and unprofitable field can be made to produce a satisfactory crop."

And so as the boy or girl begins to grow there should be the regular hours for food, for rest, and for exercise.

Just what can be done to a growing gangling boy or girl by proper physical discipline is an everyday object lesson.

Theodore Roosevelt in his early youth, was a weakling, but the outdoor Western roughing it, with a love for manly sports, developed a man of tremendous physical power. This was just a case of stony ground being made fertile by thoughtful care.

The idea then, is that whether you were presented with a strong or a weak body, you need to fertilize or enrich it by proper health habits. And again I quote Gladstone who said—"All time and money spent in training the body, pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

NEIGHBORLY HELPS

This column is used by Examiner neighbors to help out others who have requested recipes or advice. You may use it freely by addressing Marion.

Here is a recipe in response to Mrs. R. E. D.'s SOS—

Mix four cups of brown sugar and a half a cup of corn syrup with half a cup of water, and put on fire, stirring carefully until sugar is dissolved. Let this come to a boil and then take off fire and add four tablespoons of butter. Put on stove again and let boil until butter has penetrated throughout the candy. Pour on to a greased enameled ware tray. The stickiest mixtures will not adhere long to its porcelain-like surface.

HE NEVER COULD DIGEST HIS FOOD

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Perfect Health

What miserable years Mr. Leo Godin spent when his stomach was all upset and he was deathly sick with bilious attacks. As he wrote from Montreal, "It seemed to me that I was always bilious and never digested my food. Finally, an old friend told me to try "Fruit-a-tives." Since taking them, I have been so well that I want to congratulate you on this wonderful medicine." This is the way it goes. People suffer for years with Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Pain in the Back, Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism, Headaches and never realize that the CAUSE of these troubles is weakness or poor action of the bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" restores these three great blood purifying agents of the body to normal, healthy action, sweetens the stomach, makes digestion sound, enables you to eat and sleep and enjoy life.

INSTITUTE MEETS.

Delegate Submits Report of Belleville Convention To Marmora Women.

MARMORA, Dec. 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—The monthly meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening with a good attendance present. The roll call was "How Christmas should be spent."

The program, arranged by Mrs. (Dr.) D. Thomson and Mrs. E. Rose, was much enjoyed. Mrs. Robert Nayler gave an interesting report as delegate to the Belleville convention. Mrs. C. Nichol gave an excellent solo, "Kathleen Mavoureen."

Mrs. J. F. Bowen pleased the gathering with a very fine reading on Christmas carols. This lady was also successful in the entertaining Christmas tree contest put on at the close. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. N. Marett, when an exhibition of antiques has been proposed as one of the features.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

From a half yard of white tarlatan and a small amount of red worsted can be made a dozen or more attractive Christmas stockings that may be used effectively on the Christmas tree. To make these you will first need a pattern and this may be made by laying a small child's socks out flat on a piece of paper and tracing round it. Cut out this pattern and then cut duplicates of it from the tarlatan. Place these pieces together and coarsely overhand the edges with the red worsted threaded in a coarse needle. Quickly buttonhole the tops with the red worsted and make a two-inch loop at the top of the stocking with which to hang them on the tree. These stockings may be filled with hard candies, nuts or popcorn.

If you like you can make full-sized stockings from tarlatan to use for hanging up by the hearth on Christmas eve. Then the different stockings may be worked around with different colored worsted.

If you have any old barrels or peach baskets in your cellar the hoops may be turned to account as part of your Christmas decorations. Cut strips of red paper and wind round the hoops. Tie one or two sprays of holly or Christmas green to each hoop and use them to hang up on the wall where a bit of Christmas decoration is needed. A barrel hoop so wound might be suspended just below the chandelier in the dining room, parallel with the table, and from it might be hung tiny tarlatan stockings or Christmas greens.

Any sort of Christmas greens take on an attractive, snowy aspect if dipped lightly in whitewash.

British manufacturers make about 600 million needles a day.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Printed cretonne with black foundation and bright flowers was used for this coat worn over frock during working hours in place of the usual smock.

I know a successful woman novelist who insists that she can never get herself into the mood for writing unless she wears a colorful mandarin coat that she has had so long it is becoming actually threadbare. That mandarin coat is her working regalia and it is as definitely associated in her mind with her work as the white uniform is associated in the nurse's mind with the tasks she has to perform in the hospital. One reason why smocks became so popular with office workers was that they saved their street clothes—and another reason almost as important was that they provided them with a working uniform.

If you want to tell whether a young married woman really take an intelligent interest in her work at home just notice how she dresses for her tasks. If she wears trim, washable house frocks or overall-aprons you may be sure that she is interested in her job.

A librarian I know who always looks exceptionally attractive during working hours has adopted a working uniform for herself that is especially attractive. It consists of a straight-line coat made of richly colored cretonne which may be slipped on over her frock. She has a number of these coats—all made of chintz or cretonne or printed linenwith dark background and bright, colorful designs—and now she tells me that several other young women in the library where she works have borrowed her thunde. They too are wearing these trim cretonne coats for working hour and before long they may constitute a sort of uniform for all who work in that library.

It is one time now since smocks first came into fashion among office workers and the fact that many girls still wear them is proof that it was not a mere passing fad. Recent changes in fashion have modified the cut of smocks, however, and the newest models are cut with straighter sleeves and with less general bagginess.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion

(Copyright)

IT ISN'T often, in this busy and matter-of-fact world, that a person gets a chance to demonstrate her kinship with divinity. We say that we are of divine origin, and in the bottom of our hearts we believe it; but no one, watching us throughout most of the year, would ever guess it.

• • •

Once in a great while—once a year, at least—we do get a chance to live up to it, though. When Christmas begins to thrust its evergreens and holly wreaths over the horizon we get our chance. Even the meanest of men and women can show that kindness and thoughtfulness lie in their hearts.

• • •

Giving gifts to intimate friends and relatives goes without saying. But that's hardly a test. There's a better way to show that we're somewhere near worthy of what happened in Bethlehem twenty centuries ago. Listen:

• • •

We're pretty proud, here in Peterborough, of our prosperity. We talk of our diversified industries that mean constant employment for nearly everyone. There's a lot of money in the country, and most of us have got hold of a bigger or smaller share of it. Factories are busy; savings accounts climb steadily upward.

• • •

But there are places where the prosperity wave doesn't touch. There are always unlucky people who don't get in on it. Rich as we are, as a city and nation, we still have cases of need. Probably we always shall.

• • •

There are, in Peterborough, homes where Christmas won't mean a thing unless somebody comes to the rescue. There are homes where the father, instead of trying to decide what gifts to buy, is wondering whether his family will have anything to eat on December 25. There are homes where little children suspect that Santa Claus is just a story invented for youngsters who have luckier parents. There are homes where mothers are trying to string together pitiful little toys out of old spools and cardboard, to make up for the ones they won't be able to buy.

• • •

In spite of our general prosperity, there are places like that—lots of them.

• • •

I'll assume, of course, that your Christmas isn't going to be like that. But will you be able to enjoy yours, no matter how pleasant it is, if you don't do what you can to help such homes? Will the lights on your Christmas tree be quite as bright as they should if you feel that you could have shared your happiness with some poor unfortunate—and didn't?

• • •

Peterborough's streets are bright with lights and gay with their trees; every store shows what can be had, if one has the means. Many will walk under the lights, and wistfully gaze on the trees and look longingly at the offerings of the stores . . .

• • •

Neighbors, it's up to us to see that not a single home in Peterborough suffers lack of Christmas cheer this year, that not a child awakes on Christmas morning to find an empty stocking or a giftless tree. Let's do it—!

• • •

Santa Claus has a pretty big job on hand, and he'll be glad if we help out. Let's, for this year, be Santa's Pals—let's get behind him and help supply the need there is. And do it generously.

• • •

After all, at Christmas time we're not just making a holiday. We're celebrating the holiest event in world history; the event that lifts us up from our materialism and darkness and gives us the light of immortality.

• • •

And we ought to take time to prove that we're worthy of that. We can't do it by retiring into our shells and making a holiday for ourselves alone . . . few of us wish to.

• • •

Let's make this a real Christmas for everybody; show that we can give to people we don't know can lift unhappiness we didn't know existed, can be touched by loneliness of people we never heard of.

• • •

I'm trying to make it easy for every neighbor to help; I have arranged with The Examiner to collect parcels of Christmas cheer from your home, if you will phone, and to distribute these parcels among the agencies that look after this yearly duty.

• • •

The work has been splendidly done in the past; we can make it better this year, neighbors, by supplying these agencies with more material with which to work. The Examiner does not desire to look after individual cases. A list will be prepared of all the distributing agencies, and parcels divided among them equitably.

• • •

And then, neighbors, on Christmas Day the song of the angels will sound sweeter because you have come bringing gifts.

• • •

If you have scraps of goods in the house, why not makeup some little gifts to include in your parcel? Many are easily made, and I will gladly send instructions on request. Or next time you are down town call in the office and ask for a copy of the Christmas gift folder—I will leave a supply with one of the young ladies.

• • •

Many of the gifts could be made by the children—and what an added joy they would have in Christmas through having made life happier for someone else! Give them the opportunity.

• • •

Another help tells how to decorate the tree inexpensively, and how to make little decorations for the house and table. This, also, is free for the asking.

• • •

I'm leaving it with you, neighbors. I'll get my parcel ready to-night—and I'll be looking for yours. Let's all do it!

½ lb. butter
½ cup castor sugar
a pinch of baking powder

Put the butter and sugar on a board and mix till sugar is absorbed. Sift the flour on a sheet of white paper laid on the board. Take one tablespoon from it, and add the same quantity of rice flour. Sauce:
2 cups boiling water

(Contributed by Florence, Millbrook)

1 lb. shelled and blanched almonds, yolks of 4 eggs or 2 whole eggs, 1½ lbs. of icing sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Put almonds through food chopper, mix icing sugar and almonds thoroughly. ½ lb. mixed peel
1½ lbs. flour
5c worth of rose water.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

DECEMBER 17, 1928

This being the anniversary of John Greenleaf Whittier's birth in 1807, I am printing to-day one of his best-known poems:

ICHABOD

So fallen! so lost! the light withdrawn
Which once he wore!
The glory from his gray hairs gone
For evermore!

Revile him not! the Tempter hath
A snare for all;
And pitying tears, not scorn and wrath,
Befit his fall.

O! dumb be passion's stormy rage,
When he who might
Have lighted up and led his age
Falls back in night!

Scorn? Would the angels laugh to mark
A bright soul driven,
Fiend goaded, down the endless dark
From hope and heaven

Let not the land once proud of him
Insult him now;
Nor brand with deeper shame his dim
Dishonored brow!

But let its humbled sons, instead,
From sea to lake
A long lament as for the Dead
In sadness make!

Of all we loved and honored naught
Save power remains,—
A fallen angel's pride of thought,
Still strong in chains.

All else is gone; from those great eyes
The soul hath fled:
When faith is lost, when honor dies,
The Man is dead.

Then pay the reverence of old days
To his dead fame;
Walk backward, with averted gaze,
And hide the shame!

BAILEY SCORES FOR TORONTO

Americans Gain First Place in N. H. L. By Defeating Black Hawks 1-0.

RANGERS INCREASE LEAD.

TORONTO, December 17 (Canadian Press). — Two goals, one by Irvin Bailey early in the first period and the other by Bill Carson midway through the second, coupled with a perfect defensive exhibition, as far as results go, gave the Maple Leafs a 2 to 0 victory over the Boston Bruins on Saturday night.

ON TOP RUNG.

CHICAGO, Ills., December 17 (Canadian Press). — A more brilliant defence than offence gave the New York Americans possession of first place in the National Hockey League as they defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 1 to 0 last night before a crowd of 6,000 at the Coliseum.

INCREASE LEAD.

NEW YORK, N.Y., December 17 (Canadian Press). — The New York Rangers increased their lead over the Detroit Cougars in the American group of the National Hockey League race to five points last night when they outplayed the second-place team to take a 3 to 0 victory.

SENATORS TIE WITH PIRATES

Sickness Plays Havoc With Ottawa Squad—Play To Scoreless Draw.

CONNELL AT HIS BEST.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press).—A weakened Ottawa team, playing without the services of it's veteran center ice star, Frank Nighbor, had all it could do to hold the Pirates from Pittsburgh to a goalless draw in a seventy-minute National Hockey League fixture on Saturday night.

Several of the Senators contracted colds on their recent road trip and upon their return from Detroit, Bill Touhey was inserted at center ice, while Finnigan, still a very sick man, lined out at right with Kilrea on left. The youthful Ottawa front line showed a lot of speed and aggressiveness but the effective pokechecking of Nighbor was sorely missed around the mid-ice area.

Connell was at his very best and he had to show every trick in his repertoire to foil the persistent pirates.

Ottawas put up a gallant performance to hold the visitors scoreless and in one instance in the first period they all but notched a goal. Fred Elliott, relieving Finnigan on right wing, swung in from the side to beat the irate defence and shot for the far corner of the net.

The goal-judge ruled that the disc had hit the goal post and despite the protests of captain Boucher of the Senators, no score was allowed.

Hib. Miles, Harold Cotton and "Monk" Drury were outstanding in the visitors' bid for victory.

Line-up:—

Ottawa	Position	Pittsburgh
Connell	goal	Miller
Boucher	defence	McCaffrey
Clancy	defence	Holway
Touhey	center	Milks
Finnigan	r. wing	Darragh

MONTREAL CLUBS IN SCORELESS TIE

Maroons and Canadiens Stage Close Checking Game Throughout.

MONTREAL, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Canadiens and Maroons, local National Hockey League rivals, played through 70 minutes of close-checking hockey to a scoreless draw at the Forum Saturday night. Close to 13,000 fans witnessed the contest, the second between the two teams this season. Canadiens won the first game by a 3 to 1 count.

It was an evenly-fought battle practically throughout. Each goalie stopped 37 shots, but such was the defensive brand shown by the two teams that the majority of the drives on goal were from outside the defensive areas. Both teams, however, had their scoring chances, but the few times that really dangerous attacks sifted through either rearguard, Hainsworth or Benedict was always on the job. These two veterans, who of late have shown weakness in handling long shots, made no mistakes Saturday night, and all long-distance attacks directed their way were ably handled.

Ward for the Maroons, and Joliat for Canadiens, opposing wingmen, were the chief offensive threats of the respective teams, but even these two were unable to crack the opposing defences for a goal, so close was the checking. In the second period the Canucks had a chance with two Maroons, Lamb and Dutton, serving time in the penalty box. Lamb was back on, however, before the Frenchmen could get going, and Dutton returned a minute later.

PUPILS TO HAVE LONGER HOLIDAY

Schools in City Will Not Open Until Monday, January 7.

PREMIER'S REQUEST

Contrary to the announcement of the Minister of Education, Premier Ferguson, that as a signal of the formal opening of the new Collegiate wing, Peterborough students would finish school for the Christmas holidays this coming Thursday, Dec. 20, instead of Friday, Dec. 21, a new arrangement was later reached, following the meeting in the Collegiate auditorium on Friday evening. Premier Ferguson's announcement had not been intended to conflict with the schedule of examinations in the Collegiate, as it later proved to do, in view of the fact that Principal Kenner had arranged for an examination on Friday morning.

A solution of the problem, whereby the students may still have their extra day without it interfering with their studies was described to The Examiner by Chairman E. Bruce Fowler, of the Board of Education. He expressed the intention of adding the extra day to the conclusion of the holidays, so that the school will re-open on the Monday after the New Year's, January 7, instead of on Thursday, January 4, as had been the original arrangement. Thus there will not only be an extra day, but there will be the added advantage of the week-end.

On inquiry, he stated that this arrangement would also apply to the public school so that all Peterborough schools will close on December 21 and re-open January 7.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

One of the most famous of Peterborough hockey teams and perhaps the most productive of good hockey material was the celebrated Colts, the junior organization which flourished nearly three decades ago.

No series of this kind would be complete without something about this crack team which rose to the greatest heights in 1901, when the Colts captured the Junior Championship of Ontario, incidentally the last occasion on which that honor has come to Peterborough.

The Colts reached the semi-finals in 1899, got to the finals the next year and in 1901 achieved their ambition by beating Stratford for the Ontario title.

Well known citizens who played for the Colts from time to time are Col. Frank Bradburn, George Lynch of the local post office staff, and Ed. Graham, steward at the Empress Hotel.

To-day we will take a glance at the exciting series the Colts staged with Upper Canada College back in 1900. A series that took three games to decide and that gained interest from the fact that Hubert McBain, well known Peterborough boy who had been with the Colts the year before played cover point for Upper Canada.

The clash between the two splendid junior outfits in the O.H.A. semi-finals attracted widespread attention. John Ross Robertson, the beloved president of the O.H.A., came down from Toronto to see the first game and face the puck to start the battle. And battle it was. Upper Canada College proved worthy foemen, holding the Colts to a 3-3 tie at half time and then astounding the home crowd by taking a two goal lead in the second half. With only a few minutes left to play the Colts staged a brilliant rally and scored three goals to win out 7 to 6, Harry Morgan getting the tieing and winning counters in the last with but a minute to spare.

In the return game at Toronto the dope was reversed. The Colts were leading 4 to 3 with a short time to play when Bill Cavanah drew down a five minute penalty and while he was off Upper Canada ran in two goals, winning the game 5 to 4 and tieing the round 11 to 11.

On February 20 the two teams met in a sudden death game at Lindsay and 225 Peterborough fans went up in a special train to see the Colts win 6 to 4 after another thrilling game.

The score was tied 3 to 3 at half time but the Colts finished strong and outscored the Collegians 3 to 1 in the second half to take the game 6 to 4 and the round 17 to 15.

The teams:

Peterborough—Goal, Miller; point, Cavanah; cover, H. Armstrong; forwards, Whitcroft, Morgan, Robinson, Lynch.

Upper Canada—Goal, Wells; point, Keys; cover, McBain; forwards Worts, Morrison, Cook, Wilson.

Referee—P. Little, Toronto.

Of this Upper Canada team Worts was afterwards a star with the Senior Wellingtons while Cavanah, Armstrong, Morgan and Whitcroft of the Colts played on championship Peterborough teams in 1901 and 1902 and with the exception of Armstrong, in 1906 as well.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

MERCANTILE BOWLING GOSSIP

The Little Five Bowlers by their decisive win over the Bus Drivers last week, are now in a position to go into a tie for second place in the first half. Hunt, Ramsay and Foster on the Border Transit, hit a bad slump and failed to reach the 500 mark in high three.

McGee, for the winners, gathered in 601 pins for high three and Johnson, his teammate, carried off high single with 225.

The real upset of the night came when Sloan and Co. rocked the Canadiens by taking two games and total pinnage. The Canadiens have been leading all through the first half, but this defeat allowed the Buick Specials to slip into the leading position. Trennum, McBride and R. Watson uncovered some heavy bowling for the winners, while J. McLeod was the only outstanding performer for the Canadiens, chalking up 244 and 646.

The Barbers went home happy for the first time during the course of the first half of the schedule due to the fact that they won three games in a row from the Cardinals, this being the first time that they have accomplished such a feat. Red. Sedgwick, R. Hogan, and W. McCarthy bounced the pins in he-man style and were the mainstays for the Hair Cutters.

The ol drivals, Bredin's Bread and staged by the Buick Specials and Underwriters, the former taking 6 out of 8 points. G. Gimblett Jr. was easily the most outstanding player on either team, accounting for both high single and high three, 326 and 700.

CITY LEAGUE

The old rivals, Bredin's Berad and Lawn Bowlers clashed on Wednesday night and drew as big a crowd of spectators as some of our Central Ontario League ball games. The argument was hotly contested, and the outcome surprising; Lawn Bowlers taking two games and total pinnage, as the Breadmakers have been mowing down all opposition in steam-roller fashion all through the first half, and their first setback was very disconcerting, nevertheless the old fighting spirit of the ex-champions, the Lawn Bowlers, asserted itself, and we can feel assured that the end of the second half will probably find Chief Gimblett's crew very close, if not parked, on the top rung of the league. Bredin's Bread are an all-star aggregation and judging from the fast pace are aiming at the championship. The following are the high scores for the Bredin gang: Bud Weese, 265, 157, 240—653; M. Bredin, 242, 233, 222—697; while the Lawn Bowlers chalked up fine totals also: G. Gimblett, 218, 250, 235—703; G. Fallon, 242, 204, 258—704.

There is some talk of an Inter-Alley League being formed after Christmas between the Y.M.C.A., K. of C., Water Street, and the Duffus Alleys, but to date no definite arrangements have been made.

HUGHES SCORES TIEING GOAL

Buffalo Plays To 2-all Count With the Toronto Millionaires.

BISONS HOLD RECORD.

BUFFALO, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—James "Rusty" Hughes, who learned the tricks of hockey in Haileybury, Ont., though being a native of Wesswood, duplicated his feat of a week ago, on Saturday night, and scored for Buffalo to prevent defeat by Toronto in a Canadian Professional League hockey game in the Peace Bridge arena at Fort Erie.

Hughes' score, made from off left wing on a pass from behind the Toronto net by Roth, centre, tied the count at 2-all. The ultimate score of the game after the customary overtime of ten minutes.

A week ago it was Hughes, who, without aid from other members of the team, worked his way through the entire London Panther defence and caged the winning counter for the Bisons in a 2 to 1 game. His score on Saturday, culminated an evening of great effort, for Hughes played a sparkling game, both on attack and defense.

The tie game with Toronto kept clean the Bisons record of the past few weeks, for, after losing six straight, they won three successive games.

The visiting Millionaires took an early lead when Rice pounded home the puck with one minute to go in the first period. The score came on a scramble at the net. Buffalo tossed away many chances in the second period when individual play supplanted team work. Bogardis tied the count thirty seconds after the beginning of the third period, taking a short pass from Brydson in front of the goal. Later Toronto went into the lead when Gauthier took Rice's pass at left wing and drove a high shot past Norfolk. Hughes' score then tied the count.

The line-up.

Buffalo.—Norfolk, goal; Hughes and Frew, defence; Roth, centre; Brydson and Bogardis, wings; Hoard, Lott, Desy, Smith and Lederman, subs.

Draw With Olympics.

DETROIT, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Buffalo Bisons reached out from their cellar position in the Canadian Pro Hockey League, to battle an overtime scoreless draw with the league-leading Detroit Olympics here Sunday night. It was the first draw contest of the season for the Foyston club and this winter in which the Detroiters have failed to be returned winners.

TWO MISHAPS ON SAME DAY

Cobourg Man Has House Burned and Figures In Car Accident

THIRTEENTH OF MONTH

COBOURG, December 17 (Special to The Examiner). — The thirteenth of the month may not have loomed as an evil portent to George Lowe, James Street, but before the day was over he had learned something of its mystic bane.

His house caught fire while he was away at Gore's Landing, and nearing home worried and excited, he drove in front of a Gargantuan Loblaw truck and trailer. Some time today, perhaps, they may have estimated the cost of that pre-occupation of the Lowe mentality at a crossing on the Provincial Highway at the corner of King and College Streets.

But the bill should include such items as: Fortunately minor damage to one Ford car; damage to the Cobourg waterworks system, to wit one hydrant uprooted or snapped off and a waste of many thousands of gallons that welled up around the neighborhood; more or less damage to one huge truck and trailer; some damage to Dr. Field's lawn, fence, etc., where the truck fetched up and wrapped itself around two or three trees.

Henry Webster, of Toronto, driver of the truck said: "I would have killed him if I hadn't swerved toward the curve."

The truck and trailer, both heaped high, was going west down grade into town, and Mr. Lowe was thinking of making the College Street turn to get home and see what damage the fire had done. Just then the truck side-swiped his radiator, rolled over the curb, snipped off the hydrant, and ploughed on to the Field premises recently bought by the Imperial Oil Company for a service station at a cost of $21,000, so it was stated here.

The chassis is one of the articulated type, with three sets of wheels and a flexible chassis just back of the hood. In its flustered plunge it angled itself around a tree, or two in the shape of a clumsy W, the hood one side, the body another, and the trailer off in another direction, a W with one wing missing.

Mr. Lowe's house was smudged and soaked in the rear rooms, his car went to the garage, and he went to bed, apparently not seriously hurt, but lucky to escape with his life. The water was turned off four blocks up King Street, and as for the hydrant, the Imperial Oil Company had permission to move it.

BRITISH PLAYER NOT OUT.

Hammond Has Opportunity of Making New Record in Scoring.

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 17. —(Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters). —Mainly through a splendid double century by Hammond, England today batted themselves into an enviable position in the first innings of the second test match with Australia. The score when stumps were drawn was Australia 253; England 420 for 5 wickets.

Hammond was the fifth player to reach 200 runs in the history of Anglo-Australian test cricket and received a tremendous ovation from the crowd of 35,000 people. He was not out with a score of 201 runs and will have an opportunity tomorrow of trying to make a new record. The highest innings ever made by an Englishman against Australia was Foster's 287 made here in 1903. The second best was Hobbs' 187 at Adelaide in 1912.

England lost three wickets to-day: Jardine for 28; Hendren for 74; and Chapman for 20.

To-day's play took place on a perfect wicket and in the presence of 35,000 people.

NEW RULING ALLOWS TEN MEN PER TEAM

Conform With C.A.H.A. Ruling Regarding Personnel of Teams.

SUDBURY GETS BYE.

No Changes Made in Schedules Submitted For Junior Groups.

NORTH BAY, Dec. 17.—All clubs in the N.O.H.A. may use ten players this coming season in association games, thus conforming with the C.A.H.A. rule in this connection, according to a decision reached by the executive in session here Saturday. In all other cases O.H.A. rules will govern.

Several revisions were made in the senior group schedule which opens on Tuesday, Dec. 18. Haileybury will play at South Porcupine on January 7; Iroquois Falls at Kirkland Lake on January 8, and the game scheduled for February 19 between South Porcupine and Haileybury will be played on February 18. The proposal that the first and second teams at the conclusion of the regular schedule play off for the championship did not receive the endorsation of the executive time. No changes were made in the schedules submitted and already announced of the Central and Southern junior groups.

Sudbury Gets Bye.

Sudbury hockey club drew a bye in the senior series and will be represented in the play-offs by the champions of the Nickel Belt League. Any further entries for senior teams must be in the hands of the secretary not later than January 2. Towns wishing to affiliate with the association operating city leagues from which they will pick a team must file through the hockey club not later than January 29 the playing certificates along with each player's eligibility according to the residence rule. All players in such leagues must hold amateur cards throughout the season. The North Bay Trappers were given a bye into the finals of the Southern junior group. The Trappers will be represented by a team selected from the Junior City League.

The members of the executive present at the meeting were: C. O. Baker, president, North Bay; D. Sutherland, vice-president, Haileybury; W. A. Thompson, secretary-treasurer, North Bay; G. W. Turk, Iroquois Falls; Charles Roach, Timmins; J. H. McDonald, Sault Ste. Marie, and H. P. Charlton, North Bay. At the conclusion of the day's deliberations they were the guests of the management of the Nugget at a dinner.

MUDDY ROADS CAUSE TROUBLE

Peterborough-Lindsay Highway Is Cut Deep In Many Places With Ruts.

FROST COMING OUT.

Startling in its suddenness, the change in road conditions throughout the district in the short space of about 48 hours, caused many week-end motorists to change their plans. Due to the weather, the frost which had hardened and improved the roads vanished, and this was particularly so of the Peterborough-Lindsay highway, on which so much work has been done during the past summer. Last night its greasy surface held treacherous ruts that were not comfortable to ride upon, while along the route cars were to be seen stuck in farmers ungravelled lanes.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

Entries to the Junior and Senior series of the City League will be received at a meeting to-morrow night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

It is hoped that there will be about six teams entered in the Senior and the same in the Junior groups of the City League. The executive has drawn up plans for a big entry and all the games will likely be played on the Brock Street Rink.

Percy Harrison is becoming one of the most actively interested in sports in the North End. He is entering a team in the Senior City Hockey League and one in the City Basketball League. During the summer he fielded one of the smartest teams in the Softball League and a team under his name ran in the Harrier relay races.

* * * * * * *

Ten days from to-morrow all the Peterborough teams swing into action in the O.H.A. and as yet there are very few signs of ice weather. Unless cold weather comes soon the first part of the schedules will not find the players in any condition to play good hockey.

* * * * * * *

Irvine Bailey is playing brilliant hockey with the Maple Leafs this season and by his great goal getting ability has won his way to the leadership on the goal scoring records. He is tied with Stewart of Montreal, who has eight goals and two assists for ten points.

* * * * * * *

Defensive hockey was much stronger than the offensive variety in the games played in in the N.H.L. over the week-end, a total of six goals being notched in the five games, and of the ten teams in action seven were held scoreless. The Maple Leafs scored the only two counters made in any game in the defeat of the Boston Bruins. Two of the games were scoreless affairs even after overtime, that at Ottawa between the Senators and the Pittsburg Pirates being the fifth overtime time for the Senators and the fourth for their opponents.

* * * * * * *

Which all goes to show that there is a great deal to some of the American claims that there are many changes needed in the rules of the N.H.L. to make it possible for more scoring. It has been suggested that the nets be enlarged and various methods that would make the game wide open. Canadians who know the game and can appreciate its thrills from a defensive angle as well as the offensive, do not look kindly on these suggestions; but the Americans who are used to basketball want more scoring in hockey.

The American League batting records were just made public yesterday and it appears that Goose Goslin, slugging Washington outfielder, leads the league. Three great hitters were all in a heap for the honors right up until the close of the season, Goslin, Manush and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees. The final figures show Goslin, 379; Manush, 378; Gehrig, 374.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE NEWS PARADE" BASED ON EXCITING ADVENTURES OF NEWSREEL CAMERAMEN

Colorful backgrounds from bustling New York to languorous Havana and from snow-girt Lake Placid to sun-baked Palm Beach are a feature of "The News Parade," the swiftly moving screen story of adventure and romance opening at the Regent Theatre to-day.

The hero of the picture is Nick Stuart, portraying an indefatigable newsreel cameraman who has been given the assignment of the photographing Brandon Hurst, an eccentric and exceedingly camera-shy millionaire. In stalking his prey all over the world, Nick falls in love with the millionaire's beautiful daughter, Sally Phipps. In order to get the picture and win the girl, Newsreel Nick has to foil two international crooks, played by Earle Foxe and Cyril Ring.

Many incidents in the story are based on actual experiences of cameramen and newspapermen with such camera-shy millionaires as J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller, Sr. The story was written by Director David Butler and William Conselman after conferences with Truman H. Talley, director in chief of Fox News. Burnet Hershey wrote the scenario and Russell Muth, star cameraman of Fox News, was technical director. Both Talley and Muth played themselves in the picture.

At Palm Beach Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, obligingly posed with a group of children for a sequence in the picture. Other celebrities included in the Florida scenes are Harvey Firestone, the rubber magnate, and Gene Sarazen, golf star.

As the story unfolds, several incidents reveal that the "We" of Lindbergh and his airplane, have a counterpart in the "We" of the newsreel man and his camera. Newsreel Nick has a real affection for his battered old Fox News camera. In dizzy roof sequences, on New York skyscrapers, he risks his life to save his camera with its precious load of negative. On the ice at Lake Placid, he lunges to rescue his "better half". On the beach at Palm Beach, he fights with the guards who try to take his camera away. In a battle with the villains in Havana, he still manages to save his camera.

This love the newsreel man bears toward his camera has a real basis in fact. One of the best-known examples is Russell Muth's perilous descent into the active crater of Mount Vesuvius. As both pilot and cameraman felt themselves being overcome by the fumes, the pilot aimed the plane at the rim of the crater. It cleared the rim, but crashed into a tree just below. Despite being partially overcome by crater gas, Muth had the presence of mind to toss his camera and its valuable negative into a tree. Although both he and the pilot were seriously injured, the camera was not damaged.

"The News Parade" brings together the principals that make "High School Hero" so successful. Sally Phipps and Nick Stuart played the leading roles, and Brandon Hurst has an important character part. Director Butler and William Conselman collaborated on the story.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"FOUR WALLS," JOHN GILBERT'S NEW PICTURE WHICH OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TO-DAY, HAS THRILLING CLIMAX — JOAN CRAWFORD CO-STARRED.

A battle between police and gangsters as seen from the roof of a New York skyscraper is one of the unusual scenes shown in John Gilbert's starring picture, "Four Walls," which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day.

The battle takes place in and around the East Side Political Club when two rival gangs engage in a free-for-all fight. John Gilbert and Joan Crawford escaped from the hall to the roof and from this vantage point lean over the parapet and watch the fight in the streets below. The camera shows the scene from their point of view.

Director William Nigh used more than four hundred police and gangsters to get the effect of this fight and it is one of the most interesting scenes in the production. "Four Walls" is a story of life in the New York Ghetto and Gilbert plays the part of a gangster leader who is sent to Sing Sing. On his release, he tries to go straight but finds that the four walls of popular prejudice are more difficult to surmount than the stone walls of the prison.

Miss Crawford has the leading feminine role while the cast includes Carmel Myers, Vera Gordon, Louis Natheaux, Robert Emmet O'Connor and Jack Byron. Alice D. G. Miller adaped the story from the successful stage play by George Abbott and Dana Burnet.

NEW WHIPPET IS ANNOUNCED

Details of Car Will Not Be Made Public Until January.

CAPACITY INCREASED

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—With Willys-Overland just completing the greatest year in its entire history, T. A. Russell, president of the Canadian company, announced on Saturday that the company is rapidly swinging into production on the new Whippet four and six-cylinder models, which he confidently expects will establish not only a new conception of artistry in design, but also will introduce superior mechanical features as revolutionary in character in the light car field as was the original Whippet when it was introduced two and one-half years ago.

Although details regarding the new Whippets will not be made public until January, when they will be formally presented to the public, it is known that the new cars undoubtedly represent the greatest achievement of this manufacturer.

Mr. Russell intimated that the company was prepared to meet every form of competition in the low priced field on a sound basis in 1929, and that, with the increase of the combined car building capacity of their plant from 2,000 cars a day to 3,000 cars daily, the coming year's business would exceed that of the past year, which set a new sales record for Willys-Overland.

"All of the Willys-Overland plants are now in production on the new Whippet four and six-cylinder models, which will set a new trend of beauty, quality and performance in the light car field," Mr. Russell said. "The new models are, not only of longer wheelbase, with more spacious and beautiful bodies, but embrace a number of new mechanical features and innovations that are not found in any car to-day regardless of its price.

"For the past year our enginsering and production departments have been concentrating on the developing of these new cars. The body design has been in complete control of the designer who created and established the present-day body lines which have been followed by practically every motor car manufacturer.

"In design and equipment of the new Whippet models Willys-Overland again sets a new trend in the light car field as revolutionary as the original Whippet when it was introduced two and one-half years ago with numerous features that made previous engineering practice obsolete."

While Mr. Russell did not reveal the prices of the new Superior Whippets, as the new cars are to be designated, it is understood that they will remain directly competitive with the lowest priced fours and six-cylinder models now offered the public. This will maintain for this manufacturer the same strategical position in the light car field that they have occupied during the past eleven months, and which resulted in tremendous sales increases over the same period of last year which were more than three times as great as shown by the industry as a whole.

BANK EXTENSION ROUSES INTEREST

What Will Be New Relationship Between London and New York?

LONDON, December 17. Canadian Press Cable. — The decision to establish a branch of Barclay's Bank, Ltd., in Canada, is singled out by financial commentators. The Financial Times says it gathers that Barclay's Bank does not intend to extend its operations throughout the Dominion in competition with existing institutions, but that future activities of the Canadian branch will depend on developments. The newspaper draws attention to two interesting points: first, how far the new bank will succeed in penetrating the existing system, and second, its relation to the New York call market. The Financial Times expresses the opinion that if Barclay's Bank falls into the practice whereby Canadian Banks lend surplus funds in Wall Street, it will mean the establishment of a new, if indirect connection between London and New York, thus in part forging a new and valuable link in the chain of empire banking. The proposal, it is conceded, contains possibilities likely to lead to interesting developments.

SCIENCE PLANS TO PHOTOGRAPH ELECTROCUTION

Condemned Man May Be Used To Further Research

ONE TEST FAILED

Method Of Resuscitation After Electric Shock May Be Found

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—But for a last minute slip-up, Thomas Moran, executed Brooklyn gangster, might have made an important contribution to science by his death in the electric chair.

Dr. Horatio B. Williams of Columbia University revealed to-day that he had planned to photograph the action of Moran's heart at the instant the death switch was thrown and a few minutes afterward to determine the response of the heart to electric shocks.

With all the necessary equipment installed in a room adjoining the death chamber at Sing Sing Prison, where Moran was electrocuted early yesterday, Dr. Williams said, "A little accident interfered." He did not disclose its nature. He intimated the experiment would be carried out on a future occasion.

Dr. Williams said his researches were not being made to determine whether a condemned man could be resuscitated after electrocution, but to ascertain the most effective methods of resuscitating persons accidentally shocked by electric current. The high voltage used in official electrocution, he said, absolutely destroyed the nervous system and made death certain.

The photograph was to have been obtained through electrodes applied to the arms and legs of the condemned man. A needle of light playing up and down over the surface of a smoked drum would record the heart movements on a film. Dr. Williams said permission to make the experiment had beeen obtained from Warden Lewis E. Lawes.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP PIN IS PRESENTED

St. James Women's Missionary Society Holds Annual Election of Officers.

On Tuesday afternoon the Auxiliary of St. James' United Church met in Wesley Hall for their annual Christmas meeting and election of officers for 1929. Mrs. E. L. Woodley, the president, presided, and a Christmas program in charge of Group Number Three, with Mrs. F. D. Armstrong as leader, was given. A very pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a life membership pin to Mrs. Woodley. An address attesting the confidence and trust of the Auxiliary in Mrs. Woodley as both friend and president of the society, was read by Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon, and the pin was presented by Mrs. Armstrong. Mrs. Woodley thanked the ladies in fitting words for their gift and most of all for the loving words of confidence from her Auxiliary.

The beautiful song, "The Star of Bethlehem," was sung in splendid voice by Mrs. G. H. Cutmore.

Rev. Mr. Dudgeon very kindly presided during the election of officers. In a few words, Mr. Dudgeon addressed the Auxiliary, assuring them of his hearty support and his belief in the importance of this greatest of all church work. Some, he said, wait for a "call" to go into missionary service. If a call comes, it must be to stay at home, for we, in Jesus' last words, have the command to "Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

The election resulted in the following officers for the coming year:

President, Mrs. E. L. Woodley, 566 Chamberlain Street.

Vice-presidents, Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon, Mrs. W. Sollitt.

Recording secretary, Mrs. J. Fairbrother.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

Treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Bonney.

Assistant treasurer, Mrs. G. H. Rowe.

Associate Helpers' and Strangers' secretary, Mrs. H. Davidson.

Supply secretary, Mrs. R. Payne.

Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. G. Cuffe.

Auditors, Mesdames Dudgeon and Woodley.

Mission Band superintendent, to be elected.

Pianist, to be elected.

ARTHUR WARD IS SENT ON FOR TRIAL

Byron Farmer Will Face Same Charge as Haskins Appeared On.

SENTENCE WAS SQUASHED.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Arthur Ward, Byron farmer, was on Friday, committed for trial at the assizes on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of William Galloway last summer. For the same crime William Haskins was sentenced to five years in penitentiary, but was released when two girls, Dorothy Kay and Evelyn Sisley, made affidavits that they were in the car which struck Galloway, and that Ward was the driver. The Haskin sentence was squashed by the appeal court. He will appear again on January 28.

Miss Kay said, in giving evidence on Friday, that after much exhoriation by Ward, both girls agreed to keep their secret, but that she was impelled by conscience to tell the police when she heard that another man had been sentenced for the crime.

Not a day passes, too, but sees the twelve golf courses gay with happy and enthusiastic players, while riding in the early mornings and afternoons is particularly favored. There are splendid motor highways on Vancouver Island, and innumerable ones running into Vancouver City from all directions. The winter season's attractions include theatres and concerts of the highest calibre, while the Hotel Vancouver at Vancouver and the world-renowned Empress at Victoria are the centres of the social and commercial activities of the two cities and districts. During the winter the Canadian Pacific Railway operates the only through train to Vancouver from Toronto. REV. C. V. McLEAN ADDRESSES ART ASSOCIATION

Speaker Takes As His Subject For Women's Club "Christmas in Art."

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

He Gives a Brief Resume of the Beginnings of the Art of Painting.

"Christmas in Art," was the title of a very appropriate and extremely interesting address given to members of the Women's Art Assocaition on Saturday afternoon by the Rev. Charles V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church. The meeting, which took the form, in its musical program, of a Christmas entertainment, was well attended, and a very fine program appeared to be thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The president, Mrs. W. Blackwell, made the announcements and voiced a very hearty vote of appreciation, at the close, to the speaker and the musicians taking part.

The musical program opened with the singing of two old-time Christmas carols by Scott Medd, whose deep, rich tones were heard to excellent advantage in the favorite numbers, "The First Noel" and "Good King Wenceslas."

Miss Emma Meiklejohn of Campbellford, sang "Nazareth" (by request, "The Gift," and an old sacred lullaby of Yule time. Her clear, sweet soprano was well suited to the pretty numbers.

Mrs. H. E. Connolly, in her own inimitable, popular style, recited "The Face in the Cathedral," a reading composed by Mrs. William Lawson of Halifax, after seeing the excavation of an ancient cathedral of Europe. As an encore, Mrs. Connolly gave "Her Son," a tender little bit about the Sacred Child.

A prominent place on the program was taken by the String Ensemble of the Conservatory, a quartette of clever young musicians who play splendidly and whose accompaniments to the vocal numbers provided a beautiful and satisfying background for the voices. This ensemble includes three violinists, Arnold Spencer, Stanley Northrop, Donald Greene, and a violoncellist, Jack Thackeray. Miss Gladys Renouf, at the piano, provided her usual skilful and proficient accompaniments for the group.

Christmas in Art.

The Rev. Mr. McLean gave an address, which was very enjoyable. His clear, free delivery and eloquent phrasing of ideas which arose in connection with his descriptions of various paintings illustrative of the idea of Christmas time, and its significance made a very graphic picture of the mental images evoked by his words. Attentive interest from his listeners and a pleased appreciation of the address, were evidences of a real attention to the subject and its unfolding.

Giving a brief resume of the beginnings of the art of painting from the picture of a star baked into a piece of clay, and found in the Valley of the Euphrates, and the Egyptian pictures of hawks and jackdaws and crocodiles, the speaker referred to the reaction of the Jewish people against such representations, and their ban on graven images, particularly those representative of the Almighty. The Christian people remembered this ban when they strove later to give an idea of the Creator through the use of symbols, such as the fish, the shepherd, the anchor, the dove, or a large cluster of grapes. These reproductions may be found in the Catacombs of Rome to this day.

However, successive Councils of the early church lifted this prohibition on the painting of sacred figures and artists of the early centuries strove to impress upon canvas their conceptions of the beauty of such images.

The reverend speaker instanced "The Nativity" of Botticelli, hanging in the National Gallery of London, England, as a case where the artist impressed upon canvas his idea of the significance to earth, heaven and hell of the birth of the Redeemer, and the truth of the doctrine of Savanorola, "God and sinners reconciled."

Significance of different type also appeared in Remembrandt's "Adoration of the Shepherds", where the infant Jesus far outshines the lanterns brought by the visitors, in Sir Edward Burne-Jones' "Adoration of the Magi" where the crowns of the three kings, Gaspar, Melchoir and Balthazar, are in the dust before the glory of the new born Babe; in Holman Hunt's "Triumph of the Innocents", where martyred babes, victims of Herod, accompany the Blessed Child and His parents in their flight.

"Repose in Egypt" by Durer, was also mentioned, the picture where the Holy Family in exile are made happy by the company of angelic visitors.

Three-fold Classification

The Madonna in Art, ever a favorite portrayal by artists of every time, has been classified in three ways by Ruskin, as the Madonna Doloroso grieving for her Child. This is symbolized in Bellini's "Madonna of the Pomegranate" the fruit being a symbol of suffering with its blood-red heart.

Madonna Regina, or the Madonna as a Queen of heaven, is pictured in Fra Angelico's "Madonna of the Star" and the Madonna as a Nurse is symbolized in two of Ralphael's most famous conceptions of the Mother and the Child. The speaker here referred to the devotional atmosphere which marked Raphael's conceptions of the Madonna in his youth, and the more worldly type of Madonna which he painted in later years, when the world had taken a grip of his own heart and mind and he could look on the Sacred Mother more as a beautiful woman, fit ornament for a boudoir.

Another classification of the famous Madonnas places with the figures of the Mother and Babe various other characters in Holy Writ, such as John the Baptist, St. Joseph, Elizabeth or Anna. "The Baptist as a Playmate" is a type of this idea. Then there is the enthroned Madonna, made famous by one of Bellino's conceptions, and the Madonna which includes a number of saints in the group.

Speaking of the famous paintings of other days as contrasted with the lack of such wonderful conceptions in the present, the Rev. Mr. McLean explained this according to his own ideas. He said that the church of a former period wished to immortalize on canvas such sacred images, while it neglected more sacred duties. "Ignatius Loyala," he said, "walked the streets barefooted to get pennies for the starving slumdwellers and Francis Xavier went barefoot to China as a missionary. But we of the twentieth century are trying to represent, not by colors and curves on canvas, the idea of Christianity, but in our words and our deeds. We are laboring year in and year out to try in these ways to make the world happier and this is a work in which each one of us can have a part."

Mild Weather Prevails Over the Great Lakes

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — Ideal navigation conditions still exist on the lakes and rivers in this district. In strange comparison with last year when some 25 vessels were frozen in a foot and a half of ice here, the weather is mild, there is entire absence of cold winds and there is not even a single trace of ice formations.

Further indications of the spring like weather were shown when a number of local gardeners picked pansies from their flower beds. Several robins have retained their summer homes and a resident of Island Lake reports the presence of a wild canary.

ARMY PLANS BIG CHRISTMAS TREE

There Will Be a Present For Everyone Who Attends Concert To-night.

The young people comprising the local Salvation Army Sunday school will have their year-long expectations equalized and patience rewarded, when in conjunction with the Christmas program being given tonight in the local temple, that grand old veteran of a thousand and more Christmases, whose hair is ever snowy white and whose beneficent nature never changes, Dear Old Santa Claus, will appear on the platform laden with gifts. The program will cover items from the cradle roll to the senior Bible classes, including the young people's band and singing company, also the life saving guards of the world. Santa Claus, in his usual generous manner, will present everyone who attends, mothers and fathers, boys and girls with a gift. The temple on such occasions has always been taxed to capacity, and 600 presents are awaiting distribution to the fortunate recipients. The temple has been appropriately decorated for the occasion, the arches profusely entwined with holly leaves, red berries, and the poinsettas, with a stately Christmas tree in the centre of the platform, presents a seasonable background.

A prominent place on the program was taken by the String Ensemble of the Conservatory, a quartette of clever young musicians who play splendidly and whose accompaniments to the vocal numbers provided a beautiful and satisfying background for the voices. This ensemble includes three violinists, Arnold Spencer, Stanley Northrop, Donald Greene, and a violoncellist, Jack Thackeray. Miss Gladys Renouf, at the piano, provided her usual skilful and proficient accompaniments for the group.

Christmas in Art.

The Rev. Mr. McLean gave an address, which was very enjoyable. His clear, free delivery and eloquent phrasing of ideas which arose in connection with his descriptions of various paintings illustrative of the idea of Christmas time, and its significance made a very graphic picture of the mental images evoked by his words. Attentive interest from his listeners and a pleased appreciation of the address, were evidences of a real attention to the subject and its unfolding.

Giving a brief resume of the beginnings of the art of painting from the picture of a star baked into a piece of clay, and found in the Valley of the Euphrates, and the Egpytian pictures of hawks and jackdaws and crocodiles, the speaker referred to the reaction of the Jewish people against such representations, and their ban on graven images, particularly those representative of the Almighty. The Christian people remembered this ban when they strove later to give an idea of the Creator through the use of symbols, such as the fish, the shepherd, the anchor, the dove, or a large cluster of grapes. These reproductions may be found in the Catacombs of Rome to this day.

However, successive Councils of the early church lifted this prohibition on the painting of sacred figures and artists of the early centuries strove to impress upon canvas their conceptions of the beauty of such images.

The reverend speaker instanced "The Nativity" of Botticelli, hanging in the National Gallery of London, England, as a case whsre the artist impressed upon canvas his idea of the significance to earth, heaven and hell of the birth of the Redeemer, and the truth of the doctrine of Savanorola, "God and sinners reconciled."

Significance of different type also appeared in Remembrandt's "Adoration of the Shepherds", where the infant Jesus far outshines the lanterns brought by the visitors, in Sir Edward Burne-Jones' "Adoration of the Magi" where the crowns of the three kings, Gaspar, Melchoir and Balthazar, are in the dust before the glory of the new born Babe; in Holman Hunt's "Triumph of the Innocents", where martyred babes, victims of Herod, accompany the Blessed Child and His parents in their flight.

"Repose in Egypt" by Durer, was also mentioned, the picture where the Holy Family in exile are made happy by the company of angelic visitors.

Three-fold Classification

The Madonna in Art, ever a favorite portrayal by artists of every time, has been classified in three ways by Ruskin, as the Madonna Doloroso grieving for her Child. This is symbolized in Bellini's "Madonna of the Pomegranate" the fruit being a symbol of suffering with its blood-red heart.

Madonna Regina, or the Madonna as a Queen of heaven, is pictured in Fra Angelico's "Madonna of the Star" and the Madonna as a Nurse is symbolized in two of Raphael's most famous conceptions of the Mother and the Child. The speaker here referred to the devotional atmosphere which marked Raphael's conceptions of the Madonna in his youth, and the more worldly type of Madonna which he painted in later years, when the world had taken a grip of his own heart and mind and he could look on the Sacred Mother more as a beautiful woman, fit ornament for a boudoir.

Another classification of the famous Madonnas places with the figures of the Mother and Babe various other characters in Holy Writ, such as John the Baptist, St. Joseph, Elizabeth or Anna. "The Baptist as a Playmate" is a type of this idea. Then there is the enthroned Madonna, made famous by one of Bellino's conceptions, and the Madonna which includes a number of saints in the group.

Speaking of the famous paintings of other days as contrasted with the lack of such wonderful conceptions in the present, the Rev. Mr. McLean explained this according to his own ideas. He said that the church of a former period wished to immortalize on canvas such sacred images, while it neglected more sacred duties. "Ignatius Loyala," he said, "walked the streets barefooted to get pennies for the starving slumdwellers and Francis Xavier went barefoot to China as a missionary. But we of the twentieth century are trying to represent, not by colors and curves on canvas, the idea of Christianity, but in our words and our deeds. We are laboring year in and year out to try in these ways to make the world happied and this is a work in which each one of us can have a part."

Mild Weather Prevails Over the Great Lakes

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — Ideal navigation conditions still exist on the lakes and rivers in this district. In strange comparison with last year when some 25 vessels were frozen in a foot and a half of ice here, the weather is mild, there is entire absence of cold winds and there is not even a single trace of ice formations.

Further indications of the spring like weather were shown when a number of local gardeners picked pansies from their flower beds. Several robins have retained their summer homes and a resident of Island Lake reports the presence of a wild canary.

ARMY PLANS BIG CHRISTMAS TREE

There Will Be a Present For Everyone Who Attends Concert To-night.

The young people comprising the local Salvation Army Sunday school will have their year-long expectations equalized and patience rewarded, when in conjunction with the Christmas program being given tonight in the local temple, that grand old veteran of a thousand and more Christmases, whose nhair is ever snowy white and whose beneficent nature never changes, Dear Old Santa Claus, will appear on the platform laden with gifts. The program will cover items from the cradle roll to the senior Bible classes, including the young people's band and singing company, also the life saving guards of the world. Santa Claus, in his usual generous manner, will present everyone who attends, mothers and fathers, boys and girls with a gift. The temple on such occasions has always been taxed to capacity, and 600 presents are awaiting distribution to the fortunate recipients. The temple has been appropriately decorated for the occasion, the arches profusely entwined with holly leaves, red berries, and the poinsettas, with a stately Christmas tree in the centre of the platform, presents a seasonable background.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

The question may be asked, why do you reiterate so much in regard to the truth of death and the resurrection; we answer, all over the world men and women are repeating Satan's lie: "Thou shalt not surely die," with its concomitant untruths, therefore it is in order for us to do our little part in combatting these errors that are broadcast all over the land.

Many, who the people expect to speak with authority merely hand out their opinion in regard to man being immortal and do not give anything to substantiate their theory. Their opinion is valueless on account of having no foundation truth to rest upon, and then again, it coinciding with Satan's lie, makes their opinion still more apparent as an idea of no value. Some may preach untruths, being totally blind to the facts of the case, some for monetary considerations, and some for notoriety, etc. Satan is blinding the minds of the people and using those blinded ones to propagate error.—M. T. Butcher. 1d142-4742 the tendency of the rays is to produce natural sleep," he added.

Lord Dawson did not leave Buckingham Palace until after noon, having been there for more than two hours. Sir Hugh Rigby, noted surgeon, who operated on His Majesty last Wednesday, left shortly after the bulletin had been issued.

During the morning the Prince of Wales visited the palace as did Ramsay MacDonald, the former Labor Premier.

The usual crowd which gathered outside the palace was an optimostic one, as was evidenced by the cheerful expression on most faces. Their cheery expectation of further good tidings of the King's condition, was realized when two palace officials came smiling to the railing with the new favorable bulletin.

Princess Mary was warmly greeted as she left the palace by motor car soon after the departure of the doctors.

Sir Kyanston Studd, Lord Mayor of London, speaking at a Mansion House meeting this afternoon, told of receiving a favorable report on the King's condition from the Prince of Wales.

"I saw the Prince of Wales this morning and he said that he was very pleased that the last two reports were so much more favorable and that for two nights the King has had sleep without having any sleeping draught."

The Lord Mayor added that the Prince seemed very much more hopeful that in a day or two more favorable bulletins might be given out.

The meeting, which was that of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund, decided at the Lord Mayor's suggestion that instead of sending any formal resolution to His Majesty all unite in singing "God Save the King."

Honor List Postponed

It was learned authoritatively late to-day that on account of the illness of King George the issue of the New Year's honors list would be postponed. It is believed that probably the the names of recipients of the honors will be published with the list of birthday honors. The King's birthday is June 3.

ROME, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press)—Once the official portion of the Secret Consistory was concluded to-day, Pope Pius conversed with all the Cardinals present and said that he was glad to inform them that latest reports were that King George of England, had improved. He expressed the hope that this would lead to complete recovery, showing that God heard and granted the prayers offered throughout the world for the King.

cause the magazine pages have been talking Ivory or Palm-Olive, month in, month out for years.

"And what's the result? They have received so many mental impressions of these names that they accept any well-advertised article without question, and in many cases ask for it.

"It would likely be very hard to pick out a single concern that does not advertise in some way. A concern must send out a description of its good. It may be a leaflet, a booklet or a catalog. That's advertising; circular letters are advertising."

Circular Advertising

"The difference between circular advertising and publication advertising is this: In circular advertising you are the only one whose advertisement appears in the circular. You control the number sent out, and you choose the people who are to receive them.

"In putting an advertisement in a magazine you are one of a number of advertisers. You say what you want on your page, to reach, not a list of people chosen by you, but a list of people who chose that magazine. That's a very different thing.

"In one case you push your letter or circular into the man's mail. It has no particular standing. It's a circular and unless it's particularly interesting or concerns something that the man is particularly interested in, it gets into the waste basket. He didn't ask you to send it. If he doesn't want the thing you're trying to sell, he may resent your sending it to him. They complain the mails are cluttered up with circulars.

"If you put your advertisement in a magazine, he gets that magazine because he chooses to receive it, either because he enjoys the stories, likes the editorial policy or for some reason or other he wants that magazine in his home.

"Do you see under what different circumstances your advertising is getting to that man? While you are in competition with other advertisements and with the stories and articles in the magazine, you're on his library table because he wants you there, and the magazine will stay there until it's out of date and your advertisement has a very good chance of being seen and read in that time.

"What you are buying with advertising is mental impression. The more times we can say 'Quaker Oats,' 'De Laval,' 'Westclox' and impress on the mind of the person who reads that advertisement that Westclox are good clocks—if we can make him think that Westclox are best clocks, without coming out and absolutely saying so, that advertisement is getting results whether it's a circular or an advertisement in a magazine or farm paper and every succeeding impression simply strengthens that impression, as long as we have the goods to back up the advertising.

"That's the reason that when people think of porridge they think of Quaker Oats. Alarm clock and Big Ben are synonymous. When soap is mentioned you think of Ivory. That's what we are trying to do through advertising—create as many mental impressions in favor of our product as we can, with the amount of money we have to spend.

Personality

"Salesmen create mental impressions just the same as advertising and they must be considered much more important than advertising for mental impressions created by them cost dollars compared to cents and fractions of cents for mental impressions through advertising.

"Frequently a salesman figures that it's his personality that sells the goods and that his sales are due entirely to his own efforts. That's one of the greatest mistakes a salesman can make in this day and age.

"Personality on the part of a salesman is an important thing. A salesman with a pleasing personality will build up a following that will prove valuable to him as time goes on, but where a salesman makes a mistake is in believing that the following he builds up is a personal following and that he can throw the purchases of that following to any line of goods that he might be selling.

"What actually happens is this—if the line of goods for which he travels is well known and well advertised, any salesman who comes in representing that line of goods, has a favorable impression created for him as soon as he presents his card.

"If his personal attitude is satisfactory to the customer, if he proves that his interests are identical with the customer's, he builds up a personal friendship with the buyer, but his building it up as the representative of a firm, and the reputation of the company comes first.

"Occasionally a salesman leaves a well-known house to take up a line of inferior merchandise or perhaps a less well-known one, with the idea that he holds his trade in the hollow of his hand and on his first month he finds, to his surprise and to the detriment of his sales total that the old line had a mighty good standing with the trade and that it was 75 per cent line and 25 per cent personality that enabled him to get the business."

"His successor can follow him and get business out of the old firm because its the line they were buying, not the salesman.

"The salesman is one medium of advertising and at the price we pay, should be the best. Advertising and the sales force should work hand in hand, or rather, the advertising should be the most powerful tool in the salesman's kit. Frequently salesmen pass over advertising as though it were incidental.

"A factory is wired for electricity. The electricity is generated in a power house and carried over wires to every part of the shop. It turns motors large and small. Its force you do not see. You feel its result.

"What would you think of a workman in the plant who tried to accomplish his work without the use of the force put at his command and control. Suppose he wanted to be an individual workman and use his personality and turn out his work by hand? He'd do a certain amount of work but here at his finger tips is an invisible force that will work for him untiringly and enable him to turn out hundreds of parts a day where he is turning out one by hand labor.

"The salesman who will harness the force of his advertising to his selling efforts is just the same as the man who uses the force of electricity brought to his bench or lathe and the man who carelessly passes by the advertising and attempts to do all his selling by sheer force of personality, has much heavier going before him.

"Our advertising is seeking to build a reputation for quality clocks. These mental impressions that are being created every month are not impressing the people with the cheapness of Westclox. They're impressing upon them their reliability and dependability.

"The Western Clock Company has gone steadily forward increasing its production year by year but still we don't get all the business. We don't want all the business. We want the good business and one reason why Westclox have come through trying periods with steady work and steady production is that during the years preceding we have made thousands and thousands of mental impressions on the people of this country and other countries that Westclox are good clocks and we've backed up these impressions with good goods at a reasonable price and that's a solid foundation on which to build a business.

PEACE SEEMS TO BE ASSURED WHEN BOLIVIA AND PARAGUAY ACCEPT MEDIATION PROPOSAL

Statement Made That Paraguayan Attack Calls For Investigation.

FIGHTING STOPPED.

Bolivian Troops Ordered To Cease Attacks On Disputed Frontiers.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—The Bolivian-Paraguayan crisis made a quick shift in the direction of peace to-day with the acceptance of Bolivia of the good offices of the Pan-American Conference of Conciliation nad Arbitration.

This decision followed on the heels of a Bolivian order to the commander of the Bolivian forces to cease attacks on Paraguayan troops in the disputed Chaco region where tension has run high for the past ten days.

"Paraguay yesterday announced acceptance of the Pan-American offer of mediation thus indicating together with Bolivia's action that the possibility of immediate further hostilities has been largely averted.

The acceptance of Bolivia of the Conference's good offices, forwarded to Secretary of State Kellogg who sent the original offer was made public in a communique issued in La Paz at an early hour this morning. The communique was as follows:

"Bolivia accepts the good offices of the conference of conciliation and arbitration. It being essential to investigate the origin of the conflict which consisted of an unwarranted attack by Paraguay on our Fort Vanguardia. A note will be sent to the president of the conference (Secretary of State Kellogg).

This communique was signed by Tomas Elio, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

FURTHER STEPS PROPOSED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—With its offer of mediation in the Bolivian-Paraguayan controversy accepted by both disputing countries, the way was clear today for the Pan-American conference on arbitration to take affirmative steps to reconcile the two nations.

Dr. Victor Maurtua of Peru, chairman of the special committee appointed by the conference to suggest conciliation procedure, conferred immediately to-day with other members of his committee and planned to call a meeting as soon as Bolivia's acceptance should be received here.

Although no concrete steps have been uggested to remove all danger of war between Bolivia and Paraguay, it is understood that the committee will strive to have both countries cease all war-like activities, urging Paraguay to demobilize and Bolivia to calm its people.

Even partial settlement of the controversy will greatly facilitate the other labors of the conference, which so far has been handicapped by the threat of war hovering over South America. Delegates had so far avoided as far as possible any meeting at which the dispute might have been brought up and given rise to heated debate.

The State Department showed great gratification at the announcement of Bolivia's action.

League Pleads For Peace

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Twice at the fighting stage, another change has come in the Bolivian-Paraguayan quarrel. Paraguay is willing that the Pan-American Conference be the meditator in the dispute. Bolivia has also accepted mediation offers.

This was taken generally to mean bright prospects for an orderly settlement of the row, but throughout both countries the tramp of marching soldiers was heard as armies are concentrating on the frontier. If a third clash comes, peace might lose entirely the ascendancy she has seemingly twice list and regained. The Council of the League of Nations, of which M. Briand of France, is president, has sent cablegrams to both countries urging arbitration instead of war. President Briand also indicated that he considered calling a special session of the council if the trouble assumed more serious proportions.

There was pleasure in League circles yesterday when Bolivia in a reply to a League note said that the commander of the Bolivian frontier forces had been ordered to cease attacks on Paraguayan troops.

Shipping Of Liquor Not Unfriendly Act

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Dissenting from a recent decision of Mr. Justice Raney in Supreme Court, Toronto, Mr. Justice Logie, in Supreme Court at Sandwich, yesterday held that an agreement to facilitate the transportation of liquor from Canada to the United States could not be classed as a conspiracy against a friendly government and therefore a breach of public policy.

In so ruling he awarded to William T. Westgate, Windsor, owner of an export dock in Ford City, a judgment of $1,800 against Samuel and Meyer Harris, for four months' rental of the docks.

COUNCIL HOLDS FINAL MEETING FOR YEAR 1928

Permission is Granted to the Canadian General Electric Co. to Build New Siding.

SCHOOL BOARD PRESENT

Addition to Collegiate Has Cost $357,000, With Province Bearing 40.25 Per Cent.

The passing of three bylaws, and the granting of permission to J. J. Duffus Limited, to erect a storage shed at the rear of its service station was the business that occupied the attention of the city council at its final meeting for 1928, held at the council chambers last night.

The session lasted very little over one hour, but in that time the aldermen heard a full report from the Board of Education on the way the city's money had been spent in the building of the addition to the Collegiate Institute.

All the members of the school Board were present. The chairman, E. B. Fowler, explained the obstacles that the Building Committee had run up against in erecting the new addition, but his welcome message was that the Board had been able to keep the expenditure within the amount asked for from the city when the building was contemplated.

W. R. Turner gave figures to show that the new addition had cost $357,000 and that the province will bear 40.25 per cent. of this. "There has been considerable more equipment bought than was at first contemplated," said Mr. Turner, "as on March 1, 1929, the grants which have been given by the Dominion Government to Vocation education during the past ten years will be cancelled, and there is little hope of any further grants being made." At present there are 105 pupils attending the school from the county, or practically one-seventh of the total enrolled attendance. The county pays for the tutoring of these pupils which amount will help to reduce the cost of operating the school, as there has been little increase in the teaching staff.

The council was asked to grant debentures for $62,000 which, when added to the previous $295,000 granted, will meet the total cost of the school. In the case of granting debentures the council issues the whole amount, and the government pays its share of the interest and sinking fund to the city treasurer.

It was decided to charge the coun-

CANADIAN LEGION OFFICERS ELECTED AT ANNUAL MEETING

Treasurer's Report That All Accounts Are Paid Received With Applause.

GOOD WORK DONE.

John R. Heron Succeeds J. Abraham as President of Local Branch.

Opening their annual meeting with two minutes of silence in memory of their fallen comrades, members of the Canadian Legion who are carrying on the work of those men last night elected the following to represent them as officers for 1929:

President:
JOHN R. HERON
1st Vice-President:
DR. N. H. SUTTON.
2nd Vice-President:
A. EVERETT.
Executive Committee:
J. A. DEWART.
S. WHATLEY.
REV. FR. P. COSTELLO
Auditors:
G. H. CUTMORE.
N. E. CROWE.
Treasurer (pro tem)
W. SWANGER.

These men, with Past President James Abraham, will guide the destinies of Branch 52, Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League during next year.

The importunities of the meeting failed to swerve President Abraham from his determination to retire at the end of this year. His splendid work, attested by a vote of confidence moved by Comrades Gant and Hope, and spoken to by Second Vice-President Rev. Fr. P. Costello, had its concrete expression in the freeing of the Legion from debt during 1928. "In proposing his re-election by acclamation," said the vice-president, "I do it for the good of the Legion. I know Captain Abraham has worked day and night, in season and out of season, to put this Legion on its feet." Others added their requests, but the president remained firm in his decision to yield his position to another. "I have reluctantly made up my mind not to stand for re-election," he said. "There has been a lot of uphill work to achieve the results of which the treasurer has spoken, but the executive has helped a lot and as much praise is due the members as is coming to me."

All Accounts Paid.

W. Swanger, who has acted as honorary treasurer since the retirement of S. Whatley early in the year, reported that the 1928 executive committee had succeeded in "wiping out all debts of the Legion," and at the end of 1928 he expects to hand over to the new officers sufficient funds to carry them through at least a month of operating expenses. The applause which greeted Comrade Whatley's motion of appreciation indicated in what measure the members realized the splendid work done by the honorary treasurer.

The treasurer told his inability, because of private and business reasons, to carry on his work next year, but on being importuned by many members of the executive and others,

Rescuers Carry On Conversation With Suffering Victim of Nero's Helmet's Peak Throughout Terrible Night of Suffering and Privation.

GRENOBLE, France, Dec. 18. — (Canadian Press). — Jean Douboin, Lyons newspaper man who was stranded on the top of Nero's Helmet Peak since Sunday, was rescued late to-day. He was alive, but unconscious from exhaustion and cold.

The body of Mademoiselle Yvonne Renoux, his only companion on the climb who perished Sunday night when they lost their way, was recovered.

Douboin was still alive this morning after a terrible night of suffering. It had been feared that he could not survive the night and that he would meet the same fate as Mademoiselle Yvonne Renoux, his only companion on the climb, who died Sunday night.

Last night the rescue party, after making desperate efforts to reach him before dark, was still several hundred feet beneath him. They knew that Douboin was still alive by his shouts and early this morning they listened eagerly for a renewal of the calls. Towards morning they kept up a running fire of coaching advice and encouragement to the marooned man. He replied each time, but his cries were believed to be growing fainter toward morning.

Encouraged by the knowledge that he was still alive, the rescue party headed by an experienced Alpinist guide named Rodier resumed their efforts to reach him.

A heavy snow was falling adding to the great difficulties of the situation.

ENGINEER SUBMITS REPORT ON ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAYS

Canadian Cabinet Receives Information On Full Development Being Planned.

PLAN BIG CONFERENCE.

Government Will Discuss With United States' Officials Border Rum Running.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Premier Mackenzie King and members of the cabinet gathered this morning to hear D. W McLachlan, chief engineer on the St. Lawrence waterways, describe the project. A similar meeting was held some time ago, and on that occasion, R. A. C. Henry, director of economics of the Canadian National Railways, gave the ministers some information from another angle. The purpose of the meetings, as stated by Premier King this morning is to give the members of the Government knowledge and information on the proposed development which will enable them to consider it adequately. The meetings are not an indication that the Government proposes to embark on the scheme in the near future. They are an indication that it is under consideration as it has been for a long time, and that the Government wants all available information from the best informed sources.

This afternoon another meeting of the cabinet will take place. It is possible that some decision may be reached with respect to the date of the Canada-United States conference on rum-running. The proposal of the Dominion Government is for some date in the first half of January. This would mean that the Government would probably be in possession of the decisions reached at the conference before the opening of the parliamentary session. Necessary legislation, if any, could be introduced and put through and delay avoided.

While a number of appointments have been made, there are still several vacancies for the Government to fill. The tariff board and railway commission each lack a member. There are a couple of Senate vacancies in Quebec. The farm loan board has yet to be selected.

An announcement of the opening date of the parliamentary session is expected before long, but whether this will be decided today is problematical. Indications point to the latter part of next month or early in February.

Brockville Commission Will Refund $20,000

BROCKVILLE, Ont., December 18. — The Public Utilities Commission to-day commenced making a refund of approximately $20,000 to consumers of light and power in order to reduce the surplus accumulated on operations during the year 1927. Cheques for about $7000 were placed in the mails to-day addressed to power users, and early in the new year users of commercial and domestic light will also be given a refund amounting to about one-sixth of their payments during 1927.

TWENTY-FIVE BREWERIES FORM ORGANIZATION TO AID ENFORCING OF LIQUOR LAWS

Association Selects a Committee of Three To Act As Governing Body.

W. E. GUNDY, CHAIRMAN.

2,000 Residents of Michigan Face Life Imprisonment By New Law.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 18 (Special to The Examiner).—Twenty-five Ontario breweries, with an aggregate passing the $30,000,000 mark, have taken definite steps toward forming an association to co-operate with the Dominion and Ontario Governments in enforcing the liquor export regulations, it was disclosed last night in Windsor.

The organization, it was specified, will not be a merger, but an association to protect the brewing industry and to stop the practice of "short circuiting" exported beer back to Ontario blind pigs for re-sale at prices lower than those of the Government liquor stores.

Semi-official Government approval of the association and its aims has already been given, it was said, and followed conferences between the interested brewers and the Dominion and Ontario Liquor Control officials.

A commission of three, selected by the brewers in the association, will act as the governing body. William E. Gundy, former police magistrate of Windsor and Walkerville, has been asked to accept the chairmanship of the governing commission. It was understood that the salary will exceed $10,000 a year.

Gundy said he would accept if the move to form the association was concurred in by the Dominion and Ontario Governments.

One of the other commissioners, both of whose names are withheld pending final organization, has been in conference with Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, in Toronto. Following the conference, Sir Henry intimated he would look with favor on the organization.

Have Signed Agreement.

The brewers interested have had two meetings and the 25 companies have signed an agreement seeking a charter to incorporate as a company. Another meeting, it is understood, is to be held this week. Virtually all the larger Border City brewers are understood to be interested in the combine.

Characterizing the association as a "protective corporation," Gundy said that one of its main objects would be to aid the two Governments in definitely stopping the sale in the provinces of supposedly exported beer that has been short circuited back to Canada. A number of small exporters, it was said, are believed to be regularly engaged in such traffic and the association proposed to stamp them out.

2000 Face Imprisonment.

Approximately 500 rum runners and 15,000 men and women in the liquor business in Detroit and Wayne County, face life imprisonment to-day.

Like a bolt from the blue the news leaked out to-day that the Michigan State authorities intend to apply the Habitual Criminal Act, passed by the State Legislature last session, to violators of the national prohibition law who have been sentenced four times.

With the acknowledgment by the Detroit police last night, that Attorney-General Wilbur M. Brucker, has asked for a complete list of everybody who has been convicted four times of violations against the National Prohibition Act, a hasty exodus from Detroit is in progress to-day, and the Christmas whiskey business is disrupted.

More than ever last night and today the rum runners engaged in the whiskey business appeared to have attended their last feast and to have seen the hand writing on the walls.

Reckoning is at Hand.

"Detroit may have been pretty rotten," one runner confessed last night, "but a day of reckoning is at hand—I can see it coming."

More than any move yet this latest attack of the prohibition forces struck a knockout blow against the Canadian distillers and brewers, since a large percentage of the veteran rumboat runners have many convictions against them in the United States courts for infractions of the liquor laws.

A strange paralysis seems to have crept over Rum Row in lower Ecorse last night. Lights were out. No loads were coming across. Even the great gambling houses were closed. Agents for gambling casinos stood ready to explain at the places where the automobile picked up the clients in the heart of the city. "We are closed till Wednesday noon," was all they would say. The truth was that there were no stocks of free whiskey and the hasty exodus of members of the rings who now see life imprisonment facing them, thoroughly disorganized the staffs of these places.

Canadian Invented Telegraphic Printer

The Creed telegraphic printer, which has been bringing news direct to The Examiner Office since last Friday morning, is the invention of a Canadian. Mr. Creed was born in Nova Scotia, and worked there as telegraph operator for some years. Then, with the great idea for this wonderful instrument, he went to England.

The machines are designed and built in Croydon, England, and shipped to Canada complete. From first to last, the installation is an Empire product.

Readers are invited to call and see the printer at work, between 7.45 a.m. and 3 p.m., excepting a period of about twenty minutes at 11.30, when the operators have lunch.

NO EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA SAYS MINISTER

Dr. J. A. Amyot, of Federal Department of Health Not Alarmed.

CASES ARE MILD.

Toronto Hospitals Exclude Visitors To Prevent Contagion of Patients.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Influenza now prevalent in many other parts of Canada has not yet assumed the proportions of an epidemic, in the opinion of Dr. J. A. Amyot, Deputy Minister of the Federal Department of Health. Dr. Amyot to-day reiterated his former statement, that there was no cause for alarm in surveying the present situation.

The deputy minister declared there was no doubt a great deal off illness, most of which seemed to be the mild influenza.

Regarding the report from Toronto that several large hospitals there are not admitting visitors, Dr. Amyot believed this was just a precautionary measure to ensure that patients would not contract any infection. Ottawa hospitals have not yet taken any such steps. City health authorities were reluctant to discuss the situation.

403,185 New Cases

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Public officials today estimated that 403,185 new cases of influenza had developed in 20 states and New York city last week. Reports were not available from other states but public health officials said the outbreak seemed to be moving eastward along lines of traffic.

Kansas still had the greatest number of cases reported, with 68,843. Illinois reported 2,196; Arizona, 2,615, and New York city 68.

Health officials said the death rate "seems to be increasing slightly still." "The rate, however, is not nearly so high as we would expect," they added, "with so many

APPOINTING OF NEW CLERK IS DISCUSSED BY MEMBERS AT FIRST SESSION OF COUNCIL

Assistant To Late Col. MacNachtan Thanks Members For Expressions of Sympathy.

PRAYER FOR KING.

Warden Davidson Suggests That Major MacNachtan Be Honored By His Father's Position.

COBOURG, December 18. (Special.)—The shadow of recent death was upon the council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, at the opening Monday afternoon of their final session of the year, which had been adjourned one week on account of the sudden death of Col. N. F. MacNachtan, clerk and treasurer, who had held the position for nearly 40 years.

After Warden C. H. Davidson, of Campbellford had opened the meeting, Major E. A. MacNachtan, son of Col. N. F. MacNachtan, who had been assistant to his father, thanked the members for their beautiful floral remembrance, their expressions of sympathy, and the consideration they had shown him and their respect for his father, in adjourning the sessions for one week.

Prayer for the King.

"I don't think I could have carried on my duties last week," he said, "and I thank you very much for the kindness you showed me. Our family joins with me in thanking you for your kind sympathy."

Warden Davidson, following him, said: "We are meeting here to-day under very sad circumstances. Of course we have to expect death. We know that our time is coming some day. Two of our members have recently passed away, Russell Peake, deputy-reeve of Seymour, who had the respect and esteem of all his colleagues, and who was a valuable member of this council; also our clerk and treasurer, who had given almost a life time of service to these counties. We are also mindful of the serious illness of the King and I would suggest that we stand for a minute of silent prayer for His Majesty's complete recovery of his health."

The council stood in deep silence for a minute, then proceeded with its sessional affairs. Warden Davidson at once referred to the vacant treasury and clerkship.

Appointment of Treasurer.

"We have to make an appointment," he said, "and we might as well do it now. If you all think as I do we should appoint Ted MacNachtan to the office. However, it is for the council to decide."

Reeve M. J. Holman of Clarke township, asked whether the council should call for applications.

Frank Elliott, reeve of Murray township, moved that no action be taken until January.

"Major MacNachtan has power of attorney to sign cheques and do any other business, but I don't think we should bring on an appointment at this session."

Reeve L. R. Giddy of Port Hope, seconded the motion.

New Faces in January.

Reeve W. H. Nelson of Percy township moved an amendment that "the matter be referred to the Finance Committee and report to the Committee of the Whole."

"I think we are in a better position than a new council," he remarked. "There may be many new faces here in January. We should't shirk our duty."

Warden Davidson recalled that when Mr. MacNachtan was appointed assistant to his father it was mentioned by J. N. Stone that the council wanted the son to be prepared to fill his father's place in just such circumstances as the present.

J. M. Bygott, deputy reeve of Campbellford said he could see no advantage in postponing the appointment. He was in favor of appointing a new clerk and treasurer at the opening meeting.

All Should be Present.

Dr. W. E. Wilson, reeve of Hastings, expressed the opinion it should be done only when all the members were present.

Reeve W. H. Nelson—That is why I proposed that we leave it to a committee.

Warden Davidson—All the members were notified that this meeting was to begin at 3 o'clock. It was their duty to be here. If some few are not here that is not our fault.

To focus the divergent opinions the Warden called for a vote on the proposal simply to make the appointment during the week's sessions. Only Frank Elliott was opposed to this course.

Reeve Elliott later moved that the appointment be dealt with in council Tuesday afternoon. Dr. Wilson seconded the motion, and it carried.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— A machine said to combine the principles of a heliocopter and an airplane, which the inventor claims will revolutionize aviation, has been invented by John E. It is said that the machines rises vertically from the ground and can be brought down in a space less than thirty feet square.

HOG CHOLERA IN NORFOLK

Dominion Inspector Has Put 14 or 15 Farmers Under Quarantine.

NO FURTHER OUTBREAK

SIMCOE, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Hog cholera has broken out in Townsend Township and has already spread over a considerable area, some 14 or 15 farms being under quarantine. It was brought to Norfolk by a board purchased in Western Ontario, according to the Veterinary Inspector of the Dominion Live Stock Branch, who, with his assistants have been working in the district for the past week.

No Further Outbreak

No further outbreak of the dread disease hog cholera has been found in Peterborough County since the recent one among the pigs of H. Withers, Armour Road, received, the attention of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Over 100 hogs belonging to Mr. Withers were destroyed because they showed signs of having cholera and it is evident that these steps proved successful in stamping out the disease, since no further cases have been reported in the county.

DAVIDSON WILL CONTEST OFFICE

Many Rumors In Air Concerning Contestants in Campbellford Municipal Elections.

STONE FOR REEVE.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, December 18.—Already there is much speculation as to who is to be who in the coming municipal elections. Each day brings its new quota of rumors, but the situation cannot definitely be stated at the present time. The Reeve and Deputy-Reeve are attending the December sessions of the Counties' Council, which were postponed for one week on account of the death of the counties clerk, Col. Neil MacNachtan. As nearly as can be learned, much depends on the stand which either or both of these two men decide upon. Deputy-Reeve Davidson, who is also Warden of the counties, stated his intentions before leaving the Council Chambers after the meeting of December 15. Reeve Bygott has not yet made public his position. It is understood on good authority that other circumstances may appear which would make it impossible for him to be a candidate for a municipal office in Campbellford. Since the situation will be solved by Tuesday evening, Major Bygott did not wish to state his intentions regarding the municipal elections till then.

Mayor Kingston will not be a candidate for the same office for 1929. This fact he announced at the conclusion of the last Council meeting.

NEW UPWARD TREND IS SEEN IN CONDITION OF KING TO-DAY

Disturbed Night Is Made Up By Greater Strength This Morning.

STILL SERIOUS.

Violet-ray Treatment Again Administered During Night—Palace Optimistic.

LONDON, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The long and patient struggle to save the life of King George and restore him to health and strength witnessed another of its tremulous fluctuations in the last 24 hours, but the latest advices from the sick room this morning indicated an upward turn again.

The morning bulletin of the doctors said that both the King's general condition and the condition around the infected lung area had improved overnight, if only slightly. The bulletin was signed by Sir Hugh Rigby, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Lord Dawson of Penn. It said:

"There is a slight improvement in both the general and local conditions."

These welcome tidings came after a night during which public apprehension prevailed that the King's illness, after encouraging progress over the week-end, might have taken a definite turn for the worse. Such a disquieting possibility was indicated to the popular mind by last night's bulletin.

It was understood that well-informed quarters regarded the latest bulletin as indicating the slight setback reported last night was merely temporary, as had been hoped. It was said that it represented part of the ebb and flow which was to be expected.

Dr. Rigby and Lord Dawson were in consultation with Dr. Hewett at the Palace for an hour and a half this morning, and left shortly after the bulletin was issued. An anxious crowd in front of the Palace had assumed considerable proportions earlier than usual, despite the foggy morning, because of renewed fears that things within the Palace were not going well. The crowd was greatly relieved when the doctor's report was posted up with its more favorable news.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—A check in the improvement which the King has been experiencing for two days was reported in the official bulletin last night from the physicians who have been attending the royal patient in Buckingham palace.

The doctors' report said that His Majesty was "somewhat restless during the afternoon and that the progress recently noted has not been continued during the last few hours."

While the words of the bulletin, as usual, were distinguished by reserve, the disappointment over their intent was not sufficient to dispel the strong optimistic spirit which has prevailed at the palace since Saturday, when the sick Monarch began to show improvement.

The arrest of progress noted in the evening bulletin was regarded by the still cheerful observers of the course of the disease as something to be expected and as probably a temporary phase. The newspapers and all subjects of the King have been schooled through the long weeks of sickness not to anticipate rapid recovery.

CHURCH SOCIETY HOLDS BAZAAR

Good Sum Realized by Women's Auxiliary of Hastings Church.

BOOTHS DECORATED

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Dec. 18—The Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Anglican Church held an attractive and most successful bazaar and afternoon tea in Lynch's Hall on Saturday, December 8.

The bazaar presented a cheerful scene with the different booths arranged on each side of the spacious room and the small tea tables in the centre. The room and booths were beautifully decorated in various colors and added much to the appearance of the sale. The tea tables looked attractive with their covers and vases of cut flowers and were in charge of Mrs. William Gillespie, Mrs. Earl Gillespie and Miss M. Battersby.

There was a splendid booth of fancy goods including knitting, crocheting and embroidery under the direction of Miss Della Plant, Mrs. Radford and Mrs. Jeffries.

The table of novelties and small gifts for children was in charge of Mrs. Roy King, while Mrs. William Puffer and Mrs. H. Peter did a thriving business selling aprons, dresses and ready-to-wear.

The homemade cooking booth and sale of candy under the direction of Mrs. Waygood and Mrs. Curel looked most tempting with its supply of buns, pies, cakes and good things to eat.

The juniors under the direction of Mrs. Hubbs and Miss Sylvia Battersby had a booth and fish pond which attracted the children's attention. Mrs. (Rev.) Battersby, very ably assisted on the reception committee.

The proceeds amounted to more than two hundred dollars.

Personals.

Dr. W. E. Wilson went to Cobourg on Monday to attend the December sessions of the Counties' Council but owing to the sudden death of Col. Neil F. MacNachtan, the sessions were postponed for one week, and Reeve Wilson returned home at once.

Dr. J. M. Thomson, of Guelph, spent the week-end with his parents, Rev. D. A. and Mrs. Thomson at The Manse.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waygood have returned home after spending the past few weeks with friends in Woodstock, Kitchener and other western points.

BAD WEATHER STOPPED FLYING

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.) — Unfavorable weather prevented examination of intending pilots during his trip through the west, Major J. H. Tudhope, of the Civil Aviation Branch, stated on his return yesterday.

The Government grants flying clubs $100 for every new pilot trained during each year with a maximum of 30 grants to each club. Several clubs in the west were anxious to complete their quota before December 31.

SHORTHORN CATTLE ARE INSPECTED

Forty Head Have Been Entered in Annual Breeders' Sale.

BIGGER ENTRY

C. F. Mackenzie of Dominion Livestock Branch Will Investigate Heifer Club Applications.

Forty head of cattle, entered by the Peterborough Shorthorn Breeders Association for the regular winter sale, are being inspected to-day by C. F. MacKenzie of the Dominion Livestock Branch, J. B. Nelson, local representative of the Ontario Agriculture Department, Walter Bowles, president and Beecher Matchett of the Shorthorn Breeders Association.

The number of bulls to be inspected this year is an appreciable increase over the number last year or any year previous, showing that the local breeders are making great strides in the breeding of pure stock.

Mr. Mackenzie is also in charge of the Boys' Heifer Breeding Clubs and he will, while in the district, investigate numerous applications that have recently been made for entry in the club. Here to, progress is being manifested, and it looks as though there will be big increases in the membership of the heifer club. Considering the inexperience of the boys they have done remarkably well, and many of them have received their certificates for their work of last year.

The members of the Boys' Heifer Club are given pure bred heifers, aged about two years, which they feed and raise and are required to make full reports on the progress of the beast. The boys pay for the heifer themselves and, as the cost runs well over $100, it shows considerable enthusiasm and interest on the part of these youthful stock breeders when they apply for membership.

Salem Children Lost On Way Home From Visit To Neighbors.

CAP IS CLUE.

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The discovery of a boy's cap on the ice on the Irvine River, near Salem, led to the locating of the bodies of George and Harold Saunders, 12 and 8 years of age, respectively. The youngsters left home with an elder brother on Saturday night to visit neighbors. On their way home they became separated from the brother and it was not until yesterday that any trace was found of them.

EDITOR'S SON IS ARRESTED

Murder of Police Officer In India Leads To Investigation.

ACT OF REVENGE.

LAHORE, India, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters).—The son of the editor of the daily newspaper Arya Samaj has been arrested and his father's house searched in connection with the murder of Assistant Superintendent Saunders of the police force, and an Indian clerk, who were shot dead yesterday. Saunders was going home on a bicycle when he was fired upon and killed, and the clerk, who happened to be passing, was shot when he attempted to pursue Saunders' assailants, who escaped on motorcycles.

The crime is believed to be an act of revenge for the death of Lala Lajpatrai in the disturbances which marked the arrival at Lahore of the commission on Indian statutory reform headed by Sir John Simon. The police have also searched the Dayanand college and hostel, near the locality of the shooting, and the premises of the "servants of the People Society" which was formed by Lajpatrai.

Children Entertained at Christmas Festival

MISSION CIRCLE HOLDS CONCERT AT MILLBROOK

Room Gaily Decorated With Colors and Tinsel of Yuletide.

CHARACTERS OF FAIRYLAND

Good Musical Program Presented by Children at Happy Event.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, December 18.—The annual concert under the auspices of the Sunshine Mission Band was held in the basement of the United Church on Friday evening, a Christmas atmosphere being given to the rooms by the decorations of red and green streamers, red shades on the lights, and most of all by the gaily-trimmed Christmas tree, stung with trimmed Christmas tree, strung with bright ornaments.

This entertainment by the children is looked forward to each year as one of the best in the whole twelve months, and much credit is due the superintendents, Mrs. M. McDowell, and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, for the time, patience, and labor expended in training so well the fifty or more little folk who took part with speeches and songs well memorized, and costumes that were appropriate and beautifully made.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, was chairman, and in his opening remarks referred to the two busy mothers who had shown such patience and love in the work with the members of the Mission Band, and on behalf of this organization, he welcomed the large audience to the gathering.

An opening chorus, with at least fifty children on the platform, was entitled, "The Mission Band Children Are Marching Along," and afterward seven of the boys sang "Jesus Was a Little Boy," those taking part being: Lloyd McMahon, Clendon Challice, Gordon Jones, Teddy McDowell, Max Fallis, Vernor Lambert, and Freddie Garside.

"White Gifts for the King" was the next number, and exemplified the main feature of the entertainment that of teaching the children to give to others rather than expect presents for themselves. Each carrying a parcel, the boys and girls marched to the platform, round past the fireplace with its holly wreath and big vase of poinsettia, and so into the wings again, the gifts being deposited in a large, red-covered box, conveniently placed, and afterward all were packed and sent to Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary-teacher among the Ruthenian children at Wahstao, Alberta, where they wil help to fill a Christmas tree for these foreign children in the boarding-school.

Good Program.

Other items on the program were: Reading, "December, the Best Month of All," by Bernice Smith, this being given while the little folk were massed on either side of the stage after the gifts had been placed in the big box, nad at its close all sang, "Away in a Manger."

Recitation, "Little Ah Sid," by Kenneth Little.

Song, "Lucy Long," by eight boys, Reg. Edmunds, Elwood Fallis, Charlie Guthrie, Jack Stinson, Gordon Jones, Freddie Garside, Lloyd McMahon, and Clendon Challice.

Character song, "Highland Laddie," by Jean Stinson.

Song, "Chinese Cousins," by Ida Lunn, May Ferren, Mary Burnham, Madeline McDowell, and Charlotte McMahon; the "Chinese" being Bryer Edmunds and Marjorie McDowell (in costume).

Pantomime, "Woman's Rights," by twelve boys, who wore aprons and were busily employed in washing clothes and hanging them out, ironing, baking, sweeping, dusting, turning a meat-cutter, etc., music being played softly all the while.

Exercise, "Little Lights," with Charlotte McMahon in the central part, and other characters coming at her call being Kathleen Smith, "Faith," May Ferren, "Love," Marjorie McDowell, "Hope," Marie Douglas, "Joy," Dorothy Smith, "Peace," Lazelle Lunn, "Patence," Muriel Clarke, "Pity," Lenore Lambert, "Courage," Wilma Armstrong, "Comfort," Ruth Richards, "Goodwill." These girls lighted the candles they were carrying from the one which Faith had brought in lighted, and when all were burning they sang "Jesus Bids Us Shine"; the representatives of heathen nations then arrived, and each had her candle lighted from the one who stood opposite her, the characters being: India, Bonna Clarke; Mexico, Vera Armstrong; Syria, Mary Burnham; China, Kathleen Smith; Japan, Dorothy McDowell; Korea, Prudie Davis; Siam, Beatrice McDowell; Africa, Phyllis Lunn; South America, Beatrice Fallis; Persia, Audrey Garside; the final chorus was, "Come, Ye Blessed of the Lord."

Song, "Jack and Jill," by the boys.

Dialogue, "If I Were You," by Helen Mitchell (Japanese) and Margaret Smith.

Piano duet by Mary Burnham and Bryer Edmunds.

Characters From Fairyland.

Cantata, "Mother Goose," Jack Stinson taking the leading part, Bernice Smith the "Child from Earth," and the other characters being: Elves in bright red suits, silver-trmmed, Lloyd McMahon, Marjorie McDowell, Muriel Clarke, and Beatrice McDowell; Mother Goose, Dorothy McDowell; Little Bo-Peep, Lenore Lambert; Little Boy Blue, Venner Lambert; Jack and Jill, Gordon Jones and Audrey Garside; Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary, Bryer Edmunds; Little Tommy Tucker, Freddie Garside; The Fairies from Fairyland, dainty in white and silver, Beatrice Fallis, Nan Fallis, Ruth Richards, Marjorie Sutton, Dorothy and Kathleen Smith; Puss in Boots, Alvin Lambert; Little Red Riding Hood, Mary Burnham; Cinderella, Helen Mitchell; Goldilocks, Ida Lunn; Jack and the Beanstalk, Charlie Guthrie; Alice in Wonderland, Madeline McDowell; Peter Pan, Reg. Edmunds; Wendy and Gretchen, Edwood Fallis and Kathleen Davis. The choruses sung included "Tra La La, the Fairy Folk," "Such a Jolly Family," and "Dear Book Friends," with "Santa We Welcome You," when the jolly red-suited St. Nicholas came in the door, with his big sack full of gifts, and the children all flocked round him while each was given a bag of candy, and Santa talked to them happily.

The formal vote of thanks to Mrs. McDowell and Mrs. Lambert for the excellent entertainment provided, and the labor and time expended in its preparation, was moved by Mr. J. McKnight, and seconded by L. W. Smith, the singing of the National Anthem bringing a pleasant gathering to a close.

The freewill offering received at the doors brought in a very good sum to add to the funds of the Mission Band, which has for years maintained a cot in the Women's Hospital at Chentu, West China, known as the Millbrook Sunshine Cot.

The accompanists on Friday night were Mrs. M. McDowell, Misses Frances Jones and Annie McMahon.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 18—(Canadian Press). — Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday owing to the fact that foreign buyers showed little or no interest in the market.

A feature of the domestic grain trade was the demand from local buyers for Manitoba feed barley and sales of odd fair sized lots were made at ten cents per bushel under the Winnipeg December option, f.o.b. cars Fort William. In other lines of grain business was quiet and spot prices for oats were ½c per bushel lower.

There were no new developments in the local flour situation, prices for spring and winter wheat grades generally being maintained with a steady demand.

The market for millfeed exhibited a somewhat easier feeling although there was no change in prices. The demand was fair. A moderate amount of business was done in standing grades of rolled oats at steady prices.

The trade in butter was inactive but prices were well maintained. Receipts were 86 packages.

The inquiry for cheese was of a limited character and values were about steady. Receipts were 359 boxes.

An active business was done in all grades of fresh and storage eggs and prices were firmly maintained. Receipts were 495 cases.

Potato prices were steady under a fair demand. Prince Edward Island whites sold at 75c, and green mountains at 83c per 90 lbs, in bags.

Beans were firm. Canadian beans sold at $5.25 per bushel, and choice boiling peas at $3.50 per bushel.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—The very mild weather of the past week has resulted in increased fresh egg receipts in all parts of the country and both fresh and storage egg markets are weaker as a result.

Montreal—Prices on the egg market here are steady, but the general condition is dull. The turkey situation is also inclined to be weak and buyers are holding off on account of the unfavorable weather. Local dealers are quoting country shippers extras 55c., firsts 46c., pullet extras 43c. B. C. eggs are offering here for delivery soon extras 49c., firsts 44c., pullet extras 40c, f.o.b.

Winnipeg— Egg receipts here are heavier due to the mild weather, but prices are holding steady. Dealers are quoting country shippers for live turkeys over 15 lbs 24c., dressed 33c, 12-15 lbs. Live 22c., dressed 30c., 10-12 lbs. Live 20c., dressed 28c.

Vancouver—Egg receipts here continue to come forward freely and the market is dull. The majority of dealers have reduced paying prices for ungraded eggs to extras 32c., firsts 31c., pullet extras 28c.

St. John—Fresh egg receipts here continue to increase as result of the mild weather. Dealers are quoting country shippers extras 60-62c., firsts 50-52c., seconds 40c.

Chicago—Spot 40c, Dec. refrigerators 32 5-8c., January refrigerators 29 1-4c., February fresh 27 3-4c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(A.P.)— Nervousness pervaded the wheat market yesterday with the northwest selling but with bearish effects largely counter-balanced by chances of cold weather catching winter wheat unprotected. Predictions of clear skies and lower temperatures checked advances in corn.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to 1-8c. to 1-4c. net lower, corn unchanged to 1-4 to 3-8c. higher, oats unchanged to 1-4c. off, and provisions varying from a shade decline to 7 cents advance. Wheat started with an upward trend yesterday, influenced more or less by statements from a leading authority that unseasonable warm and wet conditions of late had left a large portion of domestic winter wheat territory without snow covering and thus subject to menace from a sudden cold wave. It was also pointed out that notwithstanding much emphasis had been placed on world wheat production, unusual demand from non-European importing countries had been almost ignorant, assertions were likewise put forward that the wheat market after having been stabilized for about ninety days had but a remote chance now for a further important decline, whereas opportunites for an advance were more promising.

Selling pressure from houses with connections north-west became speedily evident, though, on advances in price and new buying power failed at times to prove broad enough to readily absorb the offerings. Increase of the United States' wheat visible supply figures during the day counted also as a bearish factor, reductions rather than increases being looked for at this time of year. On the other hand, the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed 5,000,000 bushels December compared with a week ago, and despite indications that export buying for Europe to-day from North America was light, the market was rallying at the finish.

Adverse weather prevailing over a great part of the corn belt acted as a bullish influence on corn. Besides, eastern cash demand for corn here was better, and country offerings were light. Oats averaged a trifle lower on account of scattered selling.

Provisions were firmer sympathizing with the upturn in the value of hogs.

Live hogs, thick, smooth, $9 cwt.; select graded, $9.50; dressed hogs, head on, $15.50; head off, $16.50 cwt.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—Firmness in the local butter market was a feature on the resumption of trading yesterday. There was a moderate amount of business passing on spot with dealers quoting from 41¼c to 41½c per pound for finest creamery solids. In some interchanges in a jobbing way as high as 42c per pound was asked for fancy creamery, which figure was usually rejected, unless supplies were urgently needed.

Lacking any noteworthy feature the market for cheese was almost at a standstill. Dealers are quoting 21¼c to 21¾c per pound for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded, delivered Toronto.

All grades of fresh eggs were steady and unchanged in price on Monday. Dealers report a fair increase in receipts from Ontario centres, but with no substantial step-up in current production noticeable as yet.

Small lots of fresh-gathered coming in daily are being well cleared under the good demand that prevails. Storage grades are steady with no change in values, although the market for this class of egg appears to be easier than a week ago. Trade is fairly active and will likely be stimulated this week as holiday orders increase.

THE GAS PLANT BYLAW.

Little opposition to the proposed purchase of the local gas plant from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has up to the present made its appearance.

Public ownership advocates are, of course, unanimously in favor of the proposition, while other citizens usually opposed to public ownership prefer in this case to have a municipal utility operated under municipal control rather than under Government management.

Still other ratepayers, neutral on the general question of public vs. private ownership, see in the gas purchase proposal a chance for Peterborough to acquire on most favorable terms a utility that should pay its own way and become a municipal asset without dipping into the pockets of the ratepayers for any additional taxes.

This advantage, coupled with the fact that the city will acquire other property of value in addition to the gas plant and will at the same time reclaim a franchise drafted on such liberal terms that few citizens would want to see it pass into the hands of a private company, is creating a very strong current of opinion in favor of the bylaw, a current that will undoubtedly become stronger as the advantages of the proposition are stressed.

A SCARCITY OF CANDIDATES.

Although five aldermen are to be elected to the City Council at the coming election and a sixth will have to be appointed by next year's Council to complete the term of ex-Ald. Ackerman, who resigned early in the month, not a single new candidate has so far announced himself.

A similar condition exists in regard to the Board of Education election, and no opposition has up to the present come into the field in regard to the mayoralty or the election for the Utilities Commission, for which Gordon S. Matthews will seek re-election.

Nominations will be held on Friday, and while it is possible that the proceedings then will completely change the present situation, it is seldom that the official start of the municipal race has been allowed to approach so closely without the announcement of the intention of several new candidates to allow their names to go on the ballot paper.

Should the unusual development happen of all the municipal officers being elected without a contest, the expense of an election would not be saved, however, inasmuch as all the election machinery would still be needed to record the opinion of the ratepayers on the two bylaws to be submitted.

THAT "GRAB" SPEECH.

The harm that can be done by a few injudicious words is illustrated by the reaction noted in a number of provincial newspapers to a remark of a speaker at a recent Toronto meeting, who declared more forcibly than wisely: "We have grabbed the Winter Fair from Guelph; now let us grab the Canadian Henley from St. Catharines."

The Examiner has never been among those who believed that the appellation "Hogtown" used against the city of Toronto was justified, in regard to sporting events or generally.

We have found that outside teams playing in the Queen City receive fairer treatment and better appreciation from Toronto fans than they can expect anywhere else in the Province, while in other matters the tendency to centralize rather than any hoggish efforts has been responsible for Toronto gaining industries and other things at the expense of smaller communities.

But when Toronto speakers get up and gleely shout about "grabbing" this, that and the other thing from provincial cities, they should not be surprised if there is resentment, not only in the centres immediately affected, but in others that might be by other "grabbing."

It was not because of the general attitude of Toronto people, but because of the silly speeches of a few, that the "Hogtown" legend was evolved and is being maintained.

TIME TO CHECK UP.

Premier Ferguson has announced that there is to be an organized effort on the part of his Government to deal with Communistic propaganda and activities in Ontario.

In view of recent developments in the Sudbury district and the efforts made to interest Toronto school children in Red doctrine, there would seem to be every need of an energetic campaign against the spread of Communism in certain parts of the Province.

There are those who, like the Ottawa Journal, are satisfied to call Communistic leaders ill-mannered asses, but do not think they should be treated as criminals.

The trouble with such an attitude is that it does nothing to check the growth of the insidious movement among new Canadians who are unable to read English and who are reached and influenced by Communist propaganda preached and printed in their own language.

Among such people the seeds of Red doctrine seem to find rich soil, and the result is, some districts is disturbing to say the least.

Ignoring the conditions is merely patting the agitators on the back.

So long as they can do so in safety they will go on stirring up trouble among our foreign settlers, and the time has come apparently to treat these Canadian Communist leaders in the only manner that can make an impression on them—in order words, as the Globe puts it, "they have to be treated roughly and promptly."

The Premier should lose no time in launching his campaign.

SAVING AND SPENDING.

Mr. Herbert F. Rawll, president of the United States "Christmas Club," estimates that there will be distributed this season the huge sum of $550,000,000 which has been saved throughout the country during the year for the express purpose of meeting Christmas expenditures. It is anticipated that less than half this amount will actually be spent on presents, however; over $160,000,000 will probably be deposited in permanent savings accounts or used for investment; $72,000,000 for year-end commitments and concluding installment payments; $30,000,000 for insurance premiums, about the same amount for interest and mortgage payments, somewhat less in taxes and minor sums on education and charity. Of the total, it is believed about 60 per cent. will be used for constructive purposes. These are certainly very impressive figures, and show what can be done when a determined effort at thrift is made. There are some critics of the system, however, who deny that this kind of saving is thrift at all. It is not thrift in the old-fashioned sense of the word, when the sole idea was accumulation—"saving up for the rainy day"—for its ultimate object is to be able to spend rather than to hold. Defenders of the movement point out that it does, as a matter of fact, result in permanent saving and develops habits of systematic accumulation. As for the money spent on Christmas gifts, that bespeaks an unselfish disposition, and, after all, "it is better to give than receive." Such a savings scheme, it would seem, is well calculated to develop character.

The American Banker is of the opinion that the movement is good for the individual and good for the country. Even if the money is spent at the end of the year, it is argued, general prosperity and happiness have been promoted thereby. "It is the same way with other 'save to buy' movements," remarks the financial paper, "such as saving to buy a house, saving to travel, etc. Accomplishment of such purposes is what builds up our high standard of living and gives our people an objective to work for." New ideas of thrift have emerged to suit the new conditions of the age. The practice of banking every hard-earned cent, with the hope of ensuring an independent future, is regarded as a pessimistic proceeding. "Our present ideas if thrift are to play up to the pleasant side." To keep the wheels of progress steadily turning, it is necessary that there should be more spending than of yore. It is not "going without" which maintains the industrial system, but satisfying our wants. Emergencies are taken care of in other ways—insurance, old-age and disability benefits, adopted by employers and by individual citizens. This being the case, there is a feeling that thrift should be a "saving to buy," rather than a saving to keep. Nevertheless, old-fashioned as it may be, we still maintain that the way to independence and happiness lies along the same old road—systematic saving for the days to come.—Hamilton Spectator.

NURSING A GRUDGE.

Three years ago Miss Florence Carter, a Sheridan, Michigan, school teacher, then twenty-six years of age, slapped a pupil, James Deacon, then aged twelve, for throwing wads of paper in school. Something of the same sort happens in schools throughout the land every day of the year.

But James Deacon was an unusual sort of boy. He could not take his licking with the sort of sporting spirit that most boys do when they give way to exuberances of that kind in school. He vowed there and then that he would one day murder her. He allowed his hatred of the teacher to grow like a cancer—and last Friday he murdered her.

He asked a lift in her car and, on reaching a lonely spot asked her to stop, sprang at her throat ferociously, choked her into insensibility, then with demoniacal frenzy hammered her head with a stone, causing six distinct fractures of the skull.

Then he went home, washed the blood from his hands, took supper with his parents and, according to his own story, slept soundly in bed that night.

Undoubtedly James Deacon is a sub-normal type, yet it is unlikely he ever would have committed this atrocious deed if he had not entertained the belief that murder is not a very serious crime.

Why is there so much crime in the United States, mostly among youths and young men?

Largely because the percentage of arrests to crimes is small; because the number of men arraigned for trial is smaller still, and, again, because the number of men punished is a small percentage of those tried.

Crime is rife, too, because criminals are played up in the newspapers and elevated to heroic stature; because, for some inexplicable reason, there is a mass psychology in the United States which likes to see the killer, the hold-up man, the gambler and all the rest of the tribe, "get away with it." There is too much sympathy with the criminal who is caught; never a word of sympathy with his victim.

And if a criminal of the underworld should die with his boots on, he gets a spectacular and costly funeral.

There is also the movies, where there is no censorship of gun-play as there is here.

All these things have a cumulative effect on young minds. Impressionable boys and youths are raised in the belief that it is right to take the law into their own hands, and to rob and murder if robbery and murder are necessary to their plan of life.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now Premier Ferguson promises to nail some Communistic hides to the fence. He's going after Red skins as it were.

The United States Radio Commission refuses to allot Canada any further broadcasting waves, which is all the more reason for making the best use of what we have.

Be one of Santa's Pals by making a donation toward The Examiner's Christmas cheer effort. Christmas joy for every Peterborough home is the object aimed at in this campaign.

Once more let it be remembered that nomination day for Peterborough is on Friday.

The phrase, "A mild sort of influenza," is used ordinarily by somebody who has not had a recent attack of the disease.

Mayor McBride, of Toronto, is having opposition. He usually succeeds in stirring up some.

Canada's Radio Commission is to visit Toronto this week. They should not fail to notice the present unfair allotment of time on the air among the Toronto and district stations.

Perhaps the Radio Commission will be able to do something about some of those blue singers.

Peterborough will nominate candidates for municipal positions on Friday. It will be necessary perhaps to mention the date several times to prevent everybody from forgetting it.

When a spinster at last gives up hope, she has one consolation. She is free to eat onions.—Oshawa Times.

A Thought

BROTHERLY MEN

"No, I don't call him a good man," said a shrewd observer of an acquaintance, "for he doesn't make it easier for other people to be good, and that's the bottom test of really good Christians. He spends half his time putting difficulties in the way, and the other half in criticising people." The analysis was a sound one. The true, brotherly humble Christian always acts on the principle that Hamilton has put into verse:—

There are two stones we may not dare to cast:
The stone of stumbling in our brother's way,
The stone of judgement at our brother's past,
We, who ourselves like sheep have gone astray.

GOD'S MINUTE.

O Thou that hearest prayer, unto Thee shall all flesh come.—Ps. 65:2.

Most Gracious Father, from Whom all good gifts come, grant us, we entreat Thee, the gift we need above all others, Thy Holy Spirit to help our infirmities, that our worship may be purged from all unreality. We long to pray to Thee sincerely, but we cannot unless Thou dost cleanse our hearts from the dross of vain desire. Free us from selfishness in our prayers; deliver us from asking for those things that will minister chiefly to our earthly pleasure. Thou must inspire the petitions which Thou alone canst answer. We are conscious of our sinfulness, but cannot be truly sorry for our midgoings until Thou dost move us to honest contrition and unfeigned repentance. We would be grateful to Thee for the multitude of Thy tender mercies, but it is not until Thou dost grant us a due sense of Thy goodness, and awaken within us sincere gratitude, that our cold hearts are ready to praise Thee.

Our love languishes and dies except Thy Spirit shall quicken it into a living flame. Our good deeds cry aloud to Thee for pardon, if Thou dost not inspire them and purify them by Thine own indwelling.

We would live the prayer life: we would learn what it is to pray without ceasing. To this end do Thou come and dwell within us, O Thou Spirit of Christ! We want day by day to glorify Thee, our Father, and to serve our fellows, even as did Jesus, Thy well-beloved Son. In His name, Amen.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

CHANGE

In some sweet hour we all have kissed,
In some sad hour we all have wept,
For few the joys that we have missed,
And few the joys that we have kept.
The flow'r has faded while we slept,
And, even in our gayest hour,
Across our path a shadow crept,
And love has faded like the flow'r.

But is it, friend, not always so?
Shall flow'rs have seasons, joy but one?
Shall dawn and daylight come and go,
But pleasure know no setting sun?
I know no day but day is done,
No petal but was doomed to fall;
For so it is the seasons run,
With some good purpose in it all.

Yet there are things that know no night,
No alteration, and no year.
Though time has taken some delight,
The things delightful still are here.
The dear we lose are just as dear,
And still old gardens still may please.
No world is ever dark or drear,
A world so filled with memories.

MURRELL AT KINGSTON

KINGSTON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—William Murrell, who received executive clemency after being sentenced to death at London, Ont., arrivd here at 1.20 p.m. yesterday to begin his life sentence at Portsmouth Penitentiary. Murrell was accompanied by two officers and was shackled to one of them. In addition he wore ankle shackles which only allowed him to hobble along. A waiting taxi conveyed the notorious bandit and his guards to the penitentiary.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

—BY—

RUBY M. AYRES

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS — The Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth, and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna had married without love, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her heart. As the years pass, though Hugh has gone to China, they realize that they love each other more than ever. On the night of the Little Flapper's eighteenth birthday ball Hugh returns. Marna, overjoyed at seeing him, faints. The Big Flapper, Biddy's friend, DOLLY BENSON, says she adores him.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XI—THE HAUNTING TUNE

The band had started once more, and the Big Flapper began foxtrotting gracefully up and down the corner of the wide hall, her slim body moving sensuously, her eyes half-closed.

"Isn't it divine?" she said again, and as she danced she began to sing the rather foolish and sentimental words of the song in her sweet, untrained voice:

"I'll see you in my dreams,
Hold you in my dreams:
Someone took you out of my arms;
Still I feel the thrill of your charms!
Lips that once were mine;
Tender eyes that shine—
They will light my way tonight;
I'll see you in my dreams!"

Biddy moved restlessly, her brown eyes fixed on the Big Flapper's gracefully swaying form.

There was a feeling of great happiness in her heart, of something unusual in the air which she could neither understand nor explain, but which seemed intensified by the music and by Dolly Benson's shrill, untrained voice singing those sweetly sentimental words.

"I'll see you in my dreams,
Hold you in my dreams——"

The Big Flapper broke off suddenly and made a little rush towards the ball-room.

"It's too good to waste by myself," she said breathlessly. "I shall have to go and make it up with Johnny Blair, after all!" And she was gone.

Biddy rose to her feet with a sigh of relief. She liked Dolly Benson as a rule, but tonight she had found her a little overpowering.

"Lips that once were mine;
Tender eyes that shine—
They will light my way tonight;
I'll see you in my dreams!"

The words were echoing in the Little Flapper's mind as she crossed the hall to where George Paget stood alone, at the entrance to the ball-room.

She slipped a hand through his arm, vaguely conscious that perhaps he felt as restless and apprehensive as she did.

"Where's Marna?" she began, then stopped, as across the ball-room she saw Marna dancing at last with Hugh Hubbard.

It is possible to reach a point of happiness too great for expression, too wonderful for mere words, and it seemed to Marna that she had reached that point when Hugh Hubbard put his arm round her and drew her into the throng of dancers.

It was like a dream—a dream that her hand rested once more on his shoulder; a dream that his arm enfolded her.

She looked round the crowded room with dazed eyes. They were nearly all young people present, nearly all boys and girls who had come to the Little Flapper's birthday dance, and yet Marna felt that tonight she was younger than any of them. There could be no girl present with a heart so light and brimming over with happiness as her own—no girl with such a feeling of utter contentment and a sense of every desire fulfilled. The man she loved was with her again; It was his hand which held hers, his shoulder against which her trembling fingers lay.

Once she bent her head and lightly brushed his coat with her cheeks; once she looked up, and for the first time that evening met the deep, silent contentment of his eyes.

So many things came clamoring to her lips. She wanted to tell him how much she loved him; she wanted to say how terrible the long years had been without him; she wanted to say that she would never be able to let him go again, and yet the only words she could form were so banal, so ordinary—words to which anyone might have listened.

"They all seem to be enjoying the dance, don't you think?"

"I am sure they are."

"I am glad you were able to be here."

"I am glad, too."

"Don't you think Biddy is going to be very pretty?"

"Very pretty."

And then, without any will of her own, at last something more poignant and intimate.

"Now you are home again, it does not seem possible you have been away five years."

She felt his arm tighten around her as he answered:

"Last night if anyone had told me it was fifty years I should not have been surprised."

The blood rushed to Marna's face, and her lips trembled. For a moment she felt almost resentful that he had disturbed her perfect contentment. It was as if he had gently touched an uncovered nerve, giving her exquisite pain. She had wanted to be left in peace for a little; she had not yet wanted to be forced out into the sea of passion which lay between them, and which she knew must some day either sweep them together from their feet or leave her to drown alone.

Hubbard felt her shiver in the clasp of his arm as he bent his head to catch her whispered words:

"Don't, Hugh—oh, don't!"

They did not speak again until the music stopped and a clamor of voices and applause broke out deafeningly; then Marna laughed and looked up into Hubbard's face.

"I don't feel a day more than seventeen tonight," she said breathlessly.

"Don't you, my dear?"

He spoke without looking at her, but the tenderness of his voice was like a kiss laid upon her lips, and for a moment she closed her eyes, and her heart seemed to swoon with happiness. Then the band started again, and Hubbard asked:

"Shall we go on?" But Marna shook her head.

"No, I think I'm tired. Besides, I mustn't be greedy. There are so many girls for you to dance with, Hugh."

Together they made their way down the long room towards the doorway where the Little Flapper stood with George Paget, and then, as she met her husband's proud, smiling eyes, Marna's happiness suddenly died.

The dread ul feeling came to her that even as Paget's broad shoulders barred the doorway of the life that led to freedom and the one thing she desired.

Those kindly, smiling eyes were the eyes of her goaler; the expensive frock she wore, her diamonds and the luxurious house were fetters binding her to him for ever and ever.

Hardly knowing what she did, she laid her hand on Hubbard's arm, drawing him to a standstill. She knew now that her uplifted sense of perfect happiness and contentment was but a sham. It was as if she had drawn a veil over a dead face, for a little while trying to cheat herself into the belief that its eye were only closed in sleep, and would waken again.

Tonight for a few hours she might pretend to be happy, but there was tomorrow to be faced, and all the to-morrows, and no one could tell her what they held in store what fresh misery and loneliness and heartbreak.

"Let us dance again. I want to go on dancing with you," she said, and there was a little note of fear in her voice.

But presently, when George Paget moved away from the doorway, her sense of panic died down, and the iron band of suffocation that had bound her heart snapped, allowing her to breathe more freely, and she looked at Hubbard with wavering apology.

"We will stop now, if you like."

"Are you tired?"

"No, but I'm thirsty, and I know there is iced champagne."

"Iced champagne will keep. We will finish the dance."

The band had broken once more into the Big Flapper's favorite foxtrot, and the young people had eagerly taken up the chorus:

"I'll see you in my dreams;
Hold you in my dreams.
Someone took you out of my arms—"

"Do you hear those words, Marna?" Hubbard asked.

"Yes."

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MISTELTOE

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

After Uncle Wiggily had made all the Christmas holly wreaths he needed to decorate his hollow stump bungalow his wife said to him one day:

"Hadn't you better go out now and see if you can find some mistletoe? It will hardly seem like Christmas next week unless we have some mistletoe as well as the holly."

"I'll go right away," said Mr. Longears.

"What's the matter with Uncle Wiggily's toe?" asked Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit who hopped into the room just in time to hear the last of what was being said.

"My toe is all right," said the bunny uncle. "I am going out after mistletoe, Bunty. Do you want to hop along with me?"

"Oh, I'd love to, Unkie Wig!" she exclaimed. "But what is mistletoe? is it something good to eat?"

"Birds eat the white berries that grow on the mistletoe plant," said Mr. Longears, "but we rabbits don't like it as the berries are so full of seeds."

"Oh, then mistletoe is a plant!" exclaimed Bunty. "Is it like holly?"

"Well," spoke the rabbit gentleman as he twinkled his pink nose, "holly has red berries and green leaves and mistletoe has white berries and green leaves, so in that they are alike. But the mistletoe is quite different for it doesn't grow up out of the ground like the strong holly bush. The mistletoe grows on apple and other trees. Its roots don't go into the earth at all."

"Why, how funny!" exclaimed Bunty. "I should like to see some mistletoe growing out of another tree instead of out of the earth."

"Come on, then," invited Mr. Longears to the little orphan rabbit. "I'll see if I can show you some mistletoe. We ought to have some for Christmas."

So he and Bunty hopped to the woods and on the way the bunny uncle told how birds, eating the mistletoe berries, carried the seeds of them on their beaks for the juice of the mistletoe berries is sticky.

"Then, after eating the berries, the birds, perch on a tree," said Mr. Longears, "and wipe their beaks against the bark to clean off the sticky seeds. In this way the seeds get into cracks of the bark and then, in a year, after they have been warmed by the sun and wet by the rain, the seeds sprout and take root under the bark of the tree. From then on the mistletoe lives on the tree instead of in the earth."

When they were deeper in the woods Mr. Longears showed Bunty where on a wild apple tree, and also on a poplar and willow, the mistletoe bushes were growing out of the bark of the trunk. There were many of the strange plants and the rabbits saw that they could gather enough for many bunches to hang in the bungalow.

But all of a sudden, when Bunty was going to break off a branch of the strange plant that grows out of trees, she stopped and whispered:

"Unkie Wig, I hear a noise!"

"What sort of a noise?" asked the rabbit. "Is it the wind blowing?"

"No, it isn't the wind," answered Bunty. "It's like somebody walking in dried leaves and they're coming this way and maybe it's one of the Bad Chaps. Oh, Unkie Wig!"

"You're right, Bunty! It is a Bad Chap—the worst of them all—the Wolf!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "But don't be afraid. This mistletoe bush grows so thickly out of the old apple tree that we can climb upno it and hide until the Wolf goes past."

As quickly as they could the two rabbits climbed up into the mistletoe bush and hid amid the leaves. Then along came the Wolf. He did not see the hidden bunnies, but he sniffed and growled:

"I smell rabbits! Two rabbits! A little one and a big one!"

"Oh, dear me!" thought Bunty and she began to shiver and shake.

And as she shivered and shook a lot of the white mistletoe berries filled with seeds rattled down and pelted the wolf on his head and back and nose. And when the Bad Chap felt the berries rattling down on his head he wagged his tail and growled:

"Dear me! It's beginning to hail! Soon it will snow! I'd better run to my den before I get caught in the storm. I guess those rabbits are away off in the woods now, anyhow!"

So, never looking up to where Uncle Wiggily and Bunty were perched in the trailing vine and bush over his head the Wolf went away. Then the two bunnies climbed down, gathered the mistletoe and hurried safely to the bungalow where the Christmas decorations were hung all about.

So this teaches us that mistletoe is good for something else than playing kissing games. And if the egg beater doesn't take all the ink out of the fountain pen, to make a bath for the goldfish I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Christmas horn.

TWO CHARGES MAY BE LAID

Supreme Court Judgment Will Have Great Effect on Motor Cases.

APPEAL DISMISSED

TORONTO, Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Doubt that has existed for years as to the right of the Crown to join a manslaughter charge with lesser counts in one court case has been dispelled by the judgement returned by the Supreme Court at Ottawa recently, in Rex vs. Barton, appeal, Attorney-General Price believes.

Mr. Price said that he believed that this clarification of the law would have a great effect on motorist cases in the future. Over the past ten years, from fifty to sixty persons have been acquitted of manslaughter charges when they probably would have been found guilty of criminal negligence had the Crown been able to lay the two charges jointly, he said.

The Attorney-General was represented in the Barton appeal. The appeal was dismissed and the original judgement that the Crown was entitled to lay counts jointly was thereby upheld.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

There is a strong adverse influence today, according to astrology, which reads in the stars certain sinister signs.

Under this planetary government the early bird will be sadly disappointed and it will be wise to delay important matters until well after 9 a.m.

It is well to pay special attention to the health today for epidemics of colds and other ills due to exposure to bad weather will be more prevalent than usual.

The stars are unfavorable to financial deals today and it will be well not to sign mortgages or take on money responsibility under this direction of the planets.

It is an inauspicious time to seek persons of influence or to ask that promises be fulfilled. It is especially unlucky for those who expect political rewards.

There is a forbidding aspect for the signing of contracts, even those relating to theatrical engagements.

Under this sway it is well to avoid giving way to nervousness or irritability. There may be a tendency to haste and feverish activity.

Danger of accidents is supposed to be accented during this rule of the stars. Vocational injuries increase under this direction of the planets.

There is a tendency toward sharp contention while this configuration prevails. This may be strongly evident among the people who differ regarding public policies.

The day is supposed to be unfortunate for domestic peace and to be likely to encourage quarrels.

Flirtations and divorces become even more numerous while this planetary government continues.

Women today will benefit through shopping or by preparing for holiday entertainment.

Persons whose birthdate it is should cultivate frankness and directness in the coming year which will bring romantic problems to the young.

Children born on this day may be exceedingly temperamental and difficult to direct. They should be educated with equal attention to mind and physique.

During the five months from April 1 to August 31, 1928, motor and other vehicles to the number of 1,092,829 passed over the ePace Bridge, between Buffalo, N.Y., and Port Erie, Ont.

Wheat Averages Lower, Corn Market Easier

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—With the Canadian wheat visible supply to-day showing a further increase of 15,313,000 bushels, wheat prices here averaged a little lower in the early dealings. Bearish estimates of Argentine wheat production were also at hand. Opening unchanged to 3-8c lower, Chicago wheat afterward held near to the initial figures. Corn and oats were also easier, with corn starting 1-8c off, to 1-8c up, and subsequently undergoing a moderate general sag. Provisions tilted upward.

Toronto Prices Firmer In Active Trading

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Prices held a stronger tone throughout the morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange, some issues gaining as high as 6⅛ points, while there were no serious losses recorded. Trading was active and was divided generally throughout the list.

Westons provided the thrill of the session, leaping from 92 to 97, but dropped at noon to 96¼ for a net gain over yesterday of 6⅛ points. International Nickel New, still a favorite issue, established a new high record by touching 42¼ but recided to 41 7-8, unchanged. Hiram Walkers was in demand and gained 3⅛ points to 73⅜. Canada Cement Preferred was the heaviest loser, dropping 4½ to 94½, while Bell Telephone registered a 1⅛ loss at 164⅛.

Firm Undertone Prevails, Dull Session At New York

NEW YORK, December 18, Canadian Press. — The stock market displayed a strong undertone to-day in one of the dullest sessions since last summer. With widespread predictions of another 'money squeeze' before the end of the year, several of the large traders have practically suspended operations for the time being. Most of the leading commission houses also continue to urge caution in the making of new commitments at this time.

News generally is favorable. The copper industry is again talking of 17c copper in the near future. Call money renewed at 7 per cent, and dropped to 6, delaying the expected stiffenings at least another day, but time money continues firm at the highest levels in several years.

Mail order and merchandising shares were buoyant in anticipation of record-breaking holiday trade. National Bellas-Hess ran up ten points to a new high at 184 7-8. Montgomery Ward climbed 9 1-2 points, Sears Roebuck 5, and a number of others moved up 2 to 4 points. Coppers also extended their early gains, American Smelting selling 5 1-4 points higher, Greene Cananea Copper 4 3-4, and Home Sound 3 3-4.

The long awaited pre-automobile show bullish demonstration in the automotive shares also developed with Packard, Timkin Roller Bearing and Electro Auto Lite marked up gains of 3 points or more, and Chrysler 2 3-4. Pierce Arrow common touched a new top at 27 3-4. Columbia Carbon was bid up more than 6 points to a new high at 117. Other stocks to move into new high ground included Federal Light and Traction and Granby Copper. National Tea jumped 23 points, Dupont 7 3-8, A. M. Byers 6 1-2; Texas and Pacific 6, Wright Aeronautical 5 1-4; Western Union and National Biscuit 5 each, and Allied chemical and Bush Terminal 4 each.

Case Threshing, off 5, was one of the few soft spots.

Issues Make Slight Declines On Standard

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—A tone of firmness continued on the Standard Mining Exchange throughout to-day. Toward noon the market reacted and numerous issues were sent for minor declines. Noranda began to look itself again and kept above the closing of yesterday, dropping once to 58.75, but regaining its standings to close at noon at 59.25, a net gain of 25 cents.

McIntyre Mines recovered and gained 20 cents to 20.00, as did Nipissing to 3.75. Sudbury Basin was up 15 cents at 7.25, Lake Shore 15 at 16.65 and Hollinger Consolidated 10 at 8.40. ONTARIO COMMISSION ENTERS INTO A WORKING AGREEMENT WITH NEW YORK STATE BOARD

Canadian Body Recently Severed Connections With National Boxing Association.

DISPUTE OVER PRESIDENCY.

Agreement Calls For Mutual Recognition of Contracts, Fines and Suspensions.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The New York State Athletic Commission to-day entered into a working agreement with the Ontario Athletic Commission represented by Thomas A. Murphy.

The Ontario commission withdrew from the National Boxing Association, following the convention of the N. B. A. at Toronto, when Murphy was not permitted to become a candidate for president.

The N. B. A. took the position that although the Canadian Federation was affiliated with it, it was a United States organization, and under the by-laws a Canadian could not be eligible for the presidency. Paul Prehn, Chicago, was elected president.

Recognition of Contracts.

The agreement between New York and Ontario bodies provides for mutual recognition of contracts filed with the respective commissions and a 30-day written notice of intent to withdraw from the agreement. Each commission will conduct its own affairs and reserve the right of review, but contracts, fines and suspensions will be recognized.

ANTI-SMUGGLING CONFERENCE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18.—(By the Canadian Press).—No decision has yet been reached as to the date of the conference between Canada and the United States on the anti-smuggling treaty. If the suggestion of the Canadian authorities is adopted, the conference will take place during the first half of January. The personnel of the Canadian delegates to the conference has not yet been determined, nor has the exact nature of the conference been decided. If it to be a conference of departmental officials, representatives of those departments primarily interested will naturally be selected. Since the United States delegates will probably request Canada to refuse clearance to liquor cargoes destined for the United States, the Department of National Revenue will be among those interested.

CAVAN AND SOUTH MONAGHAN FARMERS' SHIPPING BOARD HOLDS ANNUAL OYSTER SUPPER

Reports Read of Business Transacted During the Past Year.

SPECIAL SPEAKER

Charles McCurdy Tells Gathering Farmers Want Open Market.

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Cavan and South Monaghan United Farmers' Shipping Board held its annual oyster supper on Thursday evening.

Charles McCurdy, manager of the United Farmers' Livestock Department of Toronto, with Bob. Morrison who is a son of the United Farmers' Secretary J. J. Morrison, were the speakers of the evening.

The president of the shipping board, Fred Wood, presided for the program, which took place in the U.F.O. hall, the crowd having wended their way to the hall following the supper in the Presbyterian Sunday school hall.

The chairman gave an excellent report of the past year's business transacted in the local shipping department. There were 226 cattle shipped in 1928; 221 calves; 455 sheep; 1,012 hogs. The total receipts amounted to $46,080.55, while the balance on hand is $297.08. The chairman stated these figures show a decided increase in the volume of business transacted over the previous year.

Fred Barnard then gave a report of the annual United Farmers convention in Toronto last week, at which he was a delegate.

During the program, solos given by M. Bradshaw were much enjoyed, also numbers played by Morncrief's orchestra.

Farmers Want Open Market

Mr. McCurdy's address was a very full one, dealing thoroughly with the live stock shipping department. The speaker stated that if the farmers movement had done nothing more it had brought the rural people together in sociable times. The farmer is not asking an outrageous thing; he is simply asking to have his produce placed upon an open market and get away from shipping directly in to the manufacturer's hands. Mr. McCurdy stated he did not have a complaint with his position. He was satisfied with his office, satisfied with the results of the past year's business, and considered the advancement in this department very encouraging, and last but not least, he considered his salary very liberal and sufficient.

"The live stock department entirely belongs to the united farmers, and we, as salesmen, are there as your servants and we are anxious to serve you. We enjoy having you farmers talk of us as your men; we want you to come to Toronto and visit your own office and plant, where more than $11,000,000 was the business turnover last year. We, as farmers united, stand for unity, cooperation. We desire market value for our products and we desire to stop competition over the article we produce.

In the eyes of the world the united farmers' movement amounts to a great deal."

The speaker stated the flier travelling between Drayton and Toronto was never known to stop but once and then it stopped to pick up J. J. Morrison who could not get another train out of Drayton that night and because he was the Secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario the conductor gave consent for the train to stop for him.

Bright Future Ahead

"I do believe," stated Mr. McCurdy "that there is a bright future ahead for livestock breeders. Cattle are scare in Canada and United States and there is no reason why cattle prices should not hold firm. So far as the hog market is concerned we must get control of more hogs in order to control the prices. Mr. McCurdy urged the farmers of Cavan and South Monaghan to take great pains in finishing their stock properly before shipping. I believe if the farmers would raise one half the stock and feed them better it would mean mone money in the farmers' pockets." He also stressed the point of the need in de-horning cattle previous to being shipped.

Bob Morrison, a salesman in the livestock department, then addressed the audience a few well chosen statements. He stated the farmers in the past had paid too much attention to production and not enough to the sales, but the present showed a vast change in the ambitions of the Ontario farmers. He urged the farmers of the district to ship their live stock co-operatevely and get all the market offered for them.

At the conclusion of the supper the Moncrief orchestra furnished music for dancing and a most enjoyable evening was indulged in by all present.

INDIA REVOLT IS MERE RAID

Says Report From Kabul To Afghan Legation To-day.

FOREIGNERS SAFE.

LONDON, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The Afghan Legation to-day stated that it had received information from Kabul denying reports received in India yesterday that King Amanullah and Queen Souriya had taken refuge in a port after a revolt in the army.

The Legation declared that the King and Queen were residing at their palace as usual, and that all foreign legations and foreign subjects were absolutely safe.

No revolt took place in the Afghan army, the Legation stated, adding that the basis of the reports appeared to have been in a series of minor incidents on December 16, caused by a raid of a brigand chief on one of the suburbs of Kabul.

HEALTH HOUSES ARE DESCRIBED

Delegate Gives Report on Institute Convention in Belleville.

SEND CHRISTMAS CHEER

(Examiner Correspondence).

FENELLA, Dec. 18.—At the December meeting of the Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. M. Adams, Mrs. Harrison George, delegate to the Women's Institute Convention in Belleville, gave a splendid report of the convention. One of the interestfng things she told of, was the two miniature health houses on display on the platform, made by Miss Nina Black, of Castleton. The health house was built of things to eat—the roof was made of graham wafers, the chimney a tiny bottle of milk, the steps of cheese and set on a lawn of spinach. In one corner was a baked apple table, a set of carrot chairs and a bread tent. A brown bread boat with canvas of white bread and masts of raisins and sailing in a mirror seas was also shown and a gravel walk of beans led away from the house. The danger house was built of things we should not eat. It was a tiny brown bungalow with a roof of fried potatoes, the chimney of chocolate, the outside being covered with black tea for a finish. The verandah had steps and pillars of pickles, jelly beans and candy were set around on the lawn. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. George for her very interesting report.

Christmas Cheer.

At this meeting it was decided that the members send boxes of Christmas cheer to Miss Gerin, an invalid in the community, and to Mr. G. Smith. A letter was read from one family losing their home by fire, and thanking the Institute for a donation of quilts, fruit and pickles. The secretary was instructed to pay the bill of $48.75 to Ernest Down, caretaker of Bethany Cemetery, and the bill for delegate's expenses to Belleville Women's Institute convention at Belleville.

After some discussion it was decided that the sign boards in the village erected by the Women's Institute be taken in during the winter months.

Interesting Paper.

Mrs. Ray Petty gave a paper that was very much enjoyed on "Keeping the Christmas Spirit Alive During the Year." She said: "This is a very big topic; too big, I am afraid, for me to do it justice. It is big enough for a sermon, but these are some of the thoughts it suggested to me. What is the Christmas spirit? Some may say happiness, joy, contentment, but I think it is bigger than these. It is the spirit of Christ and Christ is love. When Moses gave us the ten commandments they read, 'Thou shalt do this, thou shalt not do that, and very stern they sound, but Christ said, 'A new commandment give I unto you, that ye love one another,' and if we obey that commandment, we cannot break those that Moses gave us. Christmas is a time of good cheer, festival, and gift-giving and has been since Christ was born. God Himself gave the greatest gift to the world that we all might have eternal life, and so we celebrate this season by giving gifts, but let us not in the giving and getting of gifts forget the great gift of God. Many refuse to accept it, but God's gift to the world is not for the Christmas season alone, it is for the whole year, and we should strive to keep the spirit of love alive to our families and our neighbors not just during the Christmas season but during the year. Much is being said these days about keeping peace in the world, but the responsibility does not rest upon the heads of government, but upon each individual family. If there is only peace and love in your home and in my home, then there is peace in the nation, because a nation is made up of homes. Coming back to the home, it is to the mothers we look to teach to the other members the spirit of love. Fathers can help, and many do, but owing to their work, they haven't the chance that we mothers have, and may we all work hard to measure up to the great privilege and responsibility that is ours, to teach and practice to our children the great commandment, 'love one another' and by so doing do our bit to bring peace to the world, for on that night nearly two thousand years ago, this was the message the angels gave, 'Peace on earth, goodwill to men'."

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Isaac, Mrs. Talling and Mrs. A. Nill were asked to judge a display of inexpensive Christmas gifts. The prize went to Mrs. M. Adams for a pair of hand-made pillow cases, although the judges found it hard to make a decision, so many beautiful gifts were on display, all of them deserving of a prize.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank George entertained a number of their friends at cards and dancing on Wednesday night last.

At the meeting of the Women's Institute held on Saturday evening, Miss Valetta Drain gave her report on the opening, the address of welcome by Major McBride, the junior girls' work, Major Hallam's talk and exhibit and the banquet at the Women's Institute Convention held in Toronto. Mrs. Miller gave her report on the other lectures.

It was decided to accept Miss Alexander just whenever Mr. Putnam could send her. While the meeting was in progress, the secretary received word that Mr. Putnam had found another change necessary and the date for Miss Alexander's visit is now to be in the latter part of January, probably a week later than the first announcement. The exact date will be announced later and the meetings will be held in the Town Hall. There is no set charge but those who are not members of the Institute must pay a membership fee of 25 cents which carries their membership to June 1, 1929. Any expenses will be borne by the class.

Dr. Munro has kindly promised to give an address at an open meeting of the Institute held in Warsaw Town Hall on Thursday evening, January 10. There will be refreshments and a program. Mrs. Vivian Jackson and Mrs. Rufus Payne are on the program committee and the executive has charge of the lunch.

The February meeting promises to be interesting as some of the results of the Historical Research Committee, consisting of Mrs. J. A. Crowe, Mrs. Lawrence McCracken and Mrs. William Dumford will be given. As so many of the Institute members are descendents of the early settlers, it was suggested that more than the allotted time might be taken up. Miss Mary Rose, assistant secretary, took her place for the first time at this meeting.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Adamson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe.

Among those who attended the Field Day at the C.P.C. plant on Friday were, Messrs. T. H. Crowe, Gerald Crowe, Wallace Anderson, David Miller, K. Mourdian, Ernest MacDonald, Ray Moore, James Moore and David Forsythe.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomach. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

WAR EXHAUSTS LEAGUE FUNDS

Cost of Cabling Official Documents Exceeds Estimate By $20,000.

SPECIAL APPROPRIATION.

GENEVA, Dec. 18. — (Canadian Press).—The dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia has given the treasury of the League of Nations a hard jolt. When all bills for the recent cabling of official documents to all members of the League and to non-members states in the Western Hemisphere had been totalled up today, it was found that the cost was $26,000 instead of $6,000 which had been previously estimated as the total.

The cost exceeded anything previous of that character by more than $20,000. The League has a special fund for emergency expenditures of this nature but Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general, will be obligded to ask the next assembly for a special appropriation to fill the treasury hole caused by the big scale cabling on the South American crisis.

CHILDREN ENJOY ANNUAL CONCERT

St. Paul's Sunday School Holds Annual Supper and Christmas Tree.

St. Paul's Church Sunday school held its annual annual Christmas entertainment last night. At six o'clock the children gathered in the Sunday School hall, and were entertained to tea. The tables were attractively decorated in a decided Christmassy fashion, and the children did justice to the dainties and good things provided for them.

After this part of the entertainment the children adjourned to the main auditorium of the church, where a splendid concert had been arranged by the teachers of the Sunday school. The church was decorated with two lovely Christmas trees.

Parents and friends received an invitation to this and the children were fully rewarded for their efforts in the large and appreciative audience that attended.

O. M. Steer, superintendent of the Sunday school, was in the chair and before proceeding with the program, voiced his own and the other teachers' appreciation of the learge number present, which showed that parents took great intarest in the work of the Sunday School.

The program was varied and interesting and the numbers well received —many having to respond to encores.

The closing act of the program was the appearance of Santa Claus to the great delight of all the little folks. He brought with him two barrels—one containing oranges and the other candies, and these he liberally handed out to the children.

The following was the program.

Recitation, Norah Scully; piano duet, Marian Jaquith, Mary Sullivan; reading, Phyllis Watson; banjo selection, Mr. Clarke; a Christmas number, Miss Pattison's class; piano solo, Pearl Smith; reading, Mary Terrace; organ selection, Mr. Chenhall; chorus, by Junior Department(under direction of Mrs. T. PIANO RECITAL MUCH ENJOYED

Miss Pearl Carruthers Assists With Several Vocal Numbers.

WELL ATTENDED.

A well-attended and much enjoyed recital by piano pupils of Mrs. Ethel Tully Heard was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs M. Lowry, 209 London street, Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. J. E. Patte acting as hostesses. Miss Pearl Carruthers assisted with several beautifully-rendered vocal numbers.

The pupils acquitted themselves splendidly, evidencing a very fine training by Mrs. Heard and attention to direction on their own part. Especially good numbers were those of Miss Isabel Findlay, who is the holder of certificates for first-class honors in primary and elementary piano and also in theory, of the London College of Music; also Miss Grace Griffin and Sam Patte, who deserve great credit for their fine memorizing of musical numbers. Little Ardyth Richardson, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Richardson, was also heartily applauded for her excellent playing from memory.

The program was as follows: Piano solo, "Valsette," by Master Harry Walsh; duet, Bellak's "Folk Song," by Master Harry Vass and Mrs. Heard; piano solo, "Melody of Love," by Miss Winnifred Francis; piano solo, "Tulips and White Rose," by Miss Grace Griffin; piano solo, "Red Rose," by Miss Geraldine O'Reilly; duet, "King of the Forest," by Miss G. O'Reilly and Mrs. Heard; piano solos, "Columbine" and "Violet," by Miss Marguerite Griffin; piano solos, "List to the Convent Bells" and "Rose Princess Waltz," by Miss Teresa Gallegher; duet, "Sunflower Dance," by Miss S. Walsh and Mrs. Heard; piano solo, "Hungarian Dance," by Master Sam Patte; piano solos, "Bluebeard" and "Fairies Everywhere," by Miss Marguerite Craig; piano solos, "Polka" and "Intrata" by Bach, by Miss Ardyth Richardson; duet, "Tock-Ling," by Miss Ardyth Richardson and Mrs. Heard; piano solo, Handel's "Largo," by Miss Berenice Madden; duet, "March Religieuse," and "Troops on Parade," by Miss B. Madden and Mrs. Heard; piano solo, "Babbling Brooklet," by Miss Isobel Findlay.

Miss Pearl Carruthers, in sweet voice, sang "Smilin' Through" and "Sonny Boy."

EIGHTY MILLION BUSHELS OF WHEAT AVAILABLE FOR EXPORT

Large Portion of This Year's Crop Moved East of Fort William.

GRAIN ON LAKE VESSELS.

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—A larger proportion of this year's crop has been moved east of Fort William than in any crop year in the history of the grain trade. According to figures available there are, at the close of Lake navigation no less than eighty million bushels of wheat in positions available for export during the winter at Canadian and United States ports.

This does not include about 8,500,000 bushels on board vessels in the harbors at the head of the Lakes. Owing to the small size of many of the boats which are laid up here for storage, the orginial estimate of 10,000,000 bushels has been revised downward, and to-day the estimate of tonnage here will permit 8,400,000 bushels to be placed in vessels by the time the whole fleet is loaded. This is about 1,250,000 bushels more than was afloat in winter storage last winter.

In the harbors east of Port William there are now in winter storage, on vessels which went down this fall, about 50,000,000 bushels of all grains.

DRAMATIST'S RUSE FAILS.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 19. (Canadian Press).—Eugene O'Neill, American dramatist, who last week sent a letter to a nerve specialist, who had been attending him, stating that he was leaving Shanghai immediately, was still in his hotel to-day, and it was learned that he had never left Shanghai as had been supposed. The letter that O'Neill wrote to Alexander Renner, Austrian nerve specialist, was a ruse intended to throw interested persons off the dramatist's trail.

KING IS FORCED TO SEEK REFUGE

Army Turns Against King and Queen of Afghanistan, Forcing Them to Flee.

OPPOSE REFORMS.

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press)—Reports from the frontier state that King Amanullah of Afghanistan and Queen Souriya have taken refuge in a fort, the army having turned against them.

While reports of disturbances in the remoter sections of Afghanistan have been reported recently, yesterday's advices were the first indicating that the disaffection had spread to Kabul, the capital, a city of about 100,000 population.

The trouble at Kabul was attributed to the King's drastic Westernization reforms and to Queen Souriya's desire to abolish Purdah, or the seclusion of women.

No letters have been exchanged between Kabul and India for the past month, but the telegraph lines are still working.

Britain Not Worrying

LONDON, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press) —British official circles to-day said that the situation in Kabul was "serious," but that they were not aware of the exact nature of it. There was no likelihood of Great Britain taking any action in Afghanistan.

It was pointed out that disturbances on the other side of the Indian frontier would naturally affect restless tribes in Northwest Indian. But it was also emphasized that Great Britain had no interest whatever in the internal affairs of Afghanistan.

Whether the Afghans wear silk hats or fezzes, tribal robes, pyjamas or morning coats, makes no difference to the British administration in India so long as the trouble is confined to the other side of the Khyber Pass.

It was believed by some that he might possibly contest another office. Interviewed yesterday along this line, the Mayor would not say anything for publication. His mind was not yet made up on the matter, he said.

Deputy-Reeve Davidson will seek the Mayoralty for the coming year. As nearly as can be learned, none of the Council of the present year will oppose him. But it has been hinted that the office will not be filled by acclamation. Reeve Bygott will state his intentions upon his return to Campbellford from the Counties Council session. Interviewed yesterday, he said there was no definite reason why he should not be a candidate for Reeve, but would not say that his intentions were such.

Not Run for Council.

J. N. Stone was inclined to be a little indefinite. He was firm on one point only, that he was either going up or out. He intended to be a candidate for Deputy-Reeve, but had heard rumors that J. M. Bygott would not be in the running, and if that were the case, he might consider being a candidate for the Reeve's chair. He would not run again for Council, he said. Since coming to reside in Campbellford, he has held municipal offices for eight years. Of these years, he had been three times Deputy-Reeve. At the elections last year, J. N. Stone headed the polls as councillor.

It has been rumored that W. S. Wiggins will be a candidate for Deputy-Reeve. W. J. Abernethy was not yet sure whether or not he would have his hat in the ring. He has been five years on the Council, but was not at all certain that he would run again. If he should decide to contest a seat, it would be for the Council and not for any of the other offices. R. H. Cole was similarly situated. He has been eight years on the Council, and while he felt that he would probably be a candidate when the time came, he would not say whether he would come out for Deputy-Reeve or for another term as councillor.

J. R. Wilkinson, who has served several terms as a member of the Municipal Council, and also as Deputy-Reeve, has announced his intention of being a candidate for the office of Deputy-Reeve for 1929. J. J. O'Sullivan will be a candidate for the fourth term as councillor. Councillor O'Sullivan has established a reputation for sticking to his guns, and has been instrumental in carrying to completion several projects which he believed to be in the interest of the community. Charles K. Stephens and Charles Palliser were named as possible candidates for the Council, but both stated decisively that they would not be candidates for any municipal offices whatsoever.

LEGION ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

he consented to carry on until the end of February.

Officers Elected

Scrutineers, who were not called upon to act since all officers were elected by acclamation, were W. J. Swanger and A. Morley.

President-elect Heron was proposed by Comrades Long and Cutmore; First Vice-President-elect Sutton, by Comrades Cole and Gant; Second Vice-President Everett, by Comrades Gant and Cole; members-elect of the executive: Rev. P. Costello by Comrades Cole and Dunslow; J. A. Dewart, by Comrades Sutton and Mason; S. Whatley, by Comrades Heron and Costello; Auditors-elect: G. H. Cutmore, by Comrades Whatley and Waterman; N. E. Crowe, by Comrades Burroughs and Whatley.

The position of secretary will be filled by the executive.

Proposed by Comrade Whatley, a standing vote of thanks was accorded the retiring executive for its work during 1928, and in another vote of appreciation the treasurer was specially mentioned.

Town-Planning By-law

In consideration of a letter referring to the vote of returned soldiers deploring the proposal to erect a gasoline station on George Street opposite Confederation square, the following motion, sponsored by Comrades Sutton and Heron, was adopted by the meeting: "Whereas The members of Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion have had the opportunity of observing many cities in several countries, and especially the arrangement of public squares and public buildings, and whereas we are not convinced that the erection of gasoline stations, etc., facing Confederation square will not detract from the essential qualities of that square, be it therefore resolved that we petition the City Council that at the earliest possible opportunity steps be taken to investigate and adopt a general and comprehensive scheme of town planning, so that buildings to be erected shall always be suitable to their surroundings, and our city made thus constantly more attractive to business and pleasure visitors, and a constantly greater source of pride to its inhabitants."

"We have been, and we have seen," said Dr. Sutton in speaking to his motion, "and no other class of citizen is better able to judge the necessity of such a by-law. It is much overdue, and a comprehensive scheme of town planning should be adopted without delay."

NEW CHAPEL IS ERECTED

Gift is Made to Omemee Cemetery Board by Lady Eaton.

IN MEMORY OF PARENTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, December 17.—The Emily Cemetery, just east of the village, is fast growing to be a beauty spot, and just now, with its grove of sheltering pine trees and its fleecy blanket of snow, with wooded hills surrounding it, one is impressed with the silent beauty of it all. Added to this picture, a picturesque stone chapel, with massive oak doors, its stained glass windows and copper plumbing gleaming in the winter sunshine, and you will have a picture of a cemetery which the citizens of this community are justly proud. A massive entrance gateway has been erected near the west end of the cemetery, which with the beautiful little chapel, are the gifts of Lady Eaton in memory of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John McCrea, and other members of her family. The formal dedication service has not yet been held and will probably be left until spring.

Other improvements have also been made by the cemetery company. The fence has been moved, re-painted, and again erected south of the former driveway, thus allowing space for many additional lots. The former central gates have been placed at the east end thus giving two entrances. The bank along the new highway has been beautifully graded and sown with grass seen which with the coming of spring will add much to the appearance of "God's Acre."

CRIME WAVE HITS TORONTO

Police Seek Bandits, Cracksman and Shop Breaker For Escapades.

NOT MUCH TAKEN.

TORONTO, Dec. 17. —(Canadian Press).—Crime leaped to life over the week-end and as a result, police last night were seeking three bandits, who forced $35 from a Chinese restaurant keeper, a lone cracksman, who vainly attacked an east-end bakery safe, and a shopbreaker, whose agility netted him $10 in coppers and ten cigarette lighters in a College Street drug store.

DROWNS THROUGH ICE.

CHAPLEAU, Ont., December 17 (Canadian Press). — D. McConeghy, 38, of Dalton, Ont., employed by a local lumbering company, was drowned yesterday when he and a fellow-employee, Rene Marcotte, crashed through the ice while moving supplies by dog team to an improvement camp across the lake from Dalton.

Marcotte scrambled to safety and rushed back for assistance, but it was not until late yesterday that the body was located in deep water. He is survived by a wife and three children. Provincial police are investigating.

Was Bothered With Severe Headaches Is Not Troubled Now

Mrs. James Rossiter, Riverside, N.B., writes:—"I was bothered with severe headaches, for years, and tried many different medicines, but to no effect. One day a friend told me about and after I had taken three bottles I found it had done me a world of good. Now I don't know what a headache is like. I certainly have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters."

RADIO RIGHTS POLICY SOUGHT

Canadian Commission Has Not Yet Had Opportunity to Prepare Requests.

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadian Radio Commission can as yet take no action regarding the opposition shown by the United States Radio Commission to Canada's application for re-allocation of broadcasting rights, according to Sir John Aird, chairman of the Canadian Commission.

"The Canadian Commission has had too brief an existence to have been able to formulate any policy in this connection," he said. "We will not be able to deal with the matter for some time yet."

She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother, her husband George Perritt, three daughters, Mrs. Murray Spiers of Franklin; Mrs. Bert McCarrol, of Emily, and Mrs. Thomas Willan, of Fraserville and five sons, Ernie and Roy of Peterborough; William of Mount Pleasant; George and Burt, of Saskatchewan.

SOCIETY MEETS

Good Program Presented at Meeting of Springville-Fairmount Literary Society.

(Examiner Correspondence)

SPRINGVILLE, Dec. 18. — The weekly meeting of the Springville-Fairmount Literary Society was held on Friday evening with a good attendance.

Miss Helen Staples, chairman of the Society, presided. The treasurer, Lloyd Whittington, reported the balance of funds brought forward from last year to be $4.21. J. Grandy and W. Tully reported on the progress of the membership campaign. Mr. Grandy leads with 37 members while Mr. Tully follows closely with 26 members.

A splendid program of an impromptu nature was enjoyed consisting of a piano solo by Robert Rose, a speech by A. E. Sanderson and a number of humorous stories by Rev. A. H. McConnachie. An impromptu debate with eight debaters on each side created much amusement. The affirmative, "Resolved that present day fashions are more practical than the fashions of ancient days", were the winners.

Bowling and other games brought the social hour to a close.

Word was received by 'phone on Friday evening that the condition of Harvey Johnston is unchanged. He is still unconscious but the doctors are expecting full recovery.

"Just Thankful" Tells Hints Everyone Will Find Useful

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office

"Dear Marion:

Please give us more about Helen's Babies; that is grand.

Here is a hint that might help some young housewife if a fowl of any kind has been kept a little too long, perhaps bought a little too soon before Christmas or some holiday. Fill a dishpan half full of luke-warm water, put into it a tablespoon of mustard; put fowl in the water, and let it stand twenty or thirty minutes. Rinse well and all stale ordor will be gone.

Sometimes we get a piece of meat sent us from the butcher and on the outer part of it there is a stale odor that makes us wish we dare send it back; we just use the mustard wash for it, and save further trouble.

Another help when a doctor is not thought needed. In case of a burn on any part of the body have some raspberry leaves—just common red or black raspberry leaves—dried and put in a can. Rub some in the hand and lay on the burn. It takes out the fire and relieves the suffered at once.

Just Thankful."

City.

Yours are hints for which to be thankful, "Just Thankful," and we appreciate them a lot. I'm glad you liked Helen's Babies—the book is just grand. I don't know whether Mr. Dela Fosse has a copy at the library—if he has, you should get it to read.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I guess you will think me a very selfish person for I only write when I want a favor. I am writing now to ask for the Christmas help.

I received the helps for the wool flowers and slip some time ago and always intended to write: both are good. I think your page is wonderful. I wonder if it would be possible to start a similar one for the men. "Thinker" might edit such a page, since he is so clever. Again my motive is a selfish one. I want to be able to read your page in peace. My husband (man-like) will say, "Do put that old paper down. I don't know what you find to read in that."

Now, Marion, I am no scribe, and I think I have said enough for the first letter, so will close, with best wishes for yourself and all neighbors.

Yours sincerely,
Nancie."

City.

One might suggest your plan to "Thinker," and I believe that the Editor might consent. Such a page would be interesting, indeed.

Ask for all the helps you wish "Nancie." I'm glad to be of this service.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

Very many thinks for the baby bunting bag and for the description of Christmas gifts for which I asked, and for the Christmas entertainments which you so kindly added, and of which I can make good use, in helping others, if not ourselves, and which may be used at any time.

That free service of timely descriptions is a very great help surely to many.

Is not the snow beautiful? That is why I love the country—or one of the reasons. But behind that reason is the base of all reasons. I can see and hear and feel Nature, Great Mother Nature, as created by the hand of God. Man's inventions are wonderful, and we need them, enjoy them, and glory in them. A little verse I learned long ago, ran:

"Dig deep, for it is well to know
What wonders man hath done,
But dipping deeper soon will show,
New glories as we run."

Sincerely yours,
Quid Est."

I don't fancy the snow, "Quid Est," —in fact I think it is useful to poets but not so pleasant for ordinary mortals who have to bear the cold that goes with it. I had experiences, you see, on a farm some years ago that make me appreciative of a cosy fire on a winter night.

Thanks for your kind words.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

May I say a few words in regard to "Thinker"? Thank you. He is an awful flop, Marion, is he not? The way you can tell him where he gets off sure does amuse me, though he must feel like crawling away somewhere and hiding for evermore. Or do you suppose he would know enough to do that?

He evidently cannot stand to be bawled out, as it were. I notice he only wrote the one letter. He does not like the answers. Someone is always taking the joy out of life, so it might as well be him, I suppose. Do you know what he sounds like to me, Marion? Just a self-willed, indulged kid craving for attention, bound to get it one way or another. He surely does not talk like a man, for mercy sake, please do not mention "wife" or kiddies in connection with that creation of mankind. It is terrible to dwell on the idea of some dear, sweet girl having to give over her life to his keeping. Can you imagine anything more horrible than a young girl giving up a dear mother and father and family and friends to be his "slave," for that is all she would be, I guess, and it is ghastly to think of a little child calling him 'daddy,' and looking to him for sympathy and understanding. The poor baby would some short I am afraid. He'd get precious little good from a father of that man's calibre; what do you think, Marion?

Oh no, that man is not married, and he'd better stay that way. A woman is too good for him. He wants to buy himself a glass cage and crawl in and let the people see how marvelous he is. The monkey.

Whoever brought that boy up should be put in jail. They have a lot to do with those wild ideas, I'm afraid. He's been let have his own way because it was too much trolble coaching that same bird in the way he should go. If my kid brother, now seventeen, ever shows any signs of bullying mother or I, if mother and dad don't go at him I will, and I'll guarantee he'll not grow to write a letter such as "Thinker" did. And since I've read that impossible letter I go to sleep (only after God to deliver me from the hands of such a man with ideas like 'Thinker'). Poor Tillie the Toiler has more sense than 'Thinker.'

That bird needs soome good advice from somebody, but first of all I'd love to see him get a darn good thrashing. He needs it if anyone ever did, to knock some that that foolish conceit out of him. I'd love to be a man for just about five minutes and I'd love nothing better than to give it to him myself, and if I don't miss my guess, he'll get it from somebody yet. He is up too high on his horse; he'll be thrown badly yet; then he'll waken up and wonder what it's all about. I get so weary pounding an old typewriter all day, but I just have to think of 'Thinker' and I'm ready for any there is.

Keep up your good work, Marion. You're a wonderful woman,

Sincerely yours,
Rebecca."

City.

I'm sure, "Rebecca" that "Thinker" will steer clear of you in spite of your enchanting beauty—you know that's what your pen-name means. Write again when you've forgotten the man, and tell us about YOURSELF.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I have never written to you before, although I have wanted to quite often. Like many others, I think your page is the best ever. My husband seems quite interested, and says to tell you that all men are not of 'Thinker's' opinion. He says that without we women this good old world would soon go smash.

I must tell you of an incident which occurred in one of our Peterborough stores the other day, which should make 'Thinker' blush for one of his sex.

Two poorly-clad little laddies about ten or eleven were looking over the toys with longing in their eyes. 'Gosh,' said one, 'I wish I could sell enough papers or something to get that engine for my kid brother. I wonder if it's costin' much?' 'Well,' the other kiddie answered, 'ask that little fat man that's running round, he should know.' When the said little fat man' came near one little boy said, 'How must is that engine, Mr?' 'I don't know and don't you touch anything, either.' Icicles were on each word spoken. 'Would it be five dollars, Mr?' 'Just about that, now run on.'

With that he left the two little chaps standing there all disappointed.

I went over to them and on looking at the engine found it to be $1.75. The two little boys on being told this, trotted off quite content, planning how they could earn $1.75 if it snowed hard enough between now and Christmas so that they could shovel paths.

Now, Marion, why couldn't that 'little fat man' have been kind to those little future citizens, who wanted something, not for themselves, but the kid brother?

Now, does 'Thinker' imagine a woman would do anything like that? Not on your life, she wouldn't I hate to see those poor little tots looking with such longing in their dear little faces, knowing that the big cars are not for them but for some little chap whose daddy gets more money than theirs.

Well, Marion, I have taken up enough of your time, but I just had to tell you about that little tale of 'a little fat man.'

Yours sincerely,
Sonny Boy's Mother."

City.

I glad that you told us about this incident, "Sonny Boy's Mother," because it's a lesson we all need. I think Christmas is the kiddies' time, and we should make it has happy for them as we possibly can. Your letter is a timely hint.

At the same time, don't you think Christmas is a trying time for the employes in stores—and maybe your "little fat man" had been having trouble with inquisitive-fingered children all day.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I am sending in this week's coupon for some helps, and I must say that I enjoy your page very much. It has certainly made a difference in the paper.

Hoping to receive the helps soon. I will sign myself

Dorrie."

City.

Thanks for your kind opinion, "Dorrie."

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I am a reader of your splendid page and would be pleased to get the helps marked on the coupon, that is if there are any left, particularly the one for making Christmas gifts. Please find enclosed stamp for postage.

Yours truly,
Mrs. G. S. M."

City.

The helps have been sent you, "Mrs. G. S. M."

• • •

"Dear Marion:

This is the third time I have sent for your booklet of Christmas helps, but unfortunately my husband is one of those who likes to carry letters about with him two or three weeks until it dawns on him that they were to be posted. However, I will post this one myself and make sure of it. I must tell you how much I enjoy your page; it is certainly a big improvement to The Examiner and must say, "bully for you" the way you handed it out to "Thinker." I think he is the greatest egoist out. Here's hoping he pays up.

Mrs. A. B."

City.

The letter you posted yourself made the grade, "Mrs. A. B." and the helps were sent some time ago. I'm pleased to know you like the pages.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I am just a young fellow but have a word to say to Mr. 'Another Thinker,' who wrote a most disreputable letter in Saturday's paper.

I happened to notice the headline while turning the pages of our local paper and right now wish I could say something to him face to face. I'd change his mind in a hurry.

Now, 'Mr. Thinker,' I believe you are born a contemptible grouch and would make any woman wish she was a free 'Old Maid.' You speak of their dress and I might say that is none of your business, and if some fellow started down the main street in some new style, you would be the first to hop into the new style togs. If modern women were to 'obey' men like you, wouldn't they have a glorious time? Never!

Now, old top, think of what you owe to women—your mother, wife, sisters, etc., and mind your own business. Women won't go naked you know, for they still have some modesty, and maybe more than ever before. Of course, there are some classes that have not, but as aforesaid, that is their business.

I thank you, Marion, and although I do not read your column much, I shall watch for the Cave Man's reply (if he has one).

Sincerely,
Respect."

Thanks, "Respect" for your nice letter, and I can assure you I'm delighted to have a champion among the men! I don't think it will come to fisticuffs —I wouldn't be much use there; I admit. If "Another Thinker" challenges me, I'll refer him to you! There's another letter by him to be printed to-morrow.

"Dear Marion:

The letters of the new-comers to your page all seem to run along the same line—namely the expression of their appreciation for the hard labor it must cost you in preparing the Women's page. May I add mine too, please? We have tried many of the recipes and find them all excellent. My husband is a "real" cook and always feels grateful that I never keep him out of the kitchen. It wouldn't seem fair would it when he enjoys it so much?

I missed the coupon for the Christmas helps, could you send them without it? I am very fond of needlework and make all my gifts.

I am sorry to be begging first thing—will send some recipes later when I can get a few spare minutes.

Would very much like to have been in time for your Christmas story contest. Perhaps I may next time.

Yours,
Only Me."

City.

• • •

You are lucky to have a husband who is so interested in your work, "Only Me." He has an idea of your problems, and the extent of your activities—and believe me thWre are man husbands who HAVE NOT! I'll be looking forward to receiving those recipes.

"Dear Marion:

I am so sorry that one who is trying to do so much good as you are should receive such a nasty insulting letter from a second thinker. You think he must be a business man, but his business must surely be all he thinks about. He must be very unmannerly to intrude on a Woman's Page.

I am sure you must be a delightful Old Maid and a very sensible and domesticated one, by the way in which you conduct the two pages in The Examiner. Never mind, Marion, we are all behind you, and I am so glad you printed that horrible letter to show some of us women what SOME men are made of. Thank goodness they are not all like them.

Season's greetings to you, Marion,

Eve."

I don't mind a bit, "Eve" what men like "Another Thinker" say about me, because it brings them out in the open. I don't think there are many like him, but a few can do a lot of damage. Thanks for your good wishes—and please write again.

"Dear Marion:

Received your note yesterday and think your idea would be well worth trying. I would like to hear what the other neighbors think of it. I have received so many helps from your wonderful page that I would like to help a little, so am sending a recipe for Caramel Pudding, which one of the neighbors asked for.

Hoping she will like it, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. W. E. P."

Thanks a lot for the recipe, "Mrs. W. E. P." and for your kind words.

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy reading the Women's Page very much. It is one of the first if not the first thing I read when the paper arrives.

I am a poor hand at writing, but I thought I would write a few lines and congratulate you on your splendid work.

I think it is a very good idea to have poems of famous writers printed in The Examiner.

Sometime ago I noticed a request for pie paste. Here is one I consider very good:

1 cup lard
½ cup boiling water
Mix to a cream, sift into this mixture:
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
Set in a cool place over night.

Marg."

Thanks for your recipe for pie crust, "Marg." and for your appreciation.

An artificial flower corsage bouquet is the simple decoration. (2) This is a rose evening frock of brochate moire with a georgette slip, whose snug-fitting bodice tapers off into a multifold skirt. One Down, Two to Play

By FREDERICK HART

Marion Collins, all her friends ageed, was a thoroughly nice girl. They even added that she was one of the prettiest girls they knew. Thus far nothing but praise, but when the subject of golf came up they merely shook their heads and changed the subject. For, if the truth must be told, Marion was not a golf player. She had joined the Country Club with all the enthusiasms of her twenty-two years and bought a new and shiny set of clubs and many, many balls, but clubs and balls do not make a golfer. She was, as one of her friends put it, "as wild as mountain scenery." Her drives went almost anywhere except where she wanted them to go. Her approaches were never near the cup, and her putting was fearful and wonderful to behold. But in spite of all this Marion stuck at the royal and ancient game like a Trojan. If persistence could have accomplished it she would have been national champion.

The practice tee at the Country Club to which Marion belonged was well off the course, amply far to let the wildest duffer practice for all he was worth without unduly imperiling the lives and limbs of members who were playing, but the distance was not so great that—well, this is what happened.

"Ye ha'e a fine swing—a fine swing!" said Andrew MacAndrew, the professional, as he took Marion on for her daily instructions. "A bonnie, sweet swing—if ye'd ever hit the ba'!" Professionals are a privileged class. "Noo, try it again, an' this time keep yer e'e on the ba'; dinna look at the hole; time enough for that when ye're somewhere inside hittin' distance. Noo, slow back, dinna press, keep yer e'e on the ——"

Marion's pet driver described a flashing double arc; there was a puff of sand, a sharp click and the ball sped away—a low-flying ball, fast and true, with all the power of Marion's slim young arms behind it; but, horror of horrors! exactly at right angles with the intended course and with a vicious slice to help its misdirection. A wail of agony came from MacAndrew; it was the worst ball driven from the practice tee that year. Then his agony changed to consternation, for out from behind some low bushes on the tenth fairway, which was parallel to the practice tee, stepped a young man squarely into the path of the flying ball.

"Fore!" bellowed Andrew MacAndrew, and "Fore!" echoed Marion, but too late. The young man turned to dodge, but the ball struck him. He threw up his hands, spun half around and fell like a log.

Anyone who has ever been hit by a golf ball will substantiate the statement that it is no joke. There was real horror in Andrew MacAndrew's face as he ran toward the prostrate victim, and Marion was white with fear. The young man lay without moving.

"Oh, how can I ever apologize?" cried Marion. "I'm dreadfully sorry; I just couldn't help it—I'm going to stop golf forever!"

The young man struggled to a sitting posture.

"Please don't stop on my account," he begged earnestly. "Accidents will happen; there isn't a golfer living that's straight all the time."

"No," mourned Marion, "but there's one golfer living that's crooked all the time, and that's me! I'm going to stop the game."

The young man appeared interested. "If what you say is true I'm glad to have made your acquaintance," he said, "because I thought I was the only living person who was never on the course. Most people, you know, are straight sometimes. I never am. Isn't that true, Mr. MacAndrew?"

"Ye're right," said MacAndrew heartily. "Miss Collins, this is Mr. Hemingway. Miss Collins is one o' my star pupils."

• • •

The summer drew to an end and on a glorious September day Andrew MacAndrew stood on the practice tee watching two persons play down the tenth fairway. "Down the fairway" is merely a technical way of putting it; neither of them was actually anywhere near it. Andrew MacAndrews sighed.

"The two warst duffers o' the club," he soliloquized. "An' there they go, tearin' up the turf—my word! What an awfu' swing!" He closed his eyes and groaned as he watched. "Aweel," he remarked philosophically as the pair disappeared in the depths of a bunker, their usual haunt while making the round, "I'm thinkin' it's no so bad. They're main weel suited to each ither. Now I suppose they'll no be comin' oot o' yon pit till they're driven forth. Engaged couples ha' no manner o' right on the course."

Andrew was right. The pair stayed in the pit a long time. Said Marion, "Harold dear, I can never be too thankful that that ball hit you!"

"Neither can I, sweetheart," replied Harold. "And listen while I tell you a secret. I wasn't hurt at all that day! I saw you drive, and I'd wanted to meet you for weeks, and the ball looked like a heaven-sent chance, so I pretended to be knocked out."

"You bad, bad boy!" Due punishment was inflicted. Then Marion whispered: "I have a secret, too. I knew you weren't hurt!"

"What!"

"I saw the ball fly past you— and you fell, and—and, well, I thought—"

But she never said what she thought, for her lips were otherwise engaged at the moment.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

THE APPARENTLY ELECTROCUTED PERSONS

In these days when electricity is in such general use, and naturally the number of cases of electrocution is increasing, it is unfortunate that efforts to revive these persons are not continued for a greater length of time.

Cases apparently dead have been revived after a number of hours by artificial respiration.

I have spoken about this a couple of times, but so much time is wasted in using massage, heat, smelling salts, and so forth, that real valuable time is lost and the patient's chances thereby lessened.

Dr. J. Monzon tells us that the first thing to do is to loosen the clothing as quickly as possible and attempt to re-establish the circulation and respiration even when the patient appears to be dead. Numerous facts show that death from electrocution is frequently only apparent, and that it is due entirely to the stopping of the breathing rather than the heart.

He tells us that rubbing, slapping, inhaling ammonia and vinegar, the application of mustard plasters to soles of the feet, injections of camphor, caffeine, or other drugs, may be and are valuable, but that artificial respiration should not be stopped while any of above measures are being used.

And it is the Schafer method that he advises, which you will remember consists in first placing the victim face downwards on the ground. Put yourself astride or on one side of the victim's body, in a kneeling position facing his head. Placing your hands flat in the small of his back, with the thumbs nearly touching and the fingers spread out on each side of the body over the lowest ribs, lean forward, and steadily allow the weight of your body to fall over on them, and so produce a firm downward pressure which must not be violent.

Immediately thereafter swing backward, rapidly releasing the pressure, but without lifting the hands from the patient's body. Repeat this forward and backward movement (pressure and relaxation of pressure) every four or five seconds.

These movements ventilate the lungs, and the blood is forced toward the heart from the large abdominal organs.

I believe the above advice from Dr. Monzon is timely because when you have used artificial respiration for an hour or two, it is a great temptation to try other methods.

Remember the Schafer method. It is very simple.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Some housewives have oven thermometers and don't know or think anything about oven temperature—

Some housewives have the thermometers and take advantage of them—

Other housewives have no oven thermometers, but regulate the heat of the oven very well—

Not having an up-to-date oven with a thermometer is no good excuse for not getting good results in baking. Cooking as a fine art was developed when no one had ever thought of such devices.

If you have a thermometer, however, remember that;

For pastry and rich cakes the oven should be 360 degrees F.; for roasting meat 300 degrees; for slow cooking 180 degrees.

Some good cooks test their ovens by means of a little flour sprinkled on a pan. They estimate the heat by seeing how brown the flour becomes in a given length of time. Less wasteful is the trick of testing by means of a piece of paper.

If you do a good deal of baking have a little supply of pieces of paper—of uniform size and quality. With a little practice you will see how the paper behaves when left in the oven for one or two minutes. If it turns dark brown quickly the oven is literally hot enough to roast an ox—and that means too hot for any ordinary cooking.

Fidelis: A very nice style for birth announcements is that in which two cards are fastened together—a small one for the child and a larger one for the name of the parents. Frederic G. Mann, A.Mus., has added another musical composition to a long list of achievements in this line, in a Christmas Introit entitled "Immanuel," designed to be sung in place of the Venite or as an Introit on Christmas Day. This is a nobly-worded composition with dignified music and forms a fitting companion to a number of organ pieces composed this year by Mr. Mann, who is organist and choir leader at St. John's Church.

As a result of the "Buyers' and Managers' Sale," conducted a few weeks ago, the members of the staff of Richard Hall Limited enjoyed a pleasant dinner at the Empress Hotel last night. The winning side were served with turkey, and the losers with weiners. Miss Dorothy Worboy and Mr. Ken Thompson lodged two complaints on the part of the losing side, claiming they had done much to assist the others. The manager, Mr C. H. Saunders, asked for a vote, and the losers, getting turkey, showed their satisfaction by unusual quietness. Mr. Saunders spoke to the staff, referring to salesmanship and gave some useful and timely advice. Mr. J. Madill presented Miss Carrie Crough and Miss Helen Doherty, the winners of the sale, with two dolls dressed in dollar bills. Mr. Ken Thompson moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Saunders for tendering the dinner. Everyone joined enthusiastically in singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," which testified to the popularity of the manager. The party then attended the Capitol Theatre, and later enjoyed some bowling. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Saunders, Mr. Harry Saunders of Toronto, Mrs. Loucks, Mr. McIntyre, Mr. Madill, Misses Carrie Crough, Helen Doherty, Dorothy Worboy, Adene Janeway, Marguerite Seabrooks, G. Light brown woolen suiting was chosen for this recent two-piece tailored suit made in double-breasted style, with a straight, short, wrap-around skirt.

Never did skirt lengths vary so much as they do to-day. Very long skirts are no longer a matter of comment among well-dressed women for evening wear. But so far as I can see there is very little tendency to lengthen the skirts of sports clothes or of the tailored two-piece suit, save for a possible inch or so. If you were one of the extremists who wore your skirts above the knees you will find it desirable to add this extra inch or two for your new sports clothes and tailored suits.

Certainly no one can complain of monotony in the present program of fashion. Times have changed greatly since frocks for morning, afternoon and evening—for sports, dancing and house wear—were all very much the same straight one-piece sacks, differing little save in material. Now there are a dozen different silhouettes with which to vary your appearance.

The simple little tailored suit that you will probably choose for street wear next spring—or for immediate wear if you intend to pass the remainder of the winter in a mild climate—is straight and scant and short. There are fairly short circular skirts for sports wear, but the skirt of the tailored suit is almost invariably straight. Your afternoon frocks are, of course, longer, with a slightly uneven hemline, and your evening frocks are either very long or decidedly uneven, with foundations coming just below the knees, while drapery here and there extends to the ankles.

Don't make the mistake of being too sure that there is anything final in the present tendency toward longer skirts. There is, of course, the possibility that fashion is really through with the short skirt for the time being. But there is also the possibility that she isn't. There have already been several ups and downs in the history of the short skirt—and there is no proof that the present "down" may not be followed by still another "up."

BIG SISTER COLUMN

In which Examiner Neighbors answer letters from girls. Address correspondence to Marion, please.

Dear Marion: Although I have read several letters, such as "Orchid's" and "Brown Eyes," in which you said you didn't profess to advise lovers, I shall once again, although I haven't written you before, ask you to advise me.

I am a young girl, not very tall, five feet two inches, with dark hair and blue eyes. I go to P.C.I., and am taking a stenographer's course.

A short while ago I met a boy about two years my senior. He was very nice looking, would be considered fair, with very curly hair, blue eyes, and always with a smile on his lips.

He has brought me home several times and I have become very fond of him. Of course he doesn't treat me any different than any other girl. Would you please tell me how to gain at least a portion of his love, although I do not want to run after him, as "Brown Eyes" in her letter said she didn't approve of that sort of thing, and neither do I.

Therefore, dear Marion, please advise me. I hope I have not taken up too much of your valuable space with what you may call "trash."

Thanking you in advance for a favor which you may or may not bestow on me, I remain, yours truly, "DOWNHEARTED."

Answer by "Jenny Wren II."

"Downhearted." — I can't see that this boy shouldn't like you (who knows but what in his heart he really loves you). I suggest that you continue your friendship with him and at the same time taking an active part in the social life of your community, and meeting your other acquaintances. I wouldn't let him know I care for him, until I was sure he cared for me. I also suggest that you be nice with him, perhaps invite him to your home once in a while, and let him realize you consider him as a true friend. Then he may get to care a great deal for you and consider you more than a friend.—"Jenny Wren II."

I think that a present which is always acceptable is table linen and, of course, the giver always desires to give the best of table linen. But there are few housewives who really know good linen when they come to buy.

• • • • • •

Of course the best table linen is not the cheapest, but it is more economical to buy the good linen which will give excellent service with careful usage.

• • • • • •

What is desired in table linen is smooth texture, brilliance, good appearance and sufficient weight to lie flat on the table, but yet it must be soft and yielding.

• • • • • •

Only the best of linen has these qualities. We have all learned at some time or other, that real linen gives up moisture readily and may be washed very easily.

• • • • • •

It is very easy to distinguish linen from cotton. The simplest is the one we all know—that of putting a drop of water on the cloth. If it spreads and dries almost instantly, it is linen. Water does not dry so quickly on cotton.

• • • • • •

Try tearing the material—linen is very hard to tear, and tears with a sharp sound, leaving a smooth edge. Cotton tears easily, but leaves a curled edge.

• • • • • •

A drop of glycerine on linen forms a transparent spot as it is readily absorbed. Glycerine applied to cotton rolls around in a little ball, much the same as mercury.

• • • • • •

The fibres of linen, examined under a microscope, show that the flax fibres are straight with bands crossing them diagonally at intervals. Cotton fibres will appear twisted about one another, with dots through them.

• • • • • •

When buying linen, be careful of sizing, which is a starch and makes the linen look better than it really is. It covers up defects and poor weave, but it will come out when washed.

• • • • • •

Have all my readers their packages of Christmas cheer ready to send out to make homes more cheery for Christmas, which they otherwise may not have, if it isn't for you? If you have let it slip your mind, let this serve as a little reminder.

• • • • • •

On Christmas and New Year's Days, there is a sort of family reunion in many homes.

• • • • • •

"We are all here,
Father, mother,
Sister, brother,
All who hold each other dear.
Each chair is filled; we're all at home!
To-night let no cold stranger come.
It is not often thus around
Our old familiar hearth we're found.
Bless then the meeting and the spot;
For once be every care forgot;
Let gentle peace assert her power,
And kind affection rule the hour."

• • • • • •

These home festivals should not be forgotten and much of the gracious charm of Christmas centres around the family dinner table. Gathering around the table for this festive occasion is the real event of the year for many homes.

• • • • • •

Even the decorations in keeping with the holiday add charm to the meal. The dining-room takes on a gala aspect with its colors of red and green.

• • • • • •

When planning the menu for Christmas Day, at least two meals must be taken into consideration as most of the day is given over to celebration of the birth of our Saviour.

• • • • • •

It must be borne in mind, however, that a balanced meal which leaves one satisfied, but not stuffed, is better than the old-fashioned way.

• • • • • •

It would be nice, too, to have some entertainment provided for the after dinner hour, when old and young alike may join in and be merry in keeping with Christmas.

DAILY READING

DECEMBER 18, 1926

For the suggestion for to-day's selection we are indebted to "Mariana," whose idea this column is. The extract is from the "Inferno," by Dante Alighieri, greatest of Italian poets. He was born in Florence in May 1265, and died in Ravenna, September 14, 1321, after writing "Vita Nuova," "Convito" and his masterpiece, "The Divine Comedy."

DANTE AND VIRGIL IN THE SHADES

Whilst I was rushing downwards, there appeared before my eyes one who seemed hoarse from long silence. When I saw him in the great desert, I cried: "Have pity on me, whate'er thou be, whether shade or veritable man!"

He answered me: "Not man—a man I once was; and my parents were lombards, and both of Mantua by country. I was born sub Julio, though it was late, and lived at Rome under the good Augustus, in the time of the false and lying gods. A Poet I was; and sang of that just son of Anchises, who came from Troy after proud Ilium was burnt. But thou, why returnest thou to such disquiet? why ascendest not the delectable mountain, which is the beginning and the cause of all gladness?"

"Art thou then that Virgil, and that fountain which pours abroad so rich a stream of speech?" I answered him with bashful front. "O glory, and light of other poets! May the long zeal avail me, and the great love, that made me search thy volume. Thou art my master and my author. Thou alone art he from whom I took the good style that hath done me honor. See the beast from which I returned back. Help me from her, thou famous sage; for she makes my veins and pulses tremble."

"Thou must take another road," he answered, when he saw me weeping, "if thou desirest to escape from this wild place; because this beast, for which thou criest, lets not men pass her way, but so entangles that she slays them; and has a nature so perverse and vicious, that she never satiates her craving appetite; and after feeding, she is hungrier than before. The animals to which she weds herself are many; and will yet be more, until the Greyhound comes, that will make her die with pain. He will not feed on land or pelf, but on wisdom and love, and manfulness; and his nation shall be between Feltro and Feltro. He shall be the salvation of that low Italy, for which Camilla the virgin, Euryalus, and Turnus, and Nisus, died of wounds. He shall chase her through every city, till he have put her into Hell again; from which envy first set her loose. Wherefore I think and discern this for thy best, that thou follow me. And I will be thy guide, and lead thee hence through an eternal place, where thou shalt hear the hopeless shrieks, shalt see the ancient spirits in pain; so that each calls for second death. And thou shalt see those who are contened in the fire; for they hope to come, whensoever it be, amongst the blessed. Then to these, if thou desirest to ascend, there shall be a Spirit worthier than I to guide thee. With her will I leave thee at my parting. For that Emperor who reigns above, because I was rebellious to his law, wills not that I come into his city, and his high seat. O happy whom he chooses for it!"

And I to him: "Poet, I beseech thee by that God whom thou knewest not: in order that I may escape this ill and worse, lead me where thou now hast said, so that I may see the Gate of St. Peter, and those whom thou makest so sad."

Then he moved; and I kept on behind him. . . .

• • •

Through me is the way into this doleful city;
Through me the way into the eternal pain;
Through me the way among the people lost.
Justice moved my High Maker:
Divine Power made me,
Wisdom Supreme, and Primal Love.
Before me were no things created,
But eternal; and eternal I endure.
Leave all hope, ye that enter.

These words, of color obscure, saw I written above a gate, Whereat I: "Master, their meaning to me is hard."

And he to me, as one experienced: "Here must all distrust be left; all cowardice must here be dead. We are come to the place where I told thee thou shouldst see the wretched people, who have lost the good of the intellect."

And placing his hand on mine, with a cheerful countenance that comforted me, he led me into the secret things. Here sighs, plaints, and deep wailings resounded through the starless air: it made me weep at first. Strange tongues, horrible outcries, words of pain, tones of anger, voices deep and hoarse, and sounds of hands amongst them, made a tumult, which turns itself unceasing in that air forever dyed, as sand when the whirlwind breathes.

And I my head begirt with error, said: "Master, what is this that I hear? and who are these that seem so overcome with pain?"

And he to me: "This miserable mode the dreary souls of those sustain, who lived without blame, and without praise. They are mixed with that caitiff choir of the angels, who were not rebellious, nor were faithful to God, but were for themselves. Heaven chased them [illegible] to keep its beauty from impair; [illegible] deep Hell received them not, lo. [illegible] would have some glory ove."

And I: "Ma[illegible], what is so grievous to them that makes them lament thus bitterly?"

He answered: "I will tell it to thee very briefly. These have no hope of death; and their blind life is so mean, that they are envious of every other lot. Report of them the world permits not to exist. Mercy and Judgment disdains them. Let us not speak of them: but look, and pass."

And I, who looked, saw an ensign, which whirling ran so quickly that it seemed to scorn all pause. And behind it came so long a train of people, that I should never have believed death had undone so many.

After I had recognized some amongst them, I looked and saw the shadow of him who from cowardice made the great refusal. Forthwith I understood and felt assured that this was the crew of caitiffs, hateful to God and to His enemies. These unfortunate, who never were alive, were naked, and sorely goaded by hornets and by wasps that were there: these made their faces stream with blood, which mixed with tears was gathered at their feet by loathsome worms.

And then, as I looked onwards, I saw people on the Shore of a great River. Whereat I said: "Master, now grant that I may know who these are: and what usage makes them seem so ready to pass over, as I discern by the faint light."

And he: "The things shall be told thee, when we stay our steps upon the joyless strand of Acheron."

Then, with eyes ashamed and downcast, fearing my words might have offended him, I kept myself from speaking till we reached the stream. And lo! an old man, white with ancient hair, comes toward us in a bark, shouting: "Woe to you, depraved spirits! Hope not ever to see Heaven. I come to lead you to the other shore; into the eternal darkness; into fire and into ice. And thou, who art there alive, depart thee from these who are dead."

But when he saw that I departed not, he said: "By other ways, by other ferries; not here shalt thou pass over. A lighter boat must carry thee."

And my guide to him: "Charon, vex not thyself. Thus it is willed there, where what is willed can be done: and ask no more." Then the woolly cheeks were quiet of the steersman on the livid marsh, who round his eyes had wheels of flame. But those spirits, who were foreworn and naked, changed color and chattered with their teeth, soon as they heard the bitter words. They blasphemed God and their parents; the human kind; the place, the time, and origin of their seed, and of their birth. Then all of them together, sorely weeping, drew to the accursed shore, which awaits every man that fears not God.

Charon the demon, with eyes of glowing coal, beckoning them, collects them all; smites with his oar whoever lingers. As the leaves of autumn fall off one after the other, till the branch sees all its spoils upon the ground, so one by one the evil seed of Adam cast themselves from that shore at signals, as the bird at its call. Thus they depart on the brown water; and ere they have landed on the other shore, again a fresh crowd collects on this.

"My son," said the courteous Master, "those who die under God's wrath, all assemble here from every country. And they are prompt to pass the river, for Divine Justice spurs them so, that fear is changed into desire. By this way no good spirit ever passes; and hence, if Charon complains of thee, thou easily now mayest know the import of his words."

When he had ended, the dusky champaign trembled so violently that the remembrance of my terror bathes me still with sweat. The tearful ground gave out wind, and flashed with a crimson light, which conquered all my senses: and I fell, like one who is seized with sleep.

A heavy thunder broke the deep sleep in my head; so that I started like one who is awaked by force. And, having risen erect, I moved my rested eyes around, and looked steadfastly to know the place in which I was. True is it, that I found myself upon the brink of the dolorous Valley of the Abyss, which gathers thunder of endless wailings. It was so dark, profound, and cloudy, that, with fixing my look upon the bottom, I there discerned nothing.

"Now let us descend into the blind world here below," began the Poet, all pale; "I will be first, and thou shalt be second."

And I, who had remarked his color, said: "How shall I come, when thou fearest, who art wont to be my strength on doubt?"

And he to me: "The anguish of the people who are here below, on my face depaints that pity, which thou takest for fear. Let us go, for the length of way impels us. Thus he entered, and made me enter, into the first circle that girds the abyss. Here there was no plaint, that could be heard, except of sighs, which caused the eternal air to tremble. And this arose from the sadness, without torment, of the crowds, that were many and great, both of children, and of women and men.

The good Master to me: "Thou askest not what spirits are these thou seest? I wish thee to know, before thou goest farther, that they sinned not. And though they had merit, it suffices not, for they had not Baptism, which is the portal of the Faith that thou believest. And seeing they were before Christianity, they worshiped not God aright. And of these am I myself. For such defects, and for no other fault, are we lost; and only in so far afflicted, that without hope we live in desire."

Great sadness took me at the heart on hearing this; because I knew men of much worth, who in that Limbo were suspense: "Tell me, Master; tell me, Sir," I began, desiring to be assured of that Faith which conquers, every error; "did ever any, by his own merit, or by others', go out from hence, that afterwards was blessed?"

And he, understanding my covert speech, replied: "I was new in this condition, when I saw a Mighty One come to us, crowned with sign of victory. He took away from us the shade of our First Parent, of Abel his son, and that Noah; of Moses the Legislator, and obedient Abraham the Patriarch; David the King; Israel with his father and his children, and Rachel, for whom he did so much; and many others, and made them blessed. And I wish thee to know, that, before these, no human souls were saved."

We ceased not to go, though he was speaking; but passed the wood meanwhile, the wood, I say, of crowded spirits. Our way was not yet far within the topmost part, when I saw a fire, which conquered a hemisphere of the darkness. We were still a little distant from it; yet not so distant, that I did not in part discern what honorable people occupied that place.

"O thou, that honorest every science and art; who are these, who have such honor, that it separates them from the manner of the rest?"

And he to me: "The honored name, which sounds of them, up in that life of thine, gains favor in heaven which thus advances them."

Meanwhile a voice was heard by me: "Honor the great Poet! His shade returns that was departed."

After the voice had paused, and was silent, I saw four great shadows come to us. They had an aspect neither sad nor joyful. The good Master began to speak: "Mark him with that sword in hand, who comes before the three as their lord. That is Homer, the sovereign Poet. The next who comes is Horace the satirist. Ovid is the third; and the last is Lucan. Because each agrees with me in the name, which the one voice sounded, they do me honor; and therein they do well."

Thus I saw assembled the goodly school of that lord of highest song, who, like an eagle, soars above the rest. After they had talked a space together, they turned to me with sign of salutation; and my Master smiled thereat. And greatly more besides they honored me; for they made me of their number, so that I was a sixth amid such intelligences.

Thus we went onwards to the light, speaking things which it is well to pass in silence, as it was well to speak there where I was. We came to the foot of the Noble Castle, seven times circled with lofty walls, defended round by a fair Rivulet. This we passed as solid land. Through seven gates I entered with those sages. We reached a meadow of fresh verdure. On it were people with eyes slow and grave, of great authority in their appearance.

They spoke seldom, with mild voices. Thus we retired on one of the sides: into a place open, luminous, and high, so that they could all be seen. There direct, upon the green enamel, were shown to me the great spirits who I glory within myself in having seen. I saw Electra with many companions; amongst whom I knew both Hector and Aeneas; Caesar armed, with the falcon eyes. I saw Camilla and Penthesilea. On the other hand I saw the Latian king, sitting with Lavinia his daughter. I saw that Brutus who expelled the Tarquin; Lucretia, Julia, Martia, and Cornelia. And by himself apart, I saw the Saladin.

When I raised my eyelids a little higher, I saw the Master of those that know, sitting amid a philosophic family. All regard him; all do him honor. Here I saw Socrates and Plato, who before the rest stand nearest to him; Democritus, who ascribes the world to chance; Diogenes, Anaxagoras, and Thales; Empedocles, Heraclitus, and Zeno. And I saw the good collector of the qualities, Dioscorides, I mean; and saw Orpheus, Tully, Livy, and Seneca the moralist; Euclid the geometer, and Ptolemaeus; Hippocrates, Avicenna, and Galen; Averrhoes, who made the great comment. I may not paint them all in full; for the long theme so chases me, that many times the word comes short of the reality.

The company of six diminishes to two. By another road the sage guide leads me, out of the quiet, into the trembling air; and I come to a part where there is naught that shines.

STORE MANAGER DENIES RUMOR

C.D.S.L. Quarters Are Not Being Vacated By Teco, Declares W. F. Butcher.

GOING TO CARRY ON.

"We are going to carry on with two stores in Peterborough as long as we are making money," was the reply of W. F. Butcher, manager of Teco stores in this city, when approached this morning regarding a persistent rumor that the Teco company would vacate the C.D.S.L. store quarters on George street, and carry on all business from the one larger store at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. The rumor further insisted that the C.D.S.L. quarters had been sold out of the Teco company.

Mr. Butcher not only denied that there would be only one Teco store but he went on to state that there is no intention of vacating the C.D.S.L. store, and that he knew nothing of any change from the present arrangement. "If there is a rumor we'll just have to let them talk and put up with the notoriety," he concluded.

Race for the N.H.L. Scoring Honors Tightens

NELS STEWART RETAINS LEAD

Leads "Ace" Bailey, of Toronto Leafs By One Point.

THREE IN THIRD PLACE.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The scoring and penalty statistics of the National Hockey League up to and including games played December 16, issued by President Calder last night, indicates that the race for scoring honors in both sections of the league tightened up appreciably last week. The most notable change was that Bill Cook, star right winger of the world's champion New York Rangers, forged to the front in the American division, gaining a lead of a single point in the aggregate over Carson Cooper, the Detroit "shovel shot." Nels Stewart held his lead in the Canadian division, but found his margin reduced.

Stewart Has Ten Points

Stewart has gleaned ten points, with eight goals and two assists, but now has a margin of but one point over "Ace" Bailey, crack right wing of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Bailey has scored five goals and furnished four assists. Three are locked for third position. Billy Burch, brilliant centre-ice player, who has been a pillar of strength to New York Americans in their sensational run of victories, has scored six goals and had two assists. Morenz and Joliat, the great Canadien snipers, are in the triple tie with Burch. Joliat has had five goals and three assists, Morenz four of each.

Leads American Division

In the American division, Bill Cook's five goals and two assists enabled him to pass Cooper, who has had five goals but only one assist. There are five tied for third position in this section, two of the participants in the deadlock being two of the year's most noted "finds," Vic. Ripley, of Chicago Hawks, and Herbie Lewis, of Detroit Cougars. George Hay, of Cougars; "Butch" Keeling, of Rangers and Frankie Boucher, of Rangers, are the other parties to this extensive tie. Hay has had four goals and one assist; Ripley the same, while Lewis and Keeling each have three goals and two assists, Boucher two goals and three assists. Lionel Conacher, stalwart captain of the New York Americans, and Eddie Shore, rugged Bruin, lead the sections in penalties. Both are defence players. Conacher has spent 43 minutes with the timers; Shore, 35. Dutton, rangy sorrel-topped defence player of Montreal Maroons, is second to Conacher in the Canadian division with 39 minutes; Aurel Joliat, the fiery midget of Canadiens, has 33; and Bailey, of Toronto, 32. Alec McKinnon, of the Black Hawks, is second to Shore in the American division, with 28 minutes, while Frederickson, of the Bruins, and Traub, of Detroit, each have twenty.

BELANGER IS GIVEN DECISION

Lewis Disgruntled Over Actions of Referee—Leaves Ring in First Round.

WELTERWEIGHT TITLE BOUT.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Apparently disgruntled over the actions of Referee Lou Marsh, Ted "Kid" Lewis of England, former welterweight champion of the world, stalked from the ring at the Coliseum here last night in the first round of his scheduled ten-round bout with Charley Belanger, of Winnipeg. Belanger was awarded the decision. The fight was billed as a title affair for the light heavyweight championship of the British Empire. Belanger, who had the better of the argument during the short milling, outweighed his opponent by fifteen pounds. The weights were: Belanger, 177½; Lewis, 162½.

It was announced from the ring a few minutes after the sudden termination of the fight that Lewis' purse had been ordered withheld by the Boxing Commission, and that the money would be given to charity.

Ordered Mouthpieces Removed

The fight was scarcely under way whn Referee Marsh halted proceedings and ordered Lewis to remove a rubber mouthpiece. "He has one, too," said the ex-welterweight king, nodding toward Belanger. The Canadian lightweight champion trotted to his corner and tossed away the mouthpiece. Lewis stood in the centre of the ring and not until Marsh had repeated his order several times to "take them out" did he walk to his corner and toss the mouthpiece away. As soon as the battlers begun mixing again, Marsh warned Lewis about holding in the clinches and refusing to break. The official dived between the pair a few times and by main strength hauled Lawis away, until finally Lewis held up his hand and then marched quickly to the ropes, hopped through and walked briskly to his dressing room. The crowd looked on in amazement, and Belanger was at once proclaimed winner. The Winnipeg slugger had landed a few hard blows when he could free himself from Lewis, while the latter had attempted to counter at close fighting. Lewis looked to carry several pounds of excess weight around the waist, while Belanger appeared in the pink of condition.

Preliminaries

The semi-final between Red Bragan, of Toronto, and George Fifield, Toronto, former Canadian welterweight champion, provided lots of action, Bragan gaining the decision of the judges.

Art McCann, of Toronto, and Cliff Graham, Toronto, both 136 pounds, began their eight round affair in tame style, but finally McCann took the upper hand by his solid body punching, and earned the dicision.

Bobby Booth, Toronto, 130 pounds, and "Pop" Humphries, England, 128½, put on a smart slugfest over the six-round route that went to Booth.

Ernie Brooks, Toronto, 117½ pounds, gained the decision in the four round opener over Bobby Ayrton, of Winnipeg, 117½.

WINDSOR IN THIRD POSITION

Bulldogs Blank Niagara Falls Cataracts 2-0 in Fast Tussle.

HAMILTON LOSES 2-0.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Offering such a strong defence that the visitors had barely a half-dozen scoring chances all night, the Windsor Bulldogs blanked the Niagara Falls Cataracts here last night and tied them for third place by the 2 to 0 victory.

Dutchmen Win 2—0

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Blocked at every turn by a powerful defence and remarkable goalkeeping made almost marvelous by the hurried shooting of the opposition, Hamilton dropped further back in the race for Canpro honors here last night by losing a 2 to 0 decision to the fast-going Flying Dutchmen of Kitchener.

HUMAN DYNAMITE

Frank Nighbor, the man who made the poke check a thing of beauty, and known as the Pembroke Pippin and the "Nonpareil" is to some enthusiastic admirers, the Willie Hoppe of hockey. He perfected the poke check, now in general use, and has more imitators for his patent than Charlie Chaplin has for his trick walk.

Nighbor is starting his nineteenth year in pro hockey with undiminished vigor. He began as a pro in Port Arthur in 1912, and then went to the coast after a season with Toronto. He proved a sensation on the Pacific coast and was a notable scorer. Ottawa grabbed him in 1916 and he has been in the capital ever since.

Nighbor is the traffic cop of hockey and it is a case of detour right or left when he is at his accustomed station. In recent years he has not been such a strong offensive factor. He led the N.H.L. goal-getters in 1918. He is still a potent performer, however, when it comes to protecting goals.

Nighbor is an ardent fisherman and hunter, a better than average golfer and plays a rattling game of baseball. He is a serious thinker, and a high-class type of athlete; in fact a model for aspiring players whether amateur or pro. It was his persistency at tying up opposing forwards that resulted in the anti-defence legislation now in the N.H.L. rule books. Nighbor comes from Pembroke, a hotbed of hockey, and is one of the "solid citizens" of that enterprising town.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

The celebrated Colts attained their greatest fame in 1901 when they won the Junior O.H.A. championship, having the satisfaction of beating in the finals the strong Stratford Indians who had defeated them in the last series the year before.

The 1901 series was peculiar inasmuch as both teams won on their own ice by a shutout, the Colts at home by 12 to 0 and the Indians in Stratford by 7 to 0. The latter result is explained, however, by the fact that the Colts played the last game shorthanded throughout, by reason of the illness of one of their players and the refusal of Stratford to drop a man to even up.

The Colts that season had ridden roughshod over all opposition. They beat the Kingston Frontenacs so badly here that Kingston defaulted their home game and the same thing happened when Barrie came down for the semi-finals. The Colts won 27 to 0 and Barrie threw up the sponge without waiting for a game on their own ice.

Then came the finals, with Stratford coming here on February 23 for the first game. It was another walkaway for the Colts who were at the top of their form and were all over the western champions. At half time it was 5 to 0 for Peterborough and in the second half they ran in seven more counters without a reply on the part of the Indians. F. Whitcroft played sensational hockey for the Colts finding the nets behind Woods seven times during the game while he gave the pass for several other counters. On the Stratford team were several players afterwards famous including the Edmund brothers and Wally Hern, well known in later years to Peterborough fans as a splendid referee. Hern also shared with Harold Armstrong of Peterborough and Steve Rice, now with the Toronto Can-Pro League team, the distinction of having played on junior, intermediate and senior O.H.A. championship teams.

The return game was played in Stratford on February 28 and en route ill luck hit the Peterborough team when Elmer Smith, one of their forwards, was stricken with pneumonia and was, of course, unable to play. There was no spare man with the team and no time to get one through from Peterborough, and so the Colts had to go on the ice with only six men. The Stratford manager declined to drop a player to even up the situation and were, of course, within their legal rights in such a decision, although their sportsmanship was sharply criticized by Provincial papers.

The Colts with a twelve goal lead decided to play a defence game and the result was that they were constantly being attacked. However despite the handicap under which they played they put a stubborn resistance that their lead was never seriously threatened. The Indians scored three goals in the first thirty minutes and only one better in the last half so that the Colts skated off the ice Ontario champions by a five goal margin. That was almost 29 years ago and since then Peterborough has never reached the junior finals.

The teams:

Stratford—Goal, Woods; point, R. H. Edmunds; cover, Forbes; forwards, Edmunds, Hern, Schweitzer, Fraser.

Peterborough— Goal, Brundrette; point, Cavanah; cover, H. Armstrong; forwards, Whitcroft, Morgan, King.

Referee—H. Jack, Toronto.

To-morrow—The highest scoring local game on record.

English Team Sets New Mark For First Innings in Test Matches.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters').—Wally Hammond's splendid batting in the first innings of the second test match against Australia was ended to-day, just 36 runs under the highest score ever made by an Englishman against Australia. After batting for 7½ hours in an innings extending over three days, Hammond unluckily played a ball on his own wicket. He scored 251, included in which were 30 hits which went for 4 runs each. The record, made by Foster here in 1903, is 287.

Sets New Mark

England's first innings was a new record for all time in test match cricket, their score reaching 636. Australia had one hour's batting in their second innings and lost one wicket for 39 runs. Their first innings score was 253.

All teams desiring to enter in either of the groups in the City League should have representatives at the hockey meeting to-night.

The pro. magnates of the N.H.L. are discussing methods to stop the goalies who deliberately hold the puck, when their side is short-handed or being hard pressed. It is also likely that some penalties will be drawn up to prevent the long heaving of the puck up the ice to waste time when a team is defending a lead.

Two minutes after the start of the bout between Ted "Kid" Lewis and Charlie Belanger, the Canadian light heavyweight champion, Lewis walked from the ring refusing to fight further unless the bout was conducted the way he wanted it. Belanger had just landed two rights to Lewis' jaw when suddenly the old ringmaster found the going too rough and slipped under the ropes; Referee Marsh raising the arm of Belanger giving him the vitory in the fiasco.

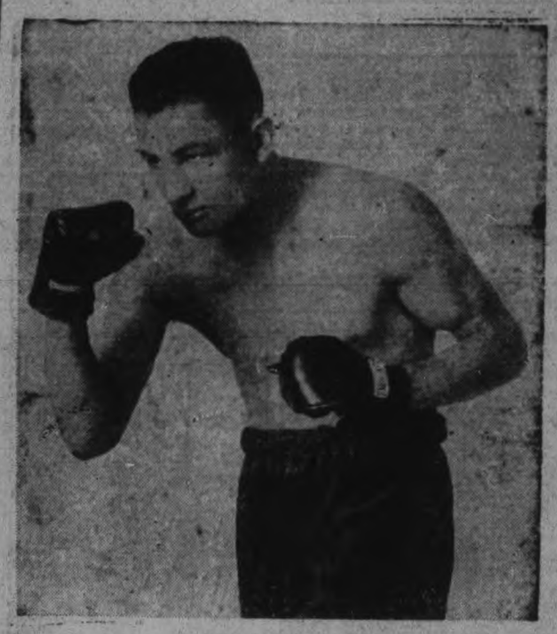
The Black Hawks will have to find some other city in which to play their games after December 23, for on and after that date the Coliseum, the only ice rink of any account in Chicago, will be used for boxing bouts. The owners of the club are already deep in debt, since the failure of the team to get any place in the leagu has kept the attendance low. It is likely that next summer the club will build a stadium in Chicago and then hope for better times.

BOXER OF ABILITY



CHARLIE BELANGER.

Despite the short duration of his bout with Ted Lewis last night and its unsatisfactory ending, Charlie Belanger, Canadian heavyweight champion, satisfied the fans that he is a boxer of ability. In the first round of his bout with Ted Lewis, the former welterweight, at Toronto last night, Ted Lewis became disgruntled at the actions of the referee and quit the ring.

'DUKES' WIN IN OVERTIME

University of Toronto Extends Marlboro Sextet—T.C.C. Defeats Parkdale.

FAST FIXTURE.

TORONTO, December 18. — The Toronto Canoe Club and Marlboros won the O.H.A. junior double-header at University of Toronto arena last night, the former defeating Parkdale Canoe Club 4 to 3, and Marlboros going overtime to trim University of Toronto 8 to 7. While both games were close, the U. of T.-Marlboros fixture was by far the more exciting from the spectators' standpoint, and was forced into overtime before a winner was decided. In both games the losers scored the first goal, but their lead was soon overcome. The Paddlers' game was a case of superior skating by the Red Ringers being offset by clever goal-keeping by Nurnberger in the opposition's goal.

The Marlboro-U. of T. game was freakish in that the goals were easily earned by both teams. The long shots that were carelessly handled by both goal keepers and that often resulted in scores were perhaps directly the cause of the worn out condition of both teams when the game ended. At the finish there did not seem to be enough strength in either sextet to continue any longer. In the first session of overtime they played mechanically and made some clever rushes on the goals.

Toronto Canoe Club's 4 to 3 victory over Parkdale Canoe Club provided plenty of excitement for the fans. The Red Ring players won out in the final period after trailing their opponents through nearly every stage of the contest. Although the teams were on even terms at the end of the second period, it was Parkdale who took the lead in each frame, and but for injury to Nurnberger, their goal keeper, in the final frame, the Parkdale Paddlers might have held the advantage they gained at the beginning of the final session.

The art of alphabetical writing is probably the most important invention ever made by man, and the glory of its invention belongs to the Phoenicians.

DEFENDANT WINS DAMAGE ACTION

Mrs. Ida Kelly Loses $250 Suit Brought Against Walter Head.

$500 JUDGMENT.

The cases coming before His Honor Judge Huycke at the December sittings of the General Sessions of the Peace were finally completed yesterday afternoon.

In that of Mrs Ida Kelly vs. Walter Head in which Mrs. Kelly was suing for $250 for damages said to have been suffered through injuries recieved in accident on the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets, in which, it was claimed, the defendant with his car ran into Mrs. Kelly while she was attempting to cross the street.

The defendant claimed while driving at a moderate rate of speed and taking all precautions to miss the plaintiff, who first stopped at the corner to allow him to proceed, and then, suddenly changing her mind, ran into the side of the car, in spite of his efforts to guide his car from her path.

The jury brought in a verdict which placed all the negligence for the accident on Mrs Kelly and allowed her no damages.

The jury consisted of Charles Graham, Norman Harper, Bernard Pitchford, Harry Woodbeck, Clarence Harper, David Glass, George Miller, Edgar Milne, H. S. Sanderson, J. N. Payton, Harry Wildman and Wm. Steele.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff and Wilfrid Huycke for the defendant.

W. H. Thompson, 107 Haslett street, received a judgment for $500, the full amount of his claim, against the firm of McColl Bros., wholesale gasoline and oil merchants. The damages arose from the presence of fumes from a large quantity of gasoline which escaped from one of the McColl tanks, and which pervaded the atmosphere surrounding the Thompson home to the discomfort and annoyance of the Thompson family. The fumes were so strong that they filled the whole house, and were especially pungent in the cellar, to such an extent that, at one time, the Thompson family considered leaving their premises.

V. J. McElderry appeared for plaintiffs and J. O'Brien for the defendants.

AT THE REGENT.

ADVENTURES AND ROMANCE OF NEWSREEL MAN MAKE ORIGINAL, AMUSING FILM

"The News Parade" Takes Nick Stuart and Sally Phipps to Havana, New York, Palm Beach in Swift Plot.

From Lake Placid's icy mountains to Havana's coral strands moves the swift plot of "The News Parade," the Fox picture featuring Nick Stuart and Sally Phipps that opened at the Regent Theatre last night. Between these two extremes of temperature there are stops in bustling New York City and languid Palm Beach.

It's an original idea for a picture, and it makes excellent entertainment. Early in the story, it develops that the "We" of Lindbergh and his plane has its counterpart in the "We" of a newsreel man and his camera. Newsreel Nick shows a touching solicitude for his battered Fox News camera, even at the risk of his life.

But "The News Parade" is no mere glorification of the news-reel cameraman. It is a complete feature picture, with a lovely heroine, a love story, a villain and everything. Newsreel Nick has been assigned to get the picture of Brandon Hurst, playing an eccentric old millionaire who hates cameras and cameramen. In pursuing the old moneybags about the world, Nick falls in love with his daughter. To win her, he has to foil a couple of villains, impersonated by Earle Foxe and Cyril Ring. Of course he does, but not until after several adventures and a battle or two.

The story was written by Director David Butler and William Conselman after conferences with Truman H. Talley, director in chief of Fox News. Both Talley and Russell Muth, one of his crack cameramen, appear in the picture.

If there is any justification for Butler to leave a brilliant career as an actor, especially after playing Gobin, the street cleaner, in "7th Heaven," "The News Parade" furnishes it.

AT THE CAPITOL.

JOHN GILBERT IN "FOUR WALLS"

If it's a John Gilbert picture, it's sure to be interesting. "Four Walls" isn't an exception to the rule. This actor with the electric eyes and a positive genius for seeming to live the roles he enacts, rather than just dramatize them, is one of the major artists of the screen.

It is a picture that by means of episodes which afford glimpses of the life of a gang leader and his regeneration, tells a dramatic story. As is always the case with Gilbert's characterizations, the moral is not allowed to spoil the effects of the drama. In this production he is a gangster and a jailbird, Benny Horowitz, who lifts himself by the uncomfortable and difficult process of using his own bootstraps as a lever. Instead of relying on a woman to help him as most of the modern heroes seem to do, he fights his way to a clean life against her influences, and then the lady, not to be outdone, does a virtuous backflip, and resolves to go straight herself.

A product of Hester street and the East Side, Benny Horowitz shoots a rival gang leader, Duke Roma, in a fight over Benny's girl, Frieda, a part played splendidly by Joan Crawford.

When Benny emerges from Sing Sing four years later, he has resolved to go straight, and the temptations of Frieda and his gang fail to shake his resolve. Then the girl, repulsed by him, rouses his jealousy by taking on his former lieutenant, Monk (Louis Natheaux) as an admirer, and the resulting fireworks are done in the very best Gilbertian manner. The way in which Benny treats his sweetheart is peculiar in the extreme. Fighting against her influence, he has a difficult time. It is only when he gives in and is ready to go back to the gang, and his former life, that the girl does an 'about face' and gives him the surprise of his life. Incidentally she pushes Monk over the parapet of a very high building and his exit from the picture is sudden and effective.

There are several characterizations in this picture which come quite up to the level of the fine work of the star, and his leading lady. They are Benny's mother, Mrs. Horowitz, played by Vera Gordon, his friend, Bertha, who loves Benny in a dog-like way that gets the return such devotion usually receives in real life; and the 'dick' or detective, a fat, whistling, keen-eyed gentleman, who watches Benny like a hawk. This actor, who, incidentally and quite oddly, as far as pictures are concerned, has the final appearance in the picture, closing the door with a whistle that brings "The End" to the screen, is Robert Emmett O'Connor.

The comedy for the program is a Neal Burns mixup entitled "Mad Scrambles," with a good deal of real fun in its giggly episodes.

The Pathe News affords a peep at the drama of real life. The menu for the first half of this week in this entering review includes glimpses at varied portions of the human round. There are fat babies eating sugared apples at a New York Community House party; there is 'High Strung,' a winner of a $50,000 purse in a great race; the Japanese heir-apparent, and his bride going through the involved ceremonies of an Oriental wedding, Premier Squires of Newfoundland smiling at his supporters in a recent election, and the body of the Empress Marie being borne to its last resting place at Copenhagen. —Jeanette

HOUSE OPENS JANUARY 30

Old Age Pensions Act Is Scheduled To Come Before Ontario Legislature.

NEW POLICE REGULATIONS.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 18. — Premier Ferguson announced last night that the third session of Ontario's Seventeenth Legislature will open on Wednesday, January 30.

This early assembly—the earliest opening date since 1921 —has been called, it is understood, in order that the business of the House, which usually runs some seven or eight weeks, may be wound up before Easter.

The Government will be one man stronger this session than last, due to the election of Foster Moffat (Cons.) over M. A. McCallum (Progressive) in the South Bruce by-election of last June. Two other new members-elect with Mr. Moffat, will make their debut at the approaching session They are Controller William Morrison, (Cons.) East Hamilton, and Edward Dunlop, (Cons.) North Renfrew.

While the government has just begun to whip its legislation into shape, there is every indication that a tidy parcel of it will have been brought down before the House writes finis to its 1929 deliberations. This legislation will include—as definitely announced by the Prime Minitser—an Old Age Pensions Act. Attorney General W. H. Price will bring down acts to regulate real estate brokers and salesmen, and to make policing of municipalities by the provincial force optional with counties and districts.

House leadership will be exactly the same as before with Premier Ferguson on the one side and W. E. N. Sinclair and J. G. Lethbridge guiding the destinies of the Liberal and Progressive Opposition groups respectively, on the other.

Special Prayer For King Offered In Synagogue

At a gathering of Jewish citizens in their Synagogue on Saturday at 9 o'clock a.m., a special prayer was made for King George, at which all the Jewish men and boys in the city were present.

The ceremony was held by Rev. A. Fine.

During the prayer, the Holy Toreh, which is used only on very special occasions, was used, everyone standing until the ceremony was over.

The Jewish citizens of Peterborough are very loyal to their King and country, and were most sincere in their wish for the health of the King, which has been causing much alarm during the past month.

BELMONT INSTITUTE HOLDS MEETING

Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith Gives Report on Recent Provincial Convention.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 18.—Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith, gave a very interesting report at the regular meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute on Thursday last, of the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Women's Institute for Central Ontario which was held in Toronto on November 27, 28 and 29 last. Mrs. Sexsmith spoke of the welcome which Mayor McBride extended to the members of the Institute to what he considered the best governed city in the country and he advised the ladies to attend the winter fair. He also complimented the Institute on its activities. A banquet was tendered the delegates by the Robert Simpson Company and special busses were put on their service to convey them to the winter fair. Some of the resolutions as read at the convention were: To study the League of Nations; that the institute are in favor of paying the married men in prison the money to go towards the support of their families, and also that they disapprove of the school books being changed so frequently.

The president presided for the business session when it was decided to donate ten dollars to the Muskoka Hospital for consumptives ten dollars to an Institute for the Blind at Toronto and a layette valuet $5.00. The program consisted of a reading by Mrs. W. E. Anderson; community singing and a demonstration by Mrs. A. Russell on table setting and serving. A social hour was spent at the close.

SOUTH AMERICA TURNS TO PEACE

Paraguay Mobilizes, But Has Accepted Offer of Mediation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The men of Paraguay steadily turned from plowshares to swords last night while awaiting Bolivian response to the offer of mediation by the Pan-American Conference for conciliation an darbitration. Paraguay has accepted the offer and Bolivia had promised a definite reply as soon as its President and Congress had considered it.

Meanwhile Paraguay went ahead with her mobilization, enlisting thousands and starting them toward the front in the Gran Chaco, almost as soon as they were in uniform. No further reports came back yesterday of clashes between the border forts, where armed forces of the two nations lie in watchful readiness, with a victory for each already written in blood.

Last night it was announced that the advance of the Bolivian troops had been halted and their commander ordered not to attack the Paraguayans.

READ THE WANT ADS.

THIRD PETERBOROUGH "VIMY" TROOP.

The Third had a short meeting last Friday night, breaking up at 8 o'clock to allow the Scoutmaster and some of the boys to go to the opening of the new wing to the Collegiate. However, much work was done in the hour of the meeting.

After flag break and inspection, the patrols were dismissed to their corners, where 20 minutes of work were put in. As a sample of what is done by the various patrols in the Third during their periods of work, the following list is a good illustration: The Hawks had a home-made buzzer set working— everything about the set being made by the Scouts themselves excepting the wire and batteries. The Wolves worked on first aid and signalling. The Foxes occupied their time with signalling and the Chickadees with first aid. Everyone was busy all the time.

A short game of foot in the ring was played. The Wolves won out in this and won 7 points in the competition. Hawks were second (5) points) and Foxes third (3 points).

The Wolves are well ahead in the competition but the Foxes and Hawks are working hard to catch them.

BOOKBINDING

Next Friday night is the last night of the competition and there will be many extra points to be won, so that any of the patrols has a chance as yet.

Toys are being turned in regularly by a few of the Scouts and there is quite a stack of them at H. Q.

A new scheme has been adopted by the Third to collect the registration fees from the Scouts, which are due on Oct. 31 of next year. Some of the Scouts have found it hard to raise 50c. at once, so each patrol leader is collecting one cent a week from each scout and is keeping this separate from the regular fees. In this way the 50c. will be collected without any Scout feeling it in any way and this also carries out the idea of "One Cent a Week for the Other Fellow."

A paper collection was held on Saturday. In response to an advertisement put in the Examiner early in the week, more than a dozen people telephoned in to say that they had paper we could have. Altotgether over 1,200 pounds were collected in the afternoon. The Scouts of the Third take this opportunity to thank all those who gave us paper. Five Scouts from the Troop collected the paper in cars supplied by Mr. R. Ross and Mr. P. P. Westbye.

CARS COVERED 24,358 MILES

D. M. McIntosh Wins First Money of Fontaine's Taxi Competitions.

SEALED 75 DAYS.

At midnight, October 1st, the speedometers on Alphonse Fontaine's four taxis had a record taken of the mileage shown, and were then sealed as the first step in Mr. Fontaine's estimating contest. This contest was for patrons of his taxis, and $75.00 in prizes were offered to the one guessing nearest to the combined mileage travelled by the four cars between Oct. 1st and December 15th.

Early Monday morning the speedometers were read by an Examiner representative and it was found that the combined mileage of the 4 cars had reached the rather surprising figure of 24,358. That is a lot of miles to be covered, driving over the city streets, but of course there were many commercial trips to distant points, which made the miles pile up quickly.

Considerable interest has been taken in the contest, and sorting the winners out of the large number of estimating tickets was quite a contract. The winners were finally located as follows:

1st—D. M. McIntosh, 469 Murray, 24,346—$50.00.

2nd—P. Heffernan, 640 Reid, 24,333—$12.00.

3rd—W. C. Donovan, Brockville, 24,320—8.00.

4th—Mrs. W. Cooke, 471 Sherbrooke, 24,317—$5.00.

Mr. Donovan's money will be sent to him at Brockville, the others will receive theirs if they call at 492 McDonnel street.

HEALTH BOARD CLOSES YEAR

Mayor Denne Urges Great Firmness in Dealing With Regulations.

TWO IN HOSPITAL.

Closing a year of considerable progress, the Peterborough Board of Health for 1928 held its final meeting this morning, under the chairmanship of Alderman Malcolmn McIntyre, and while the business slated for disposal was not extensive, it afforded an opportunity for optimistic expressions regarding the future of the Board. The work being mostly of routine nature, such as the receiving and passing of accounts, reception of several applications for sewer connections and consideration of regular reports, Chairman McIntyre, J. J. Turner, Mayor Denne and other members spoke briefly of the harmonious manner in which the board had functioned during the past year, while His Worship urged a greater firmness in dealing with those who challenged the regulations of the board with regard to making the necessary improvements conducive to the health of the city. The Sanitary Inspector was instructed to see that all milk pasteurization plants in the city conform to recommendations of the Department of Health.

The report of Queen Mary Isolation Hospital for the month of November was received at this morning's meeting. On November 1, there had been one case of diphtheria and one case of infantile paralysis in the hospital and that during the ensuing month, only one case of measles had been admitted. The cases of paralysis and measles were city cases, while the diphtheria patient had come from out of the city. One of the three had been discharged during the month, so that the number of patients in the hospital on December 1 was the same as one month pervious.

The color and shape of the eyes reveal character and disposition. They indicate types and racial origin. They form an interesting psychological study.

What are Your eyes saying today?

Your eyes have no voice, but they speak— they show moods and temper. They do more, they show your physical condition. Are they clear, bright, sparkling with health—or dull, with a yellowish tinge to the whites? This yellowish tinge is the signal of intestinal sluggishness—auto-intoxication and liver trouble. Don't neglect this warning of poor health to follow.

Women Drink Liquor Neat To Get Evidence; At Least One Finds Firewater Hard To Take

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Comely and daring women volunteers have joined the police here in closing saloons, taking up the work where Mrs. Maud Wilson, modern-day Carrie A. Nation, left off last Monday after wrecking a saloon with a hatchet.

Adopting a course more nearly within the law, the female dry crusaders, working with plain clothes officers, have purchased liquor at a half dozen saloons and helped in gathering evidence to substantiate injunction cases.

"Taking their liquor straight" is the hardest part of the self-imposed task, one of the assistant raiders to-day indicated. Her name, like those of the others, was not revealed.

"I went into three places," she said, "before I found a drink. Then I was really scared, because I knew I had to drink it, and I I don't drink. But I finally downed it.

"I thought the stuff would set me on fire, and I drank the glass of water that was served, mighty quick. I said 'see you again' as naturally as I could, and got outside."

IN POLICE COURT

If a brother-in-law had not chosen to pay them a friendly visit, and if he hadn't proceeded to become an altogether inebriated person forthwith, while the rest of the folks became hilarious in keeping with his mood, Harry Gassien and his wife, Annie Gassien, of 227 George Street, might not have appeared in Police Court this morning charged with allowing a disorderly house on the premises of which they were tenants.

Be that as it may, they pleaded guilty to the offence charged, and through their counsel chose the option of one month each in jail, in the face of difficulty in raising the two $50.00 fines imposed by the Magistrate. The couple have an unenviable record, according to the Chief of Police, including court proceedings in Lindsay.

Around the City

Another example of what may happen when bonfires are left smouldering was presented last night. At 12.30, the fire department received a call to the Cold Storage Plant in East City to put out a bonfire. The fire had been left early in the evening, without being thoroughly dampened and the high wind fanned it to a blaze, and blew the embers into dangerous proximity to the buildings. The Fire Department quickly put out the blaze, but it is likely that those responsible for the fire will be reprimanded.

Lilac Bushes Are In Bud As If Spring Were Here

Lilac bushes on Aylmer street must think this mild weather betokens spring and they are sending out little green shoots at the tips of their topmost branches, resembling buds. This lilac bush belongs to Dr. A. E. Hammond, and is on his lawn on Aylmer street, just north of Brock street.

The Examiner reporter this morning when he saw the lilac bush showing its first signs of awakening life had a distinct shock. This tree instead of laying in supplies of coals for the winter is preparing to bloom and leaf as though summer was just around the corner.

KNIFE USED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Dan T. Robinson is dead and his brother-in-law, Joseph F. Gallarnault, is under arrest on a charge of murder following a party at the latter's home, according to a special despatch from Tisdale, Sask., to The Winnipeg Free Press.

It is alleged that Gallarnault, in a tussle with Robinson, who was trying to keep him from molesting guests at the party, lost his head and slashed Robinson with a hunting knife.

Medical aid was summoned, but the wound proved fatal.

ILLUMINATED TREE AT SUB-STATION

Brightly Colored Lamps On Large Pine at Corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke.

The Utilities Commission staff has added a touch of beauty to the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrook streets in the erection of a large-sized pine tree. There is an air of completeness to the well-kept buildings and grounds, which is admired by passers-by during the day; but at night the same takes on another hue. This Christmas touch of green is dotted with vari-colored lights and silver tinsel, and when alight, the illumination can be seen from various directions, and is a very pretty sight, giving the corner a festive appearance and showing taste on the part of those responsible.

CUTTER CREW EXONERATED

Coast Guardsmen Were Within Rights in Firing On Rum Cruiser.

RUM RUNNER KILLED.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Coroner Frank T. Carmer, New Fane, said yesterday that his decision on the inquest into the death of Carl Anderson Lewiston, shot dead by the crew of the United States Coastguard cutter, Co-2364, while he and Edmond Sahr were riding in the cabin cruiser, The Bug, shelled by machine gun fire from the cutter on Thanksgiving morning, November, would exonerate the crew of the cutter in the killing. He said he would hold that the coast guardsmen were within the law in firing on the cruiser.

The decision will be filed with the Niagara County Board of Supervisors in a few days, Dr. Carmer said. Asked if the decision would contain any recommendations suggesting more care by the Federal agents in the use of firearms in law enforcement, the coroner said he was not prepared to make any statement in that respect at this time.

NO EPIDEMIC

cases of influenza in the country. Neither is the rate nearly comparable with the rate during the 1918 epidemic."

Five Deaths in Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Although five deaths have been attributed to influenza in Toronto, and doctors and nurses are still busy, doctors express no fear of an epidemic similar to those which ravaged the city in years gone by.

Hospitals to-day reported no new developments, and doctors were convinced that to-day's more seasonable weather will do much to check the spread of the illness.

Inspectors of various schools reported that many students who were affected had returned to their desks and the Board of Education said the demand for teachers to replace those on the sick list had decreased.

42 DIE OF "FLU."

TOPEKA, Kansas, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Forty-two deaths attributed to influenza and 68,843 cases of the disease, or other respiratory maladies, were reported in Kansas in the last week, Dr. Earle G. Brown, secretary of the State Board of Health, has announced.

In the preceding week the total number of cases was placed at 13,598, with three deaths.

Premier G. Howard Ferguson to-day asked Dr. G. W. Bell, Deputy-Minister of Health, to have a special investigation made in an effort to ascertain what steps might be taken by the province to stem the epidemic and minimize its result upon those affected. Dr. Bell said the disease has not been found to be virulent in any quarter yet.

Dr. Bell emphasized while the disease itself was not serious, complications may be, especially if due care is not taken during the convelescent period. Those affected with the disease in its incipient stages were warned against endeavoring to "carry on."

LADY HEATH LEAVES TORONTO IN DISGUST

Critical Stage Is Believed Passed

MAYOR DENNE APPROVES OF BOTH BY-LAWS

Both Votes Have Unanimous Support of City Council, Declares His Worship.

RECOVER FRANCHISE.

The Examiner Reporter Encounters General Approval in Several Interviews.

At the time of the municipal elections, January 1, Peterborough citizens will be called upon to approve or disapprove of the proposed purchase from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, of the gas plant, by the city, at a purchase price of $335,000.00 and to grant the Johnson Outboard Motors a fixed assessment of $10,000. They will vote upon the by-law relative to a fixed assessment of $10,000 for the Johnson Motors company.

To date, there has not been apparent any heated debate regarding the purchase of the gas plant, as many had expected, but in interviews with prominent Peterborough citizens, The Examiner encountered a general approval, with few exceptions.

Mayor Denne, in speaking of the by-laws, said:

"The Johnson Motor Company by-law is to give that company a fixed assessment of $10,000.00 for municipal taxation purposes for ten years, they to pay full school and local improvement taxes. This is the same treatment as the city gave to several other industries when they came here.

"The company, when they came to Peterborough, leased the Hope plant to assemble their outboard motors to test the market and location. They are satisfied, with their experience, with both, and if the by-law is carried, will exercise an option they hold and purchase the plant. They will put in more machinery and gradually increase the amount of manufacturing here, supply the British market and gradually take over from their United Stacts factory the supplying of the other parts of the Empire.

"This is a strong company, which employs about one thousand hands in Waukegan, Ill., and will be one of the important industries of the city. I feel sure that the by-law will receive the necessary two-thirds vote, for if it does not the city would be put in a position where it could not expect to compete with other places for new industries."

Unanimous Support

"The gas plant by-law, which, as well as the Johnson Motor company by-law, has the unanimous support of the members of the Council, is to authorize the purchase of that plant. At first, last spring, $360,000.00 was asked for the plant. By negotiations and bargaining, the price was reduced to $335,000.00, and in addition other properties have been included, as well as capital expenditures made this year after the first price was given and the utility equipment not at first included. The city's debentures are to be taken for the price, bearing 4½ per cent. interest, which is a low rate and money will be saved on that rate.

"The gas plant has been kept up in good condition, under Mr. Harry Beal's management, and the use of gas has been increasing. The generating plant is capable of making nearly three times the quantity now sold, and an increase in the consumption will not proportionately increase the cost of production.

"The purchase of the plant will recover from the city the street franchise, given about sixty years ago, and as there is no time limit to the franchise, it is very valuable; yet nothing is included in the price for this.

"The by-law is commended to the electors for their support."

Parliamentary member Approves

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., was one who spoke in favor of the city purchasing the gas plant from the Hydro Electric Power Commission. In voicing his approval, Mr. Bradburn emphasized several advantages of the city's ownership of the plant, as well commending the statement of figures provided by the Commission.

Change Is Noted In King

Slight Improvement Noted By Doctors, With Renewed Strength.

WORST IS OVER.

Only Recrudescence of Infection Can Cause Setback Now.

LONDON, Dec. 19 (Canadian Press).—The desperate battle which King George has been waging for his life continued somewhat in his favor to-day.

This morning's medical bulletin, like the two of yesterday, recorded improvement, even though slight. Despite the fact that His Majesty's gain has been slight, it has been definite and a more hopeful atmosphere prevailed among Palace officials in consequence.

This morning's bulletin, which was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett, Sir Hugh Rigby and Lord Dawson of Penn was as follows:

"The King has had a restful night. The slight improvement noted yesterday continues."

On the whole the situation was regarded as favorable and satisfactory, although it was emphasized that anxiety continues and must continue for some time. Uninterrupted progress for several days, it was said, would be necessary before real confidence in the outcome can be felt.

The developments of the immediate future are awaited anxiously, the possibility always being present of His Majesty suffering a setback and losing some of the ground so painfully won during the past two or three days. There was no disposition to minimize the fact that the royal patient's condition still was critical.

Month of Illness

It was a month ago to-day that the public was first informed that the King was ill. It has been a month of deepest anxiety for the nation, as what was first announced to be a feverish cold turned out to be serious congestion of the lung and pleurisy.

The critical phase of the illness which was poisoning the patient's system apparently was reached on December 2, while the official bulletins reported heart weakness and this period of most anxious suspense continued almost a fortnight until after December 12, when an operation was performed for chest drainage which seemed to have marked the end of the downward trend in His Majesty's case.

The physicians' consultation at Buckingham Palace this morning lasted about an hour. The Prince of Wales was in the Palace while the consultation was being held. He drove away shortly after the doctors' visit, holding his pet Cairn terrier, "Coro," on his lap. He seemed to be in a cheerful mood and motored to the Bath Club to watch the final in the squash racquets championship.

Queen Mary took her usual afternoon outing to-day, accompanied by Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles. Her Majesty visited the Zoo.

To this cheerful sign was addd the fact that Lord Dawson of Penn did not visit his royal patient at the usual hour this afternoon and no interim report regarding the King was issued. In Palace circles this combination of facts was interpreted as an indication that the improvement noted in the morning announcement had continued.

Almost Out of Danger

From private reports on the King's condition it seems that it is almost possible now to say that, so far as the effects of the operation or the blood-poisoning throughout the body are concerned—the two things the doctors mean when they speak of the "local" and "general" condition—the King might almost be pronounced out of danger excepting for the possibility of an unexpected recrudescence of the infection.

OFFERS FAIL TO HOLD UP MOBILIZATION

Bolivian and Paraguayan Troops Muster and Defense Funds Grow.

CONFERENCE TO ACT.

Both Countries Have Accepted Pan-American Mediation, Says Official Report.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 19 (Canadian Press).—Despite the prospect of a peaceful settlement of Bolivia's dispue with Paraguay, popular movements for national defense continued to-day. The Foreign Minister, however, informed the diplomatic represenatives of other countries that the garrison guarding the disputed district of Gran Chaco had been ordered to suspend operations. He said that this order was in line with Bolivia's acceptance of the good offices of the Pan-American Conference, which is meeting in Washington.

The popular funds being collected for national defense were growing steadily. Railway men banded together to buy airplanes for the army. The La Paz chamber of commerce was co-operating with the Government and helping to control prices and avoid speculation in foodstuffs.

Formal Acceptance

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 19 (Canadian Press).—The Foreign Office last night officially informed President Briand, of the council of the League of Nations, of Bolivia's acceptance of the good offices of the Pan-American Conference and reiterated her intention to conform with international obligations.

Victory for Peace.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 19. — (Canadian Press).—In the balance since December 6, the Bolivian-Paraguayan row will apparently end in a victory for peace. Both nations have announced that they are willing for the Pan-American Conference to mediate their differences.

Only last Saturday when fighting began again on the border, it appeared that war was inevitable. But the clash, while fierce in its nature, lasted only a short time. Renewed pressure was brought to bear on Bolivia and Paraguay by outside agencies and nations. First Paraguay sent word to the conference here that she was ready for mediation. Bolivia followed yesterday with a similar reply.

Enrollment of troops in Paraguay goes on, however, mobilization having been ordered after the till Saturday in which Bolivia was said to have been the victor. This war-like preparation is regarded in part as an outlet for the popular feeling caused by the quarrel. Bolivia announced that her troops had been ordered to stop their advance into the Gran Chago region which is claimed by both her and Paraguay.

Even before the second and last armed clash, Paraguay had signified her willingness for arbitration. Bolivia had insisted on "moral reparation" from Paraguay but this demand was not mentioned in her note accepting the good offices of the conference.

Crisis Was Reached

The quarrel between the two republics had reached the point of a crisis when the Pan-American Conference met. Immediately a special international committee was named to look into the trouble and to offer to conciliate. The committee has been standing by, but with the way cleared for action it had before it to-day a meeting to formulate concrete proposals. One, already in mind, was the suggestion that there be no further fighting.

Some members of the committee planned also to suggest that the international commission in Montevidea, Uruguay, established under the Gondra Pact, investigate and make a report on the facts to conference. This report would be taken up by either the special committee, or one to be named later. Argentina is the only American republic not represented at the Pan-American Conference on Conciliation and Arbitration and it was felt that she should be represented, if possible, when the differences between Bolivia and Paraguay are aired. Argentina, was one of the signers of the Gondra Pact.

Seeks Investigation

In her note accepting the mediation offer, Bolivia said she required that the first clash at Fort Vanguardia be investigated "without involving in the preliminary inquiry the questions at the bottom of the dispute."

The note stated that the territory controversy, which concerns a tract of 100,000 square files, had been submitted to arbitration at the suggestion of Argentina in December, 1927. A commission with Paraguay and Bolivian representatives is now meeting at Buenos Aires with settlement of the territory controversy in view.

PLANS MADE TO REDUCE RATES

Greater Opportunities For British Immigrants Are Announced By Department.

BOY SETTLEMENT PLAN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Following the negotiations by W. J. Egan, which have just been completed with the British Government, Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration and Colonization yesterday made public the measures which have been agreed upon to promote a larger flow of British immigration to Canada.

These include a substantial reduction in the general steamship passenger rate, continuation of the £2 ocean rate for families coming to work on the land, free passage for the children of such families and for other boys and girls coming under the auspices of a recognized voluntary society.

Boy settlement will loom large in the programme. Free passage is provided for boys between 14 and 19 coming to provincial reception and distributing centres. Provision has been made for family settlement in New Brunswick and for a further extension to complete the British three thousand family scheme.

Cottages will be erected in Ontario for occupation by British families as a result of participation by the government of that province in a tripartite agreement. Provision is being made for the training in the United Kingdom of women household workers.

It is pointed out in the statement, too, that the Canadian Government is using every possible means to facilitate medical examination in the United Kingdom without inconvenience to the immigrant.

Plans Outlined.

FEW BUYERS VISIT MARKET

Plenty of Fowl of Large Type Offered For Sale During Morning.

TURKEYS 44 CENTS.

There were few buyers on the farmers' market this morning, and only half a dozen carts on the open section, where the produce on sale limited itself to a few vegeables, dressed meat and apples.

Upstairs, the same scarcity prevailed as to patrons, but there was plenty of fowl, most of it of a very large type Fat geese abounded on every side and large turkeys were the rule. At a late hour the vendors held large supplies, still unbought.

Turkeys were quoted at 44 and 45 cetns a pound. A man on the open market offered his supply at 40 cents a pound. Geese were 25 to 28 cents a pound, ducks 28 to 30 cents and chickens might be bought all the way

POST OFFICE IS BUSY NOW

Ten Times Usual Number of Bags Sent Out To One Train.

STAFF READY.

The busiest scene of Christmas activity is no doubt presented at the Post Office. Two weeks or more ago the mails began to swell and grow, and now they are reaching their peak, promising a bigger and busier Christmas mail than the local Post Office has ever handled in the past.

In an interview with The Examiner to-day Postmaster Charles Lacheur said: "The people are certainly complying with our request and doing their mailing early. The mail for the Old Country was quite large, both letter and parcel many presents will be received by friends and relatives in England from Peterborough people. Every indication points to the fact that this will be the biggest Christmas mail we have yet handled. The five sub-stations have been very busy too, and these have relieved some of the pressure here at the main office, and they are a great convenience to the people.

"Already the mails are growing heavier and heavier, and within the next few days we will put on eighteen extra men, three inside and fifteen out with the letter carriers. To-morrow another truck will be added to help with the delivery of parcels."

To save the chance of one's carefully selected present not reaching its destination, and finding its way finally into the dead letter office, that place of messages gone astray, people are advised to write or print carefully their own address on each parcel sent; so that if the presetn for some reason cannot be delivered it may always be returned to the sender. Also the parcel should be wrapped strongly in good substantial boxes, and it was especially mentioned that shoe boxes do not enter into this category. If there are several separate articles in one parcel these should be most securely wrapped. The Examiner was shown one parcel containing three separate

Aviatrix Stayed Day

Lady Heath Was Angered at Report of Interview—Left in Hurry.

ARRIVES IN BUFFALO.

Piloted Her Own Monoplane, in Which Were Several Officials.

TORONTO, December 19 (Canadian Press). — Before flying to Buffalo to-day, Lady Heath, British aviatrix, said she had placed in the hands of a Toronto law firm the decision whether legal action should be taken against the Toronto newspaper which published an alleged interview concerning her views on the United States prohibition law. She termed the interview "the work of a reporter's imagination."

"The lawyers will take any action they may think necessary," Lady Heath said, before climbing into the plane, attired in a leopard skin coat, made from the hides of animals she shot in Africa.

Before leaving, Lady Heath wrote a letter to P. J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee, apologizing for her failure to attend a hockey game at which she was to have been the guest of the Ontario Hockey Association last night, and enclosing a cheque for $50.00 to be used to further Canadian women's amateur sport. Lady Heath is vice-president of the international body controlling women's sport.

Did Not Pilot Plane.

The monoplane, in which she arrived from Buffalo, yesterday was piloted on the return trip by Lieut Katzman. Because of the resentment she felts at the "false and misleading" articles, which she said the editor of the newspaper refused to retract, she said she would never return to Toronto. Later in the year she added, she may visit Montreal.

"I have been all over the Dominions and colonies, in every country in Europe," she said in her letter to Mr. Mulqueen, "and never met such discourtesy from a newspaper, or such rudeness from a person as I got last night from the editor."

As her plane was warming up for the flight, the British aviatrix again commented on the alleged interview. "I had intended returning to Toronto some time later, but now I won't," she said. "I was going to deliver some lectures at the University of Toronto, but that is out of the question now. I am never going to visit Toronto again."

Flying conditions were much improved over yesterday when Lady Heath took off from Leaside Aerodrome to-day in the big "Aristocrat" monoplane.

Arrives in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N.Y., December 19 (Canadian Press). — Lady Heath arrived in Buffalo to-day by airplane from Toronto, Ontario, where she hopped off at 10.30.

Lady Heath came here yesterday from Buffalo, after battling snow and winds all the way from the American city. Her cancellation of engagements followed the publication of an interview in an evening paper in which Lady Heath was reported as criticizing the American prohibition laws.

The newspaper report quoted her as stating that "I did get so fed up with the hole-and-corner prohibition drinking. I need a drink of beer openly just to make me feel normal again."

In her statement last night, Lady Heath indignantly denied the statement.

"I am practically a teetotaller," she said, "and I have a great respect for the American prohibition laws which I always endeavor to respect. It was utterly wrong to say that I criticized prohibition. The whole reference to alcohol is most undignified and quite untrue."

"It appears that I have to return to my own Empire to be insulted in this fashion.

"Owing to this press notice, I have cancelled all my public engagements in Toronto and am leaving for New York to-morrow morning."

ALDERMEN WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION

Three Have Definitely Thrown Their Hats in Municipal Ring.

MATTHEWS IN FIELD.

E. R. Wilson Will Not Stand For Re-election To Board of Education.

With nomination day only two days hence the municipal election campaign seems to be lacking much of interest of former years, and no new names are being suggested for the city council in which five seats will be vacated this year. Aldermen Nagle Phelan, Stanley Lowe, Harry Huffman, Malcolm McIntyre, and J. M. Greene have each completed their term of office. Several of these expressed their intention of running again, and some were rather noncommittal when approached by The Examiner yesterday.

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre, who had nine years of intermitten service on the Council, and who headed the polls in the big campaign of 1925, said last night, "When the election comes around I will likely be in the field again." Alderman Harry Huffman, who has done yoeman service during his one year in office, answered the reporter's question with enthusiasm. "Yes," said he, "my hat will be in the ring."

Alderman Nagle Phelan, nine years in the council and for eight years chairman of the finance committee, to-day said, "Yes, I'm going to run." Alderman J. M. Greene, who served for seven years on the Board of Education and who had had four years' experience in the Council, holding down the chairmanship of the Parks and Railways committee successfully, would not state his intentions to run or remain out this year. Alderman Stanley Lowe, with the same experience as Alderman Huffman, also declined to answer the reporter's question, saying, "I haven't really settled the matter as yet."

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, stated without any hesitation, his intention to run for re-election this year.

Four seats on the Board of Education will be vacated; the men completing their terms being J. F. Strickland, E. Reid, W. R. Turner, Jr., and E. R. Wilson. Two of the men, J. F. Strickland and W. A. Turner, are ill with influenza and The Examiner could not see them. Ernie Reid has had five years' experience on the Board and for three years has successfully handled the responsible position of chairman of the property committee. He said that although his duties on the board took up a great deal of his time, he would stand for re-election. E. R. Wilson, who as chairman of the building committee, did much of the work in connection with the new Collegiate, voiced his intention of not standing for re-election.

J. A. McKone was mentioned by several as a good man for the Board of Education; since he has had considerable experience.

Mayor Roland Denne said that he will most assuredly stand for relection.

The feeling of the members is that the activity during the session will show definite lines of policy popular with Ontario Liberals. The meeting continued in the afternoon with a full membership, except those who have sent word they are unable to be present on account of illness. Mr. Sinclair entertained the members at luncheon.

Policeman Practicing Wild West Gun Play Gets So Fast On Draw He Shoots Himself

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Thomas Pagni, traffic policeman, was practicing the fascinating art known as "quick on the draw."

He was getting pretty good. From a posture of absolute nonchalance he suddenly would drop his hand to his holster, whip forth the weapon and blaze away. It ceased to be a matter of seconds; it became a matter of split seconds.

It got so that officer Pagni's finger would curl around the trigger even as the weapon was leaping from its holster, so that the bullet was well on its way long before he could say "Jack Robinson."

It got so fast, in fact, that officer Pagni pulled the trigger before the gun was out of the holster; which explains why he was in the hospital to-day with a bullet in his thigh.

Blind Treasurer Of Baptist Tabernacle Fund Faces Charge of Taking $150,000 From Treasury

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press). — Private detectives, employed to investigate the financial affairs of Albert Nisbit, blind treasurer of the building fund of the Baptist Tabernacle, one of the largest churches of Louisville, who yesterday was reported short nearly $40,000 in his management of the building fund, resumed the investigation to-day after announcing that Nisbit's alleged peculations now may total $150,000.

In addition to the alleged shortage of church funds, Nisbit is now alleged to have defrauded close friends of thousands of dollars.

United Counties Appoint Clerk

MAJOR E. L. MACNACHTAN WILL SUCCEED FATHER WHO DIED ON OPENING DAY OF FINAL SESSION

New Appointee Represents the Third Generation of His Family to Occupy Dual Position.

COUNTY ROAD WORK.

Eight Miles of Connecting Links Were Paved During Year.

COBOURG, Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Major E. L. McNachtan was appointed yesterday clerk and treasurer of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham at a salary of $3,000 a year, immediately succeeding his father, Col. Neil F. MacNachtan, who died in his office on Monday, December 10th and was buried last Thursday. He had been assistant to his father for several years.

Major MacNachtan represents the third generation of his family to occupy this dual position. His grandfather, E. A. MacNachtan, was appointed counties' clerk and treasurer in 1863, and in the summer of 1891 death caused the first break in the line. It was then Neil F. MacNachtan was entrusted with the responsibilities of clerk and treasurer, and now his municipal mantle has fallen upon his son.

Reeve William Grills, of Seymour township, piloted the twin by-laws through the Council Tuesday afternoon after Reeve J. M Bygott, of Campbellford, moved for permission to introduce them. And in the second reading, when the blank space for the name of the appointee was to be filled, Reeve W. H. Nelson, of Percy township, proposed Mr. MacNachtan for the office and Reeve Bygott seconded the motion.

Should Seek Applications.

"Shouldn't we call for applications?" Reeve L. H. Giddy, of Port Hope suggested. "We should not move too fast. In all fairness to everybody I think applications should first be asked for."

Warden Davidson—When Ted got his position it was understood he was to fill his father's place.

Reeve Giddy — I have nothing against the assistant clerk, but I think we should ask for applications as we do in our own municipalities.

Col Fred Boggs, counties' solicitor, stated that it was legal for the council to proceed with the appointment.

Warden Davidson to Reeve Giddy—Is that satisfactory to you?

Mr. Giddy—No, Mr. Warden, I still think that a constituency the size of these counties should be given the opportunity of applying for these positions.

Warden Davidson—C. L. MacNachtan was getting $3,100 at the time of his death, and Ted was getting $1,200 as his assistant. Ted told me he was willing to start at $3,000 a year.

Reeve Bygott moved that the salary be divided $1,200 for the position of clerk and $1,800 for treasurer. Mr. McNachtan's bond was increased from $15,000 to $25,000.

Warden Davidson called for a standing vote on Mr. Nelson's motion designating Mr. MacNachtan, and the whole Council stood.

Miss Rena McMillan was appointed matron of the House of Refuge at a salary of $900 a year, succeeding her mother who died some months ago.

County Road Work.

George Greer, county road superintendent, presented his annual report to-day detailing an expenditure of $120,024.97 up to December 10, after a deduction of $1,784.52 receipts to November 1st. Mr. Greer's own summary of his department's activities was as follows:

On Road No. 8, Clarke Township, we constructed one steel bridge, twenty-four foot span and twenty-foot roadway, known as Kendal Bridge.

On Road No. 10, Hope Township, we constructed one steel bridge, forty-foot span and twenty-foot roadknown as Bickle's Bridge.

On Road No. 18, Hamilton Township, we constructed one concrete bridge, twelve-foot span and twenty-four foot roadway, known as Beaver Meadow Bridge.

On Road No. 23, Haldimand Township, we constructed one steel bridge, forty-foot span and eighteen-foot roadway, known as Shelter Valley Bridge.

On Road No. 31, Seymour Township, we constructed one steel bridge, seventy-two foot span and eighteen-foot roadway, known as Hoard's Bridge.

In Millbrook we constructed one steel bridge, forty-foot span and twenty-two foot roadway, known as Millbrook Bridge.

On the boundary between Victoria and Durham Counties, we constructed one steel bridge, forty-foot span

Department of Immigration Decides Joseph Gilbert Is Undesirable.

OTTAWA, Dec. 19. — (Canadian Press).—The Department of Immigration, following a board of inquiry at Timmins has ordered that Joseph Gilbert, alias Siminoff, must leave the country. Siminoff is a Communist agitator who entered the country as a visitor and then settled down here contrary to the provisions of the Immigration Act. He has carried on his propaganda from Cape Breton to British Columbia. The statement made at a meeting in Detroit that the Canadian Labor Defence League had interceded with the Prime Minister and got Siminoff off is officially denied. No cabinet minister or member of parliament has made representations on Siminoff's behalf, it was stated at the department yesterday.

WARDENS NEEDED IN NORTH ONTARIO

Fish and Game Associations Urge Establishment of Additional Hatchery.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—When the members of the Ontario Game and Fish Committee met the members of the Algoma Fish and Game Association yesterday the chief point that was urged upon their attention was the necessity of providing more game wardens to protect game in the district, which contains too great an area to be covered properly by the present staff.

The establishment of an additional fish hatchery here for the development of game fish, particularly speckled trout, was also urged as a means of combating the depletion of the streams. The proposal was the existing hatchery should be devoted entirely to the needs of the commercial fishermen.

DAUGHTER OF AUTHORESS IS 90 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Clinton Atwood Celebrates Occasion With Her Four Daughters.

LADY OF OLD SCHOOL

Mother Was the Late Mrs. Catherine Parr, Noted Canadian Naturalist.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 19.—Hrs. Clinton Atwood of "Ashelworth" celebrated her ninetieth birthday on Friday with her four daughters gathered about her and although not at all robust, Mrs. Atwood enjoys fairly good health and is cared for devotedly by her daughters. Apart from deafness she is in full possession of her faculties and is a remarkably clever woman, taking a keen interest in world affairs, and enjoying good literature and conversation with her friends.

She is the only surviving daughter of the late Mrs. Catherine Parr Traill, the noted Canadian authoress and naturalist, and has inherited her mother's love for the beauties of nature and also her understanding of wild life. A dainty figure and decidedly picturesque Mrs. Atwood is a lady of the old school, with a high regard for the manners and customs of the Victorian era, although fully appreciative of the advances of the decade.

Her two elder daughters are married, living within view of their picturesque old home, Mrs. F. H. Lingwood and Mrs. J. W. Todd, while the younger daughter lives with her mother, caring for her and enjoying her charming companionship. There are two sons, Clinton, the elder lives in Grand Forks, B.C. and G. Evans, the younger lives in Toronto. The serious illness of the latter has been a source of constant anxiety for some months past but it is hoped now that he is on a fair way to complete recovery.

CHANGE IN COAL MARKET NOTED

In 1923 People of Ontario Were Worried About Yearly Supply.

NOW FIGHTING FOR TRADE.

OTTAWA, December 19. — Canadian Press. — The great change that has overtaken the anthracite coal market in this country is described in the second progress report of the Dominion Fuel Board, made public yesterday. The report covers the period from 1923 to 1928. In 1923 the people of Ontario and Quebec were worried as to whether they could get enough fuel to keep them warm during the winter. Now the fuel companies are fighting for business.

"In 1928 an altered situation exists," says the report. "There is now a superabundance of both foreign and native fuels for all purposes. Coke, British anthracite, low volatile coals, and fuel oils are strong competitors of American anthracite in the household fuel trade, and the range of Alberta and Maritime coals is being extended through special provisions to Ontario and Quebec. Though still using large quantities of American anthracite we are no longer entirely dependent on this fuel, the producers of which are now fighting here to retain a declining market as they are in their own country."

Watch Tests Closely.

TORONTO, Ont., December 19. — (Canadian Press.) — The Ontario Government will look with even greater interest than before upon the tests to be made next spring of lignite deposits in the far north of the province, in view of the situation pictured by the Dominion Fuel Board in a report issued from Ottawa, Premier Ferguson said last night.

Ontario, he said, hopes to eventually work out her own complete economic fuel independence, he indicated.

Referring to the lignite deposits, Premier Ferguson said:

"We are hopeful that the coal up there by a briquetting process may serve a large part of northern Ontario but it looks as though transportation costs would prevent it coming very far south into the older portions of Ontario. As time goes on we may be able to solve the whole fuel problem."

Fish leather, made principally from the skins of sharks, porpoises and dogfish, is being used in America and Japan for army harness and equipment.

Clerk writing is going to be the most popular form of literature up to Dec. 24.—J. R. Wolf, Milwaukee Journal.

Loses His Wife On Way From Kingston Church; Judge Denies Him the Right To Marry Another

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Claiming that he has not heard from his wife since a short time after their marriage in Kingston ten years ago, Schuyler J. Alton, of Portland Township, Frontenac County, moved at Osgoode Hall yesterday for leave to assume that she is dead. The motion was dismissed.

Alton's counsel pointed out that he was married to Anne May Kirkpatrick at Princess Street Methodist Church, Kingston, in 1918. After the marriage, he says, he walked with his wife down Princess street and parted from her, she to go to her mother's home and he to a hotel.

Since then he had seen her only once, when he asked her to live with him. She went with her mother to Belleville, and from that time he claims he had no knowledge of her.

Mr. Justice Wright said he had no jurisdiction to grant Alton the right to marry again. He read a letter to the clerk of the court, which said that Alton's wife and her mother were living in Toronto, and that if Alton wished he could find them by advertising in the newspapers.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Dec. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Hercules Rollins, Sr., of Cooper, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently at their home which was tastefully decorated in gold and white, with streamers and bells. About sixty guests sat down to a sumptuous dinner served in the large dining room. The bride's table was graced with two beautiful bouquets of chrysanthemums, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Watt, of Peterborough.

The waiters were six young girls dressed in white and Rev. Mr. Adamson, of Eldorado acted as toastmaster, the first toast to "The King" being responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Hannah, of Belleville, and gracefully reponded to by Mr. Rollins. CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., December 19 (Canadian Press). — Canadian egg markets were holding fairly steady yesterday, with the undertone still inclining to be weak.

B.C. eggs are arriving freely and a sale is reported on spot at extras 58c, firsts 50c, pullet extras 48c. The market is inclined to be easier. The turkey market is barely steady. A car of Manitoba turkeys is offered here at specials 35½c, A grade 33½c, B grade 28c, f.o.b., freight 2½c.

Vancouver — The majority of the dealers here have now reduced their quotations to producers to extras 34c, firsts 31c, pullet extras 28c. Similar prices prevail at Victoria. Prices to retailers at Victoria are extras 39c, firsts 36c, pullet extras 33c.

Chicago spot unchanged, December refigeatos 33¼c, Januay 29¼c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 19. —(Canadian Press).—Unaware that the United States government crop report issued yesterday afternoon would prove bullish, most wheat traders leaned to the selling side of the market yesterday. In this connection an increase of 9,061,000 bushels in world's available stock of wheat counted as a special influence tending to pull values down, and the close was at the day's bottom level.

Final quotations on wheat were unsettled ⅝ to ½c net lower, with corn ⅛c to ⅝ to ½c off; oats at ⅛ to ¼c to ⅝ to ½c decline, and provisions varying from 5c setback to a rise of 15c.

Official figures on the area of domestic winter wheat sown this fall, 43,228,000 acres are materially below the average of latest private estimates, 45,489,000 acres. This bullish showing of the government report was emphasized by the fact that private reports had indicated a crop condition of 88.2 percent whereas the official estimate is 84.4. Washington figures on rye as well as on wheat likewise were bullish, compared with unofficial forecasts of late. However, nothing of this became known until after yesterday's trading in wheat was at an end.

Meanwhile, word of continued enlargement of world visible supplies of wheat, especially in Canada, acted as a weight on wheat prices here. World stocks were announced as totalling 396,000,000 bushels about 105,000,000 bushels more than the aggregate a year ago, and advices at hand indicated European demand for wheat would be little until at least after the holidays.

Besides, deliveries yesterday on December wheat contracts here were liberal, 254,000 bushels. News was also received that estimates of the Argentine exportable wheat surplus ranges from 190,000,000 bushels to 220,000,000 bushels and that except in a small area around Bahia Blanca all sections of Argentina have good yields.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness, but corn displayed relative steadiness, helped by notice taken that 30 percent of the corn visible supply is at Buffalo and the seaboard, a circustance implying that exporters are accumulating corn to offset sales abroad. On the other hand better weather was prevailing throughout most of the corn belt. Deliveries of corn yesterday on Chicago December contracts amounted to 385,000 bushels and there were 200,000 bushels of corn sold today to be put into store here.

Provisions were somewhat firmer owing to up-turns in the value of hogs.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, December 19. — There were frequent shifts of sentiment in the local butter market yesterday, but at the end of a quiet day's trading the market was generally reported as firm, with no quotable change in prices for finest and undergrade butter. The volume of business passing was small in a wholesale and jobbing way, and transactions were mainly to meet immediate wants. Dealers are quoting from 41¼c per pound for No. 1 pasteurized creamery solids, with unpasteurized firsts and pasteurized seconds selling at a cent a pound less. Withdrawals from storage stocks have not been exceptionally heavy for the week to date.

An active business continues in all grades of fresh and storage eggs, and prices are being well maintained, with wholesalers busy filling orders for the holiday requirements. Supply from the country is steadily increasing daily, milder weather aiding current production in Ontario. Storage egg markets are easy.

Poultry markets were active again yesterday, and dealers report a steady outflow of all lines of fresh poultry to retail distributors. Western turkeys continue to roll eastward and prices were barely steady for early offerings. The local market will handle large quantities of turkeys from Saskatchewan and Manitoba before the season closes. Quotations to Ontario shippers show no material change from late declines, although the values for local supplies will be largely influenced in the near future by the settlements for Western shipments, and charges without notice will be the rule.

A CALL TO YOUTH.

Premier Ferguson in a speech in Toronto the other night called upon young men to take a keener interest in public affairs.

The effervescing energy of this young country, the Premier said, required youthful enthusiasm for its direction, and consequently if opportunity were to be fully seized young men would need to take part in public activities and accept the responsibilities of public office.

Mr. Ferguson's call to youth is one that might be answered to the advantage of the country.

There is a place for the right type of young men in public life, not only in the Legislature and the Federal Parliament, but in the municipal arena.

Political parties are beginning to recognize that fact by organizing societies of young electors, the members of which are encouraged to take an interest in political issues and problems, and the educational value of this activity may eventually be reflected by a larger number of young men in public positions.

The problem seems to be to get the youth of the land to read the political news in the papers as readily as they now devour the sporting page—and the stock quotations.

When their interest in the former is as great as the latter departments there will be no need of appeals for service.

THIS MONEY TALKS FOR CANADA.

The fact that during the present year over two million dollars—possibly two million and a half—will have gone out of this country to European recipients will probably prove the most potent of all advertising mediums viewed from the angle of possible effect upon immigration.

Money talks—and as a factor in turning European eyes toward Canada, talks to some purpose.

Some of it will go to people in the British Isles and elsewhere as Christmas gifts, and it will be a tangible evidence of the opportunities Canada offers the industrious and the willing.

A great amount is mailed by new citizens in the West, either as refunds to friends in Europe who helped these newly-arrived Canadians to migrate or as assistance to relatives in coming to this country.

But no matter under what conditions this movement of money across the Atlantic has been carried out, it cannot fail to prove a most effective factor in calling attention to Canada as a land in which industry is rewarded.

The ready cash carries with it an argument more powerful than any that can be brought forward by the most eloquent of emigration agents, and more convincing than railway folders or Government moving pictures.

THE PREMIER'S BUSY DAY.

Efficiency experts reading the story of how Premier Ferguson held the fort alone at Queen's Park the other day in the absence of all the other members of the Cabinet might be inclined to recommend that some of the Ministers be struck off the pay roll and the Premier given more salary and told to run the affairs of the Province himself.

Mr. Ferguson not only had his own business as Premier and Minister of Education to look after, but during the non-appearance of other Cabinet members, because of illness or from other causes, also held down the offices of Attorney-General, Minister of Mines, Minister of Public Works and Highways, Minister of Lands and Forests, Minister of Health and Labor, Provincial Treasurer, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Agriculture.

He might have been expected to have contracted an acute case of writer's cramp signing documents during the day, but Mr. Ferguson finished strong enough to be able to give a public address that same night.

As a matter of fact, although this particular day was, of course, an abnormal one, the Premier does look after an immense amount of work, putting in hours that would cause a rebellion in any private business were executives called upon to follow such a schedule.

And at a salary that is a great deal smaller than private business pays for duties much less arduous and responsible than we people of the richest Province in the Dominion demand of the head of our Government.

THE WAVE-LENGTH MUDDLE.

The Examiner in discussing the appointment of a Canadian Radio Commission a short time ago suggested that the newly-appointed body might find the division of time on the air alloted to the different Canadian stations a matter offering a profitable field for inquiry.

The radio editor of the Toronto Globe in commending the point raised to the attention of the commission, explains the existing conditions as follows:

"Without mincing words about it, this situation is a 'hang-over' from the 'wave-length muddle' whereby two powerful Toronto district stations, CKGW (5-kilowatts power) and CFRB (4-kilowatts power), were forced to share time on 312 metres, while CFCA, a one-half-kilowatt station with its antenna inside the city limits, was given full time on 357 metres. At the same time Stations CKCL and CKNC, the popular pioneer battery stations, which had so recently spent many thousands of dollars in new studios and modern equipment, were summarily ordered off the 357 wave to share time on 517 metres in order to give CFCA a free hand for full time on the 357 wave, which privilege the latter station continues to enjoy.

"There should be no need of the commission going to Europe or elsewhere to discover just what action ought to be taken to straighten out this piece of wave-length bungling."

With that opinion The Examiner imagines most Canadian set-owners will be in thorough accord.

THE BIBLE.

One hundred thousand dollars is a sum suggested as a Canadian contribution next year to assist the British and Foreign Bible Society, which will arrive in debt next year at its 125th anniversary. As the Bible circulated by the society is the standard Protestant version, the society is limited to Protestant support. To the six million Protestants of Canada, therefore, a contribution of $100,000 to the British and Foreign Bible Society would mean an average of something less than two cents per head, or say ten cents per family. It does not seem to mean too much.

The British and Foreign Bible Society is absolutely non-denominational, within Protestant limits. The constitution of the society fixes its governing body in England as a committee of thirty-six, all laymen, six of whom must be foreigners residing in or near London, while of the remaining thirty, half are members of the Church of England and half are members of other Christian denominations.

The society has over 8,000 branches throughout the world, and during its existence has printed nearly three hundred million copies of the Scriptures, including 612 languages or dialects. In addition many other separate Bible societies exist in various countries, practically all offshoots of the British and Foreign, and have printed many additional million copies of the Bible in whole or part.

One asks if there can have been any civilizing influence in the world equal to or as great as the influence which the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society must have had during the past hundred and twenty-five years. For the Bible teaches in the highest degree of any book the world knows the brotherhood of man, and the duty of man to man from the viewpoint of love and toleration and unselfishness. When one reflects that this wonderful advocacy and promotion of that practice of what is best in our natures has been circulated in more than 600 languages of the world, and by hundreds of millions of copies in all—and that these books are read, for they are not printed except when they seem to be called for, and not circulated except where they seem to be wanted—one can reasonably assume that their effect in the world must have been almost incalculable.

The Bible—the version which has remained standard since the early reign of King James I.—has anchored the English language since that time. Sometimes Shakespeare is mentioned in that connection. Shakespeare, of course, counts. Shakespeare and the King James Bible were not far apart in point of time. Shakespeare was living when the King James Bible was published, and the bulk of his plays appeared less than a score of years earlier. Hamlet was first printed in 1604. But for every human being bred in the English language who has ever read Shakespeare or heard his plays, it is safe to say that ten thousand have read the English Bible. Shakespeare, of course, as well as the Bible, has had a great effect upon all writers and students; but many millions upon millions of people in the past three hundred years have read the English Bible, or heard it read, to whom Shakespeare's name or works mean as much as the name of Kubla Khan or the orations of Demosthenes.

Not merely was the English Bible of 1911 to anchor the English tongue, but it placed the language upon a noble plane. To say that the English Bible is a great piece of English literature, in addition to the fact that the Bible in any language is a great code of morals and a revelation of the Divine will, is a platitude. Simple, lucid, graphic, noble, the English of the King James Bible would have made it immortal had there been no morals and no inspiration in it; and the student to-day who would seek to achieve the most effective mastery possible of the English language could find no other book which would repay his study with a tithe of the value the Bible can give. It is indeed a well of English undefiled.

Cardinal Newman, who was a master of noble English prose, and who attributed to study of the Authorized Version whatever of force or merit there was in his own writing, said this of the prose of the Bible:

> "It lives on one's ear like music that can never be forgotten, like the sound of church bells which the convert hardly knows how to forego. Its felicities often seem to be almost things rather than mere words."

And of the Bible itself:

> "It is part of the national mind, the anchor of national seriousness. The memory of the dead passes into it. The potent traditions of childhood are stereotyped in its verses. The power of all griefs and trials of a man is hidden beneath its words. In the length and breadth of the land there is not a Protestant with one spark of religiousness about him whose spiritual biography is not in his Saxon Bible!"

And again:

> "Its light is like the body of heaven in its clearness; its vastness like the bosom of the sea; its variety like scenes of nature."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Sir Henry Drayton has ruled that it is illegal to give a bottle of liquor as a Christmas present. And in certain sections of Ontario it is unusual as well.

Premier Ferguson was the only Cabinet member on duty the other day. The theory seems to be, "Let Howard do it."

Municipal candidates are apparently suffering from an overdose of shyness, but Friday will drag the aspirants out into the open.

The "flu" has some advantages. Several Toronto candidates have had to eliminate some of their speeches.

The two bylaws to be voted on at the local municipal elections are running strongly in popular favor, and both look like winners.

The weather as well as depleted purses helps to convey the impression that Christmas is not far away.

A Thought

BEING AGREEABLE

The true art of being agreeable is to sopear well pleased with all the company, and rather to seem well entertained with them, than to bring entertainment to them. A man thus disposed, perhaps, may have not much learning, nor any wit; but if he has common sense and something friendly in his behavior, it concillates men's minds more than the brightest parts without this disposition.—Addison.

GOD'S MINUTE.

With my spirit within me will I seek Thee early.—Isa. 26:9.

* * *

Our Father in Heaven, we call unto Thee because we have called before and Thou didst hear us. Come unto us, Lord, when all is dark, and when trouble weighs us down. Lift us up again, that we may praise Thee and smile in our heart. For the labors of this day, give us free grace; for the hard road, the iron shoes of good resolution; for the hour that casts us down, calm us and lift us up again. Make us gentle Lord, with our loved ones. May we never give way to harsh words or unjust thoughts. Lord Jesus, listen to our prayer as we confess our sins before Thy Holy Cross. May we meet the Man of Sorrows now while we bend before Thee, so shall our sins fade away, and our hearts rejoice with a new joy. May we be resigned to Thy will, no matter what we must yield. Gather this little family about Thyself as doth the bird when the storm falls. Cover us with Thy love, and protect us in the hollow of Thy hand. O Lord, give us the power to pray aright, for we pray in Thy might. At last, Gentle Shepherd of our home folks, gather us all to Thyself in the dear Homeland, when the morning breaks and the shadows flee away. And this we ask in Jesus' name. Amen.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1928
(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read in this day's horoscope certain adverse signs that cause them to counsel caution.

Mercury's opposition to Mars is cause for avoiding important decisions or undertakings that have in them any strong element of risk.

Changes and journeys under this direction of the stars may be attended by unusual hazards. It is well to delay rather than to take any serious chances.

There is a fairly good aspect for routine matters, especially those connected with the retail trade, which should be extraordinarily good.

The seers point out that extremes of prosperity and lack of it will be increasingly evident in the new year when many economic questions are to come into public discussion.

Women are warned that while this configuration prevails men may appear much more chivalrous and charming than they really are. It is not an auspicious rule under which to make new acquaintances.

The young are supposed to be especially fortunate while this configuration prevails. They should be deferential to older persons who will be especially appreciative of attention.

Gossip may be prevalent today when an aspect supposed to incline unkindliness of judgment is strong.

In the new year the general reactionary spirit will cause scandal to be more perilous to social standing than it has been in recent years.

The charm that is believed to belong to gay divorcees is to vanish, the seers forecast, and again the modest dignified type of girl will flourish.

This is not a favorable day for travel by air, but all may be well if the weather is studied.

Again unusual storms are indicated and earthquakes may be expected in places where they are seldom experienced.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect a year of changes. Some sort of fraud in which they may be easily victimized is indicated.

Children born on this day are likely to be endowed with great energy. Both boys and girls may be exceedingly progressive and even radical in their ideas. They will enjoy excitement probably, for they are on the cusp which brings them Capricorn influences.

SENTENCED TO DIE

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 19—(Canadian Press.)—Death in the electric chair was sentence pronounced yesterday for David Shanks, negro, who last August brutally beat and killed Miss Jeannie Meta Constance, post graduate student of Northwestern University, after waylaying her at night.

Judge Denis J. Normoyle overruled a motion for a new trial and set the execution for Feb. 15.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS—the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth, and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna had married without love, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her heart. As the years pass, though Hugh has gone to China, they realise that they love each other more than ever. On the night of the Little Flapper's eighteenth birthday ball Hugh returns. Marna, overjoyed at seeing him, faints. The Big Flapper, Biddy's friend, DOLLY BENSON, says she adores him.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XII—MRS. BLAIR'S PLAINT

Marna stood suddenly still, her hand falling from his shoulder.

"I don't want to dance any more," she said. They went together to the supper-room, which was almost deserted, and sat down at one of the many small tables.

Marna leaned back in her chair with a long sigh, and Hubbard asked again anxiously:

"Are you tired?"

"I believe I am, after all."

His eyes looked pathetically angry.

"You don't take enough care of yourself. You do too much."

"What do you mean?"

"That you are not looking well. You're thinner than you were when I went away, and there are shadows under your eyes."

She tried to smile.

"You forget that I am five years older than I was when you went away."

Hubbard laid his hand over hers as her fingers nervously clutched the table edge, and she winced.

"Don't—oh, don't!" she said in a shaken voice; and then as he withdrew his hand she looked up at him, her eyes feverish, her cheeks pitifully flushed as she whispered: "You're not angry with me?"

"Angry!"

"And you do—oh, you do still love me, don't you?"

If it had cost her her life she could not have kept back the almost inaudible question.

"I love you as I have always loved you, and as I shall always love you!"

Marna caught her breath on a little sob, and took up her untouched glass of champagne.

"All my love, Hugh!" she whispered with white lips.

"And mine to you, my dear," he answered.

"I've never seen Marna look better," George Paget said delightedly to Hubbard, when later on in the night the two men found themselves together. "'Pon my word, if it didn't seem so silly, I should be inclined to say that faint had done her good, don'tcherknow!"

Hugh Hubbard glanced across the room to Marna, and quickly away again.

"Look what a color she's got!" Paget went on, delightedly. "Hark at the way she's laughin'! Does you good to hear it—eh, what?"

"Yes."

"Suppose it's nothing serious for a woman to faint," Marna's husband went on more compatibly. "Though I must admit I thought it was a bit out of fashion. Faintin' hardly seems to go with short skirts and shingled independence—eh?"

"Hardly."

Paget clapped his friend on the back.

"You haven't got much to say for yourself," he accused him heartily.

Hubbard roused himself with an effort.

"I'm afraid I've forgotten my party manners," he apologized.

"Nonsense. You ought to hear how popular you are with the flappers tonight!" Paget chuckled. "My nose is quite out of joint. Little Biddy was flustered to death, bless her, when she heard you were comin' to her party."

Hubbard smiled absently; his eyes had wandered again to Marna. Her flushed cheeks and too-bright eyes did not deceive him, nor her high-pitched, excited voice, and his heart ached for her and for his own impotence.

He told himself bitterly that he had been a knave and a fool to come home, and yet he knew he could not have stayed away any longer. Like Marna he had had to make sure, to hear from her own lips that she still loved him.

"You ought to find a wife to take back with you," Paget said genially. "Nothing like marriage to make you happy, don'tcherknow!"

Hubbard laughed, not very mirthfully.

"You are judging from your own experience?" he asked.

"Of course." George Paget twirled his monocle on its wide ribbon. "I'm the luckiest dog in the world," he said, suddenly grave. "Should like to see you as happy as I am, Hugh. 'Pon my word I should."

"I am sure you would."

Paget regarded his friend with affectionate eyes.

"Lots of pretty girls in the world, you know," he submitted boyishly.

Hubbard laughed.

"Look here," he threatened, "if you're going to start matchmaking, my name's Walker!"

Paget laughed with him.

"I shall get Marna to take you in hand," he threatened. "Marna knows the sort of woman to make you happy—eh, what? Don't you think so?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Blair was crossing the room towards them, her long, old-fashioned skirts trailing the floor, and, more to change the subject than from any real desire to know, Hubbard asked:

"Who is this lady, George?"

George stuck his monocle in his eye.

"Mrs. Blair. Jolly nice woman. Looks a bit out of the Ark—eh? Got a son—jolly nice chap! Name of John. Comes of a good old stock. Should like to see him take a fancy to Biddy, but afraid he's already sweet on Dolly Benson——" He broke off as Mrs. Blair joined them. She was a good-looking woman, with kind, motherly eyes and a pleasant smile.

Her rather stiff silk frock was almost high at the neck, and above it she wore an old-fashioned dog-collar of valuable pearls. Her hair was drawn severely back from her forehead and fastened in a tight knot on top of her head. "Out of the Ark." So, behind her back, the Big Flapper disrespectfully described her, but to her face even the Big Flapper was always respectful. Out of the Ark in appearance Mrs. Blair might be, but her mind was as up-to-date and tolrant as the most modern woman and she had a heart of gold.

She looked very directly at Hugh Hubbard, and laid a hand on his arm.

"Come and talk to me," she commanded.

She smiled at George Paget.

"An old woman's privilege," she said, and led Hugh away. "I know we haven't been formally introduced," she told him. "But I am Mrs. Blair—that's my son across the room, dancing with Biddy. I know who you are. Your name is Hugh Hubbard, and you've just come from China. Let's sit down, shall we? I want to talk to you."

Her refreshing bluntness amused Hubbard. He found her a chair and brought one up for himself.

"What do we talk about?" he asked. "And may I smoke?"

"You may do anything you like if you will answer me one question."

"I will if I can, certainly. What is it?"

Mrs. Blair moved her long skirts aside a little to avoid the many people passing to and fro.

"Where are George Paget's eyes?" she demanded.

Hubbard turned and looked at her blankly.

"George's eyes?"

"That's what I said, yes. You've known him for a good many years, haven't you?"

"Nearly all my life."

"Well, then, where are his eyes that he can't see how ill his wife looks?"

Hubbard stared at her, and the color slowly left his face.

"I don't understand," he said at last with an effort.

Mrs. Blair spread her white hands deprecatingly.

"I think you do—at least, I thought you did this evening when Marna fainted."

Hubbard made an inarticulate sound.

"I don't understand," he said again rather hoarsely; but Mrs. Blair went on bluntly, as if he had not spoken:

"That Was no ordinary faint, Mr. Hubbard. Marna's not the type to faint because a room's hot. She'd have enough sense to get out of it in the air. She's ill. That's why she fainted; she's been ill for months—I very nearly said years—only folks are so blind, they can never see beyond the end of their own nose."

She turned her kind eyes to him again.

"I thought perhaps you'd see the change in her, as you've been away so long," she went on. "You're a man of sense; that's why I wanted to have a talk with you. I hoped you would be able to say something to George. He's as blind as a bat. I've no patience with him; he's nothing but a boy masquerading as a man. He'll let his wife die before he wakes up to his responsibilities!"

Hubbard sat very still, staring down at the floor. His cigarette had gone out, and he made no attempt to re-light it.

"Perhaps you think I am making a fuss and interfering in things that do not concern me," Mrs. Blair went on bluntly. "But, as it happens, they do concern me. I am fond of Marna, and I'm sorry for her."

"Sorry for her!" There was a note of weary irony in Hubbard's voice.

Mrs. Blair snapped him up almost rudely.

"Yes, sorry for her! I suppose you think there's no occasion for me to be sorry for her—is that it? I suppose you think, like the rest of the world, that she's got everything she wants, and is to be envied. Perhaps you even agree with little Biddy, and consider her the luckiest lady alive—eh?"

She gave the pearl dog-collar a little impatient twist.

"Well, if that's what you think, I've been mistaken in you, Mr. Hubbard, I thought you were different to the rest—more understanding—"

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

(By Howard R. Garis)

UNCLE WIGGLY'S CHRISTMAS HORN

Walking about his hollow stump bungalow, with his paws clasped behind his back, which showed that he was thinking, Uncle Wiggily was sort of talking to himself and saying:

"I must find a large one, and one that will make a loud noise."

"Are you speaking of an adventure you hope to have, Mr. Longears," asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. The muskrat lady had just tied a new pink ribbon on her tail which showed that she was through her housekeeping work for the day and was going out to the movies.

"No, I wasn't speaking of an adventure," said the rabbit gentleman.

"I was talking about a Christmas horn that I must get soon to blow on Tuesday morning, which is Christmas."

"Oh, that's so" squeaked Nurse Jane "I remember now."

For well she knew that, for many years, each Christmas morning Uncle Wiggily was the first to hop out of bed. He would slide down the stair banister railing to see if the Christmas tree was in place, with its lights and presents. He would also look to see if the stocking were filled for those of his little bunnies who would rather have their presents come that way than on the tree.

And each Christmas morning, when he had gotten up early to slide downstairs and see that all was in readiness Mr. Longears had blown a horn. This was to let the little bunny girls and boys know that everything was all right so they could come rushing down with whoops of joy to see what Santa Claus had brought them.

"And now it is time, once more," said Uncle Wiggily to Nurse Jane, "to go out and find a large, loud Christmas horn."

"And may good luck go with you!" exclaimed the muskrat lady.

"I had rather good luck would come back with me!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "I nearly always have good luck going. It is when I start to come back that the Bad Chaps chase me. But as it is so near Christmas I have an idea the Bad Chaps may be good to fool Santa Claus."

"Don't trust them!" warned Nurse Jane, and then Uncle Wiggily hopped on his way to find the Christmas horn. He tried some in the two and three cent store, but they were too small. The horns in the five and six cent store were not loud enough. And it wasn't until he went in the eighteen and nineteen cent store that the bunny rabbit gentleman bought a horn that was big and loud enough to suit him.

Carrying the horn over his shoulder as if it were a gun, Uncle Wiggily began to hop back toward his bungalow. And then, just as he had said, he saw one of the Bad Chaps running toward him. It was the Bob Cat and he had his silly little tail dangling behind him. Only you could hardly see it, the tail was so small.

"Well, at last we meet again!" yowled the Bob Cat, and he began to rub his red tongue over his white teeth to get them sharp and ready for the picnic lunch he expected to have soon. "I've got you, Uncle Wiggily!" and the Bad Chap caught the rabbit in one claw.

"Dear me!" thought Mr. Longears. "This is a very sorry kind of adventure, and so near Christmas, too What can I do?"

Then Uncle Wiggily thought of the big horn he carried, and he said:

"Oh, good Mr. Bob Cat! You wouldn't carry me off to your den and nibble me before I hear how my new Christmas horn sounds, would you?"

"Would I what?" snarled the Bob Cat. "And don't call me good, for I'm Bad! BAD I TELL YOU!" and he roared this very loudly.

"All right, Bad Mr. Bob Cat," said bunny. "Will you please do me the favor to blow this Christmas horn for me so I can listen to how it sounds before you nibble me? Will you?"

"Oh, yes, I suppose so!" snarled the Bad Chap. "Give it here and I'll blow it!" So he puffed out his cheeks and blew a loud blast that went echoing among the hills. "How's that?" asked the Bad Chap.

But Uncle Wiggily played a joke. He pretended he hadn't heard the horn at all, though he had, so he said:

"Well, go on, I'm waiting!"

"Waiting for what?" growled the Bob Cat.

"To hear you blow my Christmas horn," said the bunny.

"Good land!" cried the Bob Cat. "Didn't you hear it? You must be deaf! Well, listen to this". So he puffed his cheeks and blew twice as hard, and he blew such a blast that he blew out all of his teeth—every last tooth he blew out and then, of course, he could not bite the rabbit until some new teeth should grow in and that would not be for quite a while.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny when the Bob Cat dropped the horn and looked at his teeth all over the ground. "I fooled you!" And, picking up the Christmas tooter the bunny hopped to his bungalow safe and sound.

And if the wind doesn't blow the door shut on the pussy cat's tail I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Christmas candy.

Lyrics of Life

THE UNSUNG SONGS

We have a lot of little songs
That no one ever knew,
Some song that just to me belongs,
As yours belong to you.
They are the little wordless things
That never make a sound,
The little songs your own heart sings
When no one is around.

We have a lot of little pray'rs
Just running through the head,
That help us with our daily cares,
The pray'rs we never said.
They are our wordless wishes when
The day is rather dre
The pray'rs that neithe nor men
Shall ever really hea

And yet I wonder? Maybe He
Can hear that simple thing,
Can even hear the melody
That mortals never sing.
And men perhaps may climb the stairs,
Who never prayed a word.
And find, of their unspoken pray'rs,
That all of them were heard.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY STARS ARE SUPPOSED TO CONTROL US

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

"Do the stars do it?" inquires a correspondent. She wants to know if our acts are caused by the stars and other heavenly bodies, and if there is anything in the occult science of astrology and the reading of horoscopes.

This is a very interesting subject. Astrology is perhaps the oldest attempt at science and was not distinguished from astronomy until modern times. It dates back to about 3000 B.C. and was given to the world by the ancient Babylonians. At first the stars were read for kings and nations, with whose destiny they were supposed to have some connection. Gradually it came to have significance for individuals and the reading of horoscopes became popular. It is still popular in some quarters.

We often speak of being "moon struck" and refer to an insane person as luny or a lunatic and the institutions which care for the demented as lunatic as lunatic asylums. Of course the word lunatic comes from luna, meaning moon. This shows the effect of astrology and the notion that the sun and moon and planets as well as the stars have a lot to do with human conduct and affect human beings for better or for worse.

In many countries the heavenly bodies were worshipped as gods. That warmth of the sun is essential to animal and plant life it was easy to see and from that to argue that the other heavenly bodies must also be connected with man's destiny. The true causal relationship between man and his environment had not yet been worked out.

Moreover, from the very beginning, man has had need of a scapegoat to ease his conscience and save his ego from humiliating defeats. He might just as well blame the stars for his failures as anything else. If you had hard luck you were born at the wrong time under the wrong star or unfavorable conditions of the stars relative to each other. If you were unusually successful you were born under a lucky star.

This is a type of fatalism that men have always found handy. What will be will be. Our future is all sealed and settled for us. This attitude relieves one of responsibility and considerable worry. The fatalist seldom develops an inferiority complex.

But the stars have nothing to do with our destiny.

Why do you do what you do. Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper, enclosing stamped envelope for reply.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Dominion Park Had Net Profit of $15,850, As Compared With Losses in Preceding Three Years.

The 23rd annual report of the Dominion Park Co., Limited, which owns and operates a well-known amusement park in the east end of Montreal, shows a substantial improvement over the preceding year, although, according to the report, weather conditions were only slightly better than during 1927, when they were the worst in the company's history.

Gross earnings for the fiscal period to October 31, 1928, amounted to $230,024 as against $184,831 in the preceding year, and after deducting operating expenses there was a net profit of $15,850 in contrast with net losses shown in the preceding three successive years. The improvement is attributed to strict economy, but not at the expense of the company's property, which was maintained, the report stated, in first class condition.

During the year bonded indebtedness was reduced by $10,000 and now stands at $80,000. With favorable weather, the report states, the company may look forward to more gratifying receipts

Corn, oats and provisions were relatively easy, with corn starting unchanged to 1-3c. off, and subsequently undergoing a slight general sag.

WHEAT POOL IS PRAISED

Premier Baldwin Eulogizes Effort As Greatest Co-operative Move Ever Made.

MACDONALD APPROVES.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The Canadian institution which made the greatest impression upon Premier Stanley Baldwin and Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald was the wheat pool, these statesmen told the annual meeting of the Empire Parliamentary Association yesterday. Premier Baldwin, proposing the resolution of thanks of the British Branch of the Association to Premier Mackenzie King and all Canada, who made last summer's visit of the Association such a success, said that the wheat pool seemed to him to be one of the most remarkable attempts at co-operation in self help any body of men had made.

The Prime Minister also cordially endorsed an editorial in a Canadian paper which said that had there been anything corresponding to the Empire Parliamentary Association 150 years ago, Britain would not have lost the United States.

Mr. Macdonald, in seconding Mr. Baldwin said that in his opinion the wheat pool was one of the most extraordinary examples of co-operation to be found in the world. He also eulogized the Hydro Electric systems of the Dominion. Above all Canada had shown how old wounds could be healed, he said. Quebec was a great place for political contemplation, he added. "If we here could understand that political genius which has healed old rivalries we should have gone far towards discovering the solution for many problems on this side of the world."

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

E. W. Tood, formerly an Ontario Government geologist, has just prepared a report on the Greene-Stabell Mines, Limited, in Dubuisson township, near Amos, Quebec. This property was formerly known as the Hurricane Gold Mines and was acquired recently by J. E. Hammell of Toronto. The report states that on the 300-foot level the vein has been shown to run in excess of $13.00 per ton over a width of four feet and for a length of 350 feet. Beyond this, the ground is faulted and disturbed. The same condition prevails on the 450 and 600-foot levels. It is intended now to run drifts eastward on the 450 and 600-foot levels beyond the faulted area where, it is hoped, a better condition will prevail. Mr. Todd is consulting geologist for the Greene-Stabell and his report shows an optimistic tone throughout. Some very high values were secured and there is small doubt that the average for the 300-foot length mentioned on the three levels will run higher than $13.00. The management, however, preferred to be on the safe side and grade this as $13.00 ore. It is the intention to, in due course, sink to 1,000 feet and open up the property to this depth. A plant capable of operating this deep is in order, but has not yet been taken in.

Green-Stabell is capitalized at $3,000,000 of which 1,000,000 shares were paid for the properties, 1,000,000 issued for development purposes and 1,000,000 remaining in the treasury. The venture has been financed privately by J. E. Hammell who intends to go ahead with development to 1,000 feet, by which time, it is believed, the property will have been examined sufficiently to determine it's importance.

Rouyn advices are to the effect that the Amulet will be in high grade ore in both drifts on the 250-foot level by the end of the month. It is difficult to see how this conclusion is arrived and conclude that the wish is father of the statement. Important developments are looked for at this property in the near future.

It is rumored in Toronto that the Canadian Associated Goldfields have made good progress with their reorganization plans and that there is a strong possibility of the property reopening in the spring.

Strength in International Nickel is claimed by some in close touch with the situtaion to indicate much greater progress in connection with the merger with Mond than most people surmised. One report states that the consolidation will be arranged for very shortly and that an announcement is to be expected in the near future. The more this situation is viewed, the result appears to be a gradual swinging over to the merger side. It is understood that certificates of the new Nickel will be ready after December 20th.

It will be a cold day when Kirkland Lake fails to send down some news. It is now said that the Baldwin-Kirkland will soon re-organize and reopen the mine. It is also rumored that the Four Nations property is reorganizing. Lake Shore's new shaft is now reported at 1,500 feet.

New York Prices Soar In Heavy Buying Session

NEW YORK, December 19. Canadian Press. — With the call money market still showing no signs of the expected stringency, stock prices moved upward in an impressive fashion to-day as buying orders were generously distributed over a wide list of copper, motor accessory, steel, automobile, merchandising, farm implement shares and specialties. At least two score issues moved up 2 to 5 points, with a sprinkling of others soaring 6 to 36 points.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

Mandy

We understand that the Mandy shaft has now been pushed to a depth of approximately 700 feet with an immediate objective of 1,000 feet. This work should be completed in February. A new compressor is being installed and when this is in operation sinking and lateral work will be pushed along much more quickly. Developments at the lower horizons to date have been somewhat uncertain and the deeper work is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

Ajax

We are informed from Chatham that Ajax have completed drilling their No. 3 well. The gas pressure encountered at a depth of approximately 2,300 feet was said to be from 700 to 800 pounds per square inch. It is expected the well will be shot to-day somilar to that of their No. 2 well brought in last summer. We understand that without this third well Ajax are earning 10 per cent. on their issued capital.

Siscoe

An Amos report received Monday stated that important ore intersections had been cut by diamond drill below the 500 foot level of Siscoe. The report stated that after the assays had been rechecked the first intersection of seven feet gave $14 and the second intersection of 14 feet gave $22 a ton.

Malartic

From a reliable source we learn that the last two drill holes put down by Malartic encountered more than 20 feet of $8 ore. The values were said to be commercial over a width of 50 feet at the 600 foot horizon.

Teck-Hughes

Without developing new ore the Teck-Hughes mine has been put in shape to maintain present production of $450,000 per month and to carry on two major mining operations simultaneously. These consist of sinking the present central shaft to 3,000 feet and the new shaft to 3,600. Little new development news may be expected before early spring when the central shaft will be completed. By that time ti is confidently expected the continuation of both the main and south ore systems will be found. There is ample ore ready for mining above the 13th levels sufficient for several years at present production rate.

Newbec

The shaft at Newbec has now reached a depth of 160 feet. Progress was held up slightly owing to the necessity of installing a new hoist. About five feet daily is being made.

Lartic

Good progress is being maintained in shaft sinking at the Lartic property under option to Newbec. The shaft is down to 200 and will be continued to 250 where a station will be cut. When this is completed, crosscutting will be carried out on the 125 and 250 to intersect a very fine surface ore zone.

Granada

A new vein with a width of approximately 3½ ft. and showing visible gold was intersected by Granada at the 625. As yet this vein has not been correlated to any other on the property and was cut some 120 feet south of the shaft. The north crosscut is now very close to where the No. 2 vein should be intersected. Similarly the south crosscut on the 375 is also nearing its objective and news from both levels should be available in a few days.

COMPANY STARTS CONSTRUCTION OF DAM ON THE GATINEAU RIVER

Dam Will Form Part of One of Largest Storage Systems in World.

DRAINS LARGE TERRITORY.

Expected Will Be Completed and Ready For Operation Next Summer.

Gatineau Power Company, controlled by Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation—a subsidiary of International Paper Company—has commenced construction of another storage dam on the Gatineau River in the Province of Quebec. Work will be carried on throughout the winter and it is expected that the dam will be completed and ready for operation next summer.

The new dam—storing the waters of Lake Cabonga—and the present Mercier storage dam, will form reservoirs ranking with the large water-storage systems of the world. The two reservoirs will have a combined capacity of 145 billion cubic feet, or one and two-thirds times that of the reservoir created by the famous Assouan dam on the Nile River in Egypt.

Located in the heart of one of the great timberland areas of Canadian International Paper Company, the Cabonga dam will be 46 miles above the Mercier dam, and will form a reservoir of 45 billion cubic feet capacity. The new reesrvoir will materially assist the Mercier reservoir in regulating the flow of the Gatineau River, on which Gatineau Power Company has completed three hydro-electric plants within the past two years.

290,000 Horsepower.

Two of thees statiops are within six miles of the city of Ottawa, and have a combined designed capacity of 290,000 horsepower, of which 232,000 horse power is installed and in the process of installation. The third station, the Paugan plant—thirty-five miles north of Ottawa—has an installed capacity of 204,000 horsepower, and came into operation on October 1, when it commenced delivery of 80,000 horsepower to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. This power is being distributed by the commission in the Toronto area to supplement the power now supplied from Niagara Falls, and is being delivered by Gatineau Power Company under a thirty-year contract, the quantity increasing annually to a maximum of 260,000 horsepower on October 1, 1831, which rate is continued throughout the life of the contract.

Progress in hydro-electric development in Canada has been particularly rapid lately as a result of expanding industrial activities. In this development Gatineau Power Company in a few years has become an important factor, and now ranks as one of the largest producers of electric power in the world.

JUDGE ACQUITS GANG FOREMAN

James McKissock Found Not Responsible For Death of Bernard Watson.

RAILWAY EMPLOYE.

LINDSAY, December 19. — James McKissock, of Trenton, was tried before his Honor Judge Swayze, in the County Court Judges' Criminal Court on a charge of criminal negligence, causing the death of Bernard Watson, on October 18, 1928, on the Canadian National Railway line, north of Lindsay.

Mr. McKissock was the foreman of a Marion derrick, which was lifting rails and placing them on flatcars, and during the operation the derrick skidded along the rails upon which it operated and killed Bernard Watson, who was sitting, or resting, at the end of the flatcar upon which the derrick was standing.

Foreman McKissock did not know of the presence of Mr. Watson upon the end of the flatcar, and the Judge found that he was not guilty of any breach of duty, and that Bernard Watson was in a place that he did not have the right to be. A large number of C.P.R. and Canadian National Railway men were witnesses.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared in the defence of Mr. McKissock, and J. E. Anderson, Crown Attorney of Lindsay, appeared for the prosecution.

PRINCE APPEALS FOR HELP FUNDS

Supports Lord Mayor's Invitation To Subscribe For Miners.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).—An earnest appeal for help for the families of unemployed miners in the depressed coalfields districts of the country was issued by the Prince of Wales last evening. The text of his messsge was as follows:—

"On my return I have been painfully impressed by the suffering which exists in the distressed mining areas and I desire to make a direct and personal appeal on their behalf. We must all joint in one combined national effort to help the women and children of these areas.

The Lord Mayor's fund, supported by the Lord Mayors, Mayors, and Lord Lieutenants of the country and assisted by the central coalfields distress funds ogranization offers us the opportunity of doing this.

"At the Lord Mayors' invitation I have accepted the position of patron of this fund and I ask everyone to contribute to it generously according to his means. Let us recapture the spirit of the war when we recognized every effort made by the Government as a new call to individual self sacrifice. The government have their duties but each one of us has also the individual duty of showing in a practicaly way our determination to alleviate suffering and rekindle hope among these distressed fellow countrymen of ours."

(Signed) "Edward P."

The government is taking active steps to bolster the Lord Mayors' fund by contributing $750,000 to equal the amount already subscribed and promising to match the further amounts that will be collected.

Peterboro Gas Plant Is Modern

This plant which the citizens have an opportunity to purchase by voting in favor of the by-law submitted at the coming municipal elections is a modern, up-to-date one, and in a well-maintained state of repair.

The method of manufacture is one known as water gas process, enriched with light oil. Gas is produced by steam passing through hot coal or coke and oil is sprayed in at a later stage of the process to enrich the gas and improve its heating qualities. The gas is cleansed and cooled by passing it through a process to remove tars, etc. It is stored for use in large gas holders from which the gas is distributed throughout the city by modern methods.

The following cities in the Province of Ontario are some that have the same process of manufacture:

Kitchener	Kingston	Ottawa
Galt	Brockville	Oshawa

The mains distributing the gas are ample to provide an adequate service to domestic, commercial and industrial users. The gas is delivered through special mains to centres of distribution at high pressure. At these centres the pressure is lowered and distributed to users at the right pressure for use in gas appliances. By this modern means pressure at the stoves and other appliances is maintained constant, regardless of the quantity used. At the same time the mains are capable of meeting larger demands for use.

The plant is in excellent state of repair. Periodical renewing of parts such as in the gas retorts and replacing of mains has been promptly taken care of. The whole property is kept in a good working order and preserved by repainting exposed parts.

The Commission invites any interested parties to make a visit through the plant, when an employee will be available to accompany them. Visits to be arranged through the local office.

A recent improvement was installed several years ago, known as the "Back Run Process," which has increased the efficiency of the gas-producing part of the works and also added to the capacity of the equipment.

SECKATARY HAWKINS CLUB FAIR AND SQUARE

A Letter From The 'Seckatary'

Dear Club Members:

Just a few more days of 1928—and then comes New Year's Day. It is a most happy time for all of us boys and girls, because it means that we are closer to the goal have set for ourselves when we grow up. New Year's Eve is perhaps one of the most beautiful in the year, because at midnight you hear the mournful bells and the wailing whistles that are bidding farewell to the old year. It has been a good year, all in all, and we do not like to part with it, somehow. And as we listen to the bells and whistles blowing, we look out of the window, and in our minds we might see the old year, shambling off like an old, gray and withered Father Time, to his place in the hall of history. We feel a little pang of sorrow, perhaps—but before we have time to think further on it, lo! a new note comes into the sound of the bells and the whistles—a joyous note of welcome and gladness, for the New Year is standing upon our threshold, smiling and bidding us happiness! We rush to clasp the New Year in our arms, and in our joy forget the sadness that the passing of the Old Year caused, "Happy New Year!" rings the glad cry from every tongue. And from the four corners of the earth the winds bring back the echo: "Happy New Year!"

What a beautiful title for a contest, you say? Well, that's what we all thought, too, and so we are going to have a contest this week in which your contribution's title must contain the words "NEW YEAR." Remember, now the early bird catches the worm, and get busy at once—don't wait. Send in your contributions as early as possible—put your full name and address and your age—don't forget your age, that must be with your name and address on every contribution you send in. Some very nice ones that might have won prizes had to be missed because the member did not follow instructions. So read the rules carefully again, and then sit down and write at once your story or verse, and send it in without delay.

Our Weekly Meeting

The prize is won in the Santa Letter contest by Gwenyth Staples, Fraserville, because her letter is DIFFERENT. She tells Santa Claus how she took care of her toys last year—and she has most of them left yet. Then Gwenyth admits she has not been as good as she might have been—which is really FAIR AND SQUARE. It shows, too, that she has been trying.

I hope all you boys and girls get the things you have asked for, and that all boys and girls everywhere have a really merry Christmas.

Here are this week's letters:

Dear Seck:
I did not think the pass word was very hard. I had it to be Nebuchadnezzar. I have never won a prize but I hope to this time.
Dear Santa Claus:
I have a doll carriage and a mamma doll, and a sleeping doll.
I have a table and two chairs, and I have a sleigh which I got last year. I have had some dandy rides on it already. I have kept them pretty well and I have been a fairly good girl all through the year, but not as good as I might have been.
I would be very pleased to get a top or a ring or a bracelet. I would thank you very much for any of these.
Hurrah! for Christmas and Santa dear.
Yours fair and square
Gwenyth Staples.
Fraserville, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I received my button and my membership card, and was very glad to join your club. I have been reading the other children's stories and I thought they were very well done.
Dear Santa Claus:
I hope you will be able to get down the chimneys without getting soot on your fur. I heard that you were in Peterborough on Saturday on the roof of the Teco Store. Although I have not had the pleasure of meeting you, yet, I am expecting to meet you next Saturday if you are there. I will give you a hearty shake of the hand when I see you.
I will leave a lamp lit in the drawing room with candies, nuts, and other nice things to eat for you.
I hope you will not forget to give nice presents to the poor.
Yours fair and square,
Thelma Henderson.

Dear Seck:
This is my first letter to your club and I hope my letter to Santa Claus will win a prize. My birthday is on May 21 and I am thirteen years of age. Here is my letter:
Dear Santa:
I know you are very busy now getting ready for Christmas. I can imagine I see you placing the toys in your sack to start on your long journey.
For Christmas I would like a book on "The Adventures of Seckatary Hawkins" a box of embroidery work, and also a cap and a scarf, some candies, nuts, and an orange.
As there are many other boys and girls wanting things for Christmas I hope I am not asking for too much.
Yours fair and square,
Jean Richardson.
R.R. No. 4,
Norwood, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I am going to write a letter to Santa Claus. Saturday came but it was raining so I decided to stay in and write a letter to Santa Claus. When the letter was finished I read aloud the following to my mother:
Dear Santa:
I am eleven this year and would like a pair of skates, a puck, and a hockey stick a set of erector. I belong to the Seckatary Hawkins Club. Their motto is "Fair and Square." I have been following it up so far, I am trying to write a good story which will win a Seckatary Hawkins Adventure Book. I hope you visit every boy and girl on Christmas Eve. I would not like any more toys but just a book and candy please. Remember the poor.
I wish all club members a happy Christmas.
Yours fair and square
Frank McNulty.
289 Hunter street,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I received your pin and I like it very well. I am very glad to be a member of your club.
To-day I am going to write you a story. The name of it is my Favorite Book.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

The name of the book is "Ned and Santa Claus." Why I like this book is tells us about one time Ned went out and got some snow balls. He was going to play with his aunt and Santa Claus. So he took them in and he put them under his pillow and they melted and his pillow got wet. His grandfather took him over in his bed.

Ned told his aunt to write a letter and put it on his bed. So his aunt wrote the letter for him. So when Santa Claus came along he could not see Ned's stocking at all, so he had to put the things on a chair. When Ned got up in the morning he found the things there. He was very glad that Santa Claus put them there.

This is the end of my story for this week. I hope you will like it.

Yours fair and square.
Francis Condon.
R.R. No. 4,
Lakefield, Ontario.

Dear Santa Claus:
How are you feeling. We are fine we have a new baby his name is Earl McManon. My brother cannot write for himself so I wrote for him. We bought a carriage for him. Daddy is reading a paper now.
I hope you have a nice trip for Christmas Eve.
Yours fair and square.
Jack McMahon.
32 Lafayette Ave.,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I joined the club about three weeks ago I am proud of my pin; I would like very much to win one of your adventure books. Here is my letter to Santa.
Well, Santa, Christmas isn't such a long way off so I had better tell you what I want. First of all an erector set is one thing I am craving for. I would just love to have a Moear monoplane that flies by an electric engine.
Dear Santa I do not want much because I might deprive other little boys and girls of receiving their desires. Above all things please fill my stocking well with nuts candies and fruit.
Well bye, bye Santa.
Yours fair and square.
Jack Thompson.
5 Wilson Ave.,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
This is my first letter to the club. I got my pin the other day and I think it is a dandy.
My favorite book is the story of Rin-tin-tin. The pictures in it look just like the Rin-tin-tin you see in the movies.
I guess this is all for this time.
Yours fair and square.
Harold Stokes
Bonarlaw, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
This is my first letter to your most interesting club and I hope to see it in print.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

Among the many books I have read I consider the "Princess of the Revels" about the best. I like it because it is about school girls and is written by one of my favorite ports. Along with it I think the "New Tenant" is also very interesting. It contains mysteries and keeps the reader in suspense to the last. One of the principa features in it is Bernard Maddison another of my favorite poets.
Yours fair and square.

Dear Seck:
I am glad the snow has come, aren't you? I hope it stays. It is nearly Christmas. I hope I won a prize in my last essay if not maybe this poem will.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

I was lying reading, in a cosy nook
With "Little Women" my favorite book,
I turned the pages with no idle interest
And of all the characters I liked Jos best
Meg, I liked and Amy too
But gentle Beth the best of the two.
Mrs. March with her motherly ways
Was a type that arose from olden days.
A loving father was away at war,
Yet his cheering letters came as of yore.
A cheery scene was a cheery household
With a mother's love worth untold gold.
To spread her long limbs a typical attitude
And Beth knitted socks in a thoughtful mood.
Meg and Amy sat perched on the chair
Gazing at "Castles of Spain" in the air
And last but not least, that mother of theirs
Who bore all their troubles and all of their cares
Sitting around a bright fire-place were all
With father's letter which readers may recall.
My choice of "Little Women" for my favorite book is because of its realness from simple life took.
So let it journey onward, teaching its lesson wide.

Reading is influence on every population side.
Yours fair and square.
Jeanne L. Gray.

Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I suppose you think I am a poor member of your club but our Christmas Examinations are now on and I have not much time for anything.
There are six more children who wish to become members of your club and I am sending his entry with this letter.
Mother has framed for me that picture which you sent me for the six members.
I can't think of anything new to say.
Yours fair and square.
Ada M. Riel
Lakefield, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
Here is my entry for your contest entitled, "A Letter to Santa Claus," hoping it will find its way into your list of prize winners.
I send a letter to Santa Claus
The reason why you know the cause;
I asked him if he came my way
Not to forget to stop his sleigh
And sliding on the slippery roof
Swinging his pack high and aloof.
Crawl down the chimney—don't fall down instead
There's Jimmy's and Mary's and a wee baby too
Each taken out of each little shoe
Then when you've crawled back into your sleigh
Please keep on going and then make your way
To some other house where money is scarce
And find someone there on whom no one cares
Just fill up their stocking won't you please?
So that their worries at Christmas will cease.
And when at Christmas when everything is joy
No one will be without one little toy
And everyone will be happy and merry.
This letter's signed by
"Wee Baby Jerry."
Yours fair and square,
Jeanne Leone Gray.
P.S.—The password is Nebuchadnezzar, is it? I had a hard time getting it, but I managed at last.

Dear Seck:
I am writing a story. Here it is:

"A Letter to Santa Claus."

Mary had heard that her playmate Jean, got hardly any presents for Christmas. On Christmas she wrote a letter and put it where she always hung her stocking. This is what it said:
"Dear Santa,
Please give all my presents to Jean as she gets hardly any. Yours Mary."
Next morning when Mary woke up she went to the parlor and on the table were a lot of presents. She ran out to see Jean and found she had just as many.
I will close now, hoping I have not spent too much time.
Yours fair and square,
Lowery McQuade.
Box 53, Omemee.

Now, don't forget the contest on "New Year" and please rush in your entries before the closing date, December 22. Prize winner will be announced on December 29, and the winner will have the big adventure book to read on New Year's Day.
Dear Seck:
A Letter to Santa Claus.
Dear Santa:
I am looking forward for you to call at my house the same as you have done on previous years. This year my wants are small. I would like a pair of tube skates and boots and a "Seckatary Hawkins Adventure Book." I hope also that each and every other member of this club will receive one of these books also.
Yours fair and square,
Stewart Hayes.
300 Pearl Ave.,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I am sending in my letter to Santa Claus to be printed in the Examiner. When you have printed it please send it on to Santa Claus.
Dear Santa Claus:
How have you and your reindeers been since last Christmas?
We are glad you have come to treat us again this year. I was very well satisfied with the toys you gave me last year.
This year I would like: a sleigh, a wagon, a school bag, an aeroplane, a water gun, and a jack knife.
Just pick out whatever you want to give me out of this list.
Hoping to see you at Toyland some Saturday.
Yours fair and square
Lloyd Perdue.

Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I have been wanting to write to the Club and have never had a chance. I am going to send in a poem this time for a change.

Every Christmas Eve
Santa Claus comes down the chimney
And fills all our stockings.
I would just like to Hide behind a chair
And when Santa Claus comes in
Jump out and scare him.
He would drop his toys and run
Oh! Oh! Wouldn't that be fun!
Lakefield (No name signed.)

Dear Seck:
I am going to write a verse to Santa.
Dear Santa:

COURTESY

On Christmas Eve I say good night,
And go to bed by candle light
And when I pass the nursery door
I step so softly on the floor,
I do not make a single sound,
Because dear Santa might be round.
If he came early—
And he might—
He'd surely think me impolite
If I should peep and watch him while
He chooses my presents from the pile.
Yours fair and square,
Peter Winstanley.
Campbellford, Ontario.

Dear Santa Claus:
I am sending you my letter, telling you what I would like for Christmas. I would like a nice pair of skates a nice middie. Some nuts and candy an orange and an apple, for in my stocking. I will not be able to hear your jingle bells, for I will be asleep. I will hang my stocking at the foot of my bed. I would like you to put a note in a parcel or pinned on my stocking. I will close my letter hoping to receive one from you.
Effie Redmond.

Dear Seck:
I am going to write a letter to Santa Claus.
Dear Santa Claus:
I am writing a letter to you to tell you what I would like you to bring me for Christmas.
I would like a toy carpet sweeper, a magic fish pond, a large doll, a tin stove, a ball, a game of snakes and ladders and a Maggie and Jiggs book.
I think this will be all for this year.
Yours fair and square.
Mary O'Neill

Dear Seck:
I wanted to try this week's contest so here it is.
Dear Santa Claus:
Daddy said you would not come this year, because he said I was too bad but mother told me to write a letter anyway and tell you what I want.
If you come bring me a new sleigh, for I broke my toboggan and daddy will not get me another. I want a motor car and a pair of skiis. This is all I want.
Sister Violet wants a doll a doll's bed and a carriage, that is all she said she wanted.

Dear Seck:
I received my button and was pleased with it. This is my first letter to your club and I hope to get one of your Adventure Books. The pass word is Nebuchadnezzar.

And I hope it is pleasing to his eye
When the snow begins to blow;
With flurries of snow,
He'll come for sure, I know.

Dear Seck:
I received my button and membership card, and I appreciate them very much. I enclose a letter to Santa Claus.
Dear Santa Claus:
You sure are a sly old fellow. I have been awake nine Christmas Eves and I have never seen you yet. I saw you in Peterborough on the roof of the Teco Store and lots of kiddies were sitting on your knee.
Yours fair and square,
George Henderson.
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Seck:
I received your welcome letter a few weeks ago and was very glad to hear from you. I am very thankful to you for your Seckatary Hawkins Club pin and am very proud to think that I am a member of your club.
As I was looking over the paper on Monday evening after school I saw that the story we had to write on this week is "My Favorite Book." I am sending my story to-day.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

My favorite book is Blue Beard.
Once there was a man and he was married ten or seven times and killed every wife.
He had a room, and when he would kill them he would hang them up in the room. The last time he got married his wife's sister was living with them and her name was Anne.
One morning she woke up and Blue Beard said "You will never have another night's sleep and he went away.
He told her not to go into a room and she did and when she saw all the dead women she let the key fall and got it all blood. When Blue Beard came home he saw the key all blood and he was going to kill her, but her brother came and saved her.
This is a very awesome story.
This is my story for this week.

CHILDREN ARE ENTERTAINED

Sunday School Members of Campbellford Baptist Church Hold Concert.

VISIT FROM SANTA CLAUS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Last night was children's night at the Baptist Church, when the children of the Sunday School and many of their friends entertained the older members of the church, while they waited for Santa Claus to make his appearance. Twice during the evening, telegrams from the benevolent old gentleman were received, advising the little tots that he was on his way. Unfortunately, he arrived a half-hour late according to his telegraphic messages. But when he arrived he had not forgotten even the youngest member of the Sunday School, and such grave fears as had been entertained by the youngsters for his safety were soon dispelled by the raptures of joy which his presents roused.

The program was not long though it consisted of some thirty numbers. Alfred Thompson, superintendent of the Sunday School, acted in the capacity of chairman and kept the trend of events lively and interesting during the evening. There were recitations, solos and short sketches. Just before Santa Claus arrived, Mr. Mason and Mrs. Marriott were asked to come to the platform and were presented with tokens of remembrance and appreciation by two little tots for their long and interested service in the Sunday School work. For fifteen years, Mr. Mason had been superintendent and for ten years, Mrs. Marriott had been secretary. In accepting the gifts, Mr. Mason replied briefly on behalf of both himself and Mrs. Marriott.

The program consisted of twenty-eight numbers, not including the entrance of Santa Claus and the excitement which followed. During its entirety, much careful training was evidenced by the masterful way in which each of the scholars did their parts. Perhaps the most interesting of the numbers was a sketch by five of the older girls which had to do with the despatching of a Christmas parcel to a far off missionary. Another interesting number was an interpretation of two country folk spending their first hours in a big city, most of them at the photographers. The number by the 'Hobos,' seven boys and the school superintendent, was also loudly applauded.

It started of its own accord and I've been driving around the city all night waiting for it to run out of gas."

ANNUAL REPORTS ARE READ TO GUILD

St. George's Ladies Had Most Successful Year of Christian Endeavor.

St. George's Ladies' Guild held their final meeting of the year on Monday afternoon in the church basement. Mrs. T. Monk, president, occupied the chair. There was a very good attendance of members to hear the reports of the year's work read. Mrs. P. Malsch, secretary, gave the following report:

Dear members,—This is our last meeting for the year, and I trust you will all agree that it has been a more successful year than the last. By the treasurer's report you will learn that we will have more money in the bank than last year after all accounts have been met. At the beginning of the year all members agreed to set as our objective the reduction of the debt on the rectory. Apart from the November sale, which was quite a success, the bean supper, ice-cream social, and galent tea could have been better attended by members of our congregation. There was quite an amount of needlework done by the members, also quilts were made, there being many orders for the last-named articles. Mrs. Dummitt, who has kindly done much quilting for us in previous years, was unable at the last to help through ill-health. We thank the friends who helped us especially Mrs. Brownlie. We are sorry that our president, Mrs. Monk, finds she is unable to carry on the good which which, as president, she has done so well for the past two years. We still hope to have her valuable help as a member. We need more members if we are to carry on and advance in our work for the church. Yours faithfully,

M. Malsch.

The financial statement was given by Mrs. H. Wood, treasurer. In a clear and detailed account Mrs. Wood gave the various items connected with each effort, the total amount raised being $275.00. The reports were adopted.

The president thanked all the members for their co-operation and hoped the next president would be as well supported. She thought the thanks of the Guild were due to Mrs. Brownlie for her help at the quiltings. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the president. The rector spoke a few words, and hoped the retiring president would re-consider her decision. Several matters connected with the church were discussed. The meeting closed with prayer, after which refreshments were served.

STORE STAGES REAL CHRISTMAS OPENING

Santa in All His Glory Opens Season in Village of Omemee.

OMEMEE, Dec. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—In response to a wireless message from good Old Saint Nicholas, stating the time of his arrival in Omemee, to be 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, children, young, half-grown and full grown filled the village streets in a merry expectant mood awaiting his arrival. Finally a car swung in from the north, two dogs barking from the back seat in a delirium of joy and Santa in all his glory seated in front waving and smiling to the kiddies. After making a tour of the villege he stopped at the department store of M. D. Earle, where he was welcomed in genial fashion by the proprietor and staff. He then descended to a beautifully-decorated basement, which contained tables laden with toys of all kinds and an illuminated Christmas tree, where he exchanged greetings with the children and presented each one with a chocolate bar. Santa's stay was brief owing to many urgent calls upon his time, but he made happy many childish hearts.

District Churches

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, December 19. —Anniversary services were observed in Trinity United Church on Sunday and large congregations were present at each service to hear the Rev. Dr. Ira W. Pierce of Toronto, who is connected with social service work in the United Church of Canada. In the morning Dr. Pierce spoke from Isaiah 6, analysing the dedications in the life of Isaiah to the service of Jehovah, and the many problems which confronted him. The numbers given by the choir were an anthem, "Hymn of the Morning Land," and a solo "Hold Thou My Hand," by Mrs. Cecil Cornell, both of which were pleasingly given.

Evening Service.

In the evening Dr. Pierce gave a very interesting story of his life, since the year 1914, when he graduated from College and left for Armenia to enter the Euphrates College to do Theological work. Many heart-breaking and gruesome experiences were related by the speaker, who was forced to make his escape with his wife and family at the close of the war. Before closing his address, which kept the undivided attention of his hearers for almost one and a half hours, Dr. Pierce spoke of the work he is connected with now, among the Armenian children who have immigrated to the province. Two rousing anthems were especially well supplied by the choir: "Hark, Hark, my Soul," with solos by Mrs. C. Cornell, and Miss Lila Parsons, and "O Come all ye Faithful." Also a vocal solo, by Miss Mary Lowe, "Though your Sins be as Scarlet."

We built one bridge on the boundary between Victoria and Durham Counties, known as Pogue's bridge. This was a steel bridge that we moved from Millbrook. We constructed concrete abutments and wooden floor at a cost of $1,900, of which Victoria County paid $950 and out Counties $750 and the old bridge. We made a heavy fill on each side of the bridge, and on the west side carried out the fill, about 300 feet, to high water mark at a cost of $452.27, of which Victoria paid one-half, making a total cost to these counties of $1,202.27, less the $226.12 paid by Victoria County, as shown in receipts.

The maintenance on the other boundary bridges amounted to $4,284.52. Of this amount $4,232.32 was paid for work done during 1927 on Wallace Point bridge.

Total expenditure on boundary bridges, $5,486.79.

On county road No. 25, running through Cramahe and Percy townships we put in four corrugated iron culverts, graded and ditched about one mile, surfaced three and one-half miles with crushed gravel and stored in storage piles 294 yards of crushed gravel.

Grading cost $698.29, ditching $116.25, culverts and end walls, $1,005, surfacing $1,525.61. Cost of construction $3,345.15. We resurfaced with a light coat of pit gravel about three miles.

Hastings Request

A petition from the village of Hastings asked that the small north bridge be assumed by the county and also that a grant of $2,000 be made to the village in consideration of the extra expense it had borne in its street improvements and also because of the additional grants to Campbellford and Millrook. Reeve (Dr). Wilson had introduced this matter on Monday and it was referred to the Roards and Bridge committee.

R. E. Dawson of Warkworth asked for a grant of $50 to the trustees and ratepayers' association of Northumberland and Durham. Referred to the finance committee.

Womens Institutes and agricultural societies in the two counties must submit the returns required of them as an essential condition to receiving their grants.

Finance Committee

The Finance Committee, with Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook presiding, examined a deep fyle of accounts on Tuesday morning, the members contenting themselves with occasional comment on items that seemed unusual.

A request from the Trent Waterways Association for a grant of $20 was "received and fyled," but the Salvation Army was given $25 towards its reform work.

Requisitions from the agricultural societies of Warkworth, Woodlet Campbellford, and Orono were approved and ordered to be paid, on Reeve W. H. Nelson's motion.

All members were given double mileage and an extra day's sessional allowance for their attendance last week at the opening of the regular session which was adjourned on account of the death of Col. N. F. MacNachtan, the late clerk and treasurer of the counties.

A report from the Ontario Department of Highways showed a balance of $149,729.63 owing to the Department for provincial highways.

No Advice To Toronto

The Council declined to endorse the Orillia Board of Trade resolution requesting the directors of the Toronto Exhibition to fix their date for the first two weeks in September as an aid to prolong the tourist season.

"They know their business best" observed J. M. Bygott, Campbellford, "and it would look like an impossition to try to tell them what they should do."

IF H'D BEEN BALD

LONDON, Dec. 19.—E. T. Pinfield has the use of all of his faculties today because he has a good head of hair. While inspecting the bell in the turret of Bromsgrove town hall he made a mis-step and would have fallen to the council chamber below had not one of his companions caught him by the hair.

MISSION BAND HONOR LEADER

St. James Group Present Mrs. F. B. Elliott With Scarf Pin.

PRESENT PLAYLET.

On Friday afternoon the Mission Band of St. James' United Church held their Christmas meeting in Wesley Hall, with a good attendance of members and visitors.

A solo, "Christmas Bells," was very sweetly sung by little Dorrie Elliott.

Splendid reports were given by the secretary and treasurer and the secretary of sunshine bags. In these bags, each member had placed a penny for each day on which the sun shone. That the year had been an exceptionally sunny one, was evidenced when the secretary reported that over $35.00 was realized from this source alone.

The president then called the Band superintendent, Mrs. F. B. Elliott, to the platform, where she was presented with a lovely scarf by Pearl Welch on behalf of the Mission Band. Jean Rose reading a splendid address in appreciation of their leader, who is soon severing her connection with the Band.

Mrs. Elliott thanked her little friends in warm words for the love which prompted the gift. She regretted leaving her Mission Band, but wished them still greater success for the future, and all happiness for the coming Christmastide.

A very interesting playlet, entitled "The Christmas Aid Society," was cleverly presented by seven girls, the story of the play having a very pointed moral—"Giving."

This very successful meeting was brought to its conclusion by prayer offered by Mrs. E. L. Woodley.

Several of the ladies of the Auxiliary were in attendance, and after the program was given, presented the children with generously filled bags of home-made candy and nuts.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, methol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

WINTER HITS SAULT TO-DAY

Citizens Admire Budding Plants Yesterday—Scintillating Snow To-day.

TRAFFIC HINDERED.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., December 19 (Canadian Press). — While they were admiring budding and blooming pansies and lilacs on Monday, citizens stepped from their homes into a foot of snow this morning. Hopes that there would be no green Christmas soared when, following the mild weather of the past few weeks, snow began to fall last night. There was no wind accompanying the snowfall.

With the exception of the ferry service to the American Sault, shipping is tied up, and consequently no move will be made to release the steamers.

Three street cars left the tracks because of the heavy snowfall, and traffic has been disorganized, though not seriously.

"Twenty-One" Stands Up For "Thinker" — With Reservations

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

When I first came to Peterborough, I didn't know a soul, and your page seemed so friendly that it made me feel quite at home. And now you and the neighbors come along and spoil all my enthusiasm. Why? Just because you are all so 'down' on "Thinker." Of course, I don't maintain that 'Thinker' was right in everything he said, but I believe I see his point of view. There are those of us who go about our work from day to day quite peacefully, without making making any splash or noise. But there are those women who 'get my goat,' as the saying is, who go beyond their rights (at least in my imagination). I mean those who enter politics. It may be a pleasant occupation for spinsters, but it seems to be that 'a woman's place is in the home,' so to speak, and not in the political world. Don't you just love it, when you tune your radio in on some station, and hear a woman making a political speech in a nasal voice (hat—well, I gues I'd better stop that, before I go too far. But if 'Thinker' holds any grudge against our nurses and welfare workers (or you, Marion) then I certainly don't stand up for him, because that is obviously woman's work, and no man could fill those positions half so well.

"A woman, and proud of it," wrote a splendid letter, but I beg to contradict her statement that war is a man-made institution. Peace and war are all in accordance with the Divine Plan. The war of 1914-18 was prophesied in the Bible, and there will be another war before the 'One Thousand Years of Peace.' If Eve hadn't been partial to apples, I doubt if there would ever have been any wars.

Really, Marion, this mud-slinging between the sexes is most interesting. If this ever gets into print, the neighbors will certainly say that I'M a traitor to my sex, but at least it should get an answer from 'Thinker.' How about it, 'Thinker?'

TWENTY-ONE'.

P.S.—Yes, I'm married.

Well, "Twenty-One," I still have a shot in my locker for "Thinker." I still think it is men like "Thinker" who are holding back the wheels of progress—they are brakes. I, personally, can't find one redeeming feature about his letter.

But I enjoy yours, because it different—you DO admit that women have SOME rights—"Thinker" gave us none.

"Dear Marion:

I don't think half enough nice things are being said about your page—so I hasten to tell you what it's meaning to me. Since I have been a tiny child I have always seen moving pictures in my mind of what I read. When I read your page I see big, comfortable, motherly looking women with white aprons preparing the most delicious things to eat, pert little flappers, nimble fingered ladies sitting by fireplaces lovingly making dainty Christmas gifts, sweet faces of young mothers, and I also see a good many thoughtful, spectacled faces peeking out from those letters. To me it is like a written radio where one can tune in at whatever station pleases one's fancy.

Now for a compliment from one of those Men creatures whom you are giving such a raking over the coals just now. My father says: "Marion is one of the sanest people I ever met!"

I tremble to call the enclosed poetry—but can you use it in your column?

PRUDENCE PRENTISS."

TO STARS.

"Why it is that it must be so?"
Closely I draw my deep, dark hood
Of wrath and care and slight
And onward stumble in the wood of my perplexities. 'Tis night,
Dark, terrible night!

But lo, my way is lighted by a beam,
't is the kindly luring candle gleam
Of Heaven's stars. My stumblings cease,
I journey in the gladsome peace
Of having friends. Now 'tis light,
Glorious, radiant light!

Thanks for your letter and the poetry, "Prudence Prentiss," both of which I like. And thank your father, for me, for his compliment.

Your picture of our page is lovely—that is just what I wish it to be, and the neighbors are right with me. Your idea of movies is very nice, and certainly that is the way to read. If one can PICTURE the things one reads, the reading means so much more.

Do write soon again.

Nursing Record In Two Continents Hard to Equal

Nurse Waite of New Brighton writes: "While nursing in New York, in my early twenties, I was poisoned by food, my sister nurse recommended your wonderful Vegetable Laxative Pills. "I am never without them and have prescribed them for thousands of my patients who were suffering with indigestion, gas and sour stomach, biliousness, sick headache and indigestion caused by constipation poisoning."

"Dear Marion:

We have taken the paper for four years, and you have brought its worth up all right. I am not taking a magazine this year, and I find the Whatnot and your writing and that short story page really more interesting. I'm great on the Doctor's writing, too. And what would we do without our great Authors?

I am asking for two of the helps, and sincerely trust I am not too late. Thanking you in advance and hoping to receive same. And before I say "Merry Christmas" to you, Marion, I want a kick at "Thinker," for, after all, don't you know, it's the kick out of things in life you get, that helps you on. They say you can't kill a man for thinking. As Tillie the Toiler says: "You think you're God's Gift to woman." I myself really admire a nice, good man. I presume he remembers well the story of Adam and Eve. And I wonder if he is near enough the perfect man to lift the fallen man by the roadside?

After all, I think "Thinker's" heart would be more touched by woman through his stomach than any other way.

I will close, hoping this may find space in the paper, and trusting it is not too long. Anyway the waste paper basket will hold it.

X-RAY.

Marmora.

I'm glad to welcome you to our neighborly circle, "X-Ray," and I'll be looking forward to receiving more interesting letters from you. It's nice to know that our page is appreciated.

"Thinker" has certainly been given a broadside, hasn't he—poor man!

* * *

"Dear Marion:

Being a reader of The Examiner, I glance at your page an odd time, and was indeed pained to see your attack on "Thinker" after he had stressed a few home truths.

I took only a slight interest in the crossfire at that time, but happening to glance at your page to-night, I see another "barrage" directed at this "Thinker" by a woman and proud of it! I hasten to the rescue of "Thinker."

As you, yourself, said you could get half a dozen letters that would in all probability crush the poor man. You even tried to take him for a sucker on a sure bet, Marion, how could you? Why one woman could take on six men in an exchange of words and still emerge with wind enough to drive a forge. This, however, doesn't admit that you or this other lady have disproved any of "Thinker's statements. Quite the contrary, you have merely tried to ridicule them, and that being the case I may be pardoned for doing same with yours.

In reading your page, one cannot but notice your constant attacks on men in general. You seem to have a terrible spite against them for some reason or other, and I think you are probably prejudiced against them. However, I'll bet a man has played a big part in your life at one time or other, and that for the best, too, although you would be the first to deny it. Don't be like that. Why don't you admit yourself that man is a trifle better than a meal ticket? Instead of slandering him. All I have to say is that if you are married, God help your husband! My sympathy to him as I think he needs it. Poor fellow, I "feels" for him.

I've been hooked myself. This may look like an admission of low mentality on my part, but I crave exemption on the grounds of deceit. She seemed rather quiet and retiring before we were married, but—after and continuing—well, better not say too much or cite any examples as she might see it. She reads your page, in fact I think she gets most of her ammunition there, and after reading some of the letters, I am sure of it. I guess you have me down for a poor husband, a "Low Life," and so on, and will probably come down on me with both feet and like a ton of bricks. (I hasten to assure you I meant' no offense concerning your weight, merely a figure of speech.) You will probably tell what you would do with a husband like me, etc., etc. But God forbid! We're too much alike, we'd never get along. Personally, I think I am pretty fair, I never try to exert my rightful authority. I have found it doesn't pay and dealing with a sharp tongued never-tiring woman, teaches one to be very tactful and diplomatic. My dear! You don't know half of it. When it comes to diplomacy, I would make Foreign Ministers look silly. Of course, you gathered as much already. Well, Marion, I can't pan you all night (much as I would like to) because I have this other woman to deal with yet. So you will pardon this little interruption. You're a dear, I am getting to like you more all the time.

This other woman who says she is proud of being a woman and by this very boast betrays the fact that she wishes she were a man, leads off with an attack on Adam (I think she's a spinster, but maybe not; sometimes they are very bitter toward all men), but to get back to Adan. (you've probably read or heard of him, Marion. He was the head man.) Now just where would she be if it were not for this same Adam? It is laugh. Again, she says, "Remove all women from the world, etc., and the hub is gone. Well may be so, but with the hub gone there surely "won't" be any friction, will there? Don't you agree? And then she says, "It's a common thing for women to fly the Atlantic."

You poor dear, send me your address and I'll let you know when the first one flys safely across in anything other than a dirigible which is comparatively safe, and as for driving trucks, etc., why shouldn't they? Suppression, my dear, although you seem to have overlooked that. Well, Marion, this letter is getting rather long, but it's so seldom that I get a chance to pan the women. I try to make the most of it. This may sound cowardly, but if you knew the Mrs. you'd understand. I guess I'll sign myself, yeh, you guessed it the first time.

ANOTHER THINKER."

I must apologize, in the first place, "Another Thinker," for my stupidity in not being able to make out that word. I've done the best I could with it, and made it "suppressation."

I'm not going to jump on you with both my feet—THAT would be punishment too terrible. The worst punishment I can wish for you is that your wife DOES read this letter and that she recognizes the writer. And I DO wish it!

Marion

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

There's a winsome note in to-day's poem that is hard to duplicate. "Mrs. M. C." asked for something by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and I selected "Babyland" from "Poems of Pleasure."

December 19, 1928

Have you heard of the Valley of Babyland,
The realm where the dear little darlings stay,
Till the kind storks go, as all men know,
And, oh, so tenderly bring them away?
The paths are winding and past all finding,
By all save the storks who understand
The gates and the highways and the intricate byways
That lead to Babyland.

All over the Valley of Babyland
Sweet flowers bloom in the soft green moss;
And under the ferns fair, and under the plants there,
Lie little heads like spools of floss.
With a soothing number the river of slumber
Flows o'er a bedway of silver sand;
And angels are keeping watch o'er the sleeping
Babes of Babyland.

The Path to the Valley of Babyland
Only the kingly, kind storks know;
If they fly over mountains, or wade through fountains,
No man sees them come or go.
But an angel mayoe, who guards some baby,
Or a fairy perhaps, with her magic wand,
Brings them straightway to the wonderful gateway
That leads to Babyland

And there in the Valley of Babyland,
Under the mosses and leaves and ferns,
Like an unfledged starling they find the darling,
For whom the heart of a mother yearns;
And they lift him lightly, and snug him tightly
In feathers soft as a lady's hand;
And off with a rockaway step they walk away
Out of Babyland.

As they go from the Valley of Babyland,
Forth into the world of great unrest,
Sometimes in weeping he wakes from sleeping
Before he reaches his mother's breast.
Ah! how she blesses him, how she caresses him,
Bonniest bird in the bright home band
That o'er land and water, the kind stork brought her,
From far-off Babyland!

The Christmas Tree

"Ariadne" sends me this poem by May E. Rachal, for the column.

Heigh-Ho! 'Tis finished now. How tired I feel!
I'll rest a little here before the fire.
There, I forgot to turn that wagon wheel,
And, too, I think the drum should dangle higher.

How bright the tapers are! I'll put them out
Directly—No just leave them for the present,
I love their friendly, twinkling eyes about,
They look so very Christmas-wise and pleasant.

A lot of toys these are for just one boy;
But then, you see, we love him, and he's only six,
And we would give him every joy
For, oh, we shouldn't want him to be lonely.

I know you're tired dear, but won't you please
That big bright star could be a wee bit straighter.
It gives one such a sense of rest and ease
To watch it there. But you can do it later.

What was that crash? Could it have been the sled?
A log, you say, that broke upon the embers?
Dozing, was I, before the time for bed,
Dreaming the old sweet dream my heart remembers,
We decked a tree like that and made it glow;
Before God took him back—long years ago.

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

"It is a high, solemn awful thought for every individual man that his earthly influence, which has had a commencement, will never through all the ages, were he the very meanest of us, have an end."

Those who read of the acclamation surrounding the celebration last week of the eightieth birthday of Miss Augusta I. Gilkison of Brantford, will remember the quaint figure of this old lady when she came to Peterborough about two years ago, to attend the meeting here of the Provincial Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Miss Gilkison was Standard Bearer of the Provincial gathering on that occasion, and had a large following among the visitors to the I.O.D.E. convention.

A life membership in the Provincial Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was presented to her on her birthday last week and was presented to her by the Regent, Mrs. H. S. Griffin of Hamilton, who said at the time:

"She has never missed either an executive or a general meeting of the Provincial Chapter."

The report goes on: "With her quain frocks, treasured for more than half at century, and her cheerful smiling countenance, her bright, snapping eyes and her keen knowledge of the history of Canada, and the affairs of the order, Miss Gilkison has ornamented many a gathering of the National Chapter.

"Eighty candles blazed cheerily on the big birthday cake, which Miss Gilkison cut with charming grace, and the basket which centred the tea-table, covered with a lace cloth, held eighty golden chrysanthemums."

The Toronto papers last week carried a picture of Miss Gilkison, wearing a gown of pink moire antique which was brought by her mother from New York in 1854 and worn by Miss Gilkison on ceremonious occasions up to 1862. The black velvet panniers were made in a Brantford establishment forty years ago and the Indian sash of honor was presented by the chiefs of the Six Nations to her father on his 25th anniversary as superintendent of Indian affairs on the Tuscarora Reserve. The lace was made by her grandmother and is over a hundred years old. She wore also medals of the war of 1812-1813.

As a result of her interest in them, Miss Gilkison has been adopted by two Indian tribes; the Mississaugas giving her the name of the "Wild Rose" when a young girl, and more recently the Cayugas named her Go-ih-wih-saas, which means "One-Who-Makes-a-Research."

The Women's Music Club is one of the energetic organizations of ladies in the city, devoted to the spread of interest in good music. The first Friday of the month sees a meeting of this organization in the hall of the Conservatory of Music.

Programs already enjoyed by the members include a recital by Miss Marjorie Shuttleworth of Toronto, a talented young soprano who has the good fortune of being engaged at present in two years' study of singing in Paris, Milan and Vienna. Miss Shuttleworth, who was accompanied abroad by her mother, has been invited recently to broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation of London, England.

The second meeting this year had an outstanding speaker in the person of Dr. Erhest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, who gave a very learned and scholarly discourse on Music from the standpoint of the Professional and Amateur performer.

The other program was a Schubert meeting, with a paper on the composer's life, by Mrs. J. F. Allan.

On Friday, December 21st, the Christmas meeting of the Music Club will be held, when the program will be entirely of a Yuletide character. The Rev. Dr. Blagrave will give a Christmas message, Christmas Carols of old Welsh and French type and modern English carols, will be sung, and the decorations and refreshments will carry out the idea of Christmas-time.

In January, Mr. Norman Cherry, baritone, and Mr. Heber Mulock, tenor, of Toronto, will give a vocal recital, with Mrs. Cherry as accompanist.

The February meeting will be a Russian entertainment, with the program arranged by Mrs. R. Gliddon and Mrs. G. F. Liddle.

In March there will be a Twilight Musicale and in April, the closing meeting for the year will be held, and election of officers will take place. Miss Mabel Clarry is the president of the Women's Music Club.

It was quite illuminating to remark the exact moment when the audience of youthful boys and girls displayed the most amusement at humorous moments in the Commencement Exercises at the Collegiate Institute on Friday last. They laughed heartily at the jokes which interspersed the program and seemed to enjoy the dry humour of their principal, H. R. H. Kenner. There is no keener appreciator of wit in the world than your school boy or girl of the 'teen ages.

But they laughed most at several sentences. They were delighted when F. H. Dawson said their former companions were "engaged," when he meant to say "employed," they appreciated fully the advantages of the school in Florida mentioned by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, where examinations have been done away with altogether, but they laughed also with evident keen appreciation of the joke when another speaker, picturing the interest in their welfare of father and mother, said that mother always tucked them in at night.

Dr. J. J. Craig, another speaker of the afternoon, told a story of a man who spoke to a Chinese audience and had an interpreter who wrote his address out in Chinese on a blackboard. The interpreter ceased writing long before he was finished, and when the speaker enquired the reason, he was told blandly that the interpreter just put down the ideas on the board. Evidently he was of a mind like to the man who was also quoted at the Commencement Exercises. A preacher was very long-winded. A deaf man in the congregation, after a lengthy interval, asked his companion if the preacher had finished yet. "He finished long ago," was the answer, "but he hasn't stopped talking yet."

At the opening ceremonies of the new addition to the Collegiate Institute, the Prime Minister, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, in referring to the wonderful advances made during recent years in methods of training the deaf, spoke of the late Dr. Charles Coughlin, formerly of Peterborough, and later superintendent of the Deaf and Dumb Institution at Belleville. It was Dr. Coughlin, he said, who for the first time taught "the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak." Deaf people were usually dumb also, through their inability to learn how to utter sounds, but at Belleville they were taught to speak with almost perfect intonation, and by learning the movements of the lips learned also to listen to the language spoken by others. They are thus put in a position to take their places in society, almost as normally as more fortunate beings. Hundreds of letters received from former pupils of this school testify to their gratitude.

THIS FAST YOUTH

TOLEDO, Nov. 19.—In this day and age, when infants smoke cigars and boys with fuzz on their upper lip drink unadulterated spirits of juniper berries, one doesn't stop at things out of the ordinary. However, police of Toledo recently took time out to arrest a speeding motorist doing 35 miles an hour. When caught, the speed demon turned out to be a 12-year-old boy.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The original mousquetaire sleeve was very much like the one that has come into fashion this season. It was a straight, long sleeve that fell into graceful wrinkles between elbows and hands only when it was worn. The mousquetaire sleeves that were worn in the nineties and again

This black chiffon velvet afternoon frock is worn with black velvet hat and white fox fur. The new mousquetaire sleeve is shown as it ripples on the arm when worn and as it appears when the arm is withdrawn.

ten or fifteen years ago were mounted on linings and made with shirrings that held the ripples in place.

It was way back in the middle ages that women —and men, too— first wore these gracefully rippled sleeves. The sleeves then were made long because gloves were practically unknown and on cool days the ends were simply drawn down over the hands to give protection. There was virtue in this necessity and soon the rippled sleeve came to be admired apart from its usefulness.

Sleeves, I am assured, are to be more ornate, more picturesque, more intricate. There has been a strong tendency in Paris lately to increase the width of sleeves below the elbow, though without any suggestion of a return to really puffy sleeves. You may be sorry to learn that the new frocks call for more material than those that have been in fashion and that their is good reason to believe that increase in material will continue.

For my part I am really glad. It may make frocks and wraps more expensive, and to offset that we may have to have fewer of them. But there is a certain charm and grace about these new frocks. They look more generous, more luxurious, more feminine, and to the majority of women they are more becoming than the skimpy garments that we have been wearing.

THANKS, NEIGHBORS, for the parcels which have come to hand for Santa's Pals' distribution. I'm sure you will feel an added joy in Christmas because of this giving to others.

• • • • • •

I would just like to remind you that The Examiner is not distributing Christmas cheer—we are only giving our time and the use of our truck to gather parcels from neighbors to be delivered to individuals and families through established agencies.

• • • • • •

Only three of these agencies have yet reported to the office: Big Sisters, Canadian Legion, and Kiwanis Club. Will the others please write or phone the office, telling the name of the organization, the address to which parcels should be sent, and the probable number of families cared for?

• • • • • •

I am sorry that we cannot, for this year, enter into an examination of the parcels, as requested by one organization. Perhaps, next year, it may be possible to arrange for a room somewhere so that the parcels can be sorted to the best advantage. It's something to keep in mind.

• • • • • •

The Examiner will acknowledge receipt of parcels, if donors will write their names on the outside. Most people prefer that initials only should be used, and that practice will be followed.

I heard a woman say, the other day, "This business of Christmas giving has been overdone," and I just wish to register emphatic protest. It has NOT been overdone.

• • • • • •

Maybe there is too much money spent in families where it can be ill-afforded, for gifts to friends. But that is not necessary. It is not the true spirit of Christmas to make a show, or try to "keep up with the Joneses."

• • • • • •

I think we are best carrying out the spirit of Christmas when we pay attention to those who need help. There are children in Peterborough—lots of them—whom Santa may not know about, and they may be without Christmas cheer unless we neighbors are willing to help out as Santa's Pals.

• • • • • •

And then, what about the other things that Santa does not always include in his pack—eats, clothes, and all the other cheer that goes to make Christmas really HAPPY?

• • • • • •

Don't you think, neighbors, that these children will enjoy Santa's visit more, with his toys and candies, if they are properly clothed and know they will have a good meal?

• • • • • •

THAT is the function of Santa's Pals. We will try to see that not a child in Peterborough; not a mother in Peterborough, is hungry on Christmas day, or cold.

• • • • • •

And we may go a step farther by adding the little touches which brighten the day. We may even help out with toys, and candies, and trimmings.

• • • • • •

Don't be afraid if the toys ARE a little worn—the Boy Scouts will paint and renovate them before they are sent out.

• • • • • •

I DO hope the response is good. I know the associations which have charge of the distribution will appreciate it, and I am sure the recipients will bless you.

• • • • • •

And then, having helped make Christmas happier for others who are less happily situated than you, it will be pleasant to turn to last-minute preparations for your own.

• • • • • •

If you wish to save on the tree trimmings, the help which I have prepared will assist; if you are arranging a party, then you will appreciate Laura's leaflet; and if you have not yet prepared all your gifts, you should send for the four-page folder on home-made gifts.

• • • • • •

These are all free, and are sent out with my heartiest wishes that they may make Christmas happier and easier for you.

• • • • • •

I was in a centre-of-the-city house last week where a birthday party had just been held. The lady of the house had anticipated by decorating the dining room in Christmas garlands. She explained that the event was near enough to Christmas to make such decorations appropriate, and now the work is done for the holiday season.

• • • • • •

I thought it a good idea, since getting even that amount of work out of the way is a help. Other rooms will follow, I presume, as this neighbor finds time.

• • • • • •

It seemed to me that the busy time around Christmas would prevent many neighbors from writing, but it is not so, as my mail bag continues to grow fatter every day. Thank you, neighbors; your contributions to our pages are certainly worth while and much appreciated by many.

• • • • • •

All the prizes for the Christmas stories, and all payments, have now been sent out, and compliments continue to pour in. You neighbors who wrote stories certainly have an appreciative audience!

• • • • • •

It was worth while, wasn't it?

• • • • • •

We are very lucky, neighbors, to have our two pages most days, because the advent of the wonderful telegraph printing instrument has added thousands of words a day to the "copy" which the typesetters must handle. Have you been in to see it yet?

• • • • • •

I think it is quite the most marvellous thing I have ever seen—I thought th linotpye and monotype very wonderful when I first saw them, but the idea of this machine bringing whole words over the telegraph wire and typing them out in our office is more wonderful still.

• • • • • •

And the whole apparatus is the invention of a Canadian, I read in last night's paper! That is a boost for our country indeed.

• • • • • •

I noticed, yesterday, that there is an invitation in the window asking you to visit the office to see the machine working, and I really think you should. I know I was just fascinated.

• • • • • •

And now, neighbors, don't forget those parcels, please!

ANNUAL REPORTS READ AT MEETING

Mark Street W.M.S. Holds Election of Officers For Coming Year.

Reports of the year's work and the election of officers were the chief items of business considered at the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Mark street United church, held on Monday. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Wand the meeting opened with Mrs. Matchett taking charge of the devotional exercises.

A short program comprising a solo by Mrs. Hunter and a reading by Mrs. Wattam was enjoyed by everyone present.

Mrs. Soucee was appointed a delegate to look after the billeting of the delegates for the Presbyterial for Mark street. Mrs. Pomroy reported on the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. Clark on the bale, and Mrs. Thornley gave a favorable report on the Mission band.

Following the reading of the report on the mite boxes collections, Rev. Mr. Thornley was asked to take the chair for the election of officers. The following were chosen:

President—Mrs. Thornley.

Vice-Presidents—1 Mrs. Wand, 2 Mrs. Soucee, and 3 Mrs. Throop.

Secretary—Mrs. Graham.

Treasurer—Mrs. Matchett.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Doxsee.

Pianist—Mrs. Andrews.

Missionary Secretary—Mrs. Pomroy.

Associate Help Secretary—Mrs. Dr. Moore.

Literature Secretary—Mrs. Payne.

The appointment of a Mission band secretary was left over until the next meeting. A committee composed of Mesdames Throop, Thornley, Payne and Speers were given the power to appoint a Mission band superintendent. Preceding the close of the meeting Mrs. Payne was appointed delegate to the Peterborough Presbyterial to be held in January.

Children Will Be Granted Admission To Theatre On Presenting Admission Fee Of An Apple Or Potato

The matinee for children which J. A. Stewart, manager of the Capitol Theatre, plans to give on Saturday morning next, at ten o'clock, promises to reap quite a rich reward in the way of apples and potatoes. For an apple or a potato, "or, better still, two apples or two potatoes," as the film caption puts it, is the price of admission for any child next Saturday morning, and the resultant barrels of fruit and vegetables will be divided equally as a Christmas gift from the children of the city and the management of the Capitol Theatre, between the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage. This should be a popular performance in more ways than one. An apple or potato means less in most households than the money for an admission ticket and the two institutions devoted to the care of children should have many uses for both.

CATARACTS BEAT FORT ERIE 7-1

Both Teams Play Good Amateur Hockey in International Fixture.

NIAGARA FALLS Dec. 19.—Niagara Falls N.Y. took an international itsleague game from Fort Erie at the local arena last night by a 4 to 1 score. The game produced some good amateur hockey that compared favorably with the Intermediate O.H.A. brand seen in these parts in recent years.

The initial period opened fast with the Falls pressing right from the start. Bill Pennie scored the first counter when he took Martin's pass right in front of the net. The time was ten minutes. Six minutes later, Martin added another goal on Pennie's pass from the boards.

Play was even faster in the second period with both teams scoring. After fifteen minutes of play, Schnarr beat Pasch with a hard shot from close in and one minute later, Pennie raced through to score on a neat effort.

Esseltine put the Falls three up one minute after the last period started with a shot from inside blue line. It was the only score of the period but the Falls had all the play. The teams:—

Fort Erie—Goal, Wickes; defence, Ludwig and Herrington; centre, Schnarr; wings, Rankin and Wicks; subs, Baer, Vaughn, Breen.

Niagara Falls, N.Y.,—Goal, Pasch, defence Stone and Esseltine; centre, Kinghorn; wings, Filman and Martin; subs, Pasch, Pennie Thompson, Fedden, Smith.

Penalties—Niagara Falls (Kinghorn and Esseltine). Fort Erie — Vaughn 2, and Breen).

Referee—Farrell.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

Besides winning the junior championship in 1901 the Peterborough Colts distinguished themselves by another remarkable achievement, the piling up of the highest goal record ever made in a local game between two organized teams.

That was a score variously received in the newspapers of the day as 42 to 2 and 40 to 2, the former figure being given by The Examiner which had troubles of its own that night in the shape of a big fire which left no time or chance for hockey reports and the latter by the Review which described the game in some detail.

Anyway a goal or two makes little difference, either score is a record for this city and perhaps generally.

The story of this game is an interesting one.

There existed in Peterborough a team of Junior Colts who fired with enthusiasm by the triumph of the Senior Colts wanted to try their spurs on outside opposition.

Accordingly the Excelsiors, champions of the Toronto City League were brought down for an exhibition game. When the Queen City representatives arrived at the rink and found they were billed to play the Junior Colts they flatly declined to go on the ice. They hadn't come down to Peterborough to play any juvenile aggregation they declared but were after the scalps of the Colts, the Junior O.H.A. champions and nobody else would satisfy them Most of the Colts were at the rink and the others were hunted up and the game began.

The cocky Toronto aggregation, several of whom looked old and big enough to be intermediate players immediately proceeded to score the first goal and skated back to their positions with broad smiles on their faces. This was going to be soft they thought. Then the Colts got under way and before the Excelsiors knew what had happend the junior champs had rapped in eight goals in a row. The Toronto gang contributed their last kick here with a second goal and then the Colts came back with seven before half time, the figures then reading 15 to 2. The second half saw the Colts score almost at the rate of one a minute, the Peterborough team scoring either 25 or 27 goals in this period, according to the various counts. The writer, a youthful fan standing on the boards along the side remembers saying to a companion that the easiest way of keeping track of the score was to shut one's eyes for a moment and count one. Anyway it was a constant procession with Whitcroft scoring some 15 or 16 goals and the other helping themselves liberally.

The Excelsiors probably were never more sick of any team in their lives than they were on the night of March 8, 1901, when they helped to make hockey history by getting the worst beating on record.

Here were the teams:

Toronto Excelsiors—Goal, Looge; point, Allen; cover, Frankish; forwards, Birmingham, Fraser, Hewson, Weir.

Peterborough — Goal Brundrette; point, Cavanah; cover, Armstrong; forwards, Whitcroft, Morgan, Robinson, King.

Major League Draft Meeting Abandoned

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 19.— A scheduled meeting at West Baden, Ind., Jan. 10, between representatives of the major and minor baseball leagues, to discuss revision of the present draft rules, was called off yesterday by J. Cal Ewing, chairman of the minor leagues committee.

Action was taken following the refusal of big league officials to attend.

Ewing, president of the Oakland club, said he would call a meeting to take up the same subject a few days prior to the National Baseball Association convention in Chattanooga, Tenn., next December.

NEWSY LALONDE FAVORS CHANGES

Advocates the Curtailment of Schedules and Weakening of Defence.

WINDSOR, Dec. 17.—Edward C. "Newsy" Lalonde, veteran skipper of the Niagara Falls Club of the Canadian Professional Hockey League, is convinced that there should be some important changes in the professional puck-chasing code as used in the National and Canadian circuits.

"To my way of thinking the cart is before the horse," Lalonde said. "The N.H.L. fans are clamoring about so many overtime games, scoreless draws and shutout contests, and the owners have come to realize that the cash customers must be satisfied since they pay the shot."

"I've thought this thing out from every angle and am convinced that the elimination of forward passing in a team's own area will do more than anything else to open up play. It would place the onus on the puck-carrier and make it necessary for him to bring the puck up to centre ice or else resort to onside passes, rather than the present style of whipping the puck up to the first line as many of them do, leaving any opposing attackers flat-footed.

Defensive Play Is Unpopular.

"The present code does not encourage a player to rush in behind an opponent's goal to chase loose pucks. When a player finds the puck behind the opponent's cage, it is almost always a signal for his return to territory back of centre ice, the old five-man defence idea—and it is this five-man defence that is slowing up hockey. Nothing else. Make it necessary for players to play straight hockey in their own territory and add forward passing in opposing territory together with kicking of the puck in all three sections and you'll relieve the present situation.

"The fans are demanding more goals and they're not getting them. A draw to most clubs, especially in the N.H.L., is regarded as a satisfactory ending. Hence the numerous overtime draws in which stalling tactics are robbing the game of its spectacular element. Any rule change that will open up the game will be welcomed by the fans, and I feel that the trouble right now rests in the forward passing in defensive sections."

"Newsy" sounds a warning note on the marathon schedules in both the Canpro and N.H.L. "Hockey players cannot last forever, and where, in the old days we used to consider a player was good for eight to ten seasons, to-day with the heavy program of games and elaborate play-off system, the average star cannot possibly go on for more than six or seven winters."

You will find many things in the Classified Ads. of The Examiner.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE THIS WINTER

WITH PARKDALE.

Walter Levitt, sterling defence player of the Toronto Parkdale Canoe Club team, who is expected to attain stardom in the Little Big Four hockey series this winter.

Four Teams in Senior and Three in Junior Will Make Up League.

MEETING HELD.

Two Intermediate Players To Be Allowed On Roster of Each Team.

That a strong City Hockey League consisting of Junior and Senior groups, will be in operation this winter was evidenced at the meeting held in Chamber of Commerce rooms last night. Four senior and three junior teams had representatives present each expressing the enthusiasm of their teams to play in the league and it is likely that at least four teams will enter in each group.

The following clubs sent delegates: The C.G.E. Tool Room, Sid Gibbs; De Laval, E. J. Ruiter; Peterborough Canoe Co., Fred Batten; Cognawasa Club, Johnny Wilson. Strong expectations of a second entry from the C.G.E. were expressed by several present.

The three junior clubs were: All Saints' Athletic Club, E. Lebarr; Canucks, Bill Prindible! Peterborough Canoe Co., Fred Clancy.

Considerable discussion arose over the question of allowing Intermediate O.H.A. players to play on the teams. It was moved that two Intermediate players be allowed on the roster of each team, and as many Junior players as the teams desired to use.

Age Limit Set.

The age limit for the Junior was set at twenty years or under by the 1st of January. The entry fee for the senior teams will be $10 and the Juns for $5, this money to be defaulted by any teams failing to comply with the rules of the league or not completing their schedule; otherwise it will be refunded at the end of the year.

There will be another meeting on Thursday evening, Dec. 20, at the office of the Raybestos Co., when the entry list will be closed and the schedule be drawn up.

OUR NEW YEAR'S MIDNIGHT FROLIC—Don't Forget It

NEW LEAGUE IS FORMED

Four Teams Entered in Senior Inter-Alley Bowling League.

UNDER C.B.A. RULES.

After a lapse of one year since its birth, the Senior Inter-Alley Bowling League are again beginning activities, with an entry from each of the four local alleys—Y.M.C.A., K. of C., Water Street and the Duffus Recreation Academy. The games will be played at each of the alleys in turn and a double schedule run, beginning Jan. 8, 1929.

The fact that there is only one entry from each club only tends to emphasize the fact that every player will be a top-notcher and followers of bowling can look forward to some consistent and outstanding performing on the alleys.

As far as possible the C.B.A. rules will be adhered to and a team is to consist of 8 men.

The W. H. Bradburn trophy which at present is at the Y.M.C.A., having been won by H. H. Graham and his heavy hitters two years ago after a very successful season, will again go to the winners of this League. Steve Elliot, Vince Fitzgerald and Jim Fay who are picking the teams from their respective clubs all feel certain that this season promises keener competition and more clever playing than ever before due to the fact that bowling has at last established itself as one of the major pastimes in this city during the winter months.

Any information with regards to this League may be obtained from Hector McLeod, YM.C.A., George street.

SHOP LEAGUE HOCKEY RULES

Closing Date Set at December 26th For Entering Teams.

TEAM IN CITY LEAGUE.

The second meeting for the purpose of promoting hockey and organizing a shop league in the works of the Canadian General Electric Co., was held on Tuesday, Dec. 18, in the Laboratory lecture room, after 5 o'clock. The main object of this gathering was to ascertain how many teams were intending to enter the shop league and to decide on a suitable set of rules.

After routine business was disposed of, S. J. Hayes, president, submitted a set of rules which the executive had drawn up at a meeting held last week. These rules with a few minor changes met with the approval of the delegates from the various departments.

A motion that one senior team to represent the C.G.E. works be entered in the city league, was carried, and Jack Killoran was elected manager of this team with power to appoint a suitable coach as he sees fit.

The following are the rules for the C. G. E. Shop Hockey League. In general this league will follow O.H.A. rules except in so far as they conflict with the conditions stated below.

A team shall consist of not less than 9 nor more than 12 signed players. The maximum number of substitute players to be used in one game is 4—that is, a team must not use more than 10 players in any one game.

All players must be members of the Peterborough Works Social and Athletic Club.

After participating in two league games a player cannot be transferred from one team to another. All transfers must be submitted to the executive for approval.

Players forming any team are to be selected from one department; however when extra players are required to complete a team they may be signed up providing the arrangement has the sanction of the executive.

Referees and chief timekeeper will be appointed by the executive. Each team must also provide a timekeeper.

The executive shall decide upon and make all arrangements for the play-offs.

Woodfull and Henry Take Complete Control of the English Bowling.

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 19 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—The Australians, batting in their second innings of the second test match, scored all but 44 to the 344 runs necessary to prevent a first innings defeat. Australia to-day made 339 runs for the loss of four batters and, with but five wickets to fall, face the task of piling up more runs than the entire English team can make in its second innings.

Ryder, Australia's captain, with 77 runs, and Nothling with 20, were batting when stumps were drawn.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

FOR THE LAST HALF OF THIS WEEK THE CAPITOL OFFERS RICHARD, BARTHELMESS, IN "OUT OF THE RUINS" SIR PHILIP GIBB'S DRAMATIC ROMANCE, AND CHARLIE CHASE IN "THE BOOSTER"

Speaking of screen lovers—there are Richard Barthelmess and Marion Nixon to be considered when the palm is awarded.

Barthelmess, who has had many cinema love affairs in the past with blondes and brunettes and auburn haired beauties—seems to have found his ideal leading lady in Marian Nixon at the Capitol Thursday, Friday and Saturday, where the popular First National star is appearing in "Out of the Ruins."

"Out of the Ruins" is a story of France prior to and after the close of the World War. But first of all it is a love story, a sweet, appealing romance of a boy and a girl and probably in all screenland, no two artists could be found who could portray the young couple in this tender love story better than Barthelmess and Miss Nixon.

Always the consummate actor, Barthelmess is appearing and genuine in the character of Lieut. Pierre Dumont of the French Army. He brings to that role all the sincere and boyish enthusiasm that Sir Philip Gibbs, author of the original story, gave to Pierre. Barthelmess has often been known as the typical American boy of the screen. In "Out of the Ruins" he demonstrated that he may be the typical French boy as well—or any other nationality. At knows no nationalities, and this gifted actor has demonstrated this on more than one occasion.

Miss Nixon is quite the most charming and lovely young woman we have seen in Barthelmess' screen embrace. Their love scenes are skillfully directed and cleverly acted. They are never overdone and always satisfying. We again repeat that, as screen lover, Mr. Barthelmess and Miss Nixon will make the other favorites of films look to their laurels.

AT THE REGENT.

McCOY'S NEWEST A GREAT PICTURE

"Spoilers of the West" Replete With Action, Charm and Romance

One of the best Western films brought to the screen during the last year is "Spoilers of the West" Tim McCoy's new Western melodrama which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is presenting this week at the Regent Theatre, beginning Thursday.

The picture is replete with action, vividly colored and contains a charming love romance such as is seldom seen in a picture of this character.

There is no doubt that McCoy, who came to the screen only little more than a year ago, does his best work in this picture, not only as a soldier and stunt rider but as a lover.

Marjorie Daw, who appears with him in the featured feminine lead, is an old trouper as far as years of service in films go, but still as winsome and charming a young lady as when she was being featured a few years back by Marshall Neilan.

To McCoy must be given the credit of using real Indians and soldiers in his production, thereby having types which cannot well be imitated by professional actors.

Years ago this actor became a "blood brother" of the Araphahos and it is interesting to watch the indians as they appear with him on the screen. They seem to work a great deal more naturally then they would if associated with white men whom they had never known.

The story of "Spoilers of the West" has to do with the historic Laramie treaty which gave to the Indians thousands of square miles of rich hunting grounds, coveted, and later invaded, by white trappers and settlers.

It was this treaty which later caused much bloodshed between the whites and red men when the government was unable to keep off trespassing emigrants from the Indians' preserves.

William Fairbanks, formerly a Western star in his own right, does a good bit of work as the villainous brother of Miss Daw, and Chief Big Tree plays the role of Red Cloud to perfection.

The picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

COMPETE IN BADMINTON CHAMPIONSHIPS

In the finals of the Toronto city and district badminton championships, A. B Massey of Carlton Club won the men's singles; A. B. Massey and P. A. Wisner won the men's doubles, and Miss B. McCrae and A. B. Massey won the mixed doubles. Mr. Massey is shown in photograph No. 1, and Mr. Wisner in photograph No. 5. Other prominent players in the tournament were: (2) Harry Sedgewick; (3) Mrs. Gooderham and Mrs. W. J. Baxter; (4) Mr. Andrews, defeated finalist in the men's doubles. These players will figure prominently in the Canadian championships, to be held later this season.

VIEWS ON SPORT

All entries must be in to the City League executive on or before Thursday night when the schedule will be drawn up.

W. R. Breyfogle has presented the City Hockey League with a large silver cup, which will be put up for competition in the senior series. The executive have named it "The Breyfogle Cup" and, it is such a splendid trophy that, they have ruled that it will always remain the property of the League no matter how many years consecutively it may be won by the same club. The executive has also a cup of its own, which becomes the permanent property of any club winning it three years. Two clubs, the C.G.E. and the Delaval each have a claim on the latter cup.

The executive are now hoping to secure a cup for the Junior group.

Hockey fans may expect to see fast hockey in the City League games this year, since, after a lengthy discussion, it was decided that two Intermediate O.H.A. may be included on the line-up of each team. This will have the effect of speeding up the games and give the less experienced players a chance to learn some of the tricks from the O.H.A. team mates. The games will all be played on the Brock Street Rink; the clubs are enrolling all the best players; the teams are pretty evenly matched; and all these indicate that the brand of hockey will be good.

C. C. "Cash and Carry" Pyle has announced his second International trans-continental foot race, New York to the Pacific Coast; the long distant hikers to leave New York March 31. Last year Pyle's Bunion Derby did the distance, 3,422.3 miles in 84 days. There were 199 starters and 55 finishers; Philip Granville of Hamilton, finished third.

The "flu" epidemic is reducing the playing strength of a number of the hockey teams in Toronto, several being three and four men short on account of illness. All the players on the Maple Leafs were inoculated on Saturday night.

* * * * * * *

The Americans, the wonder team of the N.H.L. took a firmer grip on the league leadership last night by defeating the Pittsburg Pirates; this is the fifth victory in a row. The Leafs, by the victory of the Canadiens and Maroons, slip to the bottom of the Canadian group, one point behind the two Montreal teams.

American League batting averages made public this week show that Cobb, veteran and leader of them all is still batting well over .300. Ty has seen twenty-two years of major league service and every season has batted over .300 and sometimes above the .400 mark. This year in 95 games he hit .328.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

MANUFACTURERS' LEAGUE

The Ackerman Bowlers cleared the way to a clean victory by some skilful swerving on the Duffus Alleys, blanking the Mercnants Press in every game. The Printers, nevertheless, gave the Harnessmakers a good run for their money, losing the last game by one solitary pin. F. Saunders climbed to the top in this engagement with a high single of 246 and high trio 584.

Canadian Woollens hit the Canadian Packers hard, administering the whitewash liberally to take 8 points. Ed. Vinette zipped along like a big leaguer, piling up the outstanding score of 663 and 263 single. He was given plenty of assistance by Cridland, Hillman and Robertson who ran high scores in the second game totalling 1206 pins.

Shutouts seemed to be the order of the day in this league, as Fitzgerald and Co. duplicated the feat of the Woollens and Ackermans by trouncing the Ontario Marble Co. in every game. T. Ferguson was the high man for the winners, with a trio totaling 654, while R. Shadgett, his teammate, occupied the cellar position with 468.

The C.G.E. team staged the heaviest hitting spree of the night with game totals of 1042, 1257, 1041, for a total pinnage of 3340, blanking the pin topplers from the Raybestos for a 8-point win. The following shows the high totals reached by the winners:

L. Calladine	.217	252	225—	694
B. Weese	.201	253	215—	669
W. McGrath	.178	335	231—	744
R. Evans	.224	236	214—	674
E. Williams	.222	181	156—	559
	1042	1257	1041—	3340

The Peterborough Canoe Company turned the tables on Stock's Bread, taking 6 out of 8 points. Taylor, for the Paddle Makers, took high single with 226, but failed to reach H. Gray's total of 571 for high three.

WESTWARD HO!

All good Canadians realize that Canada is a country to be proud of, but how many however, have tried to visualize the remarkable variety and vastness of this far-flung Dominion? It is only through travel that the immensity and outstanding natural beauty of our great heritage is realized. Travelling westward to the Pacific Coast we pass mighty rushing rivers innumerable lakes and dense lumbering regions thence across the wide prairies and through the magnificent Rockies a reviation of peerless scenic grandeur—then Vancouver and Victoria, those gems of the North Pacific, where the warm Pacific winds made year round golf possible.

Travel facilities are of the best. Every day the year round "The Vancouver Express" widely known Canadian Pacific transcontinental train, leaves Toronto at 9.00 p.m., making the through trip to Vancouver in 4 days. Schedule provides for good connections to all western points and any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly arrange for reservations and tickets on request.

COMMUNIST TOLD TO LEAVE COUNTRY

Department of Immigration Takes Steps To Deal With Agitator.

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.— The Department of Immigration, following a board of inquiry at Timmins, has ordered that Joseph Gilbert, alias Simtnoff, must leave the country. Simtnoff is a communist agitator who entered the country as a visitor and then settled down here contrary to the provisions of the Immigration Act. He carried on his propaganda from Cape Breton to British Columbia. The statement made at a meeting in Detroit that the Canadian Labor Defence League had interceded with the Prime Minister and got Siminoff off is officially denied. No cabinet minister or member of parliament has made representations on Siminoff's behalf, it was stated at the department yesterday.

ANNUAL BAZAAR IS BIG SUCCESS

Keith Barnard, Representative to Boys' Parliament, Entertains Tuxis Groups.

BUFFET LUNCHEON

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A bazaar and concert was held on Friday evening by the ladies of the Anglican church.

The program commenced at eight o'clock in the basement of the church. It was an excellent one, consisting of a short play staged by the ladies, solos by Mrs. Will Tunney and Mrs. F. Waterman; drills by the intermediate girls, and piano solos by Mrs. Allen.

At the conclusion of the program a dainty buffet luncheon was served to the audience, after which the dainty aprons, etc., were offered for sale.

An interesting feature of the program was the selling of a handsome quilt. W. W. Brown was the auctioneer and the quilt sold for about Six Dollars and a half.

Boys Entertained

Keith Barnard entertained about forty of the local tuxis boys at his home on Friday evening.

During the evening the National anthem was sung as a prayer for the recovery of His Majesty King George.

Mr. Barnard also addressed the boys, thanking them for their support and loyality to their candidate during the recent election campaign in East Durham and stating he was always at their service, willing and anxious to do all in his power to build the tuxis boys movement in this constituency to a higher standard.

The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games and in music.

Lunch was served at eleven o'clock after which the boys took their departure to their respective homes.

Among those present were: A. Deyell, A. Brown, H. Dean, R. and F. Barnard, A. Dawson, R. and A. Dawson, S. Greenaway, D. Davidson, Fred Ough, and Bruce Curtis, of Port Hope; H. Chambers, J. Smith, A. Bateman, M. Henry, C. Harper, S. and M. Johnston, J. Ackison, J. and F. Barnard, E. Earnshaw, K. Lang, M. Wood.

Before taking their departure, the Pretor, Archie Deyell moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Barnard for the evening's entertainment. After singing "For he's a jolly good fellow" the pleasant evening was brought to a close.

INSTITUTE MEETING.

Omemee Branch Discuss Reports of Committee For Month.

(Examiner Correspondence)

OMEMEE, Dec. 19.—Mrs. J. J. Nichols opened her home on Wednesday evening to the Women's Institute for their regular meeting. Mrs. J. Widdis, president of the Institute presided and opened the meeting with the Institute Ode and the repetition of the Lord's Prayer. Following the report of the secretary, Mrs. H. McGinness, the gathering was favored with a gramaphone selection. In response to the roll call a number of the members read Christmas poems and stories while others gave appropriate verses and recipes.

The committees previously appointed to look into the matter of the swimming pool and school nurse were heard after which both subjects were thoroughly discussed and will be finally decided on at the January meeting.

Mrs. R. J. Cornwall and Mrs. H. McGinness, delegates to the Women's Institute Convention in Toronto in November, gave excellent reports.

A most interesting item on the program was the reading of a well-worded address by the president, Mrs. Widdis to Mrs. Russell Brooks and Mrs. (Dr.) McPhee, the former being presented with a pyrex pie plate set in silver and the latter a pretty silver cake basket, both ladies being active workers in the society.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. Rae on Wednesday evening, January 9.

SERIOUS FIRE IS NARROWLY AVERTED

Volunteers Extinguish Blaze When Match Is Dropped in Gasoline Pool.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 19. — When someone carelessley dropped a match into a tiny pool of gasoline spilled at one of the tanks at Leonard's Hardware Store on Friday afternoon between 2.30 and 3 o'clock, something was started which threatened serious results. A general alarm was sent in and the brigade promptly responded but the efforts made simultaneously with the sending in of the alarm had already extinguished the rather wicked looking blaze. For a few minutes there was plenty of excitement on the main street and a goodly crowd assembled. Carelessness in dropping matches has been the cause of much property loss and on Friday, a valuable block of buildings was seriously menaced.

This was the second call the brigade had last week as they received a call to Warsaw on Monday night and received permission from the Reeve to respond when a second message from Warsaw cancelled the call as the Peterborough brigade was on the way.

The two brigades were called and permission was given for both to go but when Peterborough could go, the call to Lakefield was cancelled just in time to keep the Lakefield brigade from making the trip.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT HELD AT HAVELOCK

Good Musical Program Given by Male Quartette and Symphony Orchestra.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

P. C. Howard of Havelock acting as chairman. During the evening a drawing conducted by Mr. R. Bonney, of Havelock, was held under the auspices of the Belmont Women's Institute for a three-story Christmas cake, Mrs. Irvin Deline being the winner. The Institute realized the sum of $60.50 from the sale of tickets for the drawing. The proceeds for the concert amounted to $60.

Concert and Social Held.

A very successful Christmas concert and box social was held in the Rush Point school on Friday evening. D. Petherick occupied the chair for a program of songs, dialogues, recitations, choruses, etc. At the conclusion of the program the boxes were auctioned by Isaac Anderson, of Round Lake and the prices realized ranged from 50 cents to $2.80 each. The proceeds for the evening amounted to about forty-five dollars.

COMMON COLD GIVES START TO INFLUENZA, SAY DOCTORS

Exclusion of Pupils Suffering From Colds Proposed By Schools.

WORST IS OVER.

Precaution Still Urged To Prevent Recurrence and Spread of Epidemic.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 19 (Canadian Press).— That influenza epidemics seemed to have their origin in the common cold and that the Ontario Public Health Act should be amended to provide that pupils might be sent home from public schools when primary symptoms of cold were noticed, were among the findings and suggestions put forth by local officers of health of the Ontario Government and representatives of various medical associations which met to discuss the "flu" epidemic at the Parliament Buildings this morning.

Not only did the conference, called by Doctor W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, come to the conclusion that the outbreak of "flu" in the province was "widespread," but it was also urged that every precaution be urged on people to avoid the spreading of the disease.

Reports submitted to the meeting indicated that the outbreak was mild in character, and that with proper care being exercised there was little or no danger of complications of serious nature setting in.

Blames School Room

Dr. T. C. Routley, of the Canadian Red Cross, was the sponsor of the suggestion that all children should be sent home from school when found to be suffering from a cold, even in a mild form.

"I am sure that I can trace nearly every outbreak of any disease to some school room," stated Dr. Routley.

It was also urged that parents be requested to keep their children away from theatres and crowded stores until the epidemic had abated.

Dr. T. J. McNally, of London, stated that twenty per cent. of the school population of London was absent from their studies. The outbreak was mild in nature and was felt to be under reasonable control as long as the people took care of themselves.

Dr. P. J. Maloney stated that there were forty cases in the Ottawa General Hospital, while thirty-three per cent. of the pupils of the public school were away in addition to forty-two per cent. from the high schools. The Dominion Service reported twenty per cent. away from their desks. Only one death has been recorded.

"I feel that we have reached the peak and that the disease is now on the wane in Northern Ontario," stated Dr. W. E. George. He reported Parry Sound and Nipissing districts as fairly free of the disease, and that while the outbreak had been at its worst in Cobalt it was now on the decline.

Action of the various newspapers of the province in advising the people to refrain from panic and to take reasonable precautions met with the approval of the conference, it being pointed out much had been done to check the spread of the disease.

Suggestions put forth by the conference will receive the attention of the Government and will probably be embodied in literature being prepared for the purpose of educating the public in the treatment of the disease.

A feeling that the backbone of the epidemic had been broken was voiced by the conference.

Colleges Close

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 19 (Canadian Press).—Two more classical colleges in the district of Quebec, the Quebec Seminary and the Rimouski Seminary, have followed the example of the Levis College and have closed their doors in advance of the usual closing time for the Christmas and New Year holidays as precautionary measures against the further spreading of the grippe among their students. While grippe is quite prevalent here it is of a non-serious variety.

Schools Ordered Closed.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 19 (Canadian Press).—Dr. W. L. Hutton, medical officer of health of this city, after consulting with Public School Inspector E. E. C. Kilmer, to-day ordered the public schools here closed at noon to-morrow.

There are 665 absentees out of 4,300 pupils, most of them because of flu.

MAYOR DENNE

"I have seen the figures which, I have no doubt, are correct, and I therefore think it would be a good purchase," said he. "It should be a utility that the Peterborough Utilities Commission can take care of and in addition I think that there will be a possibility of cutting down the overhead, at present entailed in book-keeping and other relations with the Toronto office of the Hydro.

"One thing to be considered particularly, is the fact that a perpetual franchise over our city streets goes with the gas plant, and it might not be so satisfactory to have the franchise purchased along with the plant, by private company, by the city purchasing this utility, the franchise will be eliminated so far as outside interests are concerned.

Foresees Advantages

That there should be no opposition to public ownership, in this case, at any rate, was the opinion expressed by President James Dutton, of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, while discussing the proposed purchase by the city, of the Gas plant, from the Hydro Electric Power Commission. "In view of the fact that the city had an appraised value of the plant, and was able to make such an excellent bargain, to acquire the plant and all its properties for $335,000 I cannot see where it would not be a wise move on the part of Peterborough citizens" said Mr. Dutton.

In Good Condition

"The plant is in excellent condition, modernly equipped in every respect, so that there will be no great expenditure save for incidental upkeep for some time to come, while its capacity is such as will easily handle all demands made upon it by the city for many years. Besides, I think we should not lose sight of the fact that a large American company, in negotiating for its purchase, was prepared to pay a good deal more than $335,000.

Benefit Manufacturers

"Another thing which occurs to me" continued Mr. Dutton, "is that some manufacturers and others in Peterborough, have felt that the price of gas in this city has been rather high for manufacturing purposes, and in view of this fact, many of them have resorted to other expedients. While there is no indication of reduced prices immediately, in the event of the city purchasing the gas plant, still, the reduction may be looked forward to as an eventuality.

"In summing it all up, we should not overlook the fact that the plant is showing such profits as will enable the city to redeem its bonds without any severe charge upon the people. That is a point worthy of consideration" he concluded.

Should Be Carried.

"I am much interested in the purchase by the city of the gas plant, mains, and what is contained in the price which has been obtained by Mayor Denne and his council," said ex-Mayor J. J. Turner, this morning, "and I submit that the by-law to purchase the plant should be carried by the citizens for these several reasons:

The price placed on the plant and equipment is a reasonable one.

The investment will carry itself and pay a profit to the citizens either in lower gas rates or through increased discount on present charges.

I believe water light and fuel (gas) should be supplied to the citizens at as near cost as possible, as being among the necessities of life

The gas plant is a municipal necessity which should be owned by the citizens with the result that when paid for by moneys which it will earn covering a period of years, it will belong to the city, whereas, if operated by someone else, we pay for it and in the end, the ownership is elsewhere. Such a proposition is not good business and as we have to pay for it we should own it and get the benefit. I trust there will be a large turn-out of voters to support the by-law to purchase the gas plant," concluded Mr. Turner.

City Should Control

"It is a natural monopoly which the city should control; I have been through the details and the price isn't excessive and the plant is paying its way with no reason to believe that it will not continue to do so." Thus Colonel Arthur Stevenson justified his opinion that Peterborough should purchase the gas plant from the Hydro Electric Power commission.

"We must own it or a private concern will, for it is a naturally profitable business that will grow with the city" he continued. "Of course, we might have a situation such as in Toronto, where the city controls it to some extent though the plant there is privately owned. But it would be a mistake to not purchase the local plant and thus run the risk of it getting out of our hand as has been the case with the water power."

"Do you think that the Peterborough Utilities Commission could handle it along with its present functions?" asked the reporter.

"Sure I do" was the unhesitating reply. "Why there is no need for a change at all. Let Harry Beal go on running it just as he has been. He's running it fine."

Colonel Stevenson went on to point out that the consumers in Peterborough are numerous though very few use the gas on a large scale. For this reason, there would be little danger of the city suffering in the event of any single subscriber ceasing to use the gas. He stated, in conclusion, that the assets of the plant are mostly visible, there being holders or containers of value almost equal to a third the purchase price.

UNITED STATES MAY RATIFY ANTI-WAR PACT--WITH 'BUTS'

Consents — But Treaty Must Not Abridge Right To Defend U. S.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

Agrees—But U. S. Must Not Be Required To Act Against Offenders.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press)—The Kellogg Anti-War Treaty was presented formally to the Senate to-day by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, which overwhelmingly approved it yesterday. At the same time the "interpretative" resolution of Senator Moses, Republican of New Hampshire, was reported from the committee "without recommendation."

In its final form the Moses resolution read:—

"Resolved, that the Senate of the United States declares that in advising and consenting to the Multilateral Treaty it does so with the understanding:—

"1—That the treaty does not impair or abridge the right of the United States to defend its territory or other vital interests in accordance with the traditional American policies.

"2—That the treaty imposes no obligation on the United States to resort to co-ercive or punitive measures against any offending nation.

"3—That the treaty does not obligate the United States to the conditions of any treaty to which the United States is not a party.

"4—The secretary of state is requested to forward a copy of this resolution to the representatives of the other powers."

Senator Borah presented the treaty and the resolution separately, first placing the pact before the senate.

Taking its place alongside the naval construction bill before the senate, the treaty to renounce war as an instrument of national policy, appeared th have little opportunity of getting up for discussion ahead of the cruiser measure or before the Christmas recess.

The resolution of Senator Moses, which he would have accompany the ratification of the treaty as a "clarifying" statement of America's position was modified to-day by its sponsors and the direct reference to the American Munroe Doctrine was eliminated.

articles and the handling and juggling caused in transfer had broken the wrapping paper and the articles were in imminent danger of slipping out through the torn paper.

In sending a parcel it is well to have it weighed; there are four wickets at the post office for the purpose; so that the number of stamps needed to carry the parcel to its destination may be accurately known. Some parcels are received on which the postage was not sufficient, and the person receiving the parcel must necessarily make up the deficit before he may receive his parcel, with an overcharge for the added trouble. Also it is well to have all parcels insured, so that if one is lost in the mails full indemnity for the contents may be claimed.

Parcels for Quebec and Ontario should be mailed, for safe delivery, not later than December 21, and those for local delivery by December 22.

Address all mail matter fully, writing street and number, as daily there are letters coming into the local office having only the name.

Yesterday afternoon ninety bags of mail were sent out to catch the afternoon train, which is just nine times the usual daily number of ten bags.

CLUB WILL HOLD BOOSTER NIGHT

Rev. Mr. Dwelly Gives Interesting Address at St. John's Men's Club.

REGULAR MEETING.

The discussion of a Booster night to be held on January 7th, with necessary preparations, and a highly interesting address on the topic "Humor" by the Rev. Mr. Dwelly of Young's Point, made the meeting of St. John's Men's Club a busy and profitable one on Monday evening.

The address of the evening was one that possessed so much of the unexpected as to make it unusually entertaining, Mr. Dwelly recounting many humorous incidents related to him by acquaintances, as well as frequently quoting the well known Canadian author, Stephen Leacock. Particularly well told was the story of a man subject to epileptic fits, who, when rushed to a hospital after he had taken a fit on the street, was discovered to be wearing a card secured about his neck reading: "To whom it may concern: I have already had my appendix removed twice, and my tonsils three times."

Mr. Dwelly concluded his address with a reading, "The Bug," which proved a most fitting finale. To him was expressed the appreciation of his hearers, previous to the serving of refreshments and the singing of the National Anthem.

BLOCKED HYDRANT, FINE, TWO DOLLARS

Case Arises Out of Fire at S. Whatley's Store On Charlotte Street.

Damage amounting to $300.00 has been repaired at S. Whatley's Fish and Chip Shop, 193 Charlotte street, following the fire of December 7. In fact, the conflagration has probably been forgotten by most people, but it happened that on that particular day, A. Lunn, a trucker of Millbrook, had come to the city and had parked his truck without noting the immediate proximity of a fire hydrant, almost directly in front of the aforesaid shop. Fire Chief Gimblett and his entire brigade happened along to fight the blaze, encountered the truck as an obstacle in the path of operations, and—well, Lunn appeared in city police court this morning, pleaded guilty to a charge under the fire by-law and was fined $2.00 and costs, the total being $4.75.

Guest of Jail.

It isn't often that the accused gets as much consideration as William Kelly received in police court this morning. The old man, facing a charge of vagrancy, following his arrest while begging with out proper authority to do so, pleaded guilty to the offense charged.

"How long do you want this time, Mr. Kelly?" asked the magistrate.

"Three months I guess," came the ready reply.

"Very well, then, three months it shall be," declared His Worship.

Suspended Sentence.

Alex Hubble, arrested by Provincial Constable Thompson in the township of Dummer, pleaded guilty to the theft of two halters, the offense being committed in October, 1926. The harness had been returned and all restitution made. The magistrate found it a case of suspended sentence.

SIX TRAPPED IN COAL MINE

Fate Unknown While Rescuers Struggle To Reach Victims.

MAY BE ALIVE.

DRAKESBORO, Ky., Dec. 19. — Canadian Press. — Trapped in Mine No. 2, of the Black Diamond Coal Co., here for more than 14 hours, the fate of six men to-day remained unknown as a rescue crew dug frantically to get at them.

The men were entombed at 7.30 last night by a fall of slate and it was early to-day before a rescue crew could reach the scene and start after them. Four men escaped at the time, and reported that little property loss was caused by the accident.

The men were trapped, however, more than a mile from the mine entrance, and it was feared that the resultant gasses would have snuffed out their lives before they could be reached. J. B. James, assistant manager of the mine, said, however, from the men's position as described to him he thought two of them might have a chance to live. They were Cleveland Bolling and Vermont Nelson, machine cutters. The other four trapped were Roy Ezell, James Sullivan, Arthur Davis and Leonard Eplet.

HOTEL BURNS IN RICHMOND

Quebec Provincial Hotel Destroyed With All Furnishings and Equipment.

GUESTS ESCAPE.

RICHMOND, Que., December 19 (Canadian Press). — Damage estimated between $75,000 and $80,000 was caused here to-day, when fire completely destroyed the Brunswick House, one of Richmond's newest and most modern hotels, along with all of its furnishing, as well as the personal effects of the hotel guests and staff.

The fire originated in the furnace room, where an automatic burner was in use. The flames spread so rapidly that within a short time the two lower floors of the four-storey building were a mass of flames. The hotel guests on the second and third floors were taken from the building by ladders, as were also members of the hotel staff on the top floor. Every one was forced to make a hurried exit, while one man, J. Bernier, had such a narrow escape that when he was finally rescued he fell unconscious, overcome by smoke.

GAS MAINS BLOW UP IN LONDON, ENG.

SOLID GROUND TO HOPE THAT KING IS SAVED

British Medical Journals Trace History of His Majesty's Illness.

DANGER EXISTS.

Severity and Length of Infection Make Progress Slow and Difficult.

LONDON, December 20. — Canadian Press. — The slow upward trend in King George's condition was continuing upward to-day.

This morning's bulletin, which again announced that His Majesty had a good night's rest, was the sixth successive one in which a slight improvement was recorded. This indication of steady, if small, gain, for the King, was cheering news for the public, while in palace circles there was an air of greater optimism although it has repeatedly been made clear that anxiety must continue until the patient has gained sufficient strength to convince the physicians that he is able to carry through to recovery.

Queen Mary was able to take another spell of time from the sick room and drove from the palace soon after 3.30 o'clock this afternoon. Princess Mary left a few minutes earlier.

An official bulletin issued late this afternoon stated that King George's progress was now established on a firmer basis.

The condition of the right side of the lung was stated to have improved, and the heart is slowly gathering power. The exhaustion continues profound, but the general strength is slightly increased.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press Cable). — An authoritative statement giving technical details of the progress of the King's illness and expressing the opinion that there are now increasingly solid grounds for hoping for recovery, appeared to-day in the British Medical Journal and Lancet.

The statement said, in part:

"There are signs that the King's illness is producing in the public mind a sensitiveness only too natural. The present condition of His Majesty can best be understood by recalling the early stages of this severe illness.

"In the first phase, gradual in its onset, there were to be noted a general infection with imperfect localization—little or no cough and only one small patch of pleuristic friction blood culture positive (streptococcus), irritative state of the nervous system, which produced profound distress and a sense of illness.

"Toward the end of this first phase came accentuation of pleuritic friction which extended to the diaphragm.

"The second phase was one of increasing toxemia with dusky appearance—dry, cracked tongue, period of delirium, exhaustion.

With the next phase came abatement of the fever and some evidence of localization The blood culture was now negative, toxemia was less, delirium subsiding.

A few days later the temperature rose rather abruptly to a higher level and on December 12 there was evidence at the extreme right base of effusion which had commenced between the lung and the diaphragm. Drainage by means of a rib re-section was performed the same day under a general anaesthesia—gas, oxygen, ether. Though the infective progress has become gradually localized, its severity, coupled with lowered vitality, resulting from the length of the illness, must make progress of the healing difficult and tedious. Local sloughing, however is less pronounced to-day and tissue reation is apparent.

"To stimulate the vitality of the tissues, brief general exposure to ultra-violet rays from a mercury lamp have been made each day since December 15.

"It will be apparent to medical men that not only the severity and length of the infection but the exhaustion resulting therefrom must make progress slow and difficult. At the same time, the dangerousphases of the illness have surmounted and there are increasingly solid grounds for hoping that recovery will result from this long, anxious struggle."

Local 'Flu' Of Mild Type

City of Peterborough Has So Far Escaped Lightly, Declares Dr. Sutton.

CHILDREN AFFECTED.

School Doctor Has Not Noticed Any Great Falling Off in Attendance.

"This epidemic of the "flu" need not be taken seriously by the public if each individual case takes it seriously."—Dr. N. H. Sutton, District M.O.H.

That the city of Peterborough has so far, escaped lightly, the epidemic of flu which has been province wide, and though a large percentage of the local cases are among school children, there is no present indication of the schools closing, was the information which followed the above statement from the District Medical Officer of Health, this morning.

Asked his opinion of the necessity for schools closing in other places throughout the province, Dr. Sutton expressed the belief that since it is so near to the end of the term and since, with a large percentage of pupils absent, the examinations would not give a fair picture anyway, many schools are being closed for the precautionary value of such a move. This would not apply in all cases, of course, for there are some in which the epidemic has struck harder than in others.

Mild Form of Flu

"With few exceptions" continued Dr. Sutton, "the present epidemic has been of a very mild form, comparable to the three-day cold, and this has been the case in Peterborough." Speaking more generally he stated that in only four or five cases out of the thousands reported, have the patients died, with the suddenness characteristic of the epidemics of 1918-19, while the complications attendant to the Flu are not nearly so evident as in the former outbreak.

Having attended the conference in Toronto on Wednesday, at which District Medical Officers of Health, and representatives of various organizations such as the Red Cross, had gathered, in the office of the Deputy Minister of Health, Dr. Sutton also told of a survey which he made to calculate what emergency force of nurses could be mobilized in the event of the epidemic growing more serious, including those who have instruction in home nursing. The latter, would be of value in assisting in neighboring households where a whole family might be ill.

He stressed the value of adhering to common rules of health; of immediate, but not severe measures to prevent intestinal Flu, and the importance of using antiseptics that are not too strong, when spraying the nose or throat. He also pointed out that crowds should be avoided, and in conclusion declared that the public should not get in a "blue funk" about it but should take necessary precautions.

Dr. A. W. McPherson

I have not noticed any more pupils absent than is usual at this time of the year" said Dr. A. W. McPherson, in discussing the matter of illness among Peterborough school children. There is no serious outbreak of Flu, as in some places, and if anything, I think the people are being more careful so that their children will not be ill at Christmas time. This may be the reason for some of the present small number being absent. You know, they have a habit of calling all colds and slight illnesses 'flu' but there is no serious evidence of it so far as I have seen."

Three More Deaths

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Three deaths in Toronto within the past 24 hours increased the death toll from the influenza epidemic in Toronto to a total of nine. To the mounting fatalities is added a shortage of trained nurses.

Central registry, for graduate nurses only, has a membership of 1,200.

COMMERCE OF WHOLE EMPIRE GRADUALLY REACHING NORMAL AS KING SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Rettail Merchants At Blackest Moment Took Out Heavy Insurance Against Losses.

SHOPPING IMPROVES.

Usual Christmas Shopping Rush Resembles Many Bargain Day Struggles.

LONDON, Dec. 20. —(Canadian Press).—The British Empire's wheels of commerce which slowed down somewhat during the acute phases of King George's illness are gradually reaching normal speed with His Majesty's slow improvement.

There was a time when the outlook for the retail business appeared very black and heavy insurance was taken out against loss of trade if the dreaded "eventuality" should take place, but this apparently has been avoided and the big premiums paid by the retail stores are now being recouped from the rush of business which has set in during this last week of Christmas shopping.

It seemed as though everyone had delayed their gift buying as long as the cloud hung over Buckingham Palace and now are making up for lost time not only in London but in the provincial towns also. The usual hristmas shopping rush, bad enough, now resembles more closely a bargain day struggle.

The betterment in the King's condition has been reflected in brick business generally. Tentative engagements of supper tables at the big hotels and restaurants are being clinched by actual reservations. Theatre bookings, held in abeyance, are now being concluded and parties which a few weeks ago were hardly thought of are being planned with enthusiasm.

The usual boisterous celebrations, however, may be largely replaced by generally quiet enjoyment tinged with thankful satisfaction that the anxious period has passed.

Celebrates Birthday

S. S. BERENGARIA, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press)—Prince George to-day celebrated the 28th anniversary of his birth, but in view of the circumstances under which he was making the voyage to his father's bedside, the celebration was of a quiet nature. The ship's cooks prepared a birthday cake as a surprise gift to the prince.

Apart from an early morning sprint around the deck dressed in flannel trousers and a white sweater, the prince spent most of the day quietly reading in the imperial suite. He appeared to be much more cheerful since the receipt of bulletins giving more hopeful news of King George's illness.

LATE GOVERNOR DIES AT COAST

Hon. Walter C. Nichol Was a Former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

NEWSPAPER CAREER.

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Walter C. Nichol, late Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and former proprietor of The Vancouver Daily Province, died here last night.

Hon. Walter Cameron Nichol, LL.D., was an outstanding figure in public life and journalistic field of Western Canada, who for more than thirty years played a large part in moulding the trend of affairs in his adopted province of British Columbia.

Starting his career as editor of a small cycling monthly while still in his tents, he rose to a place among the ranks of the foremost publishers of the Dominion, and to eminence as Lieutentant-Governor of British Columbia. He made his way through his energy, perseverance, and the faith that he held in the future of the West.

Mr. Nichol was born of Goderich, Ontario, in 1866, the son of Robert Addison Nichol, a Huron County barrister. He spent his early years and received his education in Hamilton, and it was here that he first ventured into journalism as a boy, editing and publishing a small monthly and in the interests of cycling, of which sport he was a devotee.

He was possessed of a great love for Canada, and envisioned a greater Dominion within the British Empire. This regard for the land of his birth came natural to him, as his grandfather, Col. Robert Nichol, played an important part in Canadian history as a member of the staff of General Sir Isaac Brock in the War of 1812, while his great-grandfather, Commodore Grant, operated under General Amherst in the conquest of Canada from the French.

Following his natural inclination, while still in his teens, he joined the Little Soldier Of Santa Claus Is Injured Defending Spirit Of Christmas In Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—A little soldier of Santa Claus last evening sustained honorable, but painful injury in defense of the spirit of Christmas. Inside the Memorial Institute at Richmond and Tecumseph Streets was a blaze of colored lights and bright-colored decorations, and a babel of childish laughter, for 150 little boys and girls of the community were being entertained at the annual Christmas tree celebration. Outside, in the wind and cold, were the scoffers—the rougher element of children to whom Santa Claus was an object of derision, and the harsh, incredulous jibes of their early disillusionment penetrated the doors, and reached the joyous scene within.

So a little boy, Carol Greenside of 353 Dovercourt Road, was elected guardian of the door, and protector of the innocent. He had barely taken up his post when the ragamuffins outside, finding rudness of no avail, rushed the portal. Carol's sturdy defense resulted in his hand being jammed in the door. When the invaders had been repulsed, the plucky little chap walked to a doctor's office, where an examination of the battle-scared hand revealed such a severe injury that the physician called an ambulance and sent him to the Hospital for Sick Children.

So the little lad with the Christmassy name will celebrate the important day with a big white bandage on his hand, but with the consciousness in his heart of having done his duty for father Christmas.

CITY FIRE LOSS HAS INCREASED

Big Decrease Is Shown in Number of Fires For First Eleven Months.

ONE BIG FIRE.

The number of fires in the city during the first eleven months of this year has been cut down much lower than it was for the same period in 1927, or in the year previous. The total number of fires in 1927 was 54,, but there were five in December, leaving 49 for the first eleven months. This year so far there has been a total of 32 fires, showing a decrease of 17 fires for the same period last year.

However the fire loss this year shows a decided increase, this being due to one big fire, that of the Peterborough Lock Company in January. The fire loss this year totals at $60,304.75, and the Lock Works fire alone makes the most of this; it amounts to $51,83572. Taking out the Lock Works fire the loss is amazingly small, being only $8,469.03. Last year for the same period the total fire loss was $28,614.07.

The statistics at the Fire Hall shows the comparison clearly:

	1927	1928
January	$1,935.80	$51,835.72
February	34.00	100.00
March	387.54	1,958.70
April	7,074.30	1,923.50
May	7,526.47	397.50
June	2,969 40	127.85
July	1,232.41	117.50
August	365.00	781.48
September	157.60	249.40
October	202.80	904.50
November	728.75	1,908.60

Fire Chief Gimblett said that much of the credit for the big decrease in the number of fires this year is directly due to the people falling in line with the big education campaign of fire prevention that had been waged here during the summer and fall. Old refuse that formerly would have served as fire traps have been cleaned up, and in many other instances the people have combined with the Fire Department to reduce fires.

PROGRESS ON FIRMER BASIS

Sick Monarch is Believed To Have Turned Corner Toward Recovery.

FUTURE COURSE SLOW.

LONDON, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press.) — A bulletin from King George's physicians which the public at once interpreted as meaning that the sick monarch had definitely turned the corner toward recovery was issued at Buckingham Palace this afternoon.

"We are happy to state that the King's progress is now established on a firmer basis," were the words with which five of his doctors concluded their report of his condition. The announcement, the most lengthy that has come from the medical men, was posted after they had consulted for an hour. It said:

"A consultation has taken place in order to make a comprehensive survey of His Majesty's present progress and to discuss the lines along which

REBEL FORCES HOLD POSITION

Government Forces Have Been Repulsed Near Jalalabad.

KABUL NOT DISTURBED.

PESHAWAR, India, December 20. —Canadian Press. — Advices on the Afghanistan situation received today indicated that the rebels were still occupying a strong position between Jalalabad and Kabul. They have repulsed all attempts of the government forces to get through to Jalalabad and appeared to be content to hold on merely to keep Jalalabad isolated.

The situation to the north of Kabul was more obscure; it appeared however that there was a gathering of the tribesmen from this region in the immediate vicinity of Kabul, on Friday and Saturday, and that there had been some fighting on both of these days.

Reports reaching here state that the capital has not been disturbed much. It was not clear whether this attack from the north was by tribes men who have joined the rebellious shinwaris or by gangs of robbers who banded together for loot. Other provinces were not disturbed and negotiations were still proceeding from Jalalabad.

NEW DELHI, India, December 20. (Canadian Press.) — A Royal Air Force airplane flew over Kabul, Afghanistan, this morning, and the British legation signalled that all was well and that the situation was improving.

Further details have been received from Kabul on the disturbances that began December 14, when insurgent tribesmen swarmed down the Baghi Bela road on which the British legation is situated.

The Afghan guard at the legation fled before the attackers' superior numbers, but the British Minister closed the legation gates and spoke to them through the insurgent leaders warning them of the immunity of all legations.

The leaders declared they had no intention of harming the legation, their quarrel being with the Afghan government alone.

Government troops supported by airplanes, began an attack on the rebels Monday and by evening had succeeded in thrusting them back from the suburbs in the direction of Tagman and the Charikara road.

Beside the hills between two valleys to which the insurgents retired, they also held Begibali Hill and the contest for these positions continued both Tuesday and Wednesday. Government artillery hurled shells at Bagibali Hill while military planes bombed it.

Damage done by the rebels at the power station, threw Kabul into darkness, while the wireless station was temporarily out of commission.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 20. — Latest reports reaching Constantinople from Afghanistan indicated that Turkish officers in the Afghan service played a leading part in repelling the insurgent forces who were stated to have surrounded the military college in Kabul. The leader of the rebels was seriously wounded in this attack.

Fewer births were registered in England and Wales last year than in any year since 1855, when the population was less than half the present figure.

ATTORNEY GENERAL THREATENS TO CANCEL BREWERS' CHARTERS ON ACCOUNT OF SHORT CIRCUITING

There Is Still Room For Improvement in Windsor District, Says Col. Price.

MUST KEEP THE LAW.

Reducing Number of Export Docks Will Probably Help the Situation.

TORONTO, Dec. 20. —(Canadian Press).—Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General for Ontario declared that unless the breweries themselves took steps to see that the short circuiting of export liquor back into Ontario was stopped there would be a wholesale cancellation of charters to do business in Ontario.

Prevented from interfering with export trade which is under the control of the Dominion Government Col. Price announced his intention to see to it that illegal sale of liquor in Ontario was banned.

"Condition in the Windsor district are indefinitely better now than they were in the days previous to the L.C.A. but there is still room for improvement," stated the Attorney-General. "If they keep on with this short circuiting some day they will wake up and find a cancellation of charters in Ontario.

"It is time the brewers in the province realized that they must keep within the law. I understand from Sir Henry Drayton that the cutting down the export docks from 60 to 40 has met with the approval of the Board because it has minimized the amount of regulation and difficulty that existed when there was a great number of docks. Of course it would be even better if there was only one export dock.

"Does that mean that such a move is under contemplation?" asked the Canadian Press.

"No, I merely put that as a hypothetical case," replied the Attorney-General.

Not Too Optimistic

"While he stated that the government was anxious to see anything done that would assist in prevening the short circuiting of liquor, Col. Price was not too optimistic that the brewers could do much themselves through the formation of an association among their own industries.

"If the brewers themselves keep within the law there will be no need for an association to regulate them" he stated.

"As far as this province is concerned, we take no responsibility for the export of liquor to the United States, that is a matter for the Dominion Government and we do not take the responsibility for something over which we have no control."

Col. Price stated that no conferences on the subject of short circuiting would remedy the situation as long as the brewers and distillers refrained from acting within the law.

U.F.O. OPPOSE SETTLER PLAN

Officials Declare Tripartite Scheme Is Futile and Wasteful.

FARMERS NEED HELP.

TORONTO, Ont., December 20. — Canadian Press. — Bruce McNevin, President of the United Farmers of Ontario, and J. J. Morrison, secretary joined last night in voicing opposition to the tripartite immigration plans of the British, Dominion and Provincial Governments, as announced from Ottawa on Tuesday.

Mr. McNevin said that the organized Farmers of Ontario are opposed unalterably to assisted passages, while Mr. Morrison declared that the whole policy was equivalent to "pouring water into a barrel with the bunghole left open."

"If this plan for bringing in immigrants is to be successful either one of two things must evolve," said Mr. Morrison. "Either the newcomers themselves must be better farmers than those who are now tilling the soil, or they must be prepared to satisfy themselves with a lower standard of living than now obtains. Agriculture will be enticing only when it becomes equally remunerative with other industries. Until that feature is remedied immigration schemes of this nature must be futile. Where they think there is wealth, there men will go without other inducement—even to the Klondyke."

Explosion Wrecks Street

Twelve Persons Sent To Hospital Suffering From Injuries.

HOUSES DESTROYED.

Detonation and Wreckage Remind Londoners of Wartime Bombing.

LONDON, England, December 20. — Canadian Press. — West and Central London, were given a startling reminder of wartime air raids to-day when exploding gas mains caused a miniature earthquake that heaved up long stretches of streets and caved in shop fronts.

The explosions started when a workman entered a manhole with an electric blower used to remove foul air from passages leading into a large inspection chamber below the roadway outside of the post office depot in Bond street.

This first explosion was followed by a series of shocks along the street, flinging curbstones in the air, knocking down pedestrians and shattering shop windows. One manhole lid was hurled high in the air and crushed on to a motor bus.

Twelve in Hospital

Twelve persons were injured seriously enough to be sent to the hospitals while many suffered minor hurts, being treated on the scene or returning to their homes.

Shaftesbury avenue, New Oxford Street, and a street in Bloomsbury, were the principal ones affected and the damage extended over a mile of pavement.

There was much confusion as to exactly what had happened. When the workman entered the manhole, the original explosion took place. There was a sudden scream, a spurt of flame and a terrific explosion. The workman struggled from the manhole with his clothing on fire, but he was quickly rescued and taken to a hospital. A horse was killed and a taxicab turned over, its driver being taken from the shattered vehicle to a hospital. A grocer's cart carrying palm trees was overturned and the branches of the palms snapped by the detonation.

Eye-witnesses expressed astonishment that the casualties had not been worse. The fumes of the gas were still drifting through the district this afternoon and traffic was diverted from the affected area.

Soon after midday another explosion took place some distance from the original trouble. Flames enveloped two six-storey buildings which roared away simultaneously with the flaming gas in the road. The occupants were able to get away safely.

Have To Deal With Dispute Between C.P.R. and Certain Employees.

APPOINT CHAIRMAN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec 10.—Canadian Press.)—A Board of Conciliation and Investigation has been appointed by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labour, to deal with a dispute between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and certain of its employees. The employees affected are locomotive firemen and hostlers on the eastern lines of the Canadian Pacific. Establishment of the board by Mr. Heenan follows failure between the parties concerned to agree upon the adoption of a proposed revision of one of the articles of the schedule.

Board members have been appointed as follows:

Isaac Pitblado, K.C. Winnipeg, on recommendation of the company, and R. L. Calder, K.C., Montreal, on recommendation of the employees.

Messrs. Pitblado and Calder have been instructed to confer with a view to naming jointly a person for appointment as third member, who will be chairman.

BIG CONTRACTS ARE RECEIVED FOR YEAR 1929

William Hamilton Company Gets Large Order For Rod Mills.

WEIGHT 1,000 TONS.

Future For Peterborough Industry Is Bright According To President.

Contracts approaching a third of a million dollars in value, with more likely to be closed, in the near future, assure the William Hamilton Company of a busy year in 1929, one the largest contracts, for eight Rod Mills, ordered by the International Nickel Company, promising to require between forty and fifty railroad cars to carry them away, when completed some time in June.

The above glimpse at the prospects of this Peterborough firm, was afforded The Examiner this morning in an interview with P F. Westbye, President. The order for the Rod Mills is, perhaps, the largest of all the contracts. The mills, to be placed at Copper Cliff, by the International Nickel Company, are for the purpose of crushing and refining nickel ore, while there will be manufactured, extensive pumping and other equipment to accompany them. All told, they will weigh approximately 1,000 tons, while the price will run into six figures.

Other Large Contracts.

According to Mr. Westbye, this is not the first order of the kind to be received by his company, similar contracts having been filled for the Hollinger and other companies. But in addition, the Hamilton plant will be called upon to supply a large order for hydraulic equipment and control gates for a power development in the Ottawa Valley; a pulp and paper mill in Nova Scotia has awarded a contract for equipment, and it is understood that the Hamilton company expects to close up a number of other large orders for several hydraulic turbines and pulp mill equipment.

The future for this Peterborough industry is bright indeed, and, according to its president, only reflects the progress of the country at large

LOCAL STORES OPEN NIGHTS

Immense Stocks Moderately Priced Are Offered For Christmas.

VARIED SELECTIONS.

Citizens of the city and district are reminded that all Christmas stores are open nights from now until Christmas, which makes it convenient for those who cannot shop in the daytime to make their selections at a time when they are able to do so.

Peterborough stores were never so well stocked with substantial Christmas gifts as they are at the present time, and prices are reasonable. There has been quite an influx of shoppers from the district, which no doubt will be augmented between now and Christmas

Mystery Of Kamloops Is Believed Solved; Trapper Finds Bottle With Note From Missing Crew

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The finding at Agawa Point of a bottle thrown overboard from the steamer Kamloops, which is believed to have sunk off Isle Royale in the disastrous storm of December last year, may assist in solving the mystery of what caused the loss of the vessel.

George Carlson, a fisherman operating at Agawa Rocks, arrived here last night with the news that Louis Coutu, of the Sault, a trapper in that section, picked up a bottle containing a note which told of the circumstances under which the vessel was lost. The bottle was found at the mouth of the Agawa River, which is more than 150 miles from the supposed scene of the Kamloop's disaster. The note said that members of the crew were freezing to death. Coutu is coming here for Christmas and will bring the note with him.

Provincial Police Become Suspicious and Find Carload of Turnips Is Really a Consignment of Beer

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Curiosity on the part of the Ontario Provincial Police respecting the quality of turnips being loaded into freight cars at Arkell near here, last night, led to the discovery of five hundred cases of beer that were being carefully camouflaged as turnips. The beer was seized and this morning the two loaders, William Sleeman and Frank Graham of Fort Erie Ontario, were in police court but were remanded for a week in hope of discovering who were the owners of the beverage. In the meantime the thirsty folks in Buffalo, to whom the beer was consigned, will be wondering why the delay of the stuff that was expected to make a cheerful Christmas.

Hastings Seeks Grant From County

Council Is Asked for $2000

Hastings Reeve Seeks Further Grant For Road Improvements.

PROGRAM OUTLINED.

Work On Connecting Links Has Already Been Completed By Council.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, December 20. — A supplementary grant of $2000 to the village of Hastings was recommended by the Roads and Bridges Committee of the Counties Council on Wednesday in consideration of the extra cost of the construction of the roads designated as connecting links of the county road system within the village, also of the cost of rebuilding the little north bridge over the raceway.

Reeve Dr. A. E. Wilson presented the Hastings claim both verbally and by letter, setting out what work had been done in his municipality, and reminding the committee of the supplementary grants which Campbellford and Millbrook had received. Incidentally A. N. Fellowes, district engineer of the Ontario Department of Highways, paid Hastings the compliment of assuming the leadership of the Northumberland and Durham municipalities in the progressive county road program, which has been recently adopted by the United counties.

Fifty per cent. Improvement.

"As a result of your new program," said Mr. Fellowes, "your county road system will show an improvement of fifty per cent. in the next two or three years. When you were spending only $90,000 on your county roads, it did not amount to shucks. Trying to spread that sum over 276 miles of roads meant only a sprinkle. If I had been George Greer (counties' road superintendent) I would have wanted $6000 salary just for the worry of such a job. Now he has a chance to do something. This year you are spending $120,000, and next year it may reach $150,000. I think Hastings should get the credit of the efficiency this will bring about.

Mr. Fellowes said that "from an engineering standpoint Hastings had done exactly the right thing in the widening of the north bridge. This bridge belongs to Hastings, but it is on a county road connecting link and the Department pays on the construction of the surface."

On the expiration of the ten years covering the agreement on which the present pavement policy was based, the county's rebate will be applied on the bridge. Meanwhile it is regarded as a more or less permanent job, and no early outlay on it is expected.

May Expect Help.

Reeve W. H. Nelson of Percy Township remarked that if anything serious should happen to the bridge, Hastings might look to the counties council for assistance."

"You'd have had a bad situation for general traffic if Hastings hadn't widened it," Mr. Fellowes added.

Reeve Wilson had asked that the county assume the upkeep of the bridge, but the whole tenor of the discussion was inclined against that action.

"I didn't ask for all the money I thought we were entitled to in the hope that you would assume the bridge," Dr. Wilson remarked.

Reeve Nelson said jokingly: "It may be a good thing you didn't ask for too much—because you mightn't have got anything."

It transpired that the cost of paving urban connecting links in the county road system has already cost $220,500, and the total allotment is $225,000, with the Department contributing dollar for dollar, making a total of $450,000. The work in Campbellford, Millbrook and Hastings has already been completed, and Bowmanville has one mile paved with another mile to be laid next year. The expenditure in these municipalities has been as follows: Campbellford, $85,000, which was $10,000 more than the original estimate; Millbrook, $60,000, also $10,000 excess cost; Hastings, $25,500, plus $407 last June on the small

SCHOOLS CHAIRMAN.

REEVE. J. M. BYGOTT

The work was exceptionally heavy this year on account of the extra grants and the arrears that had to be carefully supervised.

PLEA OF GIRL IS REFUSED BY SOCIETY

Children's Aid Management Hold Regular Monthly Meeting in Council Chamber.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

Ward Seeks To Leave Protective Wings of Organization and Do For Herself.

An instance of the manner in which certain protective agencies in any community look after the welfare of their charges, even when a conflict of wills arises as a result of differing opinions, was given at the regular meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society, held yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber.

A girl ward of the Society is very anxious to leave the protecting wings of the organization and go out into the world to make her own way. Although possessed of a good deal of natural ability, according to those who know her well, she refuses to study and is backward in her classes. She does not want education, but wants rather to be free to go her own way. It was decided by the Board, after hearing the report of the superintendent on the case, that she would have to remain in their charge for some time to come, "even though she may not think it is for her own good."

The meeting, with the president, the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, in the chair, was a short and business-like one. Routine matters were the chief object of consideration.

The society has done very well in the way of Christmas donations. These were acknowledged as follows: Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., $10; Thursday Club, $10; City Council $25; L.O.L. No. 2400 of North Monaghan, $5; James Hamilton, $5; Mrs. J. Edgar, $2; B. F. Ackerman, 51 coupon tickets of the Grafton Company, Limited.

The superintendent, John Edgar, in his report, mentioned the case of one boy, a ward of the society, who returned home from Belleville with the aid of only half a dollar in funds, and went to the farmer with whom he had formerly been employed.

Christmas Entertainment.

Mr. Edgar also reported on a Christmas entertainment, in the way of a gift tree, drive and supper, to be given by the Kiwanis Club to the children of the two orphanages, on Friday afternoon.

The use of a Santa Claus suit for the children's party at the Shelter on Friday evening was offered by Ensign Green.

Committees Appointed.

Sub-committees were appointed for the year, as follows: Purchasing — Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, Mrs. J. Fanning, and Mrs. J. Welsh. Finance—R. H. Parsons and Mrs. H. W. Darey. Property—F. H. Dobbin, James Abraham and Alderman W. Stocker. These were all re-appointed from last year, as was Alderman Stocker, supervisor of grounds.

A committee composed of R. B. Parsons and J. Edgar, was appointed to interview the City and County Councils, at the proper time, with reference to the annual grant for the society. With regard to this, the president, the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, read an extract from a newspaper which reported on the grant given by the Council of Bruce to the Children's Aid Society there. In 1928, the total grant was $3,500. In 1927, it amounted to $4,500.

The felicitations of the Christmas season were extended to the members, at the conclusion of the meeting, by James Abraham, and the Rev. Dr. Blagrave also extended his wishes for a happy and prosperous year.

Members present yesterday were: The Rev. Dr. Blagrave, J. Edgar, Ensign Green, Alderman Stocker, F. H. Dobbin, James Abraham, Mrs. R. J. Devey, Mrs. C. Wiggins, Mrs. J. J. Lynch, Mrs. S. Newhall, Mrs. W. Gibbs and Mrs. J. Fanning.

Mrs. Fanning reported on arrangements for the annual Christmas tree at the Shelter, to be held on Friday evening, and also read the report of the purchasing committee.

Donations Reported.

Donations were reported as follows: Sandwiches from the Thursday Club; potatoes and gravy from the Murray Street Baptist Church; sandwiches from the Brinton Carpet Company; sandwiches and cake from L.O.L. No. 457; potatoes, dressing, bread and cake from Knox United Church; cake from the Old Tyme Club; mittens from Miss Nichols, McDonnel Street; cake and sandwiches from Knox Church; cake and sandwiches from the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E.

The report of the superintendent, J. Edgar, showed 8 applications, 5 children brought to the Shelter (not wards), 1 child returned to parents (not a ward), 43 children involved

TWO HAVELOCK CITIZENS TELL OF EARLY DAYS

Havelock's Grand Old Gentlemen Celebrate Their Birthdays To-day.

LIVED 176 YEARS.

Both Came to Canada With Their Parents at Very Early Age.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 20.—Thomas Taylor and John Thompson, the two oldes residents of the village celebrate their 94th and 82nd birthday respectively to-day. Mr. Taylor, who has had poor health for the last few months, which necessitates his remaining indoors in the cold weather is active considering his years and recalls events of his early life more quickly than those of recent date. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor, left Oxfordshire, England, where he was born, when he was seven months old and came to Canada. The first few months of their residence in this country was spent in Belleville where Mr. Taylor's father made the acquaintance of Major Campbell and was employed to manage the major's estate where Campbellford is now situated. From there the family moved to Crowe Bay and some years later to Cobourg, the latter move being made in order to obtain medical assistance for his father who was ill and who died there.

Before there was any village of Havelock Mr. Taylor came to Belmont and purchased what is known as Taylor's Mills from Jehiel Breckenridge. In 1878 he married Mr. Breckenridge's daughter, Susan Gertrude, who passed away in June this year. Of their family of four children three sons are living. George of San Francisco, Harry of Detroit, and Charles of town. One daughter is deceased.

Supplied Lumber For First House

Twenty years ago Mr. Taylor sold the mill and power rights to the Havelock Electric Light Company and moved to a farm just east of the village, moving into town a few years ago. He can recall the time when there were no houses in Campbllford and before there was a bridge across the river and also can boast of supplying the lumber for the first house in Havelock. Prior to coming to Belmont he spent a number of years working in saw mills in the Ottawa district and in a sash and door factory in Campbellford.

Lived In Asphodel.

Mr. Thompson, who has lived nearly all of his life farming in Asphodel, was born in Donegal, Ireland, in 1846, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson. When he was a year old his parents came to Canada settling in the northwest section of Asphodel where they made their home until he was about thirteen years of age, going then to Donegal in the same township. In 1872 he was married to Miss Mary Eliza King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas King of Percy township. Their union was blessed with five children, namely: Mrs. C. Davidson of town, Thomas of Seymour, Richard of Toronto, and Samuel of Regina, Saskatchewan. One son, John, passed away in March 1922.

Mr. Thompson farmed successively on the homestead in Donegal until eight years ago when he moved to the village purchasing a residence on Mathison street where Mrs. Thompson was called away by death in October 1925.

Mr. Thompson is spending the evening of his life work with his daughter, Mrs. Davidson. He is in good health, can read without the aid of spectacles and enjoys a walk to the post office twice each day. His hobby has always been fine horses and he still speaks with pride of the splendid specimens of horseflesh which he has possessed in his younger days.

COTTAGE GIVEN TO IMMIGRANT

Under New Plan To Encourage British Settlers To Locatae Here.

START IN SPRING.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20—(Canadian Press.)—Confirming the Ottawa announcement regarding Ontario's particiaption in a tri-partite plan to increase British immigration to this province, Premier Ferguson said Tuesday that the building of farm cottages, an entirely new immigration scheme, is expected to facilitate great the employment of married men with families from the old land.

The Premier stated that in view of the necessary organization work it was unlikely that any of the active construction could be started until spring

The cottage plan calls for the expenditure of $1,000 in each case on house, poultry building and cow-shed as the case may be. A plot of one acre is arranged for on the farm of an employer desiring a married helper. The owner gives the use of it for 20 years. The government will build thereon a cottage and auxiliary buildings, with the understanding that the house will be occupied by a British family. At the end of 20 years respectively the property, including the cottage, goes back to the farmer. The British government is to provide half the $1,000 and the remaining $500 will be shared by Dominion and Province.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

CAVAN, Dec. 20.— On Sunday evening in Cavan United Church the pastor, Rev. F. Carpenter preached from the topic, "The handwriting on the wall." In an earnest discourse he pointed out many ways in which he may be found wanting if we are not keeping close to the Saviour.

Four Brutal Outrages in One Night Call Out Provincial Police.

TOWN IN TERROR.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Provincial police are searching for an unknown man who has thrown the town of Glencoe, near here, into a state of terror by his attacks on women and children.

Four attacks on young girls occurred in one night. These incidents all took place in isolated parts of the town and two of the girls—10 years of age—were thrown into a muddy ditch when they screamed for help. None of the victims of the man's attacks was able to give the police any description of their assailant, except that he was a "young man."

WHAT TO WRITE ABOUT?

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—There was no improvement in the foreign demand for grain here yesterday, and little new business was done by local exporters. The domestic market for low grades of wheat was stronger on account of the advance in spreads at Winnipeg and local dealers marked up prices 1½c per bushel, with sales of Manitoba No. 6 wheat in car lots at 98½c, and feed wheat at 94c per bushel, ex-store. In other lines of grain there was no actual change and the market on the whole was quiet, the demand being only for odd cars to meet immediate wants.

There was no actual change in the condition of the local flour situation, business generally being rather quiet but prices for spring and winter wheat grades were well maintained.

The trade in all lines of millfeed was fair and prices were steady. A fair trade was done in rolled oats and prices were firm.

A moderate trade was done in fresh and storage eggs but prices were inclined to be easier. Receipts were 1,637 cases.

There was no change in the potato situation. Prince Edward Island whites were offering at 75c, and P.E.I. Green Mountains at 83c per 90 lbs. in bags, while New Brunswick Green Mountains were offering at 60c per 90 lbs. in bulk.

There was no new feature to note in the market for beans and peas. Prices were holding firm under a steady demand, with supplies none too large owing to the current scarcity. There were no imported beans offering. Canadian beans were selling wholesale at $5.25 per bushel and choice boiling peas were $3.50 per bushel.

The trade in butter was reported rather more active, with the result that a firmer feeling prevailed in the market for broken lots and a ¼c per lb. more realized in some instances. Receipts were 41 packages.

There was no change in the condition of the cheese trade owing to the fact that English importers show little interest in the market and the demand for domestic account also continues of a limited character, but as the offerings in spot are small the undertone remains steady. Receipts were 142 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Better demand from millers, together with reduced official estimates of the acreage and condition of winter wheat, led to material upturns in wheat values yesterday. Friends of higher prices for wheat asserted that the market had been sold to a standstill and that an advance was overdue.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ⅝ to ¾ to ⅞ to 1 cent net higher; corn ¼ to ⅝c up; oats at a shade to ¼c gain, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Influenced by bullish aspects of the government crop report, wheat showed an early upward trend, but for a while afterward the market underwent something of a setback owing a good deal to substantial deliveries being made on December contracts here.

Moreover, an unofficial summary presumed to be based on later information than the government figures said that out of hundreds of dispatches received less than a dozen were unfavorable as to the winter crop prospect, and that the exceptions were from widely separated localities.

In the last half of the day, however, speculative traders who were short of wheat found that repurchasing had become more and more difficult, and that the market temporarily at least was in an oversold condition. It was at this stage also that indications were noticed of improved demand from domestic mills seeking wheat available for immediate use. On the subsequent advance in prices, offerings of wheat future deliveries continued to be scant, and the market finished at virtually the day's top level.

Corn and oats, as well as wheat, were firmer, though not scoring as much gain as wheat did. Receipts of corn in Chicago yesterday lacked volume, totaling only 120 cars, and country offerings were mostly above current quotations. Meanwhile, too, it was asserted that Argentine corn shipments were likely to decrease forthwith, as corn exports from Argentina had now about equaled the year's estimated surplus. On the other hand, colder weather adapted to hasten the movement of domestic corn was reported as prevailing throughout the corn belt.

Despite downturns in the value of hogs, provisions were firmer on account of scattered buying.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, December 20. — Judging from wholesalers' quotations to retailers here, it does not look as if the ultimate consumer will secure his Christmas turkey in Toronto at less than an advance of 50 cents per pound.

In the egg market feeling with regard to prices was almost as unsettled as with regard to turkey prices. Prospective buyers declared two cents per dozen decline in quotations to shippers, but no change in prices to retailers was declared, except, as elsewhere stated, in the case of fresh extras selling to the consumer, on the farmers' market, where the spread was reduced 5c per dozen all around. In a wholesale way, the tendency was weak particularly in storage eggs.

The butter market yesterday was very slow, with trading light. Jobbers reported supply on hand sufficient for immediate needs, and buyers holding off in anticipation of the arrival of butter from New Zealand of which some 50,000 boxes are now being unloaded at Halifax. Exactly how much of this cargo will reach Toronto is not known, as many lots have already been sold and re-sold. "Quite a few carloads," was the nearest guess that the brokers would venture. In the meanwhile, butter locally is firm at unchanged prices. No. 1 creamery solids commanding 41½c generally, and at 41¾c per pound in the event of extra high scoring material. Cheese also was a dull issue, with No. 1 large colored quoted at 21¼ to 21 cents per pound.

Mr. A. I. Willos, Sapton, Man., writes:—"I had been bothered with boils for about two years. I had seventeen on my neck, arms and legs. I tried all kinds of medicine, but none of them seemed to help me any. I then used two bottles of and I have never been bothered with any boils since then."

MR. WILSON IS NEEDED.

The intimation that E. Roland Wilson, chairman of the Building Committee of the Board of Education, whose term expires this year, does not intend to offer himself for re-election has been received with much disappointment by those who realize what a valuable member of the board Mr. Wilson has proved to be.

His sound judgment and practical experience have been of the greatest assistance in connection with the building of the new vocational wing, and his opinion on general questions of educational policy has been equally valued by his colleagues on the board.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Wilson can be persuaded to reconsider his decision to withdraw, and that he will allow his name to be offered as a candidate for the Board of Education for the next two years.

School trustees of his qualifications and calibre are of too much service to the public to be allowed to retire after such a short term in office.

The chairman of the Building Committee has made good, and The Examiner is voicing the general opinion when it calls upon him to stand for re-election, if it is at all possible for him to serve.

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

While the present epidemic of influenza in Ontario does not approach in seriousness the devastating visit of this disease in 1918, it is menacing enough to justify the exercising of common-sense precautions on the part of the public.

Apparently Peterborough is not, up to the present, suffering to the same extent as many Ontario centres, and the fact that the schools will close to-morrow and will not be re-opened for seventeen days will be a material factor in checking the spread of "flu" among children.

However, with the stores crowded with Christmas shoppers and holiday gatherings in the offing, there will be constant danger of infection, and citizens would be well to follow as closely as possible the simple rules laid down by Dr. Young, medical officer of health, and other authorities.

Especially is it important that those who are suffering from influenza should go to bed at the first signs of the disease, and remain in bed until their condition is back to normal.

The individual who tries to keep going under an attack of the "flu" is not only risking his own life, but is spreading dangerous infection wherever he goes.

There is no need to be panic-stricken over the influenza threat, but it is simple wisdom to take precautions that will protect yourself and others at the same time.

BRINGING IN BRITISHERS.

British immigration into Canada should be materially increased as a result of the three-party agreement entered into by the British and Canadian Governments and the Provinces of the Dominion by which many inducements are offered to prospective settlers from the British Isles.

Included in the measures announced by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, are substantial reductions in the general passenger rate, low rates for the wives of Britishers living in Canada and free passages for the children of such families, and for boys under 19 accepted under any Government scheme for juvenile farm workers and for girls under 17 proceeding to suitable homes.

Ontario is to assist in the scheme by providing cottages for British families, the heads of which will engage in farm work.

The details as announced makes generous provision for assisting immigrants from Great Britain, and the whole plan is an effective answer to the silly charge that Canada does not want new citizens from the British Isles.

The only dangerous feature is that there is some little risk that with such generous terms offered an influx of unemployed industrial workers may result, causing conditions in Canadian cities that it would be well to avoid.

Great difficulty has been experienced in the past in keeping men on the farm who entered Canada as farm laborers, and that situation may be aggravated under the new scheme.

The authorities will have to be on their guard against such a development.

MAKING A JOKE OUT OF THE THING.

The announcement that four-time violators of the United States liquor laws in Michigan are to be given life imprisonment would seem to be the last word in foolishness.

It was supposed that the motive in enacting a prohibition law was entirely humanitarian.

As the New York Herald-Tribune says: "The idea behind it was to save the drunkard and protect the home, not to put him in jail for the rest of his days or ruthlessly to orphan families."

Now the Michigan authorities propose to take advantage of their imitation of the New York State Baumes laws by making life imprisonment the penalty for the fourth conviction under the Volstead Act.

The Baumes laws in New York insist that a criminal convicted of a felony for the fourth time shall be considered as an incorrigible enemy of society and provides for his permanent imprisonment.

Such laws relating to grave crimes, as they are applied in New York, serve a useful purpose in reducing crime, but to designate, as Michigan proposes to do, the illegal possession of liquor as a felony deserving life imprisonment is to make a joke out of both prohibition and law enforcement.

No wonder the United States method of administering its laws causes other nations to look on in amazement.

When murder and robbery under violence flourish and murderers and bandits continue to "get away with it," it is a travesty to talk about life sentences for such misdemeanors as having liquor illegally.

REDS AGAIN.

The arrest of the editor of a Finnish language newspaper for seditious libel against the royal family has led to further disclosures of Communist activities in Northern Ontario. The main facts were already known, but the details now being published show how far these foreign agitators are prepared to go and what success they are meeting with among the settlers, old and young. School teachers tell of the hold which these disruptive doctrines have on the young especially; it is impossible to make them take part in any loyal demonstration, it is complained. This is not Canada's idea of the desirable type of settler; the newcomer, whatever may be his nationality, whenever he accepts Canadian hospitality, should be made to realize that he is expected to conform to the ways of the country and abstain from all seditious activities. The trouble with these alien families is that they do not know the English language, in the majority of cases, sufficiently well to read and find out for themselves the truth about British institutions. They have to believe what they are told by prejudiced and unscrupulous agitators, who have the advantage of addressing them in their own language and conducting a ceaseless propaganda. The remedy lies through education, and in this connection it is comforting to know that the Provincial Government is doing everything possible to counteract the mischievous activities of traitors. The efforts of the Government are being seconded by loyal organizations like the Christian Crusaders, but it behooves every individual citizen to do what he or she can to fight the evil.—Hamilton Spectator.

AIR FLIVVERS.

A few days ago Henry Ford announced his intention of abandoning the manufacture of "flivver" airplanes until such time as the public became more air-minded. The Ford Company will continue, however, to turn out multi-passenger planes of the type in which it has been specializing during the last few years, hoping through the successful operation of these to bring about that air-mindedness so vital to the successful marketing of the "flivver" craft. More and more people will go in for aviation each year, but that the air will ever be as congested as our highways is much to be doubted. Whenever it is suggested that the use of privately-owned planes will presently rival in extent the use of privately-owned autos, the objection is made that the average citizen will never be able to get the use of a landing field. Miss Amelia Earhart, the only woman to have crossed the Atlantic by airplane, believes that the aviation country club will do the trick. As more and more people buy planes, she says, existing golf and country clubs will establish small landing fields for their members. In addition, this remarkable young woman predicts, aviation enthusiasts will get together and establish new clubs, with landing fields, places for storage of planes and club houses. This sounds quite reasonable. The ordinary citizen can't hope to keep a plane in his back yard, but if he can join a club that will have plenty of space for such activities he'll be just as well off as if he had his own landing field. Whether or not the ordinary citizen will be able to do what Miss Earhart predicts remains to be seen. It will be many years, we think, before flying becomes the sport of the masses, before airplanes seriously compete with automobiles as favored family conveyances. Aviation will develop along commercial transportation lines, leaders of the industry believe, and Mr. Ford's announcement of his intention to abandon the manufacture of small personal planes may be taken as meaning that he sees no market for this type of craft in the near future.—Hamilton Spectator.

KELLOGG PACT WRECKERS.

Apparently a section of the United States Senate, its strength as yet indeterminate, is determined to wreck the anti-war treaty negotiated by Secretary of State Kellogg, or, at least, so to weaken it by reservations as to destroy its efficacy. This, too, in defiance of clear evidence that it enjoys the support of the great majority of the citizenship. That an effort of this nature should be made again places the Senate in a peculiarly invidious light since it reveals that body as quite irresponsible to public opinion in its control of the foreign affairs of the Republic. The provisions of the constitution giving the President power, "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur," has had the practical effect of rendering that body dominant and given a minority of Senators the opportunity of balking executive policies of the highest utility and promise.

This treaty is of United States origin and to the persistence of the United States Secretary its negotiation is mainly due. Mr Kellogg it was who insisted that it be accepted in the form he proposed and that it be adopted without reservations. Its opponents, who speak of reservation by European nations, misrepresent the facts. None of them have any standing in international law, nor are they binding on the countries party to the pact. The treaty as signed in its brief and definite language is the only measure of its obligations. Both President Coolidge and his Secretary of State desire and hope that the treaty as it is written shall remain the only contract unmodified by any senatorial riders.

Nothing could be farther from the truth than the impression some American enemies of the treaty are attempting to convey, that Europe is engaged in inveigling the United States through the means of this treaty. Whatever inveigling has been done was done by the United States itself. Europe had to be persuaded against the inclination, not of its people, but of some of its statesmen. It required patient effort to bring Europe around to the American viewpoint. Europe wanted a treaty with saving clauses and military sanctions. It was America that insisted on the explicit renunciation of war and the quite as explicit pledge to settle disputes by peaceful means. It was America that declined to consider a treaty which might have involved obligation to use force. On these things America won her contentions. The strength of her position will be maintained by ratification of the pact as it stands.

When President Wilson went to Paris and bargained with European statesmen for a League of Nations, it was charged that he had discounted his strength as a United States representative by negotiating in the atmosphere of a foreign capital, surrounded on all sides by able diplomats of the old world. Whatever it was worth, that charge cannot be urged against the Kellogg treaty, negotiated from Washington, in the atmosphere of the United States capital, by a Secretary of State who had only good citizens like himself as advisers. If Washington cannot negotiate treaties under such circumstances, this world has become too dangerous a place for treaties of any kind. Senators and newspapers that urge reservations to the Kellogg treaty are more concerned to provide loopholes for militarism than to promote the welfare and peace of the world.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

As a last reminder, to-morrow is nomination day in Peterborough. Now is the time for all good men, etc.

A Thought

A careful thought at the right time saves a hundred sorrowful thoughts when thinking is too late. Looking ahead in money matters is wise, but there is no better savings bank than thinking ahead.

GOD'S MINUTE.

He shall save the children of the needy.—Ps. 72:4.

* * *

O Lord, our Heavenly Father, we praise and magnify Thy Holy Name for all Thy loving kindness and Thy tender mercy which Thou hast bestowed upon us. Thou hast opened Thy hand and supplied all our wants. We thank Thee, O Lord, that when we were without strength in due time Christ died for the ungodly, that He might ransom our souls from sin and death, and give unto us eternal life. Grant, O Lord, that each one of us, now in Thy presence, may receive Christ Jesus as our eternal Saviour. We praise Thee, O God, for the gift of Thy Holy Spirit, Who tabernacles in our hearts, and Who takes of the things of Jesus and reveals them unto us day by day, moment by moment.

Grant Thy blessing we beseech Thee, upon every member of this household, and upon all our loved ones, wherever they may be at this hour. We thank Thee that "in Jesus' keeping we are safe, and they." Remember in mercy, O Lord, any who are in distress at this time, in mind, body or estate. Comfort all who mourn. Let all the earth remember and return to Thee O God; let all the kindreds of the nations worship Thee in spirit and in truth. Grant unto us the forgiveness of all our sins, in the name of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY THE PROBLEM OF EVOLUTION IS A PROBLEM

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

For nearly a hundred years of theory o' evolution has held the spot light. It has been hissed and applauded more vigorously and continuously than any other actor on the stage of human controversy. It still has bitter enemies and ardent friends.

Of course we are here interested merely in the psychology of this most remarkable controversy: in why some believe in evolution and some don't.

The theory of evolution implies that man came from a lower form of life. Because the evolutionist says that man sprung from a primitive form similar to the modern apes, some take this to mean that man came from the monkey. Here is where the first of the psychic factors comes in. A great many people resent the idea that they are grown-up apes. It hurts their pride of ancestry. William Jennings Bryan, the most prominent of the anti-evolutionists, used to say, "If any man finds pleasure or pride in tracing his ancestors back to a monkey he may do so. But please do not include me in your family tree because I do not agree with you."

A noted biologist replies that Mr. Bryan may take his choice. It is either monkey or mud. The man who objects to the monkey theory probably believes that man was made from a lump of mud. The biologist continues to point out that the monkey is really higher in the scale of creation and should hurt our pride less than the mud theory of man's origin.

Not a few are prejudiced against evolution without knowing much about it. They have been told it is something bad, that it destroys morals and religious faith and they have come to have a complex on the subject. You might talk all you please about the various phases of evolution without giving them any offense so long as you do not mention the word evolution. But the moment you say that naughty word they are ready to clothe you in tar and feathers.

The problem of evolution has been so strongly mixed up with emotional sentiment, and religious prejudices that it is next to impossible to get men to study it as a scientific problem which might be accepted or rejected on the basis of facts and truth laone.

Why do you do what you do. Ask Dr Thomson. Write care of this paper, enclosing stamped envelope for reply.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS — the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth, and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna had married without love, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her heart. As the years pass, though Hugh has gone to China, they realize that they love each other more than ever. On the night of the Little Flapper's eighteenth birthday ball Hugh returns. Marna, overjoyed at seeing him, faints. The Big Flapper, Biddy's friend, DOLLY BENSON, says she adores him. MRS. BLAIR, old friend of Marna, asks Hugh to try to make Marna take better care of herself.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XIII—A MATCH FOR BIDDY

Hubbard sat in silent torment. How much did this woman know, or guess? he wondered. With an effort he forced himself to speak.

"If you think Mrs. Paget is ill, couldn't you—why don't you speak to Paget yourself? It would be quite natural for a friend to say something about it to him. I've been away five years. I've only just come home. It would look strange if I——"

Again Mrs. Blair cut in bluntly.

"Nonsense! You're the one to do it. If Marna does look ill, you're the one who would be sure to notice it, as you haven't seen her for so long." She turned her chair round a little so that she could look at him more squarely. "Can't you see the difference in her?" she demanded exasperatedly.

Hubbard kept his eyes fixed on the floor; he dared not raise them, lest they should betray him to this kindly inquisitor.

"She's thinner, perhaps," he said at last stiltedly. "But she seems lively enough——"

He broke off as Mrs. Blair interrupted for the third time.

"Lively! Does all that laughing and nonsense take you in for a single moment? If it does, you're not the man I took you to be. It doesn't deceive me, anyway. It's all put on, only everyone's so blind they don't understand. Everyone is so used to Marna being lively and amusing that they just take it for granted that she always will be. But I tell you she's ill and I'm not a fool. I don't go through life wearing blinkers, if other people do."

Hubbard looked away towards the ball-room. He wondered if Mrs. Blair had any idea what this conversation meant to him; but she went on ruthlessly:

"I never had a daughter of my own, much as I wanted one, but if I had and I could have chosen her, she should have been like Marna. She's the sweetest, most unselfish—Here she comes."

Marna crossed the hall to them at that moment.

"I've got a partner for you, Hugh," she said gaily. She looked at Mrs. Blair. "May I take him away?" she asked.

Mrs. Blair laughed.

"Take him away, by all means. You'll find him willing enough to come, I've no doubt. I'm afraid I've rather bullied the poor man."

Marna looked at Hubbard, who had risen to his feet.

"What's she been saying to you, Hugh?"

"Tell her—I hope you will!" Mrs. Blair cut in bluntly, meeting his eyes, and with a little laugh she rose and left them, her voluminous skirts trailing behind her across the polished floor.

"What's she been saying to you?" Marna asked again, a trifle anxiously. "She's the kindest soul, really, but sometimes she's dreadfully blunt."

Hubbard ground out the stump of his cigarette in a fern-pot close by.

"She's been talking about you, Marna."

"Oh! How dull! Why about me?"

"She says that you look ill."

Marna gave a little vexed exclamation.

"Ill! Just because I fainted, I suppose."

"No. Mrs. Blair says you have been looking ill for some time."

"Mrs. Blair imagines things," Marna said lightly. "Come and be introduced to Dulcie Mayne, Hugh."

"Must I?"

"I think it would please her. She hasn't had many dances this evening, I'm afraid."

She touched his arm.

"She's over there at the end of the hall. She's so shy, poor girl! I found her hiding in a dark corner."

But when they came to the dimly-lit alcove it was empty.

Hugh laughed.

"Evidently she could not face even me," he said drily. "And I can't pretend to be sorry. Where are you going, Marna?" For she had turned away.

"I have so much to see to. Do you forget that I am the hostess?"

"They are all dancing."

"I know, but——" She broke off and stood looking away from him, nervously twisting her fingers together.

There was a little silence, then Hugh asked a hoarse question.

"Have you been very unhappy, Marna?"

He saw her lips move, but no sound came from them, and she shook her head dumbly.

Hubbard looked at her his eyes dark with passionate regret.

"Are you sorry I came home?"

"No—oh, no!"

He took the slim hand nearest to him and held it hard a moment.

"My dear, if there is anything in the world I can do for you—to make you happier—"

She raised her eyes, heavy with unshed tears.

"There isn't anything, Hugh; you know that."

Yes, he knew it well enough—had always known it. They loved one another, but that love could bring them no happiness, even if they trampled another man's heart underfoot in order to reach its fulfilment.

There was a little helpless silence, then Marna asked:

"Are you staying with us, Hugh?"

"George asked me to, and at first I refused; but he seemed so hurt, I let myself be persuaded. Still, if you would rather I did not, Marna——"

"Oh, no. If George asked you, of course you must stay."

"Not unless it will please you."

She looked up at him.

"Do you need to ask me that?"

"No, but I wanted to hear you say it."

Marna smiled faintly.

"We're like a couple of children playing a game of make-believe, aren't we, Hugh?" she said; then suddenly her sadness vanished, and she threw back her head and laughed excitedly. "Well, and why not? Let's make the best of the time we've got. Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die!"

"If only that was the worst we have to face," Hubbard said.

Marna's face quivered, but the next moment she was laughing again.

"Don't think about it. I refuse to. You're here, and that's all that matters. Come and dance!"

She caught his hand excitedly, tugging at it like a child.

"Let's be young and happy just for tonight. I'm going to forget there is such a thing as the future. What's the good of looking for bridges that may not be in existence? George!" She called to her husband, who was carefully carrying a brimming glass of champagne across the hall for someone. "I've been bullying Hugh.... I tell him he's got to be young—at any rate for tonight. What do you say?"

Paget beamed down at her.

"I've been telling him the same thing myself, more or less," he answered. "Been telling him we shall have to find him a wife—been telling him you know just the sort of woman to make him happy—eh, what?"

"Of course!" Marna answered recklessly, laughing up at Hugh Hubbard with too-bright eyes. "Something fluffy and extravagant and very young, don't you think, Hugh? Someone who will drag you out to balls and parties every night of your life——"

Her husband laughed delightedly.

"That's it," he agreed heartily. "Someone like the Little Flapper—eh?"

Marna dropped Hubbard's hand and looked away across the room at Biddy. Someone like the Little Flapper!

Of course, it was ridiculous, she told herself, that those words should hurt so inexpressibly.

Biddy was only a child, but at least she was free. And because it hurt her so much, she raised her voice and called to the Little Flapper.

"Biddy, come here! Hugh wants to dance with you."

Biddy flew across the room, and presently Marna was left alone with her husband.

"Make a good-lookin' pair—eh, don't they?" Paget asked contentedly, his eyes following Hubbard and the Little Flapper.

"Of course, he's too old for her, but she might do worse. He'd be kind to her, at any rate, and that's half the battle—eh? He's a thunderin' good fellow."

Marna made some inaudible answer, and turned away. She felt frightened because her heart was beating so fast. She told herself again angrily that, of course, it was absurd, and yet—she could not bear to see Hugh Hubbard with his arm round the Little Flapper's waist.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Caution should be the keynote of today's activities, according to astrology which reads in the horoscope certain sinister influences.

There is a forbidding aspect for professional occupations. Under this rule there may be a tendency to see the dark side of things.

The morning should be fairly favorable to the transaction of important business, especially what concerns the settlement of the year's accounts.

It is a day in which to pay attention to well established routine rather than new plans.

Women should find the rule auspicious for shopping, although they may be inclined to buy too hastily, since the aspects tend to poor judgment in most matters.

It is not a lucky day for love affairs, although the stars will incline young men to woo.

Dancing and dining are we'l directed today, so far as meetings with strangers are concerned.

Girls may be sure of making a good impression while this rule prevails, for the masculine mind will be worshipful rather than critical.

Educational interests should benefit at this time when there will be deep interest in forwarding high ideals.

It is well for college students to prove the good effects of university life at this time when large endowments may be easily obtained.

The evening should be favorable for entertaining friends or for most forms of hospitality.

There is a sign of promise today to the aged who should be stimulated and cheered by the subtle influence of the stars.

Under this sway the things of the spirit have special power and for this reason the churches should benefit.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect good luck in the coming year which may bring legacies or benefits of a substantial nature.

Children born on this day have chances above the average for a happy life, filled with friendship and activity.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS CANDY.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

(by Howard R. Garis.)

"Do you knoww hat I think would be a nice thing to do?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his wife one day. "Do you, my dear?"

"Well, I'm sure," answered Mrs. Longears, "that you think of so many nice things to do, Wiggy, that I could never guess half of them. But perhaps you are thinking of going adventuring and want to take me with you. In which case I shall have to say no, though I thank you. I must get things ready for Christmas. It will be here before I know it, and nurse Jane and I have so many, many little matters to look after."

"Ha! You didn't quite guess it, but almost!" chuckled the bunny uncle. "It has to do with Christmas, though I'm not going adventuring. What do you say to having our children, and as many others as care to, make their own Christmas candy this year? How about it?"

"Make their Christmas candy?" murmured Mrs. Longears. "Why, what do you mean?"

"Well," said Uncle Wiggily, and from the way his pink nose twinkled you could tell he was all excited, "you know we have always gone to the six and eight cent store just before Christmas to buy candy to put in the children's stockings or hang in bags on the Christmas tree, haven't we?"

"Of course we have," answered his wife.

"Well, now you have in the house a lot of sugar, molasses, and honey from the bees," went on Mr. Longears. "And what is candy made of but sugar, molasses and honey? So why not make our own candy?"

"Oh, we never could make enough for all the children in the short time left before Christmas," objected Mrs. Longears.

"You and I and Nurse Jane could n't," admitted Uncle Wiggily. "But if we invited all the animal boys and girls to our bungalow and let them help our own forty-thirteen little rabbits (or however many we have now) mix up the sugar, molasses, and honey there would be so much Christmas candy that there would be enough for all and some left over. How about it, my dear?"

Mrs. Longears thought for a moment. Then she said:

"Don't you think it will be sort of —er-messy? All those children mixing up sugar, molasses, and honey—some one is sure to get all sticky and messy."

"What of it, my dear? All the more fun!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. So, with a shake of her ears, his wife gave in and said:

"All right! But don't blame me if after it is all over you sit down in a chair and can't get up again."

"Why shouldn't I be able to get up after I sit in a chair just because I have the children in here to make Christmas candy, I ask you?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know. "Why shouldn't I?"

"You'll see," was all his wife would say.

"Nonsense!" chuckled Mr. Longears, so he hopped out and invited all the animal children he could find to come to his bungalow to make Christmas candy. And as there was no school, on account of the holidays, such a crowd of animal boys and girls thronged to the hollow stump next day that you could hardly count them besides there was Baby Bunty and all the little rabbits of Uncle Wiggily. Nurse Jane shook her head and wrapped her tail in waxed paper so it wouldn't get all sticky.

"Something is going to happen," she said more than once.

Then the candy making began. Such a merry time as there was! On the stove were put to boil pots of sugar, molasses and honey with Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears looking after them to see that they did not bubble over. And when the different kinds of candy were cooked Uncle Wiggily dipped it out and poured the sweet stuff into buttered tins to cool.

"And when it is cool enough," he told the children, "you will grease your paws and pull the Christmas candy into sticks, which we will divide among you as soon as they get hard."

"Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!" cried the animal boys and girls.

"Well, after a while, each one was given a "gob of sweetness," as Jackie Bow Wow called it, meaning a lump of sticky, soft candy to pull into sticks. Grease was rubbed on the children's paws so the soft, warm candy would not stick. And then the pulling began.

"See, I told you everything would be all right!" said Uncle Wiggily to his wife. "Nothing has happened."

"Wait," said Mrs. Longears, blinking her eyes. And then, all of a sudden, out on the side porch where she had gone to cool her candy, Baby Bunty gave a loud scream, calling:

"Oh, Unkie Wig! Come here! Come here—quick." Something has happened What it was I'll tell you in the next story, which will be about Uncle Wiggily's Christmas stocking. But the chewing gum mustn't bite the lollypop or it can't play tag with the gum drop.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE WAY OF A MAN

A man is all right in his way,
A woman will, gladly admit,
Although we're not ready to say
They couldn't improve quite a bit.
For instance, the way they will sit
Right where you're intending to sweep,
It's that, on your busiest day,
That causes a woman to weep.

And when they have something to make,
Or something they want to repair,
The place that they always will take
To fool with a saw or a square
Is always the kitchen; right there
They splinter and hammer and pound—
And always the day that you bake,
And don't want a mortal around.

A man is all right in his way;
But, Lord, how he stands in the door
And tells you the news of the day,
(He likely has told you before),
When fashions you're studying o'er,
Or something you want to design.
A man is all right in his way,
But not when he gets into mine!

THE SIDINGS

Eidotr Examiner.

Dear sir:

In your report of Monday evening's meeting of the City Council, the opposition to the C.G.E. Co's. siding by-law, to which you refer, was not as indicated. No one opposed a siding.

The request was made that because of the busy corner, the siding be kept to Park street, rather than occupy this corner (Townsend and Park). It could be done and still secure the required arc or segment; doubtless the effort has not been made or requested. Furthermore the siding is to go within twenty-five feet of house and business property. No citizen would, in his heart, consider that a bouquet of roses.

Thanking you,

J. S. BELL,
415 Water street.

Ed. Note: The Examiner report did not state that the siding was opposed. The reporter mentioned the fact that Mr. Bell, who opposed the by-law at the last meeting, was present).

"OLD HOME WEEK"

Editor of the Examiner:—

Dear Sir,—Letters are coming to hand from the 'Old Boys,' expressing delight that Peterborough is fixing up preliminaries to the big gathering next June and July, in the last and first weeks of both months. Following is, omitting some personal references,

"I have your letter in respect of sending to you the names of some ex-Peterborough boys in Calgary. As a matter of fact one would be surprised to find how few Peterborough boys there are in Calgary, as compared with Edmonton. I know both places pretty well.

When I lived in Edmonton, back in 1913 I recollect our having organized a Peterborough Old Boys' Association and I think we had a membership of fifty or sixty. They were all real good fellows, too. Including such well known Peterborough residents as Col. E. B. Edwards, (since deceased), Frank Bradburn, now back at your city, Jack Lynch, (who for some years was with J. T. T. O'Connell; three or four of the Conroy boys, Fred Whitcroft, now of the Vancouver hockey team, Ed. Cox, and Wm. Bradburn, with a great number of fellows who were all real live boys.

In Calgary it seems to be different. Of course I know there must be some others, additional, but likely they are not of our "vintage," that is, of the years we all remember.

In Calgary there are Leonard Geroux, who is credit manager with Macdonald-Cooper wholesale grocers, William H. Crowley, traveller for Lyman Bros. wholesale druggists. Mr. Crossley was for several years a resident of Peterborough and he learned the drugs business with Dickson Davidson.

Not forgetting Jim Dillon, pressman with Calgary Albertan. I think Jim is still there. He first gained the smell of printer's ink in the pressroom of the Examiner. George Denoon, live stock commission merchant, stock yards, Calgary. George is of course, one of the Denoons from the south-west corner of Peterborough. He is very prominent in live stock circles around Calgary.

Take Drumheller.. Bill Crowley of the Alberta Government telephone service. Crowley is an old Canadian General Electric employee and well. known hockey player. At Stanley, Alberta, is Billy Denoon, a prosperous meat market proprietor. All of these are likely to come home for the spell of the days of the Old Home Week.

I hope the Old Boys' Reunion will be a splendid success, and you people are wise in getting at it at this time.

Yours faithfully,

E. L. CLARRY.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

An interesting feature of the Ontario Government's report of November gold production is the fact that Lake Shore is shown leading the mines of the Kirkland Lake camp in point of output. This position has been held by Teck Hughes for many months past. Later, the report was looked forward to as the mines came closer together in their production figures. Lake Shore is now at the head of the list and this should reflect credit upon the mine's management. Few of the mining fraternity believed that the output could be so increased within the very short time following the announcement of such intention and these men are sincere in their praise of the efficiency demonstrated.

A deal has been completed whereby the Adventure Mining Corporation, Limited, of New York, has become closely identified with development of the properties of the Trout Bay and Galena Island Syndicate. The Newmont and the United Verde interests, which are identified with the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, are closely allied with the Adventure Mining Corporation.

The properties of the syndicate are located in the Red Lake district, west of the Howey property, and comprise seventeen claims which were formerly known as the Pond group. Surface work is now being carried out and the management states that work will also be carried out through the winter. The company's engineer will examine the property at an early date, preparatory to diamond drilling.

Two diamond drills are working at the surface at the Aldermac. It is reported, in an effort to locate the extension of the ore found on the 500-foot level. All underground work is presently directed towards the development of the ore recently encountered on the 1,125-foot level in previous diamond drilling. It is understood that another drill station will be cut at this bottom horizon to permit of further exploration.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

CENTRAL MANITOBA

According to an official progress report the outlook for Central Manitoba appears to be somewhat brighter than is generally believed. The Tene Six shaft located about three-quarters of a mile east of the main shaft has been sunk to a depth of 250 feet, the whole depth of which is reported in ore of approximately $12 grade, and a width of from four to five feet. Drifting is being carried east and west on the 250 horizon, 160 feet now having been completed, averaging $12.25 per ton. Two hundred and twenty thousand shares are being offered to present shareholders on a basis of one for twenty, now held at 70 cents per share. All unsubscribed shares have been underwritten at 70 cents without any commission. The money received will be used to purchase additional machinery with which to speed up development.

WAITE-MONTGOMERY

Shipments of ore from the Waite to Noranda continue at the rate of about 2,000 tons a month. Part of the shipments are smelter ore which goes direct to the smelter and the rest of it goes to the Noranda concentrator. Raises are being driven into the ore body on the first level, a depth of 185 feet, with a view to enabling the selection of ore and gradually increasing shipments. On the second level, at 300 feet, a crosscut is being driven under the ore body that is being worked on the level above. The present intention is to carry out exploration by diamond drilling and crosscutting on this level. As the glory hole method of mining will be carried out by the Waite, at the present time the overburden is being removed from the ore body, and should be completed by early next spring.

CLERICY

Continued good results on the Clericy property of Frechette township are stated to be responsible for the quiet strength in this issue. Several bullish rumors are afloat but officials have made no comment beyond stating a block of treasury stock has been underwritten at a price considerably above the present market, and that the results of the recent channel sampling by the company's engineer have been highly satisfactory, and that drilling contracts had been let.

MOND

In addition to the high values being obtained at the 2,800 foot level of Mond, we are now informed that these continue to be had at the 3,100 foot horizon. At this lower working the crosscut did not reach the ore until some time later than at the 2,800, due to the northwest dip of the deposits. At this horizon parallel drifts are being driven about 45 feet apart along the length of the zone, and unexpectedly rich ore is being encountered.

NORANDA

We are informed that the new double speed motor has been installed at the No. 3 shaft. This will allow a hoisting speed of 1,500 fet per minute as against 750 feet formerly. The new No. 4 shaft is down to the second level and the sinkers are averaging more than five feet per day. The concentrator is running three shifts daily all on Waite ore.

TOWAGMAC

Two diamond drills are working on the surface of Aldermac to locate the extension of the ore found on the 500. All work underground is presently directed towards the development of the ore recently encountered on the 1,125 by diamond drilling. Another diamond drill station will be cut at this bottom level to permit of further exploration.

WRIGHT—HARGRAVES

Many statements have recently been made for and against Wright-Hargreaves. We are reliably informed that due to the faulting still being met a great deal of dilution is occurring with a consequent decline in grade of mill feed and increase in mining costs.

New International Nickel Does Not Carry Dividend

Announcement is made by Draper Dobie, secretary-treasurer of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, that in accordance with the statement made in the published advertisements of the committee under the deposit agreement, the new shares of International Nickel do not carry the dividend payable December 31st to stock of record December 13th.

Confirmation Forms

Commencing January 15th, 1929, confirmation notices must contain the name of the broker to whom the stock has been sold or from whom it has been bought, according to a resolution passed by the board of directors of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange.

EVENTS COMING FAST AT KIRKLAND LAKE MINES

Official advices to the Toronto office of Kirkland Lake Gold Mines state that the west drift at the 2725 ft. level is in ore averaging $31.25 across the face. This is the ore body that on the 2,600 ft. level persisted in the drive well over towards the Macassa boundary line. The drive on the 2,850 ft. level is proceeding west into this ore. The company has a big tonnage opened up below the 2,600 horizon west of the winze that will feed the mill amply for a long time to come.

East of the winze at 2,600 feet and below, developments are still more interesting from two important angles. Porphyry tongues are associated with the best ore in Teck-Hughes and Lake Shore and one of these porphyry tongues as encountered for the first time on the Kirkland Lake Gold Mines in the east drift at 2,600 feet. On this horizon both east and west of the winze the drives have been carried for 700 feet, 720 feet of which are in pay ore. The porphyry formation has been encountered east of the winze at two lower levels and while average values at 2,600 and 2,725 ran between $30 and $40 per ton, at 2,725 level the ore starts almost at the shaft, but so far has shown $6.00 ore. Evidently, the deposit at this horizon has lengthened greatly.

The other important new factor east of the winze is the dyke demonstrated in the east drive. This was expected by the management. East of this dyke Teck-Hughes has secured its best ore. The management are speeding shaft sinking, because they have lively hopes that east of this dyke which is dipping into Kirkland Lake Ground, they will get ore conditions similar to those in the Teck-Hughes at horizons between 1,480 and 2,250 feet.

Installation of the new hoist is now completed, and as soon as the old hoist is removed it will be placed in operation. This is a double-drum hoist and will enable the company to sink the winze and do lateral work at deeper levels with double the speed of the old hoist.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Supply Limited Impending—Convertible Preferred to Be Issued

The firm of McLeod, Young, Weir and Company will shortly make an offering of 7 per cent. Cumulative, Convertible 1st Preferred shares of the Canada Paving and Supply Limited. This company is a merger of eight or ten of the largest paving and supply companies in the Border Cities, and occupies a dominating position in the southwest district. At the present time the Border Cities are probably the most rapidly expanding urban district in Canada and with the erecting of the new bridge and tunnel across the river making for better travelling facilities, the big American firms are taking due cognizance of its geographical position. Among them in particular, are the Chrysler Motors, whose plant is in the course of erection, and General Motors who, it is said, will manufacture their new Chevrolet Six in the Border Cities. This building activity combined with good management and their own gravel beds should ensure the Canada Paving and Supply Limited an active business.

Shawinigan Offer Accepted by Laurentide

Montreal.—A special general meeting of shareholders of the Laurentide Power Company was held here yesterday at which the offer made by the Shawinigan Water and Power Company to take over the entire assets of the company was formally accepted. Laurentide Power shareholders have two alternative offers open to them, one providing for a cash payment of $227.22 per share and the other for 151.6⅔ per share in cash and 11-10 shares of Shawinigan Water and Power Company stock. Shareholders have until December 23 to deposit their certificates for exchange, on whichever basis they choose.

The meeting was largely formal, but it was not expected that Laurentide Power shareholders would offer any objection to het deal, and marks the passing from existence of the old Laurentide company, which formerly operated Laurentide Paper and Laurentide Power.

The deal is important to Shawinigan, as it gives that company power control of the St. Maurice river below the Laurentide development and virtual power control of the entire river, owing to rights recently secured on the upper part of the river.

It is reported that Santos Development Company has been taken over by the Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company. This former enterprise controls the utilities of the City of Santos which is the chief shipping centre for the State of Sao Paulo, which is the leading industrial state of Brazil. Further important development in connection with business in this state are understood to be underway.

Plan Dairy Business To Operate in Canada

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The Citizen in a news page feature says:

"A very big Canadian dairy business is in the making under the Borden Company of New York, the organization which recently acquired the Chateau Cheese and Laurentian Dairy companies of Ottawa, whereby the big New York company will set up a Canadian company with headquarters probably at Montreal, which will have a capitalization of between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

"This was learned from a man prominent in financial circles and who is a large stockholder in the Borden Company.

"The Borden Company is now pursuing a course of co-ordinating its various Canadian affiliations which will in the near future be embodied in a Canadian company with an entire Canadian directorate and which will involve close to $30,000,000," said the Citizen's informant.

The Citizens further says:

"The Borden Company now controls eighteen large dairying plants in the United States located in the larger cities in the states of New York and Illinois, and in Canada at present has a number of Canadian affiliations which include the Ottawa Dairy Company, Laurentian Dairy Company, Chateau Cheese Company, Canadian Milk Products (Klim) with five factories in Western Canada and one each at Finch and Russell, Ont., the Borden Company Ltd., Montreal; Canadian Milk Products Company, Limited, Toronto; the Cornwall Dairy Products Ltd., Cornwall and Beaumont Cheese Company, Huntingdon, Que."

Argentina Wheat Export Expected To Increase Soon

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—With Liverpool wheat quotations failing to reflect fully yesterday's advance here, the Chicago market averaged lower early to-day. Advices at hand said wheat shipments from Argentina were expected to increase soon, as receipts at the seaboard have begun to enlarge decidedly.

Opening unchanged to ⅜c off, Chicago wheat afterwards held near to the initial figures. Corn, oats and provisions also were easier, with corn starting at ¼ to ⅝c down and subsequently declining still more.

Industrial Issues Lead Active Trading On Mart

TORONTO, Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Strong trading in industrial issues featured the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Trading as a whole was not as heavy as during the early session yesterday, but prices were moving upward, some issues netting gains as high as ten points. Loblaw was active and gained 4½ points to 99½, while Hiram Walkers went up to 85¾, to react toward noon to 84 for a net loss of ¼. Massey-Harris gained 3 to 89½, and Preferred went up 8½ to 109.

Paper and office supplies registered better trading and prices. Abitibi, however, sold off for a loss of 4¼ at 39¾. American Sales Book gained 3½ to 115½, and Preferred 1 to 125; Pacific Burt Preferred shot up 10 points to 180, while F. N. Burt was unchanged. C.P.R. gained 4 points to 233.

Weston started an upward movement which carried it up 14 points yesterday, but by noon to-day had dropped back two points to 112, while the Preferred issue gained 1 to 103, and dropped ½ to 44. Imperial Oil International Nickel was weaker, was up 1 at 89, and Service Station Preferred 1 at 116. Standard Paving dropped 1 to 28, and Northern Bakeries ⅝ at 45⅝.

Amendment To Mining Act Will Soon Be Proclaimed

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Premier Ferguson announced yesterday that the "silicosis" sections which were added to the Ontario Mining Act at the last session of the Legislature for the protection of miners, will pe proclaimed at an early date. The proclamation will give the Workmen's Compensation Board authority to go in and establish regulations respecting the scale and mode of payments that will obtain in the future.

The regulations were drawn up after investigation had revealed that silicosis had gained a foothold in the province.

Canadian National R. R. Seeks New Border Lines

NEW YORK, December 20. — Canadian Press. — The Times says today: "The Canadian National Railways is negotiating for the purchase of the two Canadian railways owned by the Delaware and Hudson Company. The roads are the Napierville Junction Railway, and the Quebec, Montreal and Southern Railway. They would give the Canadian National greater outlet to the United States boundary and a new line for a great part of the distance between Montreal and Quebec."

Early Gains Cut Down Due To Selling Pressure

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Heavy selling came into the stock market to-day, coinicident with the beginning of the widely-predicted year-end stiffening of money rates. Early gains of two to ten points were cut down or wiped out, and several issues sold three to ten and a quarter points below yesterday's final quotations. An irregular recovery took place in the early afternoon.

Call money renewed at seven per cent and advanced to eight when banks called $15,000,000 in loans. Time money held firm but another advance of one-eighth of one per cent. was made in bankers' acceptances.

Violent fluctuations in some of the high-priced specialties featured the early trading. Radio jumped ten points to 356, broke to 343, and rallied above 350. Montgomery-Ward moved up four points to 137½, fell to 131½, and rebounded to 135. Wright Aeronautical ran up seven points to 262, tumbled to 250, rebounded to 258 and then fell back again. International Nickel advanced 2¼ points to 269¼, fell to 258, and rebounded to 262 on the announcement of merger negotiations with Mond Nickel of Canada.

National Tea dropped 10¼ points below last night's close, and Abitibi Power, American Smelting, America Radiator, Allied Chemical, Granby Copper and Curtis sold down three to five points.

SECURITIES MAKE SUBSTANTIAL GAINS

Unknown Issues Command Attention of Buyers On Standard Mining Exchange.

TORONTO, Ont., December 20 (Canadian ress). — Issues which had caused little excitment during the past few weeks, to-day commanded the attention of buyers on the Standard Mining Exchange, and made substantial gains, while some of the more popular securities were driven downward.

Noranda opened strong at 64.75, and soon added another 25 cents, but by noon had fallen to 62.75 for a net loss of 1.75 over yesterday's close. Amulet was the outstanding issue on the board when more than 52,000 shares changed hands and the price soared to 321 for a gain of 11 points. At noon, however, it had reacted to 314, this time with a gain of four points over the previous close. Ajax Oil continued its gaining and was up 4½ at 55½; McIntyre was up 25 at 20.00; Newbec 1½ at 33; Teck Hughes 30 at 8.30; Vipond one at 70, and Wright-Hargreaves one at 1.51, and Kirkland Lake three at 1.30.

NEW PROPOSALS ARE CRITICIZED

Yorkshire Post Claims That Settlement Is Only Good For Few Thousand.

LONDON, December 20. (Canadian Press Cable.) — Discussing the migration proposals outlined simultaneously almost in London and Ottawa, the Yorkshire Post, which circulates largely among agriculturists, says the program fails to present a scheme conceived on broad lines of ample vision. "All told there cannot be more than a few thousands likely to be affected, whereas the problem is the settlement of tens of thousands," says the newspapers.

"Conditions which encouraged the earlier pioneers no longer prevail in any village. The motor omnibus, wireless, extension of social services and relief of distress (in this country) all tend to discourage migration, which must be made attractive to persons of normal state of mind and social proclivities. We do not suggest the onus of producing and financing such a scheme rests entirely on the home government is obviously necessary, and as needful on one side as the other."

Gas Plant Franchise Peterboro Gas Plant

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission is operating the gas business in Peterborough under a franchise given in 1869 to the Peterborough Gas Company. This franchise gives the right to lay mains under city streets and does not provide for the regulation of rates. THE FRANCHISE IS PERPETUAL.

The opportunity is now before the citizens to repossess this franchise.

The price of $335,000.00 for the Gas Plant, including franchise and other properties, is a bargain price for the plant alone. The Commission is returning the franchise to the City without charge. The re-possession of the franchise along with the acquisition of the plant makes the whole deal a most advantageous one to Peterborough. Such a franchise as this would be a valuable asset to a company or private person who would pay handsomely for acquiring it.

A company recently offered to purchase the municipally-owned gas plant in the City of St. Thomas, which compares favorably in character and size with the Peterborough Gas Plant. The price offered for the property, including a franchise to sell gas in the municipality, was $500,000.00, but the citizens voted against the sale.

Gifts THAT ARE Truly Treasured

A musical instrument of the grade we handle is an enduring gift, that becomes more and more appreciated as time goes by. First in the list is, of course, the Piano, the Queen of Gifts, bringing pleasure not only to the recipient but to the giver. The Modern Radio comes easily next in popularity, while the marvellous Panatrope is a keen competitor. Instruments of Brass, Reed or Wood each fill the yearnings of some heart, and it is at the gift-giving time that these hopes should be realized.

"Christmas or the New Age" was the title of a very enjoyable Yuletide message brought to the members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church, by the Rev. Dr. A. I. Brown, at their regular meeting, held on Tuesday afternoon.

The devotional period, which opened the meeting included a prayer offered by the Rev. C. V. McLean, and a scripture reading by Mrs. G. A. Gillespie.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of the life membership pin to Mrs. W. F. Nelson, in memory of her mother, the late Mrs. Dixon. The presentation was made by Miss E. Ferguson.

A vocal solo by Miss Margaret Dickson, "Come Unto Him," was very much enjoyed.

Election of officers for the coming year took place at this meeting, as follows:

REPRIEVED MAN TO HANG FRIDAY

Unless Further Orders To Stay Execution Come From Ottawa.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press).—If no further word or reprieve arrives from Ottawa, John Burowski, convicted murderer of Thomas Jackson, will be executed on Friday. Hangman Ellis arrived here yesterday to complete arrangements for the replacing of the upper part of the scaffold, which was removed after Burowski had been granted a two-weeks' reprieve, a few hours before he was to be hanged on December 7. The delay was allowed in order that new evidence might be submitted to the Minister of Justice. After investigation by Provincial police it was found that there was "nothing in it." The reprieve was granted on the condition that if the "new evidence" failed to materialize, the death sentence would be carried out.

LINDSAY, December 20. — Seven residents of Haliburton County were assessed $183.10 before Police Magistrate Jaryeun of Coboconk, for wantonly killing a cow moose and her calf in the north country this fall.

The authorities have received a number of complaints regarding the unsportsmanlike conduct of hunters, who have ruthlessly slaughtered game and set the laws at defiance. They are determined to stamp out this practice by imposing the severest penalty on all offenders.

REPRIEVE ENDS; BUROWSKI TO HANG

Attorney General Says Nothing Has Developed To Prevent Execution.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press). — John Burowski will hang at Parry Sound to-morrow, the last day of his two weeks' reprieve, for the murder of Thomas Jackson following a mail car robbery last summer, according to Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General for Ontario, who stated to-day: "Nothing happened as a result of his affidavits, and the province is out of it. If there is any further action of any kind it will have to be from Ottawa."

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press, 3 p.m.).—Inquiries at the Parry Sound jail to-day revealed that John Burowski, convicted murdered and alleged train robber is reconciled to his fate. He will be hanged to-morrow morning for the murder of Thomas Jackson. Waubamic farmer, unless executive clemency is granted.

Burowski has been eating three meals a day and chatting with his guards during the past week. The spirit of hope which he manifested after a reprieve of two weeks was granted by Mr. Justice McEvoy, has gradually left him, and his hitherto strong fear of death appears to be largely overcome.

The only request he has made is that his sister in Poland and brother in France be not informed that he was executed for murder. He still maintains he did not shoot Jackson, who was killed while attempting to haul an automobile out of a ditch, shortly after a Canadian Pacific Railway mail car was held up and robbed by two bandits.

The ditched car is alleged to have been stolen when the bandits left the train at Parry Sound. The shooting occurred when a posse from Parry Sound overtook the bandits, who opened fire from their ditched car. Burowski was captured and later identified as one of the train robbers, but the other man escaped.

Thirsty; Take Bottle Marked 'Fine Old Whiskey'; Leave $10 In Payment; It Is Only Maple Syrup

SEATTLE, Washn., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Some thirsty persons are still thirsty to-day and have a quart of maple syrup to show for $10.00 expenditure. A prominent Seattle woman was presented with a quart of home-made maple syrup when she was visiting friends in British Columbia recently. The bottle at one time contained a rare old whiskey. When she crossed the international border customs officers sampled the syrup and her car was passed through.

She stopped at a small store on this side of the line and left the syrup in a shopping bag on a bench. When she came out the bottle was missing and in the bag was a $10.00 bill pinned to the note: "We need this more than you do."

CLERGYMAN FAVORS DISESTABLISHMENT

Looked Upon As Solution of Present Restrictions By Bishop Henson.

LONDON, December 19 (Canadian Press Cable). — The declaration by Bishop Henson of Durham favoring disestablishment of the Church of England as the solution of the present restrictions in formulating afresh here the mode of worship, has not yet aroused any marked comment. It is believed, though, that the events of the past year have caused several of the Bishop's Episcopal brethren to regard the prospect of disestablishment with at least partial disendowment less distastefully than formerly.

The Bishops meet again in a body early in the New Year, when the Archbishop of Canterbury Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, will perhaps have grasped the reins of his new office with some firmness. His attitude so far as is known is towards again attempting to secure from Parliament further powers for the church to rewrite her Liturgy, but how he proposes to frame such a request after two such decided rebuffs from Parliament as were administered on two revisions, remains to be seen.

The more vocal Anglo-Catholics hail Bishop Henson's pronouncement with undisguised satisfaction although it is not concealed that all of this party are not of one mind on the subject. The Evangelicals on the other hand do not desire disestablishment, believing parliamentary supervision of the Church's liturgy and order is still a valuable safeguard for Protestant opinion. On the whole it is extremely unlikely that disestablishment will become a lively issue immediately, for certainly no political party wants it to be an issue in the forthcoming general elections.

First hand evidence of how the alien smuggling from Canada into the United States is carried on at Detroit is graphically portrayed by these groups of aliens captured by men of the United States border patol just as they stepped out of a rowboat on the United States shore near Ecorse, a suburb of Detroit. One ingenious method of smuggling men across the river has just been discovered when a man was found in the specially constructed roof over the driver's seat of this moving van; (2) and an investigation has shown that this vehicle has been making daily trips for a whole year from Windsor to Detroit to bring back empty beer barrels and bottles from the American city. In the description of this truck sent this week to all border patrol men on the detroit front it is explained that the chamber above the driver's seat is big enough to hold four men. They are instructed to be on the watch for similar trucks in their sections. Picture (1) shows the men being marched off in custody after being apprehended. In No. (3) the men are being searched immediately after landing. (4) shows the rowboat bearing the smugglers, and smuggled nearing the United States shore.

PROCEEDING FILED IN MONTREAL COURT

Attempt Is Made To Unseat Mayor Houde in Provincial Legislature.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 20. — (anadian Press).—Proceedings in the court to unseat Mayor Camillien Houde as member of the legislature for St. Mary's division were tardy and outside the delays provided by law, it is claimed in a statement of preliminary objections filed on behalf of the mayor in the Superior Court yesterday. The statement sets forth a long list of irregularities in the proceedings already taken in the courts by Daamase Lavigne, carpenter. It is asked that the proceedings be declared irregular, null and void, and that the defendant be not bound to defend himself again against the charges contained therein.

COMMISSION TO TOUR EUROPE

Radio Board Will Investigate Broadcasting Conditions in Old World.

SIX WEEKS' VISIT.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The Radio Commission investigating the whole question of radio broadcasting in Canada will leave for Europe about the middle of January. The work of the Commission will carry it to England, France, Germany and possibly Belgium over a period of six weeks.

The major portion of the investigation in Europe will be in England. There, the system of the British Broadcasting Corporation, which controls broadcasting in Great Britain under government control and operation, will be carefully examined from every angle. Lord Clarendon is chairman of the British body and Sir John Reith is director-general.

The Commission will then proceed to France where broadcasting is partly by private enterprise and partially by the Government. In prosecution of the work of investigation, members of the Commission will then visit Germany, which has the British system of broadcasting in operation. The question of a visit to Belgium will depend upon developments.

Returning to Canada, the Commission will visit the capital city in each province, and will investigate broadcasting methods in New York City and possibly other points in the United States.

The aim of the Commission is to have its report completed at as early a date as possible. It is generally expected that this document will be available in time to bring down any necessary legislation during the coming session of parliament.

treatment in the immediate future had best proceed

"The condition of the right side of the chest has improved and there is evidence of more normal respiratory functions.

"The healing of the empyema with its severe infection, though satisfactory, must of necessity be a lengthy process.

"The heart is slowly gathering power and while the exhaustion remains profound a slight accession of general strength is noticeable.

"The future course of the illness must from its nature be slow and not without difficulties, but we are happy to state that the King's progress is now established on a firmer basis.

GRANTED NEW TRIAL.

Appeal Court Finds That Jury Was Not a Proper Tribunal.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—The shadow of death that had hung over Albert Victor Westgate since his sentence to hang for the alleged murder of little Christina Adams, was dissipated at least temporarily to-day, with the judgment of the Manitoba Court of Appeal, which has granted Westgate a new trial.

On the grounds that the jury to which Westgate's fate had been entrusted was not a "proper tribunal," the Appelate body unanimously acceded to the appeal entered by the accused's counsel, which had pleaded for a new hearing on the grounds of alleged mental deficiency of one of the jurors in the trial.

ARCTIC EXPLORER SOLVES PROBLEM

Graham Land Settled From Polar Continent By Ice-Filled Channel.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—The New York American, in a copyrighted despatch to-day from Sir Hubert Wilkins, explorer, at Deception Island, Antarctic, says that he has solved a problem which baffled geographers for many years—proving that Graham Land is separated from the polar continent by an ice-filled channel. Geographers, it is said, had previously thought that the mountains extended without interruption into the heart of the continent. Captain Wilkins made the observation during a flight in the monoplane San Francisco beyond the volcanic mountains of Graham Land.

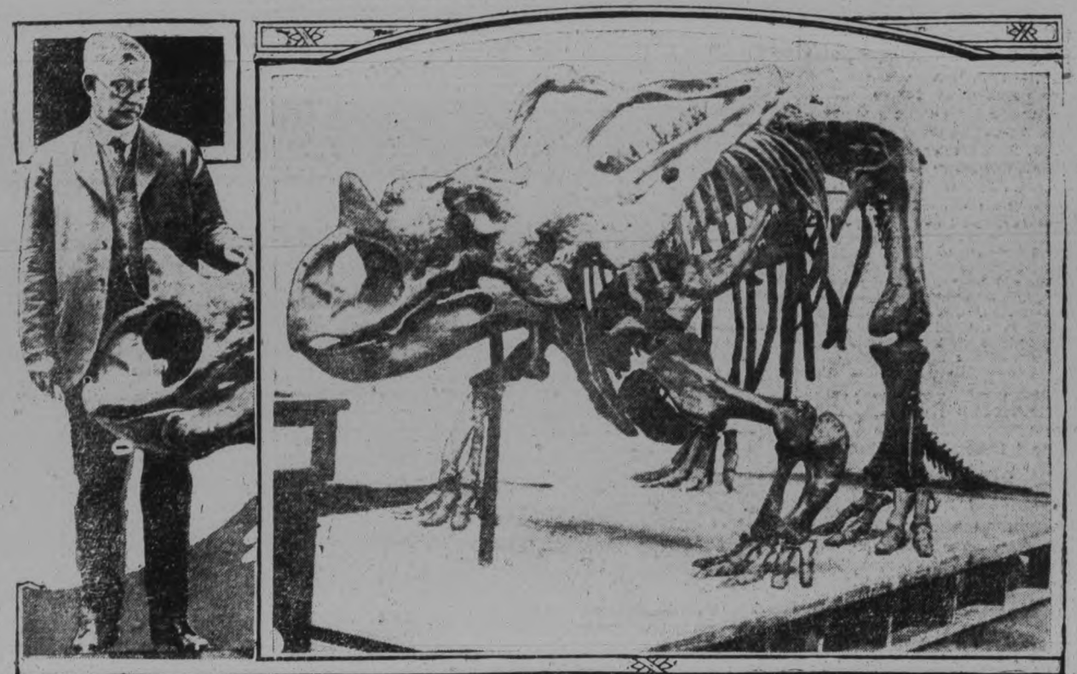
EARLY ANIMAL INHABITANT OF ALBERTA



The expedition sent out to Alberta in 1926 to search for the remains of the early animal inhabitants of that part of the continent returned with the skeleton pictured above, one of the greatest finds of its kind ever made. It has three horns and a peculiar frill of bone along its back which distinguishes it from other species previously found. The skeleton has taken two years of continuous work on the part of two experts in the Royal Ontario museum to perfect and will soon be ready to be exhibited in the museum. Pictures show a full view of Chasmbsauraus Belli, and standing by the head, Dr. W. A. Park, who, with Levi Sternberg, directed the setting up.

FRANK O'CONNOR'S LIMERICK

Above is "Limerick," outstanding international challenge trophy. At prize winner with "Bud" Wadsworth up. This year "Limerick" has netted many prizes. Previously reserve champion at the great New York show, this fall he was adjudged champion heavyweight of the Rochester show, and at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, won four consecutive classes—the C. O. Stillman hunter stake, the open heavyweight hunter class, the model hunter class, and the international challenge trophy. At the recent Ottawa Fair he won the ladies' hunter class, was second in the open middleweight and heavyweight hunter class at the Ottawa Fair and was judged the champion hunter of the show. Frank P. O'Connor has also been very successful with his Clydesdales, two being recent imports from Scotland. "Limerick" belongs to Frank P. O'Connor of Toronto, well-known Canadian horseman.

One of the athletes will be Jim Sweeney, who broke in with Fort Worth and filled in most acceptably at Detroit last season, when Johnny Neun was under the weather. It was a fine trade every way.

King Amanullah and Queen Souriya of Afghanistan, shown above, have taken refuge in a fort, the army having turned against them. Drastic westernization reforms introduced by the king and the insistence of the queen on her desire to abolish the Purda are considered the causes of serious outbreaks in Afghanistan which spread to the capital, Kabul, and are causing considerable anxiety. Mail service between Kabul and India has been suspended during the past month and the only means of communication now working is radio. On his return from Europe last summer King Amanullah introduced reforms which resulted in several movements against him.

Herman Trelle, shown above wheat king of the world, who has widely advertised the Peace River district by his prize-winning wheat exhibits, told a reporter in Winnipeg on Monday that unless some financial support is forthcoming he will either go to the United States or start farming commercially. Every year since he has been growing grain for exhibition purposes, he said, he has been losing money. If he goes to the United States he will accept a position experimenting on grain growing.

ON WAY TO STARDOM

Another Canadian girl is on her way to stardom. She is Miss Isabelle Sheridan, a pretty blonde of 18 years and a cousin of Mary Pickford. Like Mary, Isabelle, is a product of Toronto. She was recently discovered while working in a Hollywood studio as an extra girl in an Ernst Lubtsch production for United Artists.

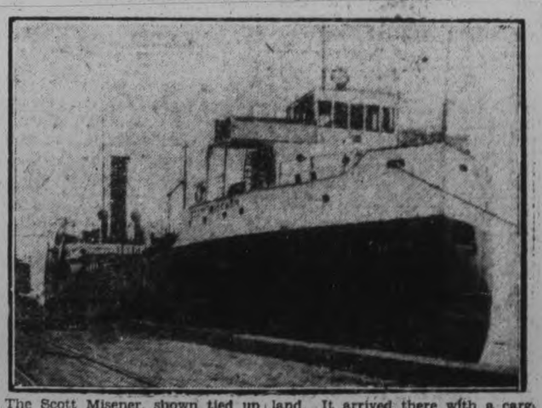
CARRIES CAR GO OF SUGAR



The Scott Misener, shown tied up at the terminal dock in Toronto, is an English vessel from Newcastle, England. It arrived there with a cargo of sugar and will be moored in this Canadian port for the winter.

On the left above is G. S. Cartwright of Toronto, and right, Hrolfe Zeigler of Brantford, who have been chosen as Rhodes scholars by Ontario committee. Cartwright is the son of Brig. Gen. Cartwright, lecturer in military subjects at Toronto University, and is in his final year in arts. He was on the intercollegiate rugby team and has been popular in several branches of undergraduate activity. Zeigler has been much in the public eye at the university during his longer term at university. He is in his sixth year medicine.

FOLLOWING LURE OF GOLD

Following the lure of gold, Tom Montgomery, New Liskeard, Ont., and Fred Hamilton, Sarnia, Ont., are pictured above shooting the dangerous Devil's canyon in the Hayes River, Manitoba. These two veterans of the trail were the first to negotiate the dangerous stream at this point. The rapids are about a quarter of a mile in length, swerving abruptly to the right just below the picture. Their canoe, a seventeen-foot cruiser, bore about 200 pounds, not including the weight of the men. Both have been following the prospecting game for a number of years, particularly Montgomery, who is the original staker of the Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery mine in Northern Quebec. Together they spent the summer prospecting in Northern Manitoba. "Seek and ye shall find," Montgomery says is his motto; but he really isn't so particular about finding if he is just given the opportunity to seek. "I can't remain settled in the routine of city life very long," he states. "As soon as the spring breezes begin to blow and the curling and bowling seasons are over I want to get out in the 'bush' again."

The above photograph shows the new oil-electric locomotive, designed and built by the engineers of Canadian National Railways at Kingston, which is expected to revolutionize the railroad industry. The locomotive has been designed to run in two units and will be used to haul crack passenger trains and fast freights between Toronto and Montreal in the near future.

SHIPS COLLIDE IN DENSE FOG

Passengers Taken Off When Freighter Cuts Ten Feet Into C. P. Vessel.

TWO INJURED.

VANCOUVER, B.C., December 20 (Canadian Press). — More than one hundred passengers were safely transferred by ships' boats to other vessels when the Canadian Pacific coastwise liner Princess Adelaide was in collision with the Norwegian freighter Hampholm, in English Bay, outside Vancouver Harbor, yesterday. The Princess Adelaide cleared from Vancouver at 10.45 a.m. for Victoria and Seattle. The Hampholm was in-bound from Shanghai to load grain at Vancouver. While proceeding at slow speed in a dense fog, the vessels crashed at 11.30 a.m.

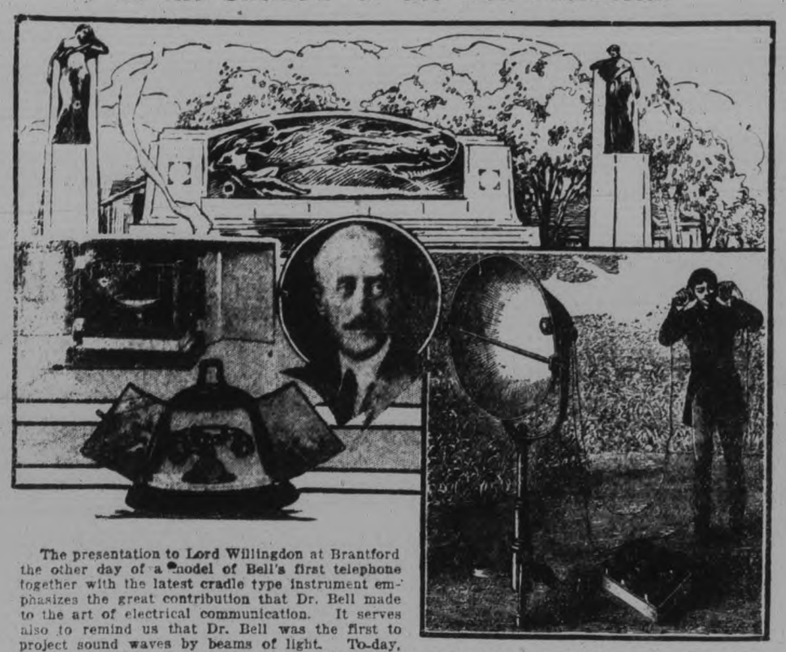
The Hampholm, according to passengers, struck the Adelaide amidships, penetrating ten feet, cutting through two cabins, and causing the flooding of the engine room. Thomas MacLachlan, purser of the Adelaide, received severe cuts about the head, and Charles Haines, member of the Pacific Coast Theatrical Company, suffered five fractured ribs.

The fog slowed up the work of passenger transfer, and delayed their arrival in port until 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, four and one-half hours after the collision took place. The Adelaide and the Hampholm arrived in port yesterday evening, but it was not thought they were in any danger.

Following the collision the Adelaide's boats were lowered. Women and children were sent away first in charge of members of the crew. Some men passengers remained aboard, but were taken off later by a tug. All were transferred to the Hampholm and two hours later were placed aboard the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Royal, which took them on to port. All but a few resumed their trip to Victoria and Seattle by the steamer Princess Louise.

Billiards was invented in the sixteenth century by a London pawnbroker, who on rainy days was in the habit of taking his three balls down and push them around with his yard measure.

In the Shadow of the Bell Memorial



The presentation to Lord Willingdon at Brantford the other day of a model of Bell's first telephone together with the latest cradle type instrument emphasizes the great contribution that Dr. Bell made to the art of electrical communication. It serves also to remind us that Dr. Bell was the first to project sound waves by beams of light. To-day, the Old and New Worlds talk to one another by means of the transatlantic telephone. Carried by electric waves first predicted by Maxwell, an Englishman, and experimentally verified by Herz, a German, speech travels the broad expanse of the Atlantic Ocean in one-sixtieth of a second. These electric waves, commonly known as radio waves, were known and understood by relatively few scientists in 1876 when the telephone was invented. Of course, light waves were known. Using these light waves, Alexander Graham Bell was the first to devise a wireless telephone. Note (at the right) an old picture of Bell's experiment with light waves.

Two Strings To Her Bow

By LILLIACE M. MITCHELL

"If I had a chance at two men the way you have," said Marie bitterly, "it wouldn't take me long to decide to say yes to one of them—and leave the other one for some other girl."

Ellen stared at her friend. "But you see, I've known both of them ever since I was a child and sometimes I think it's one and then again I think it's the other." Her blue eyes clouded for a moment and then she smiled. "But I know that I'll know—pretty soon—" she paused.

"I believe that you know right now and are just—"

Ellen looked aggrieved. "Truly, I don't. But I know that—"

"Bother!" interrupted Marie and slammed out of the house.

It was Saturday afternoon and Ellen began preparing for the evening. Tom always took her to dinner downtown on Saturday nights and then they usually went to a show while they were still downtown. And so on Saturday afternoons Ellen always washed her hair and manicured her nails with extra care for Tom, who, although he never said anything concerning her personal appearance, always had the air of regarding her critically as she stood in the front hallway.

She and Tom and David McGuire had all gone to school at the little red schoolhouse which lay equidistant between their three homes. Tom had gone to the city where he had made a definite success in the bond business which his uncle had founded some forty years before, while David McGuire had stayed back in Hillstown, where he worked hard on the farm all summer and slaved all winter at the little model of the potato-hiller he was trying to perfect.

That evening she was drawing on her white gloves under the affectionate yet critical eyes of Tom when David McGuire was announced. The men greeted each other with the friendliness that their school days warranted; yet, Ellen thought, there was a reserve on the part of each.

Tom wore his clothes well and was entirely at ease; David, however, was plainly from the country.

It was decided that they should all dine together and Ellen found as they drove downtown in the taxi that Tom had ordered that she had ample occasion to look at the two men together. She thought of the two proposals, so like the men who had made them.

"I—I can't give you much now, honey—except love," David said as they had stood under a tree laden with cherry blossoms, "but some day the potato hiller will work out and then—then—" his eyes had looked far away over the hills.

Tom's proposal had come while they stood waiting for a taxicab after the theatre: "I think a whole lot of you, Ellen, and with your looks and my money we'll just make the little old town hum—I can give you everything!"

Everything—and nothing!

Tonight she would decide. She felt it instinctively. At dinner she said little. Tom did the ordering easily and she saw that David McGuire was delighted to be relieved of the duty. David was plainly distressed by the silverware and Ellen found that he watched her eagerly to see which should be picked up first. Between courses Tom said:

"Every study psychology, Dave?"

David shook his head.

"I'm much interested in it," Tom went on easily, "psychology, mental sciences, Freudian theories and all of that. I believe that a man can get on faster in the world if he knows a good deal about the workings of the minds of the men with whom he deals. Take me, for instance; when a fellow comes into the office with a bit of money to invest I can usually tell to a 't' whether he is interested in public utilities—in industrials or rails. I watch him—that's all—just watch him and see where his eyes travel. After I know that I mention different sums of money until I see, by the flicker of his eye, how much he wants to invest. Most people are rather reticent about mentioning a certain sum of money. Without knowing how much they want to put up it's hard for me to tell what suggestion to make in order for them to get the most return for their money. What's this, waiter—" he broke off impatiently, and his face grew red. "I told you well done—well done. Do you understand English? Look at the red blood running out of that meat!" He pointed a finger shaking with wrath toward the silver platter before him.

And Ellen knew!! It didn't make an difference about manners or money or anything else. It was disposition that counted. David was looking at the confused waiter with sorry eyes and kept telling Tom that he liked his meat rare anyhow. Ellen wondered how she ever could have faltered.

And on Sunday morning when she met Marie at church she told her, "We're going to live on the farm, on the tip of a hill, and the cherry blossoms in the spring—oh, Marie, you must come out to visit us next spring!"

"And—and you're not going to marry Tom?" amazement spread over Marie's face.

Ellen shook her blond head and her eyes grew soft. "I guess I've always loved Davey—only I didn't know it—you know I said yesterday I'd know pretty soon—I must have known right then—subconsciously," she ended, using one of the very terms that Tom had liked so well as she spoke of her man, David McGuire.

HASTINGS SEEKS $2,000

bridge, and Bowmanville's work is to cost $50,000.

Next Year's Program

The front towns and villages include in the country road link paving on Cobourg, Port Hope, Newcastle, Brighton, and Colborne, each to receive $50,000 for two miles of paved streets. And, under the agreement, these urban municipalities forego for ten years their usual county road allowances from the counties council.

The municipalities on the provincial highway are not granted any extra monies on their respective paved roads.

"It was only fair" said Mr. Fellows that the back towns and villages should receive fair consideration because they have no provincial highway through them, but they have been paying their share of the cost of the front provincial highway the same as the towns and villages. The Department was willing to pay 50% on any expenditure necessary to make a good job, and that was why the Campbellford and Millbrook extras arose."

Dr. Wilson told the committee that Hastings had spent $9,044.14 more than the estimate of their work. The widening of the north bridge from 20 feet to 33 feet had cost $3,000.

Referring to the work in the urban municipalities, Mr. Fellows said, "The counties council hasn't a dollar to spend in Campbellford for the next ten years, and I don't think Campbellford will have to spend a cent for the next fifteen years".

Reeve Giddy of Port Hope moved the resolution to give Hastings the $2,000 asked for by Reeve Wilson. It was seconded by Reeve W. H. Ross of Brighton township.

Reeve Nelson—"We passed a by-law under the Highways Act by which all bridges under 20 feet reverted to the townships. We allowed all we could, but the Whitfield bridge measures only 19½ feet.

Reeve Wood said he understood Peterborough was going according to the Municipal Act.

Reeve Frank Elliott—"It's none of our business what Peterborough does."

Reeve George Hootan of Cavan remarked that there might be some misunderstanding by Peterborough county.

On Reeve Nelson's suggestion this question was transferred to the January session.

Reeve W. F. Elliott of Murray township presided as chairman of the committee.

School Committee

The work of the schools committee of the Counties Council this session was perhaps the most onerous of all the departments. Reeve J. M. Bygott of Campbellford, chairman of the committee, presided at several lengthy sessions before the involved details of many requisitions from boards of education were clearly arranged.

The report of the committee was presented Wednesday afternoon and was adopted.

It recommended payment to the minor municipalities of the following amounts to public schools for accommodation and equipment for 1928.

The counties council and the Ontario government each pay half of the amounts set forth in the following list, the figures presented being the totals of the counties and government grants:

Alnwick, $61.10; Brighton, $240.78; Cramahe, $281.94; Murray, $277.72; Percy, $266.70; Seymour, $246.96; Brighton Village, $50.16; Colborne, $33.44; Hastings, $25.72; Cartwright, $146.34; Clarke, $365.24; Darlington, $450.72; Manvers, $285.58; Newcastle, $43.84; Cavan, $289.20; Haldimand, $347.04; Hamilton, $347.04; Hope, $347.04; South Monaghan, $106.00; Millbrook, $38.56.

staff of The Hamilton Spectator. It was during the years that followed while he was on the reportorial staff of this journal that he formed a friendship with William Southam that was further cemented in recent years when, while lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, Mr. Nichol disposed of the majority control in The Vancouver Daily Province to Mr. Southam and his sons.

On leaving Hamilton he went to Toronto, where he was in turn employed on the staffs of The Daily News and The Saturday Night. As a member of the latter publication he won a wide reputation as a writer. In 1888 he accepted the editorship of The Hamilton Herald, where he remained for eight years. Later he went to London, Ont., as manager of The London News. This was a short lived enterprise, and he left the East when he quitted this position and came to British Columbia, which at the time was the centre of considerable mining activity in the Kootenay districts. He engaged for a short period in newspaper work at Kaslo, and then came to the Coast, locating at Victoria. Here, in partnership with Hewitt Bostock, now Senator Bostock, he established The Weekly Province.

Impressed with the future of Vancouver, in 1898 the publication was moved from the island, and The Province emerged as a daily. Later the partnership was dissolved. Senator Bostock took the job printing and lithographing plants while Hon. Mr. Nichol took the newspaper, which, under his guidance in the succeeding year became one of the most influential journals in Canada.

Not a Strong Party Man

He was not a strong party man in politics, preferring to support any movement which he was convinced was intended for the good of Vancouver, British Columbia and the Dominion.

When on the death of Lieutenant-Governor Prior in 1920 the high office was tendered to Mr. Nichol by the Ottawa Conservative Government, the appointment was a very popular one. He filled the office with dignity and credit to himself and British Columbia.

Hon. Mr. Nichol had always been keenly interested in matters pertaining to education, and his work in this connection was recognized when the University of British Columbia conferred upon him the degree of LL.D.

He endowed several scholarships in French universities for graduates of the University of British Columbia, for the purpose of fostering a better understanding between the two countries, and so highly was the purpose of this benefaction regarded that the President and Government of France invested him with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The year after he came to British Columbia Hon. Mr. Nichol married Miss Quita Josephine March Moore, of London, Ont., daughter of the late Dr. Charles Greenwood Moore, to whom was born one son and one daughter.

SIX MINERS FOUND DEAD

Men Trapped By Fall of Slate Had Expired Hours Before.

GAS WAS BAD.

DRAKESBORO, Ky., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Rescue crews last night recovered the bodies of six men trapped on Tuesday by an explosion in a mine of the Black Diamond Company near here. The men had been dead many hours, it was believed.

The rescue crew had difficulty in clearing the tunnel of gas. Mine officials had little hope that any of the imprisoned men would be found alive.

The rescue crew consisted of eight men and twelve assistants.

The victims are Cleveland Bolin and Vermont Nelson, machine cutters; Roy Ezell, motorman; James Sullivan, night foreman and inspector; Arthur Davis and Leonard Epley, coal diggers.

Families of the imprisoned men waited anxiously for word all through the day. There was no disorder, however, officials declared.

INSTITUTE HOLDS CHRISTMAS MEETING

Delegate Gives Report on Recent Provincial Convention in Toronto.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, December 19. — The Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Thomas Harkness, on Saturday afternoon, an encouraging spirit of interest and enthusiasm prevailing throughout. The treasurer, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, reported expenditures during the past month, included in this being a cord of good hard wood for a needy family in the vicinity.

The main feature of the meeting was the report of the Provincial Institute convention held in Toronto, Nov. 27-29, the delegate, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, giving a very full and instructive account of the several sessions.

A piano duet by the Misses Marcella and Marguerite Lang was much enjoyed.

A pleasant social hour was enjoyed at the close, with refreshments served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Byam, Bank street, the committee in charge being Mrs. John Lunn, Mrs. W. West and Mrs. G. Fallis.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. George motored to Grafton last week, Mrs. George attending the executive meeting of the Cobourg Presbyterial W.M.S. They visited friends in Baltimore and Cobourg before returning home on Friday.

The many friends of Mrs. A. J. Fallis will be glad to learn that she is convalescing nicely after a serious operation at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, and is now at Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital here.

Miss Francis Turner, student at Toronto University, is home for the Christmas holidays, the classes having been discontinued somewhat before scheduled time owing to the prevalence of flu among the students.

Among those from here who attended the funeral of the late Colonel MacNachtan at Cobourg, last Thursday, were: Reeve W. T. Wood, Reeve G. A. Hootan, Deputy-Reeve R. J. McKnight, ex-Warden A. J. Henderson, ex-Warden J. L. McCamus, J. N. McGill, J. R. Eakins, and Reeve W. Wood of South Monaghan.

Mrs. I. E. Needham's many friends will be glad to know that there is quite an improvement recently from the serious illness with pneumonia, which has kept her confined to bed for the past two weeks.

OMEMEE, Dec. 19. — The annual meeting of L.O.L. No. 113 was held in the lodge room on Wednesday evening. After the regular routine of business the following officers were elected for the coming year:

The officers were then installed by past county master, W. Moncrief.

At the close of the meeting a sumptuous fowl supper was served and a social hour spent.

Shooting Matches.

Numerous farmers in this vicinity are disposing of their geese in shooting matches, and several sportsmen of the village have been quite successful. At the home of Thomas Kerr, out of a flock of geese fourteen came to Omemee by the straight shooting of those skilled in that art.

Personals.

Mrs. Joseph Bradley suffered a serious paralytic stroke on Saturday evening. Following a consultation by doctors on Sunday evening, the family have been called to her bedside.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office

[illegible] Editor of The Examiner would suggest improvement he [illegible] paper when he gave you [illegible]

The Weather is splendid and [illegible] around. I like the [illegible] letters, especially [illegible]. Three cheers for you [illegible] to the matter with the many [illegible] he have a mother? Most of [illegible], even if they have gone on before.

I hope you will have some of the Christmas [illegible]. I am late in sending but better late than never.

Has any reader a good recipe for Cabbage [illegible]? I am not satisfied with the one I have. Someone asked for a recipe for Caramel pudding, I am sending mine.

Thanking you in advance for the help and wishing you a Merry Christ- [illegible] because there will be no time to write again before Christmas, I am,

Yours sincerely,
Gem."

Bonar law.

• • •

Thanks, "Gem," for all the nice things you say, and for the recipe. have put in your Scrap Book for Cabbage Salad.

"Dear Marion:

Received the helps for which I asked, and thank you very much. If I could be any service to you in the new enterprise you are starting I would be most happy to be a "Big Sister."

The one thing I have liked about your pages is their absence from mushy articles so often seen in some pages devoted to women. The pages are interesting to women and contain so many useful recipes.

Several neighbors have spoken of pickles spoiling. I wonder if it could have been the fault of the vinegar. I buy the best cider vinegar, 75c a gallon, and my pickles keep perfectly. I have had some two years perfectly good. I do not make them in the same way though.

In making good commonpie crust, I take nearly four cups of sifted pastry flour to three pies. I sift it again into my mixing pan, sifting a scant teaspoon of soda and salt at the same time. I use the best lard and keep putting in a piece at a time, and mixing with flour till it is thoroughly mixed and crumbly. I make a hole in the centre and add ice cold water, mixing in a little at a time till I have a nice soft dough. Then roll out as usual. I use aluminum pie tins, a little deep and not too large. The pie cuts into four nice pieces. If wanted flaky, use half the dough for under crust and to the remainder add small pieces of lard or butter dotted over the top and rolled out once or twice. Then I like my pies sweet for I think a sour pie detestable. I am,

Yours sincerely,
Fides."

• • •

[illegible] letter is very interesting, "Fi- [illegible] I wish to thank you on behalf [illegible] neighbors, for your hints. The [illegible] recipe will add value to many [illegible] books.

"Marion:

[illegible]ever you are you are not only [illegible]e blessed, but many, many times. I just must express my appreciation [illegible] your efforts, else I would not have [illegible] forth from my shell.

I have thoroughly enjoyed the neighbors' short stories. Why could not Peterborough have a magazine of its own filled with just such clean literature as we get on your page?

I am enclosing a coupon for helps and wish to thank you for hat pattern.

Sincerely yours,
Dishwasher."

City.

• • •

These pages are our magazine, "Dishwasher" and the neighbors are writing it splendidly. The stories WERE good —I enjoyed every one. Thanks a lot for the nice things you write.

"Dear Marion:

Would you kindly send me the Christmas menus and parties prepared by Laura, also pattern of bed jacket?

I thought the following might be of interest since the snow came. I have fed the birds from an upstair window above which are two wires leading to the garage and now every morning two, three and four birds sit on those wires looking into the room (where there is an invalid) waiting for their breakfast, and if it is five minutes late or happens to be brown bread, which they do not like, there is such a chattering and fluttering of wings and hopping on and off the window ledge. It is amusing to watch them. I wonder what Thinker is like if breakfast is late or does not suit him. I guess wifey has to step out, that is if he found anybody dumb enough to marry him. Anyhow, Marion you seem to have crushed him to earth with no further bounce in [illegible]n, as so far he has made no reply.

I hope that you enjoy your chocolates but perhaps he will be too weak to draw the money from his pocket to pay for them. Hoping not,

Yours sincerely,
Mack."

• • •

Your story about the birds is very interesting, "Mack"—it is an experiment that seems worth trying. It is wonderful what intelligence birds and animals show, isn't it? I haven't received the chocolates yet!

"Dear Marion:

Will you kindly send me checked off helps for which I enclose a two-cent stamp?

I am a daily reader of your page and I think it is a wonderful improvement to The Examiner. Thanking you beforehand and wishing you continued good luck, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
Molly."

City.

• • •

Thanks for your appreciation, "Molly."

"Dear Marion:

This is my first letter to you, but I felt I must let you know how much I enjoy and appreciate your most interesting and helpful page. It is a wonderful addition to The Examiner and I look forward to it every night eagerly.

Would love to have the paper on Christmas parties. Very many thanks for past favors and wishing your department a long life.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. G. P."

City.

I hope you will find the helps useful, "Mrs. G. P." I'm glad you like our pages.

"Dear Marion:

It is some time since I have written to you but I have been reading your interesting page just the same.

I noticed that M. J. B. had trouble with her pickles. The only reason I can see that her vinegar worked is that it may not have worked before she put her pickles into it. To make vinegar work put nine beans into it and in nine days it will start to work and a mother will form on the top.

I also noticed that Mrs. H. requested a recipe for caramel pudding, so I am sending in mine, also a recipe for Velvet Cake.

Hoping this letter is not too long and that you will send what helps you have.

Yours truly,
Mayflower."

• • •

Thanks a lot for the recipes, "Mayflower," and for the information about pickles. I know the neighbors will appreciate them all.

Mrs. C. L.: Thanks a whole lot for your kind gift. How on earth did you guess my size?

Marion

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

WHERE CHILDREN KNOW MORE THAN PARENTS

In these days when young folks have the idea that they know more than their parents, which as a matter of fact, has always been the way of the world, it would be interesting to know how much truth there is in the idea itself.

You will remember that the millions of children that go to school every day are being taught facts about health, their bodies, food, ventilation, sleep, and exercise, that were not even known to teachers in your schooldays.

And even the facts that were known were not taught in your day. Now we see the National Education Association, which includes teachers of United States and Canada, having as one of the planks in its platform "health, hygiene, and a knowledge of the structure and function of the human body, are fundamental to human happiness. This knowledge creates a reverence for the body, begets cleanliness in home and surroundings, prevents disease by watchful care, and creates a respect for the other fellow's rights." The school often discovers for the parents the health assets and liabilities of the child. You can readily understand that the recognition of defects at this time may prevent years of misery and unhappiness.

A recent editorial says "What a pity that the adults of our generation could not have had a similar opportunity."

The great problem of the present day is to make parents know as much as their children are learning about the body in health and disease. So apparently this is one place where the growing boy and girl is getting first hand knowledge that was denied his parents.

As has been so often said "No matter how much ambition, how much brains you have, you can only go as far in your pursuits as that body of yours will take you."

Health is your biggest asset. All that is asked of you in keeping it is a little common sense and the use of the ever present knowledge of health now within your possession.

WHAT IS CORRECT?

GUESTS WHO DON'T "BRIDGE"

Puzzled: A good way to get over the difficulty of entertaining non-card-playing guests is to send invitations for a card party for three o'clock to those who would like to play cards, and invitations for tea at five to others who are averse to card playing. No, it is not necessary for the hostess to play, but if she prefers to play and should win a prize, she gives it to a guest.

CLEANING COPPER

Copper often may be cleaned beautifully by rubbing all over with a cut lemon dipped in salt, then rinsing thoroughly with clear water and polishing with a soft cloth or chamois.

NEW TINWARE

Before using new tinware for cooking, rub all over with fresh lard to season and fortify against rust. Wash later with hot soda water.

CUTICURA HEALS LARGE PIMPLES

Caused Itching Burning, Also Disfigurement.

"My complexion was completely [illegible]ed by pimples which varied in [illegible]ze. Some were large, hard and [illegible]y, while others were just red and [illegible]ered. They caused an itching, [illegible]rning sensation, also disfigurement.

"After using scores of remedies [illegible] over two years, with but little [illegible]sults, I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I was so pleased with the results that I purchased more, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one large box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) W. E. "Alice" writes: "I think there is no more stirring story written than "The Last Days of Pompeii" and I would like to see a part of it printed. I suggest either the part telling about the dream of arbaces or the chapter telling about the destruction of the city." I am reproducing the latter, "Alice." The story is by Lord Lytton, English novelist, playwright and poet. He was born in Norfolk in 1803 and died in 1873. He wrote many novels.—M.

THE DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII

The cloud, which had scattered so deep a murkiness over the day, had now settled into a solid and impenetrable mass. It resembled less even the thickest gloom of a night in the open air than the close and blind darkness of some narrow room. But in proportion as the blackness gathered, did the lightnings around Vesuvius increase in their vivid and scorching glare. Nor was their horrible beauty confined to the usual hues of fire; no rainbow ever rivaled their varying and prodigal dyes. Now brightly blue as the most azure depth of the southern sky—now of a livid and snakelike green, darting restlessly to and fro as the folds of an enormous serpent—now of a lurid and intolerable crimson, gushing forth through the columns of smoke, far and wide, and lighting up the whole city from arch to arch—then suddenly dying into a sickly paleness, like the ghost of their own life!

In the pauses of the showers, you heard the rumbling of the earth beneath, and the groaning waves of the tortured sea; or, lower still, and audible but to the watch of intensest fear, the grinding and hissing murmur of the escaping gases through the chasms of the distant mountain. Sometimes the cloud appeared to break from its solid mass, and, by the lightning, to assume quaint and vast mimicries of human or of monster shapes, striding across the gloom, hurtling one upon the other, and vanishing swiftly into the turbulent abyss of shade; so that, to the eyes and fancies of the affrighted wanderers, the unsubstantial vapors were as the bodily forms of gigantic foes—the agents of terror and of death.

The ashes in many places were already knee-deep; and the boiling showers which came from the steaming breath of the volcano forced their way into the houses, bearing, with them a strong and suffocating vapor. In some places, immense fragments of rock, hurled upon the house roofs, bore down along the streets masses of confused ruin, which yet more and more, with every hour, obstructed the way; and as the day advanced, the motion of the earth was more sensibly felt—the footing seemed to slide and creep—nor could chariot or litter be kept steady, even on the most level ground.

Sometimes the huger stones, striking against each other as they fell, broke into countless fragments, emitting sparks of fire, which caught whatever was combustible within their reach; and along the plains beyond the city the darkness was now terribly relieved, for several houses, and even vineyards, had been set in flames, and at various intervals, the fires rose sullenly and fiercely against the solid gloom. To add to this partial relief of the darkness, the citizens had, here and there, in the more public places, such as the porticoes of temples and the entrances to the forum, endeavored to place rows of torches; but these rarely continued long; the showers and the winds extinguished them, and the sudden darkness into which their fitful light was converted had something in it doubly terrible and doubly impressive on the impotence of human hopes, the lesson of despair.

Frequently, by the momentary light of these torches, parties of fugitives encountered each other, some hurrying toward the sea, others flying from the sea back to the land; for the ocean had retreated rapidly from the shore—an utter darkness lay over it, and, upon its groaning and tossing waves, the storm of cinders and rocks fell without the protection which the streets and roofs afforded to the land. Wild-haggard—ghastly with supernatural fears, these groups encountered each other, but without the leisure to speak, to consult, to advise; for the showers fell now frequently, though not continuously, extinguishing the lights, which showed to each band the death-like faces of the other, and hurrying all to seek refuge beneath the nearest shelter. The whole elements of civilization were broken up. Ever and anon, by the flickering lights, you saw the thief hastening by the most solemn authorities of the law, laden with and fearfully chuckling over the produce of his sudden gains. If, in the darkness, wife was separated from husband, or parent from child, vain was the hope of reunion. Each hurried blindly and confusedly on. Nothing in all the various and complicated machinery of social life was left save the primal law of self-preservation!

Through this awful scene did the Athenian wade his way, accompanied by Ione and the blind girl. Suddenly, a rush of hundreds, in their path to the sea, swept by them. Nydia was torn from the side of Glaucus, who, with Ione, was borne rapidly onward; and when the crowd (whose forms they saw not, so thick was the gloom) were gone, Nydia was still separated from their side. Glaucus shouted her name. No answer came. They retraced their steps—in vain: they could not discover her—it was evident she had been swept along in some opposite direction by the human current. Their friend, their preserver, was lost! And hitherto Nydia had been their guide. Her blindness rendered the scene familiar to her alone. Accustomed, through a perpetual night, to thread the windings of the city, she had led them unerringly toward the seashore, by which they had resolved to hazard an escape. Now, which way could they wend? All was rayless to them—a maze without a clew. Wearied, despondent, bewildered, they, however, passed along, the ashes falling upon their heads, the fragmentary stones dashing up in sparkles before their feet.

"Alas! alas!" murmured Ione, "I can go no further; my steps sink among the scorching cinders. Fly, dearest,—beloved, fly! and leave me to my fate!"

"Hush, my betrothed! my bride! Death with thee is sweeter than life without thee! Yet, whither—oh! whither, can we direct ourselves through the gloom? Already, it seems that we have made but a circle, and are in the very spot which we quitted an hour ago."

"O gods! yon rock—see, it hath riven the roof before us! It is death to move through the streets!"

"Blessed lightning? See, Ione—see! the portico of the Temple of Fortune is before us. Let us creep beneath it; it will protect us from the showers."

He caught his beloved in his arms, and with difficulty and labor gained the temple. He bore her to the remoter and more sheltered part of the portico, and leaned over her, that he might shield her, with his own form, from the lightning and the showers! The beauty and the unselfishness of love could hallow even that dismal time!

"Who is there?" said the trembling and hollow voice of one who had preceded them in their place of refuge. "Yet, what matters?—the crush of the ruined world forbids to us friends or foes."

Ione turned at the sound of the voice, and, with a faint shriek, cowered again beneath the arms of Glaucus: and he, looking in the direction of the voice, beheld the cause of her alarm. Through the darkness glared forth two burning eyes—the lightning flashed and lingered athwart the temple—and Glaucus, with a shudder, perceived the lion to which he had been doomed crouched beneath the pillars;—and, close beside it, unwitting of the vicinity, lay the giant form of him who had accosted them—the wounded gladiator, Niger.

That lightning had revealed to each other the form of beast and man; yet the instinct of both was quelled. Nay, the lion crept earn and nearer to the gladiator as for companionship; and the gladiator did not recede or tremble. The revolution of Nature had dissolved her lighter terrors as well as her wonted ties.

While they were thus terribly protected, a group of men and women bearing torches, passed by the temple. They were of the congregation of the Nazarenes; and a sublime and unearthly emotion had not, indeed, quelled their awe, but it had robbed awe of fear. They had long believed, according to the error of the earl y Christians, that the Last Day was at hand; they imagined now that the Day had come.

"Woe! woe!" cried, in a shrill and piercing voice, the elder at their head. "Behold! the Lord descendeth to judgment! He maketh fire come down from heaven in the sight of men! Woe! woe! ye strong and mighty! Woe to ye of the fasces and the purple! Woe to the idolator and the worshiper of the beast! Woe to ye who pour forth the blood of saints, and gloat over the death pangs of the sons of God! Woe to the harlot of the sea!—woe! woe!"

And with a loud and deep chorus, the troop chanted forth along the wild horrors of the air,—"Woe to the harlot of the sea!—woe! woe!"

The Nazarenes paced slowly on, their torches still flickering in the storm, their voices still raised in menace and solemn warning, till, lost amid the windings in the streets, the darkness of the atmosphere and the silence of death again fell over the scene.

There was one of the frequent pauses in the showers, and Glaucus encouraged Ione once more to proceed. Just as they stood, hesitating, on the last step of the portico, an old man, with a bag in his right hand and leaning upon a youth, tottered by. The youth bore a torch. Glaucus recognized the two as father and son—miser and prodigal.

"Father," said the youth, "if you cannot move more swiftly, I must leave you, or we both perish!"

"Fly, boy, then, and leave thy sire!"

"But I cannot fly to starve; give me thy bag of gold!" And the youth snatched at it.

"Wretch! wouldst thou rob thy father?"

"Ay! who can tell the tale in this hour? Miser, perish!"

The boy struck the old man to the ground, plucked the bag from his relaxing hand, and fled onward with a shrill yell.

"Ye gods!" cried Glaucus: "are ye blind, then, even in the dark? Such crimes may well confound the guiltless with the guilty in one common ruin. Ione, on!—on!"

Miss Wallis has been in Paris for a number of years, and has had works accepted at almost every Salon. The Girls' Auxiliary club of the Y.W.C.A. entertained the members of the Saturday Afternoon club at supper last evening at the "Y" after which the small girls of the Saturday Afternoon club, children of about twelve years of age, received gifts from the Christmas tree and then entertained their hosts by preesnting a pretty little play entitled "A Christmas Message." Those taking part were Wilma Hall, Mary Montgomery, Violet Weaver, Jennie Weaver, Lillian Stone, Madeline Peters, Antoinette de Carlo, May Armstrong, Pearl Armstrong, Irene Donnley. The children were trained by Miss M. D. Sherin and Miss K. Cooney. Miss Helen Lytle sang for the little girls last evening, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley.

The Knights of Columbus entertained the children of St. Vincent's Orphanage in their club-rooms last evening, at a delightful Christmas entertainment that seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by the small guests. Thirty little ones, twenty-one small boys and nine little girls, came to the party, from the ages of fourteen years down to the plump baby of two years old. Before the evening was over, the small tots were sitting on the floor, testing out the qualities of the gifts received, and consuming quantities of candies and fruit. The big upper hall was decorated brightly for the occasion with long streamers of blue and yellow on the electroliers. A gay Christmas tree had tiny electric lights and colored novelties and tinsel to set it off, and Santa Claus, who came in to give the children a few minutes of fun, was dressed in a bright scarlet suit trimmed with white, with the traditional long whiskers and scarlet stocking cap of Old Saint Nicholas. Grand Knight D. A. McKinnon acted as chairman for the entertainment, which included some excellent radio music and several loudly-applauded selections by St. Peter's High School orchestra, who played in their usual good form and fine melodious tone, with Miss Mary Reynolds at the piano. There was also a step dance and its encore, by Mr. Daniel O'Brien, accompanied on the fiddle by Mr. W. Conroy, which aroused much enthusiasm among the audience of seniors and juniors, and Mr. James J. Dorris told a funny little story that amused the children immensely, and had to do with the sad fate of a pet dog whose name was changed from Togo to Bologna by the impetuous action of a passing train. Mr. George Lynch also added greatly to the interest of the evening, with his humorous admonitions to the children. Distribution of the gifts, which were comprised of hockey sticks, dolls, bags of fruit, nuts and candy, handkerchiefs, fountain pens and stockings, was made by Messrs. D. A. McKinnon, Frank Hickey, A. Costello, and Dr. E. M. Crough. Boxes of chocolates were sent to the Orphanage for the Sisters in charge there.

A.Y.P.A. PACKS LARGE BOXES

All Saints' Branch Sends Christmas Cheer To Distant Churches.

DISCUSSION FOLLOWS.

The members of All Saints' Branch of the A.Y.P.A. gathered on Monday evening for the purpose of packing up presents, donated by the branch together with the Sunday school, prior to sending them away to gladden the hearts of children in the more distant fields of the church. Two large boxes were filled for this purpose. Following this work there was a discussion on making the branch more successful and in planning activities for the next meeting, early in the New Year.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion

(Copyright)

IT WILL BE ADMITTED by all mothers that careful supervision is needed of the reading matter absorbed into young minds. In this regard, my attention has been drawn to the statement of a Toronto school trustee, in which he denounces the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

• • • • • •

In this declaration, the Rubaiyat is called "immoral, intemperate, undesirable, materialistic, cynical, unsavory," and a lot of other things which many might think unnecessary repetitions of the statement that Mr. Day does not like Omar Khayyam's works to be read by children.

• • • • • •

The particular verse objected to is:

"Awake, my little one, and fill the cup.
Ere life's liquor in its cup be dry."

In am sorry that this particular quotation does not appear in either of the translations I have of the Rubiyat—sorry, because the context often changes the meaning of a quotation.

• • • • • •

For instance, I might put this interpretation on the extract specially objected to: Omar means to fill the cup with the wine of Life. Can one object to the idea of filling life to its fullest? As a matter of fact, this interpretation is given directly in my copy of the Rubaiyat:

"The Wine of Life keeps oozing drop by drop,
The Leaves of Life keep falling one by one."

• • • • • •

Not satisfied with my own idea, I sought out a man whom I know to be an admirer of the Rubaiyat, and asked his opinion. "I know men who carried playing cards and photograpns and Bibles and other things with them throughout the war," he told me, "but I treasured my copy of the Rubaiyat. It had just the philosophy needed by a soldier."

• • • • • •

My friend quoted several stanzas in proof of his contention. "What could be more appropriate to a man who has entered battle at the sacrifice of his life plans, than this?" he said:

"The Worldly Hope men set their Hearts upon
Turns Ashes—or it prospers; and anon,
Like Snow upon the Desert's dusty Face,
Lighting a little hour or two—was gone."

• • • • • •

"If you take a stanza, of course," my informant continued, "and isolate it, you can make almost anything you like out of Omar. They say he is immoral and irreligious, but isn't this just the doctrine of an Almighty God, all-knowing?

"The Ball not question makes of Ayes and Noes
But Right or Left as strikes the Player goes;
And He that tosse'd you down into the Field,
He knows about it all—He knows—HE knows!"

• • • • • •

Thus spake this admirer of the Persian astronomer-poet, and I feel inclined to agree with him. At the same time there is much in Omar's writing that a juvenile could not comprehend, or, understanding the meaning, could not give the right interpretation.

• • • • • •

It is possible for a clever man to twist any writing, even the most sacred, to his own purposes and meaning, and it is often done. It is necessary, before condemning a writer wholesale, to obtain his viewpoint and his real meaning.

If there are stanzas in the Rubaiyat to which we might take objection, there are others that contain a splendid philosophy, well worth living:

"The Moving Finger writes; and having writ,
Moves on: nor all your Piety nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a Line,
Nor all your Tears wash out a Word of it."

• • • • • •

Isn't that worth while remembering in the New Year that is about to dawn?

• • • • • •

And then you know, and I know, persons who have the idea they are indispensable. If they dropped out of this organization or that business, they think, no progress could be made without them.

• • • • • •

How foolish is this conceit is indicated by Omar:

"And fear not lest Existence closing your Account and mine, should know the like no more;
The Eternal Saki from that Bowl has pour'd
Millions of Bubbles like us, and will pour.
When you and I behind the Veil are past,
Oh but the long long while the World shall last,
Which of our Coming and Departure heeds
As the Sev'n Seas should heed a pebble-cast."

• • • • • •

It is not a self-satisfying philosophy; it doesn't cater to our naturally good opinions of ourselves; but it is very healthy for those with enlarged views of their own importance.

So, while the Rubaiyat may be banished from Palgrave's Golden Treasury, because of its circulation among juveniles, let's not carry discretion to the extent of foolishness by barring it altogether.

• • • • • •

I had a look at the Christmas cheer parcels in the office last evening, and I just wish to thank all you neighbors who have been so good. This project of "Santa's Pals" started in our column, but it was so big that it was decided to open it up throughout the paper.

• • • • • •

If the organizations that do relief work at Christmas will just give me the information required, or send it to the office by phone or note, the parcels will be sent to the addresses indicated.

• • • • • •

Opportunity to get the Christmas party, Christmas decoration, and Christmas gift helps is limited to a few days now, so if you desire any of these, please rush your request. The regular help this week tells how to make wool trimming and the new velvet triangle trimming.

• • • • • •

I hope you have all escaped the 'flue; if you have, so far, take all the precautions you can, because it would be simply terrible to be ill during the festive season.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Make a pair of shoe bags if you are still in need of a simple inexpensive gift to make your Christmas list complete. I have a pair that a friend of mine gave me at least twelve years ago and I am using them still, and every time I do I think with gratitude of the friend who made them for me.

Perhaps you have material on hand that will answer the purpose. If not, you will need for a pair of bags two pieces of matching cotton fabric, each measuring about seventeen inches wide by fifteen inches deep.

Figured cotton material is suitable—mine are made from soft, solid-toned gingham.

Fold the pieces over so that you have double sections eight and a half inches wide by fifteen deep. Seam up on the side and across the bottom, turn and make French seams. At the top turn a hem about an inch and a half deep. Stitch this down. Run another stitching a half inch up from the first. Work a buttonhole through one thickness at one side and use this slot for running the shir ribbon.

Use ribbon about a third of an inch wide and leave short loops so that the bags may conveniently be drawn up by names of these ribbons. To give the bags an attractive finishing touch mark one or two initials across the side of each in coarse outlining.

These bags are to be used when traveling—one shoe may be put in each bag, or, if shoes are placed heel to toe, a pair of shoes may be carried in each of the bags.

By JEANETTE.

"He stepped adown the cloudy stair,
Out of the golden glow,
And came to seek a lodging bare,
In Bethlehem below.
The doors were shut, the windows barred
Against His Mother's plea:
A stable-cavern, cold and hard,
His mean abode must be."

The Women Teachers' Guild of the city is a retiring but very busy organization which functions mainly among the feminine school-teachers or "philomaths," as the old-time Irish teachers proudly termed themselves.

Although in former years this society was wont to present an annual entertainment of much worth, one of these being a production of the "Midsummer Night's Dream," it has been some time since they produced anything of the sort.

Early in the New Year, however, the members are bringing the Dickens' Fellowship Players to Peterborough, and this will give citizens an opportunity of hearing and seeing these noted players of Toronto.

This is an organization of talented amateur actors who present Dickens' plays, either in whole, devoting an evening to the production of one book, or in part, with presentation of scenes from several of the volumes. They live in Toronto and rarely perform outside of the city. They bring with them their own costumes and scenery and donate the funds derived from their entertainments, to charitable purposes.

It is expected that they will present either "Oliver Twist" or "Our Mutual Friend" in Peterborough.

pital was much pleased during convalescence from a painful operation to receive from a group of her friends a "Sunshine" Box. Being loud in her praises of its efficacy in taking her mind from her pains and aches, she was asked to describe it. It is a box filled with gifts, well wrapped, one from each member of the group, and one parcel is supposed to be opened each morning. The first gift in this case was a writing pad and stationery. Lacking a pen, the lady was very pleased, on opening the next morning's parcel, to find a pretty bridge pencil with long pink tassel. She said the pretty gifts and the interest surounding them did much to help her on the way to recovery.

This week abounds in entertainments of a Christmas type. Although there are necessarily many such entertainments that are not known of in advance, there are several that have been advertised, so that generous givers may contribute to their own and others' happiness by helping along such Yuletide remembrances of the birth of the Christ Child.

Last evening the Knights of Columbus held their annual Christmas entertainment for the children from the Orphanage, and on Friday evening will be held the annual Christmas tree and entertainment of the Children's Aid Society. Once again, the orphans have an innings on Saturday morning, when a monster matinee has been planned for their benefit by J. A. Stewart, manager of the Capitol Theatre. Children of the city who attend the matinee next Saturday morning are requested to take along an apple or potato as admission fee, and thus contribute to several barrels of both which will be distributed between the Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage. Apples will be the order of that morning, as potatoes in the French language are called "pommes de terre," or "apples of the earth."

Besides there are the many church entertainments for children which are held by every religious organization at this season of the year, and the Social and Athletic Club of the Canadian General Electric Company is planning a huge Christmas tree and entertainment for the children of the Club's members, on Saturday afternoon next, from two to four o'clock in the hall of the Canadian Legion.

ASSOCIATION SENDS MESSAGE TO QUEEN

Viceroy of India Opens Annual Meeting of Chamber of Commerce.

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, Monday opened the annual session of the Association of Chambers of Commerce of India, Burma and Ceylon.

Sir George Godfrey, presiding, said the whole Empire watched with alarm the serious reports of His Majesty's condition and the hearts of the people were filled with sympathy for the Queen and the Royal Family as a whole. They longed for better news daily.

The Association decided to cable a message to the Queen expressing heartfelt sympathy with her and anxiety concerning the King and praying for a speedy and complete recovery.

Lord Irwin remarked that future historians would "record as one of the most striking facts of the history of our times that in these days of modern democracy the feeling of loyalty and devotion to the Crown continues with unabated strength and on a secure foundation."

Trade Condition Good.

The trade position in India offered good ground for sober optimism, Lord Irwin, Viceroy, remarked. Despite the failure of the Monsoon crop forecasts all over India were generally fair, thanks to autumn rains, he remarked.

Chemong

CHEMONG PARK, Dec. 20. — Dave Haddon was in the village on Thursday, doing business with Sam Bell at the Garage.

William Nicholls hasn't been just as well as he might be during the past week and has been confined to his home most of the time.

Bruce Fitzgerald and family, who reside at Selwyn, were in the village on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gow, who have been residing in Ennismore during the past year have moved in to the village and are at present occupying the house owned by Mr. William Beatty.

The congregations at the United church here during the past few weeks have fallen off, and the only real reason seems to be there are too many radios. Almost every family has installed a machine of some kind.

Percy Udy, the clerk and treasurer of Smith Township, left in a hurry at 9 a.m., on Saturday morning, for the court house, Peterborough, where the council were having their last meeting in 1928.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beatty of Peterborough were welcome visitors in the village last week where they intended the Cavan play which was put on in the United Church.

"Your eggs are very small," said a Bridgenorth housewife to a storekeeper, the other day. "Yes, but they are very full!" was the reply.

Thomas Black, while coming west on the Selwyn road on Wednesday night, took a nose dive into Allan Mann's fence. A hurried telephone call to Sam Bell, soon had everything moving along smoothly again. No damage done.

Those who have charge of the village park evidently are looking forward to an open winter, as the swings are still dangling in the air. It's time the ropes were taken down, a resident remarked the other day.

Grant and Thorpe of Peterborough were awarded the contract for wiring Sam Bell's new garage. Judging from the work being done it is very modern and up-to-date, and when the power is turned on Sam will greet his night customers with a broad smile.

Mr. Robert Wilson our village cabinet maker made a flying visit to Pontypool the other day, partly on a visit to friends. However, combining business with pleasure Robert returned home with a big order for storm windows, this being one of his specialties.

The young people of Emily held a very successful dance here in the C. O.F. Hall on Thursday night. A number from in and around Selwyn joined in and altogether they had a big crowd. Herb McConkey with his string band supplied the music — enough said.

Mr. J. W. Kelly of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage have some men up in the woods, south of the Park cutting timber. Walt McConkey who had charge of the work, was staying with his brother-in-law, Wallace Nicholls, in the village.

On taking a drive through Chemong Park on Friday we found the streets in good condition, in fact much better, indeed, than they were during the past summer. The cottages are all vacant with the exception of an occasional night party. The black squirrels apear to be having the time of their lives.

W. J. Telford, with some of the best mechanics he could procure around the village has been engaged during the past six weeks renovating the Bull cottage, which is situated on the Denne property, and which was purchased some time ago by the Wolfe and Desbecker party of Buffalo. Some very extensive alterations have been made and when completed will no doubt be very modern and up-to-date.

Mr. William Ball, Mr. James Grant and Thomas McColl, who have been painting the basement of the United church, for the Ladies' Aid, have the work completed. It adds greatly to the appearance of the basement. They also painted the furnace. Some wanted the floor painted, but it has not been decided on yet. The ladies deserve a lot of credit for undertaking this work which involves at least an expense of $200.

ANTI-IMPERIALIST DEPORTED.

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 10—(Canadian Press Cable Via Reuters.)—The Provincial Government of Bengal recently ordered John W. Johnston, representative of the League of Anti-Imperialism at the All India Trade Union Congress, to leave India immediately. Johnston nevertheless addressed a meeting of the Congress last night and consequently was arrested and taken to Dhanbad by motor car.

SHOW DOWN IS EXPECTED

Commercial Fishermen Will Fight Jurisdiction of Ontario Department On Lake Erie.

COME BEFORE HOUSE.

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Reports were current yesterday that a show down with the Ontario Department of Fisheries in regard to jurisdiction over the Canadian waters of Lake Erie was pending, but Port Stanley Commercial Fishermen's Association had little information to offer other than to report that a representative of the Port Stanley fishermen, W. T. Bell, has been in Toronto for four or five days conferring with the department heads in reference to a further extension of the season to December 31.

A few days ago the department extended the season to December 15. M. F. Hepburn, M.P., for Elgin West, holds that the Federal Government only has the right to regulate the fishing season in the Canadian waters of Lake Erie.

Mr. Hepburn states that it is his intention to introduce the question at the next session of parliament and endeavour to have a definite understanding reached, not only in the matter of the regulating of commercial fishing season on Lake Erie, but also in respect to shore limits for pound and gill net fishermen.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

mas entertainments. All through this week, there is one round of Yuletide giving and gaiety in the big rooms of the Simcoe Street "Y." The parties really started last Saturday, when the Wohelo Club held a tree and entertainment for two families in which it is interested.

On Monday, the tree which reaches to the ceiling in the big gymnasium, was loaded with gifts for the two parties, during afternoon and evening, of the Intermediate and Elementary classes of the gymnasium. On Tuesday, the Advanced gymnasium classes held forth in revelry, and Mrs. E. Morrison, superintendent of the Residence Department, held her annual Christmas supper for the girls.

Yesterday, a supper for the Saturday Afternoon Club was given by the Girls' Auxiliary Club, and the small guests returned the compliment later in the evening by presenting a playlet entitled "A Christmas Verse."

To-day, the Ladies' gymnasium class has a party and a program of Christmas carols around the tree on the "Y" lawn will be given by the members of Trinity Church choir, with refreshments served later, indoors. On Friday, the Senior School Girls' party will be held, and on Saturday morning, the big Junior and Babies' Christmas party will be the entertainment when orphans of the Shelter and Orphanage will be invited as guests.

At these Y.W.C.A. parties, between three and four hundred children have an opportunity to receive a gift from Santa Claus, the Saturday morning affair taking care of over two hundred and fifty. The programs consist of games and music, with refreshments and gifts from the trees in the gymnasium and the hall.

The big rooms are decorated with evergreens and wreaths and many gaily wrapped parcels make their way here during the week. The Senior members of the Association bring gifts for the orphans and for the different classes in which they are interested, the Seniors also create fun at their own party by bringing gifts to exchange among themselves and the Juniors and Babies bring presents for their partners, as each little girl chooses a partner in the class or club to which she belongs.

On Friday, the Kiwanis Club is entertaining the orphans at a party to be held in the Paragon, with a gift tree, drive around the city, and supper to follow. Children of the Shelter will have a giddy and carefree time on this day, because their own annual Christmas party follows in the evening.

On Friday evening also, the Caledonial Club is holding a party for children of its members.

And in the creating and carrying through of these Yuletide entertainments, hundreds of women of the city have a hand, in the selection and the wrapping and the giving of the presents and the preparation of the refreshments.

MISSION BAND RAISED $92.00

George Street Group Holds Christmas Meeting—Splendid Reports Read.

TWO LIFE MEMBERSHIPS.

The Mission Band of George Street United Church held their Christmas meeting on Monday, this being the concluding meeting of the year. The president, Mary Vance, occupied the chair, and opened the meeting by responsive Bible lesson, after which several sentence prayers were offered by the members.

The secretary and treasurer gave splendid reports, showing that the Mission Band had raised the sum of $92.00 during the year, exceeding their allocation. Two life membership certificates were presented by the leader of the Band, Mrs. A. I. Brown, to Verda Northey, who was made a life member by her grandmother, Mrs. W. A. Bell, and to Jack Todd, who was made a life member by his mother, Mrs. J. E. Todd. Mrs. Brown gave a short talk on the importance of Mission Band work and the training it gave the boys and girls for future usefulness.

Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial, gave an address on "The Temple Beautiful," and the following program was rendered by the members of the Band: Violin solo, by Alex. Carlisle, accompanied by Mrs. Douglas Carlisle; recitation, Helen Magee; boy's chorus, accompanied by Olive Rowe; piano solo, Helen Delahaye; recitation, Maude McLaughlin.

Mrs. A. I. Brown presented the prizes to the members who had sold the greatest number of calendars, Olive Rowe winning the first prize; Howard Trethewey, the second; and Jack Todd, the third.

A vote of thanks to their leader and the officers for their excellent work during the past year was proposed by Gordon Gunsolus and seconded by Bert McLean. This motion was heartily applauded.

Refreshments were then served by a committee of boys and girls, and a social half hour enjoyed.

MRS. JOHN ORMISTON.

Mrs. John Ormiston (nee Minnie Coad) was born in September, 1871, on the farm where she died, Saturday, December 15, 1928. She was the daughter of the late William Coad and Mary Johnston. On October 19, 1900, Minnie Coad was united in marriage to John Ormiston, and with him settled on a farm in Haldimand Township, about four miles north of Centreton. In 1913 they sold their farm and moved to Peterborough, where for several years Mr. Ormiston was employed as motorman on the street railway. After the death of Mr. Ormiston in January, 1922, Mrs. Ormiston continued to reside in Peterborough, until three years ago, when she came to Hastings to spend her remaining years on the old Coad homested, with her brother, Thomas Coad. LOBLAW

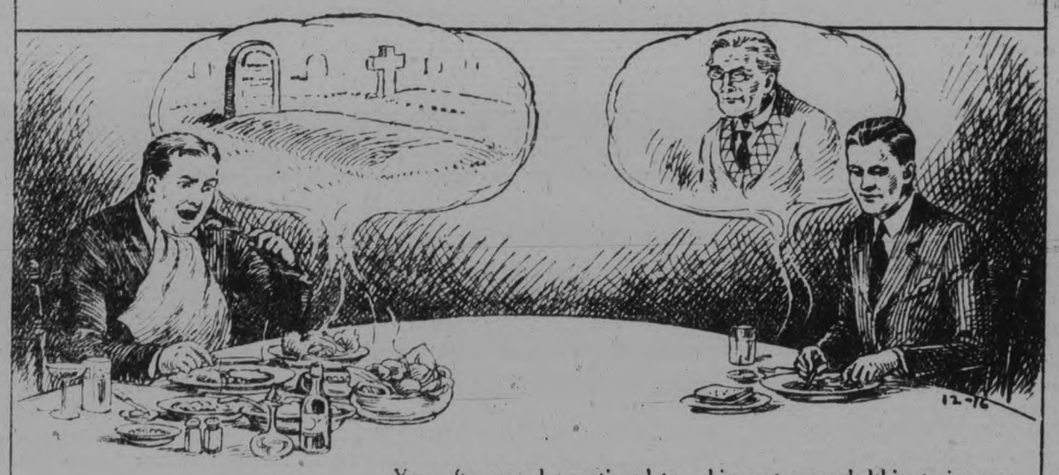
A Lesson From Luigi

By BRUCE BARTON



HERE is a recipe for living a hundred years.

It is not based upon any theory of mine. If it were it would be worthless. For I have not lived a hundred years.

But Luigi Cornaro lived to be one hundred and two, and "died painlessly, as one who falls into sweet sleep." The formula is his.

At thirty-six, the doctors said to Luigi: "Make your will; you have only a few months to live."

At the end of the few months they came back expecting to sign his death certificate. To their surprise, they found him well.

What had Luigi done? Taken medicine? No.

What he did was the simplest thing in the world. He merely stopped eating.

Instead of three heavy meals a day, he substituted three very light ones. Instead of getting up from the table with a feeling of fullness, he got up feeling still hungry.

Instead of half a dozen different dishes, he confined himself to one at each meal. And each day he ate the same dish, at the same time, and in the same amount.

Year after year he continued to grow stronger. At seventy he was thrown from his horse, and again the doctors said: "No man of seventy can stand such an accident; you will die." But so strong was Luigi that he was out of bed in no time at all.

In his years of careful eating he made some important discoveries.

He discovered, first, that the rule, "Whatever your appetite craves is good for you," is a bad rule. Many foods of which he was very fond proved bad for him: and some others which he had never liked proved to have just the nourishment that his system required.

He discovered that "a man can not be a perfect physician of any one save of himself alone." In other words, that no physician could prescribe for him offhand a diet as well suited to his needs as he could prescribe for himself, after years of careful study of his own requirements.

All women have an idea that men ought to eat a great deal. If a man is feeling badly, a woman's remedy is always to make him sit down to a large, appetizing meal.

Luigi's women-folks were no different from others. When he was about eighty they gathered around him and persuaded him to increase his daily food allowance from twelve to fourteen ounces a day. As a result he nearly died.

Then he went back to his twelve-ounce diet, and lived twenty-two years longer.

"Most men," said a philosopher, "dig their graves with their teeth."

Diogenes, seeing a young man going to a banquet, caught him and took him home, and rejoiced as if he had saved him from some great danger.

"If I were to assign any one thing as especially conducing to long life from a study of the habits of centenarians," says Sir Henry Thompson, "it would be semi-starvation."

"Semi-starvation" — the word makes you gasp, but have no fear. You can cut down your eating a long way below where it is now and still be in no danger.

Luigi's granddaughter reports that "during the latter part of his life the yolk of one egg sufficed for a meal and sometimes two."

"If you would live long, eat very temperately of a few pure foods.

This is one of the wisest lessons you can ever learn.

It is a lesson from Luigi.

EX-WARDENS VISIT COUNCIL

Five Former Heads of United Counties Address Members at Cobourg.

WARKWORTH ROAD.

COBOURG, December 20 (Special to The Examiner). — Five ex-Wardens of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham were seated in a reminiscential group about Warden C. H. Davidson at Wednesday afternoon's meeting of the Counties Council. They were Milton E. Maybee, M.P., Fred Bowen, M.P., George Smith of Port Hope, John McCubbin of Warkworth, and Milton J. Elliott of Bowmanville. Ex-Warden George Greer of Cobourg, county road superintendent in Northumberland and Durham, was also present in the chamber.

In their addresses at the invitation of Warden Davidson they all lamented the death of Col. N. F. MacNachtan, the late clerk and treasurer, extolled his service and personality, and expressed their confidence in his son and successor, Major E. L. MacNachtan.

Warkworth's Need.

Referring to the question of permanent road construction which Mr. Smith had introduced, Mr. McCubbin made a plea for a highway from Colborne to Warkworth, possibyl continuing to Hastings and Peterborough. He mentioned the proposed highway from Brighton to Campbellford which Premier Ferguson recently promised to consider.

"Both Campbellford and Brighton are on railways," he continued. "Warkworth is isolated. We have to carry everything by truck into and out of Warkworth. I'd like to see a smooth, hard road from Colborne through Castleton, Morganston, Norham, to Warkworth. It might also go from Norham to Campbellford. We have a good gravel road, but the big trucks break it up.

"Thirty-five years ago we thought of a steam road through Warkworth, and Percy Township had a charter for the C.P.R., but Mr. Shaughnessy decided upon the lake front route. Then we thought we'd get an electric line from Sir Adam Beck; but that was in vain. Now I hope we can get enough support from the people and the Government to get a permanent highway to Warkworth. All our political conventions and nominations are held there. Why shouldn't we have a connection for our county town? I should certainly like to see it. Surely they will not deny us that."

'Crazy on Good Roads."

George Smith, Warden in 1923, chided the Council on the debenture debt, which, he said, was six times greater than in 1923.

"Are you doing anything for future generations?" he asked. "Are they to pay it all? The Government has gone crazy on good roads because the public is crazy on cars. The Government is forcing you, first one way and then another. It has gone on to such an extent you couldn't tax the people directly. You had to go into the borrowing system. We paid our way up to 1923. These debentures have to be paid some day."

Warden Davidson: You he'd down the debenture debt, but you forget that you let the roads get into such shape that we had to do this.

Milton Elliott said he was responsible to some extent for the issuing of debentures.

"I favored that plan. I believed that if we put down permanent improvements the future should help to pay for them. We don't mind paying if we get value for our money."

Mr. Elliott expressed his approval of the increased tax on gasoline.

Mr. Maybee amused the Council by alluding to the accumulation of ex-Warden.

"I just wonder what you are going to do with them; pass a resolution that they be received and filed.."

Mr. Maybee said he hoped to see more permanent road work undertaken, and the sale of debentures seemed to him the proper way of paying for it.

Mr. Bowen spoke feelingly of Col. MacNachtan and his relations with succeeding Councils.

MYSTERY DEATH STAYS UNSOLVED

Jury Is Unable To Find How Student Was Killed—Not Drowned.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—A coroner's jury last night was unable to determine the manner in which Angus Ralph McKay, 21, year old student, came to his death, after a post mortem report produced by Dr. F. W. Luney had failed to divulge the actual cause of death and had said that it was not due to drowning. McKay disappeared on October 25 and his partially decomposed body was found in the Thames River's north branch by a group of school boys, Saturday afternoon.

The jury after deliberating for half an hour over the evidence offered by 11 witnesses returned a verdict which read:

1.—"That Angus Ralph McKay came to his death on or about October 25.

2.We are unable on the evidence given, to find the cause of death."

The autopsy showed that there were no marks of outward violence on the body, and none indicating foul play, while at the same time there was nothing to indicate the man met his death by drowning. Neither was there any evidence of poisoning.

DECREASE IN FIRE LOSSES

Loss For Present Year Will Be Less Than One Thousand Dollars.

RECORDS FOR SIX YEARS.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20.—Within two weeks of the end of the year, the fire loss for the town of Campbellford show a decided decrease when compared to the records for the last five years. During the present month there have been no fires in the corporation and if this condition is still in existence at the end of the year, the loss for 1928 will be less than one thousand dollars. This figure is slightly more than half that for the year 1924 which is the lowest of the six years contained in the report. In 1923 there were forty-six alarms, seven fires and a loss of $3,855.00. In 1924 there were thirty-seven alarms, five fires and a loss of $1,850. The next twelve months showed a slightly heavier loss of $2,025, with four fires from thirty-nine alarms. From these figures, the loss for 1926 jumped to $7,085 with eight fires and thirty-two alarms. Last year, 1927, saw the figures reduced to more moderate dimensions with a loss of $1,900 from two fires. This year, the fire loss stands at $991 from two fires and twenty-one alarms. Thus the average loss per year to this town by fire for the past six years is $2,951. The average loss per fire, twenty-eight in number, is almost $633.

NEW MEMBERS FOR CABINET

Premier Announces Appointment of Dunlop and Thomas Without Portfolio.

TO JOIN SOON.

TORONTO, December 20. — Canadian Press. — Two new members will be added to the Provincial Cabinet, Premier Howard Ferguson announced last night.

Edward Arunah Dunlop, Pembroke, and Frederick Thomas Smye, Hamilton, will be sworn in "at an early date" as ministers without portfolio, the Premier's statement said.

The Prime Minister wrote Mr. Dunlop and Mr. Smye ten days ago, asking them to join the cabinet. The former's acceptance was received yesterday from a hospital in Ottawa in which he now has practically completed his recovery from a serious operation. Mr. Smye called at the Parliament Buildings and delivered his acceptance in person.

Mr. Dunlop was elected to represent North Renfrew in the bye-election of last June, succeeding as Conservative representative of that riding Alexander Stuart, who died last spring, on the eve of prorogation of the Legislature. He is not a new figure in politics, having served North Renfrew as its representative from 1903 to 1919 with the exception of the 1908-1911 term of Parliament for which he declined to run. In 1911 he was elected by acclamation. As early as 1899 he declined the nomination for the constituency. He was born in Pembroke October 26, 1876, and has lived there all his life.

Mr. Smye, the Conservative member for West Hamilton, was first elected to the Legislature on the Government Control issue of December 1, 1926.

VARSITY DEFEATS ST. MIKE'S IN OVERTIME

IRISHERS LOSE 6-2 DECISION IN FURIOUS O.H.A. STRUGGLE

Victors Have Reserve Strength To Score Goals in Overtime.

THRILLING GAME.

St. Michaels Suffer Big Loss When Freddy Miller is Injured.

TORONTO, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press) — Memories of pre-war hockey, when the Arena Gardens was jammed to the rafters for the Senior O.H.A. struggle, were revived last night with the return of St. Michael's College to the major competition of the amateur ranks for, although only a small crowd attended, the most thrilling game of the season was provided as the Irishers fell in defeat by a 6 to 2 score in overtime before Toronto Varsity. All the fight, flashing plays and excitement which made senior hockey the big attraction years ago, were restored, and seldom has any crowd in the Mutual Street rink been treated to such a hectic evening.

Have Reserve Strength

Condition alone decided the contest, the Blue team from the university having the stamina and reserve strength in the overtime period. The battle was even both on the play and score for three periods, but when Varsity burst through for the first score of the extra session, the Saints cracked and the Blue team piled up goals. The strain was so tense that it was evident whichever team got the first tally in the extra time would win, for both sides were playing more on nerve than anything else in the closing periods.

Everything that goes to make a good game was supplied and the fans were in an uproar most of the time. St. Michael's sorely lacked condition, it being their first game of the season, and the task was made all the harder in the third period when Freddy Miller sustained a deep gash over the forehead and he was taken to the hospital for medical treatment. Miller's absence left the Irishers with only one alternate and they were almost exhausted.

JACK SHARKEY IN BAD GRACES

"Likes To Pick Soft Spots," Says Promoter Tex Rickard.

PLAYS BOSTON 'HEAVY.'

NEW YORK, December 20. — When the Big Men of Fistiana fall out, the common people fall in, and there was a great falling out and falling in at Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon. George Tex Rickard told the world what he thinks of "Boston Jack" Sharkey, the heavy weight, and none of it was complimentary.

Once upon a time Sharkey was the teacher's pet. Those were the days when Sharkey was willing to roll over and play dead every time that Texie snapped his fingers. Lately the sailor has been going in for wing collars, tall hats, boxes at the opera, and serious thinking. This distressing state of affairs culminated yesterday in an out-and-out refusal to accept a match with Young Stribling at Miami. Via Damon Runyon, who has just returned from Boston, Mr. Sharkey and his social secretary, Jonathan Buckley, sent a very up-stage message.

"Tell Rickard he is trying to build up Stribling at our expense," they said. "Tell him it's tough enough to make a showing against a guy like him, without trying to do it in Florida. He'll know what we mean."

SHARKEY NOT SO GOOD

In his rebuttal testimony Mr. Rickard revealed that he doesn't think Jack Sharkey is as good as Jack Sharkey thinks he is.

"I used to think Sharkey was the greatest heavyweight in the country, but I've changed my mind lately" said the annoyed promoter. "To tell you the truth, he never seemed to amount to much after Dempsey knocked him out. He didn't show me much when he had to go ten rounds with Arthur De Kuh the other night. Why, even Jimmy Maloney can knock out that guy.

"The main trouble with Sharkey is that he's trying to pick soft spots. He won't fight this guy, and he won't fight that guy. He wouldn't fight Tommy Loughran, for instance. Loughran was ready to resign the light heavyweight championship if Sharkey would give him a chance. Sharkey turned him down. He fought Godfrey once, but try to get him to fight Godfrey to-day. He fought like a bum in last year's heavyweight tournament.

AUSTRALIANS NEED 44 RUNS

Aussies' Position in Cricket Test Match Not Now So Hopeless.

FIVE WICKETS IN HAND.

SYDNEY, Australia, December 20 (Canadian Press Cable). — Still requiring 44 runs to save themselves from a single innings defeat in the second cricket test match, the Australian team will continue their second innings to-day after giving a demonstration of grit and initiative in the face of what looked to be overwhelming odds yesterday.

As the teams stand now, England has scored 636, and has only visited the wicket once. Australia made 253 in their first innings, and 339 for four wickets in their second. Counting out W. H. Ponsford, who has retired on account of injury, the Australians have five more wickets to fall. Though cricket is a game of curious happenings Australia is not expected to be able to do more than set England an easy task to win the match in their second innings.

Features of Play.

The features of yesterday's play were the centuries of W. M. Woodfull and R. L. Hendry, and the plucky stand of J. S. Ryder, the Australian captain, who was not out with 77 runs to his credit when the stumps were drawn yesterday.

Australia yesterday confounded the critics, who had predicted their easy dismissal by the English bowlers. The effort of Woodfull and Hendry, who nearly reached record figures for the second wicket, appeared in vain when, after they had raised the Australian score to 215 for two wickets, three wickets fell for only eighteen runs. It looked like the beginning of the end. However, the Australian captain, supported by Dr. Nothling, playing in his first test match, staged a fine partnership and kept the game alive.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

One of the greatest Peterborough teams in color and individual cleverness, if not in point of success was the intermediate seven of 1904. This was an all-star aggregation, suffering as most teams of that composition usually do from a lack of cohesion and team play that cannot be offset by the individual brilliancy of its members.

In goal was Bobby Mercer, crack goal keeper of the Port Hope Ontarios and one of the greatest net guardians of that day. Eddie Howell, a Peterborough boy who had won fame with the Michigan Soo and the famous Guelph Nationals was at point and was a star throughout the season. Howell was a defence man of the modern type who could rush and carry the puck as well as any forward and in addition could work in on top of a goal keeper and pull him out more cleverly than most men in the game to-day. With Bill Cavanah in front of Howell with his speed and great shooting ability and such brilliant players as Harold Armstrong and Fred Whitcroft, Roy Armstrong and Chris Graham, all of championship experience, on the front line, this team looked good enough to sweep through all opposition, yet they failed to win their group, an unexpected loss on Picton ice giving the strong Belleville team a chance to grab the honors.

The visit of the Belleville seven, led by the famous "Reddy" McMillan, the season before with the Cornwall club, was the big event of that winter and the game is described by The Examiner the next night as "the greatest game of hockey ever played in Peterborough."

The Petes won by 7 to 4, leading at half time by 4 to 1 but it was a lightning fast, hard fought battle, with both teams out to the last notch. Belleville got what breaks there were. Kennedy got one of their goals on a long shot from the right boards, that hit high on the north wall of the rink, rebounded struck Mercer on the back and rolled down the post into the net.

The Petes took an early lead when Whitcroft scored in less than a minute on a pass from Graham but Marks' lucky goal evened the count. Harold Armstrong put the home brigade ahead with a side shot. Graham made it 3 to 1 from a scrimmage near the Belleville nets and gave Roy Armstrong the pass for the fourth goal of the half.

Early in the second Whitcroft scored on a pass from Roy Armstrong and Graham on an assist from Whitcroft, making score 6 to 1, but Belleville soon gave notice that they were not to be trifled with by beating Mercer three times in quick succession. Finally Harold Armstrong went through alone for the final marker of the night, leaving the final score 7 to 4.

Peterborough—Goal, Mercer; point, Howell; cover point, Cavanah; rover, H. Armstrong; centre, Whitcroft, right wing, Roy Armstrong; left wing, Graham.

Referee—Dr. W. G. Wood.

To-morrow—The famous game in Belleville in 1904.

Checkers Is Game Of Skill and Not Chance According To Ruling Of Vancouver Justice

VANCOUVER, B.C., December 20 (Canadian Press). — Checkers is a game of skill and not of chance, according to Judge W. Willis, in County Court, who has awarded Julius D'Orio, of High Grove, Calif., judgment of $114.00, and costs, against Leigh & Cuthbertson, Limited, wholesale candy manufacturers, Pender Street East.

The plaintiff, who is patentee of a problem checker board, sold 39 boards to the defendant company which refused to pay on the ground that the boards were to be used for gaming purposes, and thus contravened the criminal code. The company, as explained by His Honor, had honest misgivings as to the legality of operating the boards, and was advised by its lawyers against the proposal.

By a payment of ten cents a customer had a choice of one of ten problems to solve in a game of checkers, and if the customer won, he received a prize.

"Every problem is capable of solution by the exercise of skill in applying the principles of the game of checkers," stated Judge Ellis when considering the evidence.

PAAVA NURMI IS FINLAND'S GREATEST PUBLICITY AGENT

Invasion of United States By Athlete Helps Establish Credits.

BACKED BY HOME LAND.

Refuses To Let New York Clubs Pay His Expenses.

NEW YORK, December 20. — Behind Paavo Nurmi's denial of rumors concerning his possible defection from amateur ranks, there is a hitherto unpublished story.

Nurmi, as the greatest single advertising factor that Finland ever had is subsidized by the powers back home, according to good authority. That is why he prefers to spurn the proffered "pot of gold" and remain as a competitor among the amateurs. That is the fact that evidently motivates his every move.

Three well qualified informants confirm this information. One of them is a man high in A.A.U. circles. The second is a prominent club official. The third is a Finnish-American in a position to know. Through the publicity gained by Nurmi's invasion of American tracks in 1925, Finland was said to have gained greatly in credit by American business concerns. As an amateur he can come very close to reproducing that feat in 1929, it is felt. As a professional, he would not be the recipient of as much public notice. On the contrary, instead of being a natural publicity agent himself, he would need an agent to advance his own affairs.

Preferred as Amateur.

It is little wonder then that Finnish business people prefer Nurmi the amateur to Nurmi the professional. It is manifestly to their advantage to maintain him as an amateur and to keep him active on United States tracks as long as possible.

In order to make his American campaign an extensive one, Nurmi rejected all offers from New York clubs to pay his expenses to this city. Had he accepted, the A.A.U. would have been compelled by international rules to limit his tour to twenty-one days. Coming as a drain on supposedly his own resources alone, Nurmi is entitled by international regulations to make his visit unlimited in duration.

Queen's Leave Tuesday To Tour the Maritimes

KINGSTON, Ont., Decembe 20 (Canadian Press). — Announcement was made at Queen's University yesterday afternoon that Queen's Senior O.H.A. team will leave Kingston on Tuesday afternoon for their trip to the Maritimes. They will play their first game in the Maritimes on Wednesday, December 26, and will also play two games in Halifax, besides playing in St. John, Stellarton, and New Glasgow.

DUGAN'S RELEASE DEEMED PROBABLE

If Such is Case Yankee Player May Join Chicago Cubs.

NEW YORK, December 19. — The time draws near when a pleasant business relationship will be severed between Joseph A. Dugan and the New York Yankees. With the natural curiosity of a man in doubt of his job, Dugan dropped into the Yankee offices on Forty-Second Street yesterday and had a talk with Ed. Barrow, the business manager.

The details of their conversation there in Barrow's private office are known only to the two concerned, but the crux of the matter was settled. No official announcement was made about it, but it is understood that Dugan, after six and a half years' faithful service with the Yankees, will be released unconditionally and allowed to sell his talents where he chooses.

Barrow and Miller Huggins, the manager, favor the procedure. So does Dugan. The assent of Colonel Ruppert, the owner of the Yankees, is all that is needed. From what one is able to learn, the other fifteen major league clubs will waive on Dugan, if they have not already done so.

The Yankees could please Dugan with another American League club, but he doesn't want to go. They cannot send him to the minors even if they would, because he is a ten-year man. They cannot afford to keep him idle on the bench, nor does he jibe with their plans for next year's infield.

So Joee will be turned loose before long, unless, which is likely, Ruppert objects. As a free agent he should not have difficulty in obtaining high-class employment. Several major league clubs which shied at the notion of paying the waiver price of $7,500 to the Yankees and then having to gratify Dugan's idea of a commensurate salary, might be willing to take him if they could pay him a certain sum for signing and then enter into a new and less-costly contract for his season's services.

The opinion prevails that Dugan, once he is free, will sign with the Chicago Cubs. They need just such a man as Dugan as a plug for their third-base position out there. It is, from all accounts, a pleasant team on which to work. Furthermore it is a team which, since the acquisition of Hornsby, must be considered as a pennant contender.

Improved Defence Puts New Life in London Club To Defeat Bulldogs.

DUTCHMEN BEAT CATARACTS

LONDON, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—The London Panthers, bolstered by an improved defence and showing of new life in the back-checking of the forwards, won a neat 2 to 1 victory from the Windsor Bulldogs in an exciting and cleverly played Canpro League fixture at the Arena last night.

KITCHENER WINS IN FINAL.

KITCHENER, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—The Kitchener Flying Dutchmen had to uncork another of their irresistible third period onslaughts to register their fourth successive victory here last night by a 2 to 0 score at the expense of the Niagara Falls Cataracts.

RULES MADE CLEAR FOR THE REFEREES

O. H. A. Holds Annual Conference of Officials With Splendid Attendance.

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—The meeting of Ontario Hockey Association referees at the Prince George Hotel yesterday was the largest and most interesting held since the annual conference of O.H.A. officials was inaugurated a few years ago. The duties of the referees and the rules of the game were thoroughly explained by Secretary W. A. Hewitt, of the O.H.A. and then there was a general round table discussion by those present. The result should be a fairly uniform interpretation of the rules by the referees this winter.

It was emphasized by Secretary Hewitt that the referee is the official representative of the O.H.A. and completely in charge of the game which he is sent to handle. O.H.A. referees have full control of players on and off the ice, goal umpires, timekeepers and the officials connected with the competing clubs, and the O.H.A. backs the referees to the limit in all legitimate circumstances.

Players and club officials who abuse the referee vocally or personally must be reported to the association. The O.H.A. does not propose to stand for rowdyism, either from the players, those who are connected with the clubs or spectators and offenders will be severely punished. Referees were also advised that it was better not to become too friendly with the clubs and that refereeing was their job, and nothing else when they were in a city or town to handle a game for which they had been appointed.

Rinks Selected

It has been customary to publish the personnel of the rinks immediately after their selection at the fall meeting, but this year, they were not sufficiently completed. However, Secretary Mayneord was, this morning, able to give a fairly full list of the rinks. In some cases a lead or a second is missing, but this is largely due to the fact that though they have been selected, the skips have not turned in their names to the secretary. This will be done within a few days now. The rinks already chosen are:

VIEWS ON SPORT

The City League meets tomorrow at Raybestos office to receive entries, draw up a schedule, and lay final plans for the season.

The ice is reported to be not too bad on the canal this week and some of the more rabid hockey players have been over strutting their stuff.

• • • • • • •

Two men, experienced hockey players both, who were on the team that brought the championship here a few years ago, have been approached in the effort to secure them as managers of the O.H.A. teams. It is likely they will come out to give the players the benefit of their coaching.

• • • • • • •

The Canadiens threatened to sell Howie Morenz to the New York Americans and this had the effect of spurring the hockey marvel back to his old form. The other night in Chicago, Morenz gave one of the greatest exhibitions of hockey ever seen; the 5,000 fans rising in their seats again and again to follow his brilliant attacks. He played defensive hockey the first two periods and then began his lightning attacks scoring two goals and assisting in another. The Canadiens without Morenz would be like a meteor without its tail

• • • • • • •

Excitement ran high and thrills were many at the first senior O.H.A. game at the Toronto Arena last night when St. Michael's played Varsity. Varsity won 6 to 2 in overtime; the collegians having the edge only in condition and reserve strength.

• • • • • • •

At the round table discussion of hockey rules, indulged in by the O.H.A. references yesterday afternoon it was impressed upon the bell ringers that clean hockey is desired and that the Association will back their officials to the limit in enforcing the rules.

• • • • • • •

A week from to-morrow night according to the schedule all the Peterborough hockey teams swing into action, and as yet they haven't had a practise. However, they aren't any worse off than hundreds of other teams in the province including the Preston seniors, who have not seen a sign of ice.

BLACK HAWKS WILL MOVE TO DETROIT

Windy City Entry To Finish the Schedule at Olympia Arena.

CHICAGO, December 20. — After six more home games the Chicago Black Hawks local entry in the National Hockey League, will move to the Olympia Arena, Detroit, to finish the schedule. The lease on the Coliseum expires January 20, and the Black Hawks' management has not been able to negotiate a satisfactory lease for an ice rink in Chicago.

It was the intention at the start of the season to move to the new Harmon Stadium after January 20, but a disagreement arose over the terms of the lease. In the meantime the dates at the Coliseum had been assigned to other entertainments.

Major Frederick McLaughlin, president of the Black Hawks, emphasized that hockey will return to Chicago next year and the game will continue at the Coliseum. Also it is understood, that a minor league hockey team will play in Chicago. Following an eastern trip the Black Hawks return to Chicago for games with Detroit, January 1; Toronto, January 3, Detroit, Jan. 6; Montreal Maroons, January 10, Pittsburgh, January 13, and Boston, January 20. After that the team moves to Detroit for the remaining ten "home games."

NINE FISHERMEN SAVED FROM ICE

Gale Swept Them Out Into Lake Manitoba When Floe Broke.

AMARANTH, Man., December 20. — Canadian Press. — Huddled together on an ice flow which slowly broke off in pieces before the force of a 30-mile gale, nine fishermen were finally rescued from the waters of Lake Manitoba by fellow fishermen, who broke their way through the ice in a rowboat, battling the howling blizzard for a distance of two miles.

The fishermen were gathering their nets, when the gale, sweeping across the lake, tore the block of ice on which they were standing loose and drove it into open water. While their comrades nearer shore rushed for assistance, the men were blown farther out into the lake. The wind gradually broke pieces off the floe until it seemed that they would be lost.

TORONTO VARSITY HAS STRONG O.H.A. TEAM

Early indications are that the Toronto Varsity squad will take a lot of beating in the O.H.A. series this season and also on their annual American invasion when they play games with Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth. In the S.P.A. series the students won from Argonauts 4 to 3, and Port Colborne 4 to 1, showing fine form for this stage of the campaign. The players depicted above are No. 1, H. Whithead;; No. 2, M. Snyder; No. 3, M. Harley; No. 4, Ross Paul; No. 5, Murray and No. 6, W. Stewart.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS WILL BE SEEN AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT IN HIS MOST ROMANTIC STORY "OUT OF THE RUINS" WITH PRETTY MARION NIXON; ALSO CHARLIE CHASE IN "THE BOOSTER."

Richard Bathelmess, popular First National star, has been the hero of dozens of pretty screen romances. From "Way Down East" and "Tol'able David" down through "The Patent Leather Kid" and "Wheel of Chance," he has participated in romantic stories that have thrilled millions.

In "Out of the Ruins", his present starring vehicle, which opened at the Capitol to-day he has a love story that will eclipse anything he has ever done in this line.

Pretty Marian Nixon plays opposite Barthelmess as the sweet and charming French girl of the story. Their romance is one of great beauty and sacrifice, and the pair make appealing screen lovers.

"Out of the Ruins" is a story of France after the war, from the pen of the celebrated British war correspondent and author, Sir Philip Gibbs. It was directed by John Francis Dillon, who held the megaphone on Barthelmess' recent great dramatic success, "The Noose."

Heading the cast in support of the star are Bodil Rosing, Eugene Pallette, Robert Frazer and Rose Dione.

The scenes were made in a typical French atmosphere, an entire Paris city block having been constructed by technicians at the Burbank studios, with complete dwellings, cafes and business establishments.

AT THE REGENT.

"SPOILERS OF THE WEST" IS A THRILLING ROMANCE

McCoy Does Best Acting of His Career in This Great Picture

Aside from a thrilling romance filled with action and vivid color, "Spoilers of the West," which opened to-day at the Regent Theatre, permits, Tim McCoy, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, to bring to the screen his best acting since he began starring in historical films more than a year ago.

McCoy has lived on the plains for years, is a "blood brother" of the Arapahos and is said to be one of the very few white men on whose judgement the Western plains Indians absolutely rely.

Perhaps this is the reason that McCoy is developing into a real film actor: He has the confidence of his casts, especially the hundreds of Arapaho and Shoshone Indians who usually appear with him in his frontier productions.

He has not only had years of personal experience among the Indians of the Western plains but has served in the United States army, where during the World War, he was an officer in the cavalry, infantry and engineers. He was formerly adjutant general of Wyoming and now holds a commission as lieutenant colonel of cavalry in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

Perhaps it is because McCoy believes the Indian has received shabby treatment at the hands of the whites that this actor always pays roles of a man sympathetic towards Poor Lo.

"Spoilers of the West" is a tale of the attempted enforcement of the treaty with Red Cloud, famous Sioux warrior. Most of the scenes were taken in Wyoming on historical frontier spots which give the picture marvelous backgrounds from a scenic and photographic angle.

EDWARDS IS NAMED TO OPPOSE NURMI

Canadian Olympic Runner Prepares For One Mile Races.

NEW YORK, December 20. — Paavo Nurmi is not yet ready to abdicate as king of the world's one mile runners and fall back on the longer distances for his laurels.

Under the urging of his Finnish-American friend, Hugo Qunst, Paavo is fast reaching the point of making up his inscrutable mind to take a few more whirls at the old mile route this winter and spring before the invisible opponent, Time, takes too heavy a toll of endurance and speed.

Nurmi at least should have no trouble in beating the best milers now extant in the United States. In 1925 he ran six one mile races on his tour of the country and was not beaten from scratch in one of them.

His strongest opposition in mile events this season may come from Phil Edwards, Canadian Olympic flash, who holds the United States national indoor 600-yard crown. The British Guianan has been running cross country here to build up stamina, and Coach Emil Von Elling of New York University, says he is going to run him at the mile this winter.

A race between Nurmi and Edwards would be a great one to watch, as both have a loping, smooth-running gait that is beautiful to behold.

SENATE CARRIES ANTI-WAR TREATY

Foreign Relations Committee of U. S. House Brings in Favorable Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—A favorable report on the Kellog-Briand anti-war treaty was authorized by a majority of the senate foreign relations committee yesterday.

The Moses resolution, intended to put limitations on the treaty, and set forth the position of the United States on the Munroe doctrine and other matters was defeated on the ground that it was not necessary.

To-day's action was informal and resulted from a poll of the committee by Senator Borah, the chairman.

Because a quorum was not present at yesterday's meeting more or less confusion arose as to what had been done but in fact Senator Borah had been authorized to poll the committee and has also been authorized by the majority to report. Whether the treaty will clash with the naval cruiser bill remains to be seen and will depend upon negotiations between Senator Borah and Senator Hale in charge of the naval bill.

GARDINER, Me., Dec. 19.—A yellow kitten owned by Mrs. George Folk has only eight more lives to live. It was found "dead" of gas fumes in the kitchen of the Folk home recently, and carried outside for burial. Before the grave could be dug, kitty was back at the door crying for food to preserve the remaining eight lives.

QUIETNESS REIGNS IN AFGHANISTAN

Raid On Suburbs of Kabul Was Repulsed By Government Troops On Sunday.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Disturbances at Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, on Sunday were described in a telegram received yesterday by the Afghan Legation here which stated that a raid on the suburbs had been repulsed and that Kabul was now absolutely quiet.

The telegram said that a band of 400 brigands led by the Badcha Saqua attacked one of the Kabul suburbs on Sunday. Government forces engaged the rebels in a fight which lasted several hours during which the leaders of the attackers were killed or captured and the disturbance quelled.

Not only is Kabul quiet, the telegram said, but the situation was normal also in the eastern province of Jalalabad where recent disorders have taken place.

13 MONTHS DEAD; SLAIN.

ITUNA, Sask., Dec. 20 (Canadian Press).—Dmitro Bodak, Polish immigrant, whose body lay in a bluff for more than 13 months, four miles north of Ituna, was murdered. This was the jury's verdict at the inquest here which concluded on Tuesday. Bodak was shot from the back, the bullet entering the base of the skull. The jury added to the verdict that there was sufficient evidence to hold Sam Kohutz, now held on a charge of murder, for further investigation.

MEMBER OPPOSES TELEGRAPH BILL

House of Lords Gives Second Reading To Proposed Cable Merger.

LONDON, December 20. (Canadian Press Cable.) — After Lord Parmoor's motion of rejection in the House of Lords last evening was thrown out without a division, the House gave the second reading to the Imperial Cable and Telegraphs bill, providing for a merger of empire communications under one company. The Labor peer had urged nobody could tell at this stage the ultimate development of the beam wireless system. The bill meant transference of ownership to commercial undertakings which really were almost bankrupt, he asserted.

Profits on the beam system were such that the rates could be largely reduced and still a handsome profit might be shown on the money invested. It seemed to him really monstrous that the government should thus alienate a great national property and source of imperial communications, he said. The government was throwing the beam system away, without giving a single figure in the report to justify the bargain it was giving.

COMMISSON MEETS.

Matter of Street Lighting Left Over Until Next Meeting of Body.

Brevity was the keynote when the Petreborough Utilities Commission met yesterday afternoon, for there was little business slated.

One subject of discussion was the letter, passed at the City Council meeting of December 3, asking certain changes in the street lighting, including the substitution of stronger bulbs for the 60 watt bulbs now in use. The matter was reefrred to the next meeting of the commission.

At to-day's meeting, James Turnbull, of the office staff of the Commission, was authorized to sign customs declarations and papers in connection with customs entries.

LOCAL FLU IS OF MILD TYPE

For the past week, however, that office has been unable to supply even urgent calls on demand. Inroads from sickness have cut down the number of nurses on call, and the remainder are all on duty.

For the past week every available nurse at five registries for graduate, under-graduate and practical nurses, totaling about 400, has been on duty.

Conditions were reported improved at the various city hospitals to-day, and a decline in the number of cases was noted.

Following a conference of District Health Officers of Ontario, called by the Deputy Minister of Health, Dr. J. W. Bell, yesterday, it was announced by Dr. F. W. Routley, Director of the Red Cross of Ontario Division, there were 9,400 women in the province available for ministration to the sick should the present 'flu outbreak assume dangerous proportions or become more severe in type.

Training in home nursing classes, these women have taken twelve classes of two hours' duration under the instruction of experienced graduate nurses.

It was also announced there are twenty-four Red Cross outpost hospitals in Northern Ontario with a total of from 60 to 70 nurses, and these can all co-operate to keep under control any influenza epidemic that might affect that district.

Canadian Invented Telegraphic Printer

The Creed telegraphic printer, which has been bringing news direct to The Examiner Office since last Friday morning, is the invention of a Canadian. Mr. Creed was born in Nova Scotia, and worked there as telegraph operator for some years. Then, with the great idea for this wonderful instrument, he went to England.

The machines are designed and built in Croydon, England, and shipped to Canada complete. From first to last, the installation is an Empire product.

Readers are invited to call and see the printer at work, between 7.45 a.m. and 3 p.m., excepting a period of about twenty minutes at 11.30, when the operators have lunch.

DENNE RETURNS

No Contest For City Mayor

Roland Denne and Gordon Matthews Are Both Given Acclamation By Citizens.

FAITHFUL SERVICES.

His Worship and Council Are Congratulated On Work Accomplished in 1928.

Roland Denne was returned by acclamation as mayor of the city for a second term and G. S. Matthews was reappointed by acclamation to the Utilities Commission for a second term of three years in the official civic nominations that were held at the Council Chambers this morning between the hour of ten and eleven. The acclamation given to these two candidates brought forth no expressions of surprise, since it was firmly expected that each would be unopposed and be returned to fill the position that he so ably filled last term without the unnecessary strife and worry of an election campaign. The result was received with unruffled composure and a smile by each and both received the hearty congratulations from all those present in the Chambers when City Clerk S. R. Armstrong read the results of the nomination sharp at eleven o'clock.

The nomination slip of Gordon Matthews was quietly slipped in at 10.20, the fifth in the list, four being received for the Board of Education before it, and it was signed by J. G. Graham as proposer and G. Carl McLean as seconder. Roland Denne's nomination was also brought forward with the same quietness immediately afterward and it bore the same two signatures

Many Years of Service

Mayor Denne has had many years of active and honorable service to his credit in a civic capacity. He was a member of the Board of Education for twelve years and for the last two years while on that Board was chairman of it. He has had five years of service on the City Council and was last year elected mayor, filling that office to the complete satisfaction of everyone.

Gordon Matthews knows the job of a Utilities Commissioner well, having served three years on that commission and having filled the office of chairman during the last year.

In a short speech after the results Mayor Denne said, "I wish to thank the mover and seconder of my nomination and also desire to thank the members of the Council who sat with me last year and so ably aided me to work for the good of Peterborough. Gentlemen, those men of 1928 worked hard and they had always the best interests of the city at heart. I believe the members of that council should be returned at the polls because they deserve the support of every voter. They are all experienced men now and know the city's business and understand some of the big plans that have been mapped out to help the city grow into a bigger and better Peterborough.

"None of us want to see higher taxes and it takes a council with some experience to run the city within reason. With the present city sewage, water and light equipment the city can stand easily an increase in population of a least 10,000 people.

"I would like to remind you of the big public meeting that the council legiate Institute on evening of

FIVE KILLED IN ACCIDENT AT CROSSING

Automobile Skids On To Tracks in Front of Michigan Central Train.

AT WATERFORD.

Provincial Constable and Wife and Family Perish in Crash.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., December 21.—(Canadian Press.) — Provincial Constable Andrew B. Wood, his wife and three children, Simcoe, were instantly killed, shortly before 11 o'clock today when their car was struck by a Michigan Central passenger train at Waterford crossing.

As the watchman at the corner frantically waved his flag at the approaching automobile, Wood seemed to have no control of the car, or else could see no signals, and drove directly in front of the train which was running behind schedule.

The children were aged one, five and seven years.

The car apparently skidded on to the tracks, when the driver, suddenly becoming aware of the nearness of the train, the Michigan Central No. 15, fast express, applied the brakes. The car was demolished, and the bodies of the victims thrown a considerable distance, two being picked up from the ice of the pond beside the railway.

This is the third fatal level crossing accident in the vicinity of Waterford, bringing the total deaths to seven, within about a month. About a month ago Alva Beamer was killed at the Blue line crossing and two weeks ago E. T. Elkins of Waterford met death in a similar manner at the first crossing east of Waterford.

Coroner Dr. J. Peter has ordered an inquest. Constable Woods was formerly a sergeant of the Galt police force.

A CORRECTION REGARDING STORES

Inadvertently Stated in Last Evening's Examiner That All Peterborough Stores Are Open Nights.

Peterborough's largest departmental store closes at 6 o'clock every night and is advisable to shop in comfort with the best attention given during the day, service and satisfaction is assured between 9 a.m and 6 p.m. Special values and substantial Christmas gifts will be found with not-advertised tickets throughout the two Teco stores at extraordinary low prices.

Shop early. Shop often during the day. Shop with ease and comfort.

The Weather

This is December 21st—the first day of winter and the shortest day in the year. From now onwards the days will lengthen a little. It will be noticed first in the evenings, but little difference will be seen in the mornings for perhaps a month. An old proverb says: "As the day lengthens, the cold strengthens." Another old saying is "When Christmas day falls on a Tuesday (as it does this year) we are promised a bright year, with a mild winter leading on to a good summer with good harvests." Here are two other old Christmas weather sayings which the reader may not be familiar with: "A warm Christmas, a cold Easter," and "A windy Christmas means a good fruit crop." While it was quite cold this morning, it was due to a brisk wind from the northwest. Zero has not been reached as yet.—W. P.

KING GEORGE CONTINUES TO GAIN SLOWLY

Morning's Bulletin Was Briefest Yet Issued By His Majesty's Physicians.

DOCTORS SATISFIED.

Queen Mary Presided at Brief Session of Privy Council Held This Morning.

LONDON, December 21. — Canadian Press. — To-day's bulletin from Buckingham Palace on King George, one of the briefest yet issued, brought the satisfactory news that he had passed a restful night calculated to help building up his strength from the extreme exhaustion caused by his prolonged and grave illness.

The bulletin taken in the light of yesterday's lengthy and guardedly optimistic report by the King's physicians, was felt to indicate that there was nothing appreciable to add to what on the whole was considered a favorable condition.

This morning's bulletin read:

"The King has had a restful night. There is no appreciable change to be noted."

The view taken in palace circles, it was learned, coincided with the public impression from the bulletin that His Majesty is continuing to gain slowly. His physicians, it was indicated, are satisfied with the course that events are taking. They are not expected to make any further statement on the King's case until the usual hour for the night bulletin.

It was learned that the Duke of Gloucester was expected to reach England on Monday morning. He will land at Southampton, and in accor-

CENSORS WILL STAMP FILMS

Board Will Follow Suggestions Made During Last Session of Legislature.

NO COERCION

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press).—With the beginning of the year The Ontario Board of Censors will commence to classify film subjects and brand them as fit or unfit for children to see. This decision was announced by Hon. Dr. Montneith, Provincial Treasurer this morning and follows the suggestions made on the floor of the house at the last session of the Legislature.

Those considered by the board to be fit for the universal or family showing will be stamped with the legen "approved." This brand is the same as that used in England and in the Province of Alberta. Films so stamped with met with the Board's regulations for pictures that may be shown to children.

There is, the minister pointed out, no coercion in the new regulations. The sole purpose being to provide a guide for the parents as to what pictures, in the opinion of the Board of Censors, are suitable for children. The brand will apply to both silent and talking pictures.

Consideration is also being given to arrangements whereby theatre operators will be able to notify their patrons when class "u" pictures are being shown in order that the children may be allowed to attend without fear on the part of the parent.

OWNERSHIP IS NOT IMPORTANT IF SERVICE IS SATISFACTORY SAYS MATTHEWS OF UTILITIES

Question of Private or Public Control is Not Vital, He Claims.

AT WOMEN'S COUNCIL.

Gordon Matthews Gives Clear and Interesting Resume of Work Done.

"I do not think the question of private or public ownership is a vital one, as long as the service given is satisfactory," said Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, speaking on "Public Ownership, in Peterborough," to members of the Local Council of Women, at their regular meeting, held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A.

Mr. Matthews' address, which was appropriate to the time, was one of the most illuminating and comprehensive brief reviews of local subjects of interest to which the members of the local council have listened. Giving a bird's-eye view of matters that have a vital aspect to the comfort and the pocketbooks of the citizens as a whole and to housewives in particular, it was couched in non-technical language which made it quite intelligible to the listeners, and was delivered in a clear, concise, compact form, with an easy and fluent delivery that held the attention of every woman present and gave each individual an informative insight into the workings of the water and electric light plants of the city. It was a sincere expression of thanks from the assemblage that was voiced by Miss A. M. Lancaster and seconded by Mrs. K. S. Wightman, at the conclusion.

"There are many people in Peterborough who are against public ownership," said Mr. Matthews, "and there are arguments that are strong for both public and private ownership. Even after three years on the Utilities Commission, I am not prepared to say anything against private ownership."

The speaker went on to give a brief account of the history of the two publicly-owned utilities of the city, the waterworks department and the electric department, and referred to the possible purchase of a third utility, in the gas plant.

Waterworks Plant

"The Waterworks plant was purchased in 1902 at a cost of $230,000. The waterworks dam, built in 1909, cost $150,000, and the filtration plant, built in 1921, cost $340,000.

"The value of a supply of real pure water was a matter that did not possess a great deal of significance to me until I went to San Francisco this spring," said Mr. Matthews. "There Ross Dobbin told the members of the convention about our filtration plant and showed descriptive slides of it in operation. They complimented the City of Peterborough very highly on its water purification system and I understand that the City of Ottawa is going to build a plant modelled on ours."

The speaker also mentioned the prohibitive cost of water in some places, referring to the City of Barkeley, California, where water rates at one golf course amount to $1,000 a month

BUROWSKI IS HANGED TO-DAY

Pays Penalty For Slaying of Farmer After Robbery Last August.

MAIL CAR CASE.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press.)— John Burowski, convicted of the murder of a farmer, following a mail car hold-up here last August 18, was hanged at Parry Sound at 1.30 a.m. to-day.

The crime for which John Burowski was hanged was committed before dawn on August 18 last year, near Waubamick, in the Parry Sound district. Some hours previously the mail car of a train proceeding from Sudbury to Parry Sound had been entered by two masked men who held up the clerks, secured a quantity of registered mail and left the train at Parry Sound. Here they stole a motor car and fled until it went into a ditch seven miles further on.

Thomas Jackson, Waumbamick farmer, and his son were hired to pull the car out of the ditch and were doing this with a team of horses when Parry Sound men came in pursuit. The two bandits opened fire from the ditched vehicle and Jackson was instantly killed. Burowski was captured. The other man escaped.

Burowski stood trial at Parry Sound and was sentenced to hang on December 7 for the murder of Jackson. On December 6 the Dominion Cabinet refused an appeal for clemency, an earlier appeal to the Ontario Appellate Division against the conviction having also been refused. Late on December 6, Burowski's counsel obtained a two weeks' stay of execution. The stay of execution reached the sheriff at Parry Sound less than an hour before the time set for the hanging.

During the past two weeks officers of the Crown investigated the new information, which included affidavits by Burowski concerning the men engaged in the mail car robbery, but reported it failed to lead to any new evidence. Consequently when the stay of execution elapsed the hanging took place to-day.

GAS EXPLOSION CAUSES SCENE OF CONFUSION

Earthquake-like Wreckage Visited By Hundreds of Sight-seers.

MAINS SEALED.

Heroic Workers Labor Throughout Night To Plug Pipes.

LONDON, December 21. — Canadian Press Cable. — The danger of further explosions of gas mains in High Holborn, similar to the explosions which caused much damage and many casualties yesterday, still remains. Hazardous operations of sealing up the mains, which consist principally of boring down to the broken mains through gas-impregnated earth, drilling a small hole into the main and inserting a canvas bag of bladder, which is then inflated, and seals the main, were carried on heroically throughout the night by employees of the gas company. Canvas bags are used for the big mains and pig bladders for the smaller ones.

Policemen, firemen and ambulance wen were stationed at various points in case of further explosions. Less than a score of persons were injured yesterday but the material damage is roughly estimated at $1,000,000, roads, sewers, and underground facilities accounting for $250,000 of the loss. The scenes following the explosions were reminiscent of an earthquake. The air was heavily laden with nauseating gas fumes and great tongues of flame leapt from fissures in the road

ZERO WEATHER IN MANITOBA

Blizzard in Western Ontario Stalls Highway Traffic and Trains.

FAIR AND COLD.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press.)— Winter was officially ushered into Western Canada to-day, bringing with it a varied program of weather for the three prairie provinces blt a promise of a mild pre-Christmas season.

Manitoba is shivering in away-below-zero weather to-day. Saskatchewan is experiencing only medium cold temperature and thermometers are holding high in Alberta. Weather officials predict much milder weather for Manitoba and Saskatchewan over the coming week end, but they refuse to forecast what the west can expect on December 25.

The city of Winnipeg was the coldest place in the west to-day, the mercury remaining at its low point for the year here, 16 degrees below zero.

In Ontario.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press.) —North-westerly winds brought the first real taste of winter to Southern Ontario last night and at various Western Ontario points reports indicate the wind reached blizzard-like proportions.

To-day the temperature sank slightly below zero at Sault Ste. Marie, while at Toronto it ranged about 14 above, and slightly higher in the eastern end of the province.

From Toronto throughout Western Ontario highway traffic was hard hit during the night, a short but severe blizzard being largely responsible for the stalling of hundreds of vehicles on the treacherous roadways. Railway trains were delayed on many lines.

FORTY-EIGHT DIE FROM 'FLU' IN MONTREAL

Thousands Suffer From Ravages of Epidemic in Canada's Largest Metropolis.

QUEBEC SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Twenty-one Per Cent. of Pupils Are Ill and Many Teachers Off Duty.

MONTREAL, Dec. 21.—Eighty-six new cases of influenza were reported to the City Health Department yesterday, while the deaths for the day totalled 11, it was announced.

Figures since last Saturday are as follows:

Saturday, 77 cases, 8 deaths; Sunday and Monday, 108 cases, 16 deaths; Tuesday, 177 cases, 13 deaths; Wednesday, 86 cases, 11 deaths, making a grand total of 448 cases and 48 deaths. The total number of persons suffering from the epidemic in Montreal now runs well into the thousands, but there is no way of obtaining accurate figures, it was stated at the City Hall.

Dr. S. Boucher, Director of Public Health, yesterday issued a specific warning to merchants and dealers, especially those of the catering trade, reminding them of the by-law which covers the display of victuals in places free from dust, unhygienic contact, or handling.

Ultimatum to Trade.

Dr. Boucher's ultimatum to the trade follows, in part:

"The practice of displaying unprotected food is prohibited by Article 49 of By-law 926, which says explicitly that all victuals must be thoroughly protected from dust, contact and handling. This includes bread and flour. I therefore invite merchants, dealers and caterers to conform to the by-law for the benefit and protection of the public. Those who ignore the law will be vigorously prosecuted."

Catholic Schools Close.

QUEBEC, Dec. 21.—Following an investigation throughout the fifty-eight schools in the city and district of Quebec, under the jurisdiction of the Catholic School Commission, Abbe Laberge, Director, reported to the Commission that 4,224, or about 21 per cent., of the 19,800 pupils in the schools were ill with grippe, and the Commissioners decided to close all the schools under their jurisdiction yesterday.

In his report, Abbe Laberge stated that, as far as was known, none of the cases was of a grave nature. Fifty-nine classes in the different schools were without teachers, twenty three brothers, nineteen priests and nuns, seven professors and ten instructresses having been stricken with the malady.

"Under these conditions," said one of the School Commissioners, "we decided to close the schools and give the children and teachers the necessary time to recuperate fully and return to their classes in good health when they re-open on January 7."

The schools will all be disinfected during the next two weeks.

The Protestant Board of School Commissioners report few cases of grippe in the schools under their jurisdiction. All their schools are closing to-day for the Christmas holidays.

GIRL BURNS TO DEATH.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 21.— (Canadian Press.)— Accidentally upsetting an oil lamp in her home at South March, Ont., 11 year old Marion Armstrong sustained fatal burns, according to word received here last night.

The girl was playing with her brother when she stumbled against a table, knocking over the lamp. She was showered by flaming oil. The mother and brother succeeded in beating out the flames, but she failed to respond to medical treatment.

Council Members Honor Retiring Warden

APPOINTING OF WARDEN MADE POLITICAL TEST

Members of County Council Present Warden With a Gold Watch and Chain.

DISAPPROVES TACTICS.

Must Have More Money To Spend On Roads Declares Retiring Warden.

COBOURG, Dec. 21 (Special to The Examiner).—Warden C. H. Davidson's valedictory to the council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham on Thursday was a blunt disapproval of the tacit political test in elections to the wardenship. He had just been presented with a gold watch by the members of the council expressed his gratitude for the gift, and then rather unexpectedly offered his parting counsel.

"I think there is one thing in this council that is wrong," he said. "When you come to elect a Warden you run it on politics and that should be cut out. You don't do it in making other appointments, and I don't think you should for the Warden. Some say that position is a step to parliament. If they all felt the way I do, it wouldn't make any difference in that respect. For one thing I haven't got the money.

A Hastings Expedient

Hastings county is a Conservative riding. In their county council the Conservatives appoint the wardens for two years and the Liberals have it for one year. The way they do is this, when it is the Liberals' turn they go into the committee room and pick a man by secret ballot, and they name him in council. The Conservatives do it the same way."

Reeve Wilson of Hastings: Can't you use the secret ballot here?

Warden Davidson: Not on the floor of the house. The warden is elected by open vote. I have been beaten often. I ran three times for warden before I was elected, but it never made any difference with me if any man didn't vote for me."

Reeve G. Hooton of Cavan and Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook made the presentation to Warden Davidson in committee of the whole, with Reeve Bygott of Campbellford presiding.

Had a Busy Year

Mr. Wood said: "It seems only a short time since we were congratulating you on your election to the wardenship. Wardens last but a short time, but the counties council goes on forever. We hoped that you would make a success of your year and you have certainly done that. You have had to devote a great deal of time to the position. More money was spent this year than ever, and you had some trying situations to deal with. In all these condition you gave your time freely and your work was a credit to yourself and this council. We understand that you are not returning here next year, but that you aspire to higher honors in Campbellford. We hope you will receive it. We ask you to accept this watch and we wish you every success, and with your family the compliments of the season."

Inscription On Watch.

Reeve Hooton presented the gold watch and chain to the Warden. The inner case of the watch was inscribed as follows:

"Presented to Chas. H. Davidson, Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, 1928, by his fellow councillors."

"This is a great pleasure to me," Warden Davidson replied. "But it is sad also. We are minus Col. MacNachtan and Russell Peake. I am glad to finish the year's work. I tried to run things as fair and square as I could. Mr. Wood says I was always ready when called upon. I did try to do the best I could.

Need More Road Money.

One thing we should realize is that we must have more money for good roads. If our road superintendent hasn't the money he can't do the work. I had no idea until this year

BEAUHARNOIS POWER COMPANY ANSWERS MARINE ASSOCIATION

Plans Are Only For a Power Project Declares President F. P. Jones.

ENTIRELY SEPARATE.

No International Rights Are Involved in Great Struggle For Franchise.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 21 (By the Canadian Press).—In a statement given out here last night, Frank P. Jones, President of the Beauharnois Power Company, contested the points raised in the brief of the Dominion Marine Association, presented to the Government by Francis King, K.C., in opposition to the project of the Beauharnois Power Company for a power channel of fourteen miles between Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis.

The Dominion Marine Association, Mr. Jones said, must be under considerable misapprehension as to the actual project now before the government for ratification.

As to the association's protest that navigation interests would be jeopardized, Mr. Jones declared his company's plans involved purely a power proposition, in no way interfered with present navigation facilities, and did not in any way prejudice the plans for deepening the St. Lawrence channel and building new and larger canals should such be desired. The statement attributed to Mr. King that if anything went wrong with the power canal there would be an interruption of navigation, was entirely erroneous, said Mr. Jones. The power canal and the navigation canal were entirely separate projects and would not conflict in any way.

With regard to the expressed fear that there was danger of collapse of the company's proposed power dams from water pressure, Mr. Jones asserted that many power plants already established are successfully operating under much greater pressure than would obtain in the case of the proposed Beauharnois Company's dam. The engineering features of the scheme, he said, had been settled after the most careful examination.

As to the claim that international treaty rights would be affected, Mr. Jones declared that this phase of the problem had been carefully investigated before the plans were submitted to the government and no international rights were involved. He stated that the proposed works were entirely within Canadian territory, and would not change the levels of Lake St. Francis.

Mr. Jones said that the whole project was an engineering one based upon adequate and complete engineering advice of experts not prejudicially affecting navigation interests in any way.

COURT HEARS COMPLAINTS

Paving Assessment Complaints Aired Before Revision Court at Campbellford.

INSPECT PROFERTIES.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, December 21. — There were eleven complaints brought before the special court of revision which met in the council chambers of the Public Library to deal with such complaints regarding the assessments for the paving laid on the streets this year. The court met at two o'clock, and by ten minutes past three, all the complaints had been head and some of them adjusted. The remainder were dealt with at the adjourned sitting of the court beginning at seven-thirty last evening. In the meantime, the members of the court and the engineers viewed several properties about which complaints had been brought before them.

Mayor G. A. Kingston was appointed chairman of the court and the other members were Councillors J. N. Stone, J. J. O'Sullivan, J. R. Wilkinson and W. S. Wiggins. Mr. Keefer and Mr. McIntyre, engineers of the firm of James, Proctor and Redfern, Toronto, were also present, and aided materially in the work of the court. They are the two engineers who were in charge of the work during the paving operations and were retained by the corporation of the town of Campbellford.

First Complaint.

T. J. Craighead, Front street merchant, was the first to lodge his complaint. He claimed that he had been told that if he wanted water connections to his block on Front street he would have to have them installed before the concrete was laid. He had approached the town foreman for men to do the digging but had been told that there were none available for the work. He had therefore managed to get men at his own expense. Later he had been led to believe he had no right to do it, and asked the court to rebate him the amount he had expended. He pointed out that he already had water connections in the rear of his building, and had not actually required others from the front. On motion of Councillors O'Sullivan and Stone, the rebate was granted.

D. W. Douglas pointed out that his assessment notice called for pavement, water and sewer connections. He said his property was already sewered and that no connections were installed. He was assured that the matter would be looked into and corrected if there was an error.

George O'Sullivan, Bridge street merchant, had a similar complaint. He said that his notices called for an assessment of $1.84.6 per foot, and this included sewer connections. There were none put in, he claimed, since his property was already connected with the Rear street sewer. He was told that the matter would be looked into and corrected.

Sewer Connections

G. A. Hay, representing his daughter, Lillian, said his complaint was of a similar nature. He had no sewer connection to the property and was charged with it. He also represented Mrs. M. Chaplin, Front street, whose assessment notice called for a thirty-foot frontage while she had only twenty-six feet. Both cases were promised investigation. Representing Miss MacNaughton, Front street, Dr. Hay claimed that his client had paid for the digging of the sewer and other expenses connected with the connection and asked a rebate to that amount. On motion of Councillors Stone and O'Sullivan, the rebate was granted provided Miss MacNaughton would produce a receipt for the money expended.

Robert Bell contended that the charge to his property was excessive on the ground that it faces an intersection. The property in question was the lot immediately south of the Herald Office, facing the intersection of Front and Mill streets. Mr. Keefer endeavored to show Bell that it was a case of widening and not an intersection as defined by the act. Complications arose which required time to discuss. At length Keefer tried to explain by saying

HYDRO SUPERINTENDENT MAKES REPORT ON WATER PRESSURE

Council Is Satisfied With Fire Protection To Cobourg House of Refuge.

NOT A FAIR TEST.

Pressure of 110 Pounds Per Square Inch Is Quickly Available Says J. E. Skedmore.

COBOURG, Dec. 21 (Special). — When J. E. Skidmore, local superintendent of the Hydro-Electric Commission's power and water utilities, assured the Counties Council that the pressure in the water main at the House of Refuge could be quickly raised to 110 pounds per square inch, he allayed any doubts of adequate fire protection for the counties' institution that may have arisen out of a recommendation in a report from Ontario Fire Marshal E. P. Heaton's office suggesting an emergency 30,000 gallon underground reservoir and an electrically operated pump for the House of Refuge premises.

And when Reeve W. H. Nelson of Percy Township remarked, "If that electric pump wasn't on the market, we'd never have had that report," Mr. Skidmore commented non-committally, "That might be."

At the request of Mayor Cooper of Cobourg, the Fire Marshal's department tested the water pressure at the House of Refuge main on November 10, and a general inspection of the home was also made. The pressure was declared to be unsatisfactory, about 40 pounds, but Reeve George Thompson of Cobourg presented the obverse side of the question during the Council's discussion.

The Douglas-Pectin Company and the Cobourg Dye Works both drew upon the water supply in that district, and because of the town's agreement with the counties to supply fire protection for the House of Refuge for which service the counties paid Cobourg $320 a year, the two factories were to shut off their drafts of water in the event of fire breaking out at the House of Refuge. In those circumstances the Hydro water pressure should be almost immediately increased to its capacity of from 90 to 110 pounds.

Not a Fair Test.

However, Reeve Thompson declared that the recent test had been made at the House of Refuge hydrant, while the factories were using the water, and for that reason the test was not fair, and did not indicate the real adequacy of the water supply for the protection of the House of Refuge.

It transpired that since the counties' contract with Cobourg in 1908, various improvements had been made to the system, including 300 h.p. electrical equipment and a larger intake in the lake, which cost $50.000. The system was ten times better than it was in 1908.

The counties had made the contract with the town of Cobourg and not with the Hydro, because the town had itself built the water main to the House of Refuge.

Responsibility on Council.

Mr. Skidmore made no effort unduly to influence the Council. When Reeve Frank Elliott said he understood the water system would throw three streams over the House for the Aged, Mr. Skidmore replied that he had tried only two.

"I think that's all that's required," Mr. Elliott replied.

"That's up to you," said Mr. Skidmore, "but you can't have too much efficiency in these cases. I hope no one will go back on the Fire Marshal's report. You might go on for 20 or 40 years in safety, but you can't tell."

Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook suggested that a Fire Marshal's report should not be lightly dismissed but it went to the Board of Management, and the Board recommended no action.

To Deputy-Reeve Willmott of Cobourg, Reeve Jibb, chairman of the House of Refuge Board, explained that this decision was for the express purpose of referring back to the Council.

Make Minor Changes.

Mr. Wilmott pointed out that although Mr. Skidmore had cleared up the question of water pressure, nevertheless the Fire Marshal's report included various minor recommendations which should be put into effect. Among them were changes in dust chutes, stairways, fire escapes, and other ordinary precautions. He emphasized the Council's responsibility under the criminal code, and added: "If there was a fire, I wouldn't like

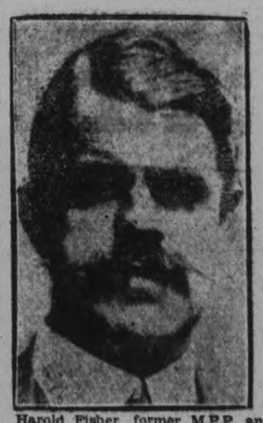
DIES AT OTTAWA



Harold Fisher, former M.P.P. and old Bailieboro boy, dies suddenly in Capital city.

FORMER M.P.P. PASSES AWAY

Harold Fisher, Financial Critic of Provincial Liberal Party, Dies at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Dec. 21.—After an illness of only a few days of pneumonia, Harold Fisher, K.C., ex-M.P.P. for West Ottawa, former Mayor of the Capital City, and formerly chief financial critic for the Liberal Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, died Wednesday night at his home here. Born at Bailieboro, Ont. on Nov. 1, 1877, Harold Fisher was the son of the late J. H. F. Fisher, M.D. He was educated at Jarvis Street Collegiate, Toronto, the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall. He married on June 28, 1910, Miss Jessie Argue of Carp, Ont., who, with a sister, Mrs. (Dr.) W. F. Elliott, of Toronto, is the only immediate surviving relative.

Only a few weeks ago Mr. Fisher refused to accept an appointment to the Supreme Court of Ontario. He enjoyed a splendid legal practice in Ottawa, being a member of the firm of Murphy, Fisher, Clark & Robertson, of which Hon. Charles Murphy is the senior partner. In all his career as Alderman, Controller and four times Mayor of Ottawa, and member for one term of the Legislature, Mr. Fisher had the unique record of never having been defeated. His retirement both from civic and Provincial politics was voluntary. Mr. Fisher was an ardent advocate of prohibition. While Mayor of Ottawa, from 1917 to 1920, he was largely responsible for the erection of Ottawa's splendid civic hospital. An earnest friend of education, he donated valuable prizes every year for the Fisher Essay Competition in the Ottawa collegiate institutes.

Mr. King's Tribute.

The Righ Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, issued the following statement when apprised of the death of Mr. Fisher:

"A gloom will be cast over the Capital when it is learned that Harold Fisher has passed away. In more respects than one he was the ideal citizen. He was interested in all that pertained to our highest civic and national development, and his example in this particular has not been surpassed by many men of his years. As Mayor of Ottawa, and as member for the city in the Ontario

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 21 (Canadian Press).—There was some demand from exporters in the local grain market yesterday for Manitoba No. 4 barley and sales of odd lots were made for shipment from Fort William, and a moderate trade was done in other lines of grain for country account. The tone of the market was steady.

The flour trade was without any new feature to note and the market generally was of a holiday character. There was practically no demand and prices were unchanged.

There was a fairly good demand for millfeed and values were firm. A moderate trade was done in rolled oats.

The undertone to the fresh egg market was easier and prices were shaded in some cases. Storage eggs were steady. Receipts were 1,304 cases.

Steady to easier levels were reported on the local potato market. Prince Edward Island whites were selling at 75c, and P.E.I. Green Mountains at 80c, the latter being a reduction of 3c, these prices being per 90 lbs. in bags. New Brunswick Green Mountains were offering at 60c per 90 lbs. in bulk. Trade was somewhat quiet, dealers having purchased for their needs over the holidays.

A fairly good trade was done in beans and peas. Canadian beans sold at $5.25 per bushel, and choice boiling peas at $3.50 per bushel, wholesale. With imported beans unavailable the demand for Canadian beans was heavier.

There was no further change in conditions of the butter market, the undertone being firm, with a steady demand from both local and outside buyers. Receipts were 152 packages.

The trade in cheese showed no improvement, and in consequence the market was very quiet, but the undertone was steady. Receipts were 133 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (Canadian Press).—Coldest weather yet this season expected last night in the corn belt snapped off about a cent a bushel yesterday from the price of corn. The same cause, however, helped to steady wheat values, a wide area of domestic winter wheat territory being at present minus the protection of a snow blanket.

Closing quotation on corn were weak at virtually the day's bottom figures, ⅛ to 1⅛c off, with wheat ⅛ to ⅝c down, oats at ¼ to ⅜c decline, and provisions varying from 12c setback to a rise of 15c.

Right from the outset, price downturns formed the order of the day in the corn market. All hands agreed that clear, cold weather would tend more or less to facilitate the movement of the corn crop. As a result pit traders were for the most part more disposed to take to the selling side, although good buying for commission houses was witnessed on the declines in price. Meanwhile advices were received that in Iowa especially, shipments of corn showed some enlargement.

On the other hand, there were indications of improved demand for corn in the west from exporters, who were said to be short of the grain because of sales abroad. Moreover, the cash corn trading basis in Chicago was in some cases one cent higher, arrivals of corn here yesterday amounted to but 99 cars, and country offerings lacked volume.

Notice was taken, too, that total receipts of corn at primary points yesterday were only 960,000 bushels compared with 2,064,000 bushels a week ago and 1,797,000 bushels on the corresponding day last year.

Wheat and oats were effected to some extent by corn weakness. Besides, Kansas City wired that cash wheat premiums there were ½c to 1c lower, with storage room becoming scarce, whereas receipts were expected to continue large both of wheat and corn. Omaha wheat also was said to be close to a basis for wheat shipments to Chicago. Under such circumstances, deliveries of 178,000 bushels of wheat yesterday on December contracts here gave some advantage at times to bears, but on the whole, the wheat market proved stubborn and kept within narrow limits.

Provisions averaged slightly easier, sympathizing with hog values.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Dec. 21.—Butter was firm in tone, and only moderately active. Prices for finest creamery stocks ranged from 41½c to 41¾c per lb., the top figure a little harder to get owing to lack of any noteworthy demand on spot. The intrusion of New Zealand butter into the market is awaited by the trade. The supply for Toronto may be speeded up a little, but will hardly reach consumers' hands before the end of the year. The first cargo of the season, it is understood, is comparatively small and the promise is that it and the succeeding shipments will not flood the market and bear down prices unduly. The tendency may be the other way, and the imports will scarcely go a great distance in preventing a shortage. Such shortage, when it appears, will be attended to by importers who can get all theb utter from New Zealand that they require.

The market for fresh storage eggs is unsettled and easier.

Egg production has been heavier practically over the entire country during the week. The volume of local fresh eggs coming to hand in the Prairie, Central and Western Provinces is merely a small proportion of of total volume of eggs being used but it is amply sufficient to cause the difference between a steady and a weak market. British Columbia continues to send shipments east at the rate of these is being affected by the heavier local receipts. These local receipts do not detract readily from the demand in B.C. eggs, but they cause weakness on the market which leads buyers to hesitate from taking on large supplies of the British Columbia product, especially on an f.o.b. basis.

COURT HEARS

"You are really getting something for nothing, Mr. Bell.

"Well, all right." Bell replied. "Here's another man with the same thing."

Charged With More Frontage

The other man was R. N. Morrison, representing the Misses Wallace. Their claim was that they were being charged with more frontage than they actually possessed. In substantiation of their rights, there was a registered map produced showing that the footage to be 81.3, while they had been charged with eighty-two feet. Morrison was assured that the ground would be remeasured if that would be satisfactory.

Mr. Bateson, Front Street, also disputed the frontage charged. His lot, he claimed was only sixty-six feet and he had been charged for more than sixty-seven. It was shown to him that there was a distance of two feet and nine inches more in two lots than the deeds called for. The owner of the adjacent property had been satisfied to pay for seventeen inches and he thought Bateson would be willing to assume the remainder which was the smaller portion. The property was actually there, although when it had been originally staked out there had been this error made. The assessement was left unchanged. He also asked regarding the two water connections, but was assured that they had been installed. He only considered that one was necessary.

Mr. Comins, Front street, said he was charged with sixty-six feet frontage and had not that much according to the deed of his property. The matter was left for investigation and measurement till the evening session.

Mrs. Hubbel, Front street, had several grievances to air. She owned several lots, and claimed that there were errors in the assessment of three of them. On the first lot, she claimed she had been assessed for two water connections and there was only one. There were no sewer connections since these were on the street in rear of the property. On the second lot there was too much frontage charged. It was pointed out that she had already been exempted from a certain portion of this, but even considering this, she thought it was too much. In the discussion which followed, it was pointed out that there might possibly have been an error made in measuring the property and some of the adjacent property included. The court decided to visit the lots in question and have new measurements taken.

Sidney Bidgood wanted to know who had to pay for alterations to the service box at the upper end of Front street and was told that it did not come under the paving costs. This concluded the list of complaints and the court adjourned to meet again at seven-thirty.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN CORLEY

DUNSFORD, Dec. 21.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral service for the late Mrs. John Corley (nee Mary Ellen Fair) aged 64, who passed away at her home in Verulam, on Monday, after an illness of six days, held in the United Church here on Wednesday afternoon was largely attended and was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Everson. The deceased who was never known to be sick was in her usual health until about ten days previous to her death when she complained of a pain in the head. On Tuesday the family doctor was summoned, but all that medical skill and good nursing could do were of no avail and on the following Monday morning she passed into the great beyond.

The late Mrs. Corley was born in Sunderland where she lived until her marriage about forty years ago, after which time with her husband she resided in Verulam. She was a member of the United Church and an active member of both the Ladie's Aid and the W.M.S.. She frequently walked from her home into Dunsford to service, a distance of over two miles. During the funeral service the choir sang "A few more years shall roll."

Left to mourn are her husband, one son Mossom, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Charles Germyn, of North Vancouver; five brothers, Massey, Robert and David, of Sunderland; William of Midland, and John of Calgary; two sisters, Miss Elizabeth, of Lindsay, and Mrs. William Doble, of Sunderland.

The pall bearers were three brothers, Robert, David and Massey Fair of Sunderland; William J. Hussey, Garnet and Arnie Corley, of Lindsay. Interment was made in Dunsford cemetery.

An amendment by Mr. Wilmott to the Board of Management's report was adopted instructing the Board to carry out such recommendations as they deem advisable, that the Fire Marshal be advised as to the progress made and also Mr. Heaton be informed of the Cobourg Hydro manager's statement respecting water pressure at the House of Refuge.

FORMER M.P.P.

Legislature, not to mention his active participation in other fields of useful effort, he displayed a capacity for public service as unselfish as it was generous and effective. His death is a natural loss, rendered the more tragic and pathetic by its suddenness, and by the fact that it was due to an enemy which, in a previous epidemic in this city, he fought so heroically to keep from the door of many homes."

Deeply Regretted.

Deep regret over the death of Mr. Fisher was expressed by W. E. N. Sinclair, Leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Provincial Parliament.

'Harold Fisher was a great friend and a close companion, and I am certainly very sorry to learn of his death," he said. "He was a distinguished member of the Legislature, and brought to the discussion of public affairs a wide knowledge and thorough judgment. His passing so early in life is a distinct loss to the City of Ottawa and the Province of Ontario, and is a great loss to the legal procession, of which he was an honored member." of the work Mr. Greer has to do. We have practically 300 miles of road to look after. We find that the roads get had here and there, like in spring, and they all want repairs done at once. If you wait your time you'll get it. One thing we need is another machine. Percy and Hastings got a lot of work done but they deserved it."

SUPPORTING THE BYLAW.

It is significant that in seeking to secure from well-known citizens their opinions in regard to the proposed purchase of the local gas plant The Examiner has encountered very few people who are opposed to the bylaw.

Apparently those who have given any study to the question are convinced of the wisdom of the city acquiring this utility, and at the same time preventing a liberal franchise for the use of city streets from passing into the hands of a private company.

The general opinion of those interviewed seems to be that the price offered the city is a reasonable one, that the gas plant under municipal operation will pay its way without costing the ratepayers a cent, and that it would be bad business on Peterborough's part to allow this valuable utility to be sold to a private company when the way is open to secure the plant on splendid terms and under easy payment conditions.

The fact that the City Council is unanimously supporting the measure and that Chamber of Commerce officials are equally enthusiastic about the merits of the proposition will have its weight when ratepayers come to record their opinion a week from Tuesday.

A GOOD SHOWING.

Fire Chief George Gimblett, in reporting a decreased number of fires for the first eleven months of this year as compared with the same period in 1927, gives credit to the citizens for co-operating splendidly in the fire prevention campaign carried on during the summer and autumn.

It is gratifying to learn that such results are being secured, and that the efforts made to educate the public in regard to the necessity of eliminating fire hazards and of being on guard against conditions that cause fires are proving, at least to some extent, successful.

The fire losses in Canada as a whole are so large, compared with those of European countries, as to convict us of almost criminal carelessness when it is realized that at least 75 per cent. of all fires could be prevented.

The local record shows what can be done by an honest effort to comply with fire prevention advice, but there is no reason why we should be satisfied with what has been accomplished.

Good as has been the showing in the past eleven months, fire hazards can be still further reduced and conditions throughout the city made even safer by a more general obeying of the advice of fire experts.

NOMINATIONS FOR THE COUNCIL.

Citizens are reminded that the nominations for aldermen will be held this evening, and of the importance of seeing to it that a worth-while field of candidates is named.

It is especially desirable that a strong list should be nominated in view of the fact that not only are five aldermen to be elected but a sixth will have to be appointed to complete ex-Alderman Ackerman's term, and the Council will probably follow the usual custom and select the highest in the list of defeated candidates.

There should, therefore, be at least half a dozen good men in the running, and it is to be hoped that citizens will realize the need and take some interest in to-night's nomination proceedings.

Of course, something more is necessary than the mere nomination of qualified citizens; they must be persuaded to allow their names to stand, and in this connection The Examiner would like to point out that there is a very real field of service in the City Council for men of ability and vision, men who are keenly interested in Peterborough's welfare and are willing to devote some of their time and energy toward promoting the city's interests.

There is always room for such citizens in civic positions.

CHECKING THE EPIDEMIC.

The concensus of medical opinion at the conference held in Toronto to consider ways and means of dealing with the influenza epidemic was that while the disease is by no means as virulent as that which swept over Canada ten years ago, it is necessary to take precautions.

Especial stress was laid upon the necessity of treating every case seriously, it being agreed that the present "flu" is not serious if care is taken.

The main points for the public to observe are to avoid infection if possible by avoiding crowds and keeping away from those who are "flu" victims, and to go to bed at once and remain there until completely well if stricken by the disease.

The present type, while not as severe is apparently as highly communicable, and therefore spreads rapidly, hence the decision reached to distribute throughout Ontario the following instructions:

How to avoid "flu":

1. Avoid crowds.
2. Exercise in the open air.
3. Get sufficient sleep in a well-ventilated room.
4. Wash your face and hands frequently, especially before eating.
4. Cover your nose and mouth with a clean handkerchief when sneezing or coughing.
6. Don'f visit or come in contact with those who have the infection unless necessity demands it.
7. Don't worry about the "flu."

How to know "flu": The disease usually starts abruptly with an "out-of-sorts" feeling—indefinite pains and aches, cold in the head or slight cough, fever and sometimes vomiting or diarrhoea. Neglect of these symptoms at once may lead to pneumonia and change a mild case into a severe one.

How to fight "flu":

1. Go to bed immediately.
2. Stay in bed till you are absolutely well. Remember, the period of getting well is no longer than the time actually ill.
3. Keep your room at a temperature of 68F. and well ventilated.
4. Call your physician at once, and do exactly what he tells you.

FARM v. CITY.

A statistical survey in the United States reveals that in the last eight years the farm population has had a net shrinkage of 3,283,000 persons. Since 1922, an average of 2,000,000 people have left the farm for the city every year. Simultaneously, between 1,000,000 and 1,400,000 people have moved annually from the city to the farm. After allowing for the increase in farm births over deaths, which partially counteracts this loss, it is seen that the farms in the United States annually lose about 400,000 people. These reports, taken from the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture, would seem to paint a rather gloomy picture but, unexpectedly, Secretary Jardine dives into the mass of statistics and emerges with an item for his people that is far more encouraging. He finds that migration from the farms is slowing up rapidly—that in 1927 the net loss of the farms was only 192,000, by far the smallest figure for any of the eight years under review. And the Secretary of Agriculture was so encouraged that he said: "Some relative loss of population from the country to the town is apparently a normal characteristic of our agriculture by reason of the comparatively high natural rate of increase in the country and because of the progressive substitution of machine power for man power. Continuance of present tendencies in the movement of farm population may bring us within a few years to a point at which the annual loss will not exceed the proportion necessary to allow for draining off the excess in natural increase and for the drop in labor requirements." Those moving away from farms, Mr. Jardine finds, can be divided into several classes. The largest is the stream of young people who are going to the cities to look for jobs; then there is the group of older people looking for some pursuit that will pay better or be more congenial than agriculture; a fair sprinkling of prosperous adults retiring to town to live on their savings, and a small group forced to leave agriculture through the disabilities of age. Of these groups the most important, numerically and socially, is the group of young people.—Hamilton Spectator.

C.N.R. AND PEACE RIVER.

The main problem of the Peace River district is that of communications. For long the inhabitants have been agitating for better transportation facilities and for an outlet to the sea. When the Canadian Pacific management accepted the terms of the Alberta Government for the sale of the Edmonton and Dunvegan Railway and the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway last summer, there was much rejoicing, for it was realized that this was the beginning of the development which had been so long anticipated. The action of the C.P.R. in inviting the Canadian National lines to take a half interest in the undertaking brought some uncertainty into the situation, but now that the latter has agreed to co-operate on a 50-50 basis, rapid progress should result. The arrangement is, of course, subject to parliamentary ratification, but this is taken for granted. Up to the present these lines have had a chequered history and have been the despair of the Provincial Government. When the improvements in contemplation by the two railway systems have been made, there is no doubt that their usefulness will be greatly increased. However, the desired outlet to the coast is not to be realized for the time being, at least. It is said that the Dominion Government will not consider such an extension and it is not considered at all probable that the railway companies will move in the matter at the present time.

The program, according to report, covers the construction of 100 miles of branch lines in the territory. This seems to be a very modest provision, but it is said that it will serve the needs of the district for the next ten years. That remains to be seen. It is much more likely that, as facilities increase, the growth will be so rapid that a much more ambitious scheme will be called for to meet the demands. The Peace River section is extremely fertile and is believed to be rich also in minerals. Financiers have their eyes on the locality and are not unwilling to assist in a big way in its development. An intensive exploration program will be carried out, and the valuable territory opened up for exploitation. Though the settlers will feel keenly disappointed that their dream of an outlet to the Pacific Ocean is unlikely to be realized, they will undoubtedly welcome the action which is to be taken. The decision of the C.N.R. to join forces with the C.P.R. in the development of the area is to be commended. A separate system would be more costly and probably less efficient. The action is in accordance with the policy approved by the presidents of both railways avoid expensive and wasteful duplication where possible and to co-operate, when favorable opportunity offers, for the general good of the Dominion.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now if you've got your Christmas shopping done you can sit back and watch the last-minute rush.

With the schools closing to-day and Santa Claus expected early next week, young Peterborough is doubtless satisfied that there is nothing wrong with the world.

The response to The Examiner's appeal for Christmas donations for the benefit of needy homes has shown once again that Peterborough's heart is generous.

Congratulations are in order to Andrew Allan, son of Rev. Wm. G. Allan, upon his success in winning the poetry competition conducted by Varsity, and upon his general work with the official organ of the University of Toronto.

United Farmer officials do not like the new scheme for assisting British immigration. Most people are satisfied, however, to give the plan a chance to justify itself.

So far as going up in the air is concerned, Lady Heath seems to have succeeded in breaking an altitude record in Toronto.

It is not too late to be one of Santa's Pals. Telephone your donation to The Examiner.

Municipal candidates must be too busy finishing their Christmas shopping to take time off to announce their intentions.

Little new legislation is foreshadowed in connection with the coming session of the Legislature. The old age pensions measure will be the most important item on the program for the session.

It is to be hoped Mr. Ferguson's Cabinet gets back on the job before the House opens.

And now some folks talk of turning in their car as a first payment on a turkey.

A Thought

INJURY

'Tis generous to bear an injury, but dangerous to requite it.

The remedy for injuries is not to remember them.

BEAUTY

Whatever is any way beautiful hath its source of beauty in itself, and is complete in itself; praise forms no part of it. So it is none the worse, nor the better for being praised.

GOD'S MINUTE.

I will magnify Him with thanksgiving.—Ps. 59:30.

* * *

God of all mercies, Saviour and Sanctifier of all men, we worship Thee, the Triune God, and call upon our souls and all that is within us, to praise and magnify Thy Holy Name.

We confess our sins, but rejoice that they are constantly being blotted out by the blood of our blessed Lord, and because He is righteous, we who have our lives hid in Him are also righteous.

We come to Thy mercy seat with joy and thanksgiving, as we count our unnumerable blessings, knowing that no good thing shall be withheld from those who love Thee and put their trust in Thee. As Thou hast delivered us from all perils, sorrows and trials in the past, so we are assured that Thou wilt keep that which we commit to Thee for the future. Enrich our hearts with Thy word, that we may lead clean, holy lives, and have power to be winners of souls for our Master.

We pray for Thy rich grace to be upon our beloved in our home and elsewhere, and to the world which lies in sin, that Thy Kindgom may come, and Thy will be done, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

With the Moon entering Taurus an unusually good planetary prevails today, according to astrology.

The aspects are most auspicious for shopping and should bring much profit to merchants, especially to jewelers and importers of fine apparel.

The sway is especially beneficial for material interests and it is well to devote attention to objective rather than subjective ideas.

The sway is particularly fortunate for the young and may bring with it regrets for their elders. It is well for the aged not to look backward.

It is wise to be especially cautious when driving in traffic under this direction of the stars which is supposed to cause haste and nervousness.

This is not a propitious rule for signing contracts or agreements for the coming year as there may be an inclination toward ill-considered decisions.

Women should be careful today which is lucky for home activities but not favorable to public aspirations.

Actresses should make careful plans for the new year which is to bring about startling changes especially for eigners and for screen favorites.

There is a threatening sign today for certain workers who will meet in the world of industry new conditions as startling as those that will disturb artists who depend on drama for stage or screen.

Inasmuch as the young are to occupy attention in various important activities they must beware of hasty marriages if they are to work out high destinies.

The seers who counsel early marriage also warn against unwise selections of life partners, which may thwart ambition.

At this time the stars will stimulate sentiment and encourage romance, it is declared, and for this reason both young men and young women should be on guard.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that brings fulfillment of many heartfelt desires. They will probably have many new opportunities to enjoy life and congenial work.

Children born on this day probably will be remarkably prosperous all their lives. The subjects of this sign easily win success. While they belong to Capricorn they also have the best traits of Sagittarius people.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE LITTLE HOUSE

There's trouble in a little house
A little down the street,
There's silence in a little house
That knew the romp of feet.
The children tip-toe when they pass,
The grocer travels on the grass,
And all the neighborhood is sad,
And praying for the little lad.

Look down upon that little house,
O Friend the children know,
Because it's such a little house,
And now it needs you so
The little houses may not touch
The heavens, but they need as much.
In such an hour, a Father's care
As any houses anywhere.

And yet I know you watch tonight
The houses great or small;
You do not think a little house
A little house at all.
For in that little house tonight
I see the windows still alight;
A mother's lamp is burning late,
And that has made it very great.

TESTIFY AGAINST DAD.

CLEVELAND, December 20. — The three little daughters of Sam Constanzo recently testified against him before the County Grand Jury in a murder case. Constanzo was a suspect in the killing of Patrolman Ernest Ford, who was shot near Constanzo's home.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS —the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna was unhappy. She had married without loving GEORGE PAGET, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her haert. He had gone to China, but after years of separation they find that they love each other as much as ever. As the Little Flapper grows older she realizes something of the situation and worries about it. Hugh returns after five years, and is a guest of the Pagets. Another guest is Biddy's friend, DOLLY BENSON, the Big Flapper.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XIV—HE'S GONE'

The Big Flapper drummed on the window and stared out at the rain with disgusted eyes.

"I knew it would happen," she declared. "It's our rotten English climate all over. Three days frost, and then disgusting rain and a thaw! What's the good of buying skates and a toboggan, or anything, I should like to know? I chased half round London yesterday for this." She plucked angrily at the brightly-colored jazz jumper she was wearing. "It would have looked simply topping up at Hampstead in the snow," she lamented, "and now look at the rain!"

The Little Flapper chuckled.

"It may freeze again tonight," she said hopefully. "And, after all, we've had two perfectly lovely days of real winter, haven't we?"

The Big Flapper sniffed inelegantly.

"Two days out of three hundred and sixty-five!" she scoffed. "It's a lot to be thankful for, isn't it? And tomorrow's the first of February, and before we know where we are Mr. Hubbard will be gone!"

Biddy said "Oh!" very softly, and looked hard at her friend's perturbed face.

"Oh, is that the trouble!" she murmured.

"Of course it is!" The Big Flapper was nothing if not candid. "My dear, I'm just mad about him. Why do you think I spent five and a half guineas on that thing, if it wasn't to please him? I heard him say how ripping Marna looked in hers, so yesterday I wasted half the day trying to get one like it, and now he'll probably never even see me in it!"

The Little Flapper did not think Hugh Hubbard would have noticed what Dolly Benson wore, nor how often she wore it; she knew that he had eyes for one woman only.

"By the way," the Big Flapper burst out again impulsively, "what's the matter with Marna? When she came down to breakfast this morning she looked as if she had been crying her eyes out, and all the laughing and joking in the world didn't hide it, either."

Biddy winced as if something had hurt her.

"It's not our business, anyway," she said rather shortly. "And we ought to go downstairs. It must be nearly lunch time."

"The men haven't come in yet," the Big Flapper declared from her post of vantage at the window. She gave a tremendous sigh, then laughed.

"Biddy, wasn't Renny Martin frightfully funny last night?"

"Was he?"

"Of course he was. Weren't you there when he was holding forth about marriage?"

"He was intoxicated," Biddy said disgustedly. She did not like Renny Martin.

"Anyway, Renny ought to be an authority," Dolly Benson declared. "He's had lots of other affairs besides his two official marriages, and now he's in love with Marna, or I'll eat my hat!"

"What awful things you say!" the Little Flapper expostulated uncomfortably.

"So he is in love with her," the Big Flapper insisted calmly. "And so are half the men who come here, only darling George Paget is so blind, he can't see a single thing through that absurd monocle of his."

"There's nothing for him to see," Biddy said.

"Anyhow, I don't know how Marna does it."

"Does what?" Biddy demanded.

"Looks so absurdly young," Dolly explained. "She must be quite thirty-five, if not more, and she's hardly got a line or a grey hair, and when she laughs she looks like a girl."

"She doesn't 'do' it at all," Biddy said emphatically. "It just does itself. Marna has never been to a beauty doctor or made herself up in all her life."

The Big Flapper laughed unkindly.

"You and Renny Martin ought to start a Mutual Admiration-of-Marna Society!" she sneered. "You're evidently in total agreement on that subject."

"I'm not in agreement with Renny Martin about anything!" Biddy cried in a rage. "I can't bear Renny Martin! He's got horrid eyes. He looks at me as if—as if—well, not in at all a nice way," she finished up rather lamely, and she thought suddenly of Hugh Hubbard's eyes. That was the way she liked to be looked at—kindly and steadily.

The Big Flapper flushed.

"There's nothing wrong with Renny," she protested. "He's ever so generous. He gives me heaps of chocolates and things."

"He never gives me anything, thank goodness," Biddy said calmly. "And I wouldn't take them if he tried to make me. I hate him, and I wonder Marna lets him come here at all."

"Probably because, if she's such an angel as you make out, she can't see anything the matter with him," Dolly answered sharply. She was in a bad temper. The affair of the jazz jumper had thoroughly upset her. "Some people's eyes can never see any further than the end of their own nose," she added nastily. "Unless it suits them."

"Marna's got lovely eyes," Biddy declared. She always took things literally. "If I were a poet I could write heavenly verses to Marna's eyes."

Dolly Benson looked unutterable scorn.

"They're most ordinary eyes," she declared.

"They've got the loveliest expression I've ever seen," Biddy answered firmly, though there was a little tremble in her voice. "They make me think of music in church, or of that Madonna in Uncle George's room. He told me he bought it because it reminded him of Marna when she was looking her happiest."

"And that's not very often, then!" the Big Flapper said promptly. "Marna hardly ever looks happy."

"What in the world do you mean?" Biddy demanded.

"What I say, my child! And I'm not the only one that says it. Here—I'll tell you something!" She swung round, putting the brush down again. "You know Mrs. Blair?"

"Well?" Biddy was not conceding an inch.

"Well, I heard Mrs. Blair talking to Hugh. You know the sort of voice she's got—you can hear it anywhere."

"I expect you were listening," Biddy said angrily.

The Big Flapper only laughed. She enjoyed annoying Biddy, even though as a rule the two girls were good friends.

"I wasn't," she answered carelessly. "At any rate, not at first. But I heard Mrs. Blair tell him that she was very sorry for Marna."

Biddy sprang to her feet, her cheeks crimson, her eyes very indignant.

"It was hateful of you to have listened!" she cried passionately. "Hateful of you!"

Dolly Benson looked a trifle ashamed, but she tried to bluff through the situation with her usual defiance.

"I thought you'd like to hear about your adored Marna!" she protested. "I thought you'd be interested to hear that Mrs. Blair called her a 'lonely, unloved woman'——"

"She didn't! And if she did it's a wicked lie! Uncle George loves the very ground she walks on, and so do I!"

"Do you think I don't know why Marna's always crying?" Dolly asked deliberately. "Do you think I'm so blind that I can't see that she's as crazy about Hugh Hubbard as Renny Martin is about her?"

There was a moment's silence, then Biddy walked close up to her. She was as white as death, but her eyes blazed.

"If you ever say anything like that to me again," Biddy said, in a voice that was cold with concentrated passion—"if you ever dare to say such a thing again to me, or to anyone else, I'll—I'll kill you!"

The two girls looked steadily into one another's eyes, then the Big Flapper laughed and shrugged her shoulders.

"Heavens, how melodramatic we are!" she said lightly. "I was only joking. Every woman is in love with some other man nowadays. It's the fashion, so why shouldn't Marna be?"

"Because she isn't—because it's not true!" Biddy panted. She was trembling with rage.

Dolly only laughed.

"Well, don't have a fit about it," she protested. "What's the matter with you all at once? Anyone would think you are in love with my beautiful Hugh yourself!"

She turned to the door, humming a little snatch of song, turning to look at Biddy over her shoulder with an impudent smile.

The Little Flapper was standing at the foot of the bed, her hands han... in limply at her sides, a lost sort of look on her white face. Dolly Benson laughed again.

"Hit the nail on the head that time, did I?" she teased. "Well, we can't all have him, that's certain!" And she was gone, slamming the door behind her.

Biddy groped backwards and sat down on the side of the bed, her shaking hands clutching at the soft quilt.

So the Big Flapper knew!

Knew! Knew what? she asked herself confusedly. Knew that Marna an Hugh Hubbard loved one another, or that she herself, a little, unsophisticated flapper of eighteen, had dared—dared to raise her eyes to a man many years her senior—a man to whom she was nothing more than a child, and never would be!

"Anyone would think you are in love with my beautiful Hugh yourself!" The mocking words haunted her.

Canadian Invented Telegraphic Printer

The Creed telegraphic printer, which has been bringing news direct to The Examiner Office since last Friday morning, is the invention of a Canadian. Mr. Creed was born in Nova Scotia, and worked there as telegraph operator for some years. Then, with the great idea for this wonderful instrument, he went to England.

The machines are designed and built in Croydon, England, and shipped to Canada complete. From first to last, the installation is an Empire product.

Readers are invited to call and see the printer at work, between 7.45 a.m. and 3 p.m., excepting a period of about twenty minutes at 11.30, when the operators have lunch.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS STOCKING

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily had invited all the animal boys and girls of Woodland to his hollow stump bungalow to make sugar, molasses and honey candy for Christmas. And when they were pulling the sticky gobs of sweetness into sticks, all of a sudden Baby Bunty, who had hopped out on the side porch to cool her candy more quickly, all at once Bunty gave a scream and cried:

"Oh, Unkie Wig! Come here! Come here, quick!"

"What is it?" asked the rabbit gentleman hopping quickly to the door. "What's the matter, Bunty?"

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" sobbed the little orphan rabbit. "Isn't it terrible!"

"Oh, Bunty must have been caught by one of the Bad Chaps!" said Susie Littletail who was pulling some molasses candy.

"I wonder if it was the Fox or Bob Cat?" asked Lulu Wibblewobble, the duck, who was making her chunk of boiled honey into the shape of a Christmas tree.

"Nonsense! It was neither one!" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. She did not want the children at the candy party to be frightened. And really there was no need. For there was no Bad Chap.

But even Uncle Wiggily thought there was and as he ran out on the side porch to help Bunty he saw the little rabbit girl standing near the railing, looking over and, all at once, Mr. Longears thought:

"Oh, the Bob Cat is trying to pull Bunty down off the porch!"

So right away Uncle Wiggily caught hold of Bunty's dress to pull her toward him and save her. But Uncle Wiggily forgot that he had his paws full of sticky sugar candy that he was pulling and of course his paws stuck to Bunty's dress and he couldn't get them loose.

"Oh, my goodness!" shouted Uncle Wiggily.

"There! I knew somebody would get stuck!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears coming out on the porch.

"Never mind about that!" her husband said. "If we can save Bunty from the Bad Chaps all will be well! Help Help! Get the Police Dog!"

"We don't need any Police Dog!" said Bunty, trying to pull away from her "Unkie Wig," as she called him. "There isn't any Bad Chap."

"Well, what are you crying about?" the rabbit gentleman asked.

"'Cause I—now—I dropped my gob of molasses candy down off the porch!" sobbed Bunty. "That's why I'm crying!"

"Well, of all things!" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. "All that fuss over a little bit of candy. I'll get it for you, Bunty!"

"I—I don't want it now!" cried Bunty. "It fell in the dirt and it will be all stuck full of sand and dirt and—boo-hoo—little stones and my—boo hoo—candy will be spoiled!"

"Nonsense!" laughed Nurse Jane. "Your candy fell in a clean bank of snow. I can see it. I'll soon get it for you and it will be all the more cool for having fallen into the snow and you can finish pulling it and everything will be all right."

And so it was. The muskrat lady got Bunty's gob of candy from the clean bank of snow and the little orphan rabbit was soon happy again. The only thing was that Uncle Wiggily's paws were stuck to Bunty's dress by candy so he and the little bunny child had to walk around together. That is until Nurse Jane put a little grease in between the rabbit gentlemen's paws and Bunty's dress and then he was unstuck. Of course Bunty's dress was a bit greasy but that would wash out.

So the merry fun went on and enough Christmas candy was made for Santa Claus to give to some children who, otherwise, would not have had any.

Well, the next day Uncle Wiggily was out hopping in the woods, and he was thinking that soon it would be time for Santa Claus to come around in his airship, or with his reindeers, whichever he happened to find the quickest, when, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily saw, lying on the ground, a big, long stocking. Oh, it was as long as an automobile, almost, though not quite so big around.

"Well, this is a fine, Christmas stocking!" said the rabbit. "Enough presents could be put in this for a whole Sunday-school. I'll take the Christmas stocking home with me."

So the rabbit uncle began dragging the big, long Christmas stocking along with one end on the ground and the other over his shoulder. Then he happened to meet Mr. Twistytail, the pig gentleman and a very queer adventure happened. I'll tell you about it soon.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

THE GAS PLANT BY-LAW

Since the Mayor and members of the City Council have so strongly endorsed the purchase of the Peterborough Gas Plant and since they have worked so hard in order to get the low price of $335,000.00 at 4½ per cent and since there is a possibility that the by-law to purchase the said gas plant may be turned down by the taxpayer at the coming election and since it would be nothing short of treason to allow the gas plant to go the route of the street railway, I would suggest that the Mayor and members of the City Council kindly advise the ratepayers, through your paper, just how much of their own cash they would be willing to pledge in the event of a stock company being formed to take over from the H.E.P.C. the above mentioned gas plant as an investment.

(Signed) A taxpayer who would like to know.

Regarding the above letter it might be stated that no matter what the members of the City Council might decide to do so far as investing in the gas plant, if offered to the public, it is a known fact that more than one hard-headed business man in the city would like to be one of a group to put up the money and secure the assets offered to the city for $335,000.00. And there is no doubt if a corporation took over the proposition that there would be thousands of dollars in bonds invested in the project by our citizens.

The financiers who offered St. Thomas $500,000 for a similar plant would hardly let the proposition get away from them without investigation either.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

AMULET

Contrary to expectations, we are now informed that a diamond drill campaign will be carried out from the surface of Amulet on the "E" ore body. This is the new ore body intersected this autumn. One diamond drill is now on the property and another on the way. Mr. MacGregor, Amulet's geologist, was expected in Rouyn Wednesday night to personally conduct the campaign. Crosscutting northeast and southeast at the 250 has advanced some 325 feet.

AMITY

Shaft sinking is proceeding at a good rate at the Amity property in Boston Creek, according to Northern advices Wednesday. The objective of 600 feet should be reached at present rate of progress about the end of January. The station has been finished at the 375 and another will be cut at the 500, but no attempt at lateral work will be made until the objective is reached. The property is fully financed to carry out this program and allow crosscutting from the different horizons to the ore body.

TOWAGMAC

It is reported that drifting has started on the ore body recently encountered on Aldermac at the 600 foot level. Work has been started on the diamond drill station at the 1,125 New development news is not expected until probably the first of the year.

LAKE SHORE

Despite reports to the contrary, it would now appear from the additional machinery being delivered to the Lake Shore mine that the capacity of the mill will be brought up to 1,400 tons daily, with an average of at least 1,200 tons being maintained. Should the plant measure up to expectations and the ore continue at current average of around $16 a ton, Lake Shore would be in a position to produce approximately $7,000,000 annually. From this, earnings of at least $4 a share could be expected.

AJAX

A rumor was afloat here Wednesday to the effect that work had been suspended at the Ajax No. 3 well, which possibly caused the weakness in this stock. The fact is that the man who was coming up to shoot the well was held up at the border temporarily.

DOME

We are able to say that work on the north ore body of Dome has disclosed 450 feet of verticle depth of ore; that is, from the tenth down to the thirteenth level. It has been opened up on the eleventh level for a length of 300 feet and is 25 feet wide. Insufficient work has been done on the tenth, twelfth and thirteenth to allow of any definite estimate. This is a highly important development as the grade is better than $6.50 a ton.

CHICAGO MARKET BECOMES FIRMER

Corn Makes Gains All Around After Decline at Opening.

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 21 (Canadian Press).—Reports that farmers are selling only enough corn to supply Christmas money helped give firmness to corn prices to-day and to steady wheat and oats. Country offerings of corn to arrive to-day continued light and cash houses were buyers of future deliveries. Opening at a shade decline to ½ cent advance, corn later showed all around gains. Wheat started a shade lower to ¾ cent up, and held near to the initial range. Provisions were easy.

SONGSTERS WILL PRESENT "MESSIAH"

Massed Choir Will Be Composed of Members of Various Churches.

The "Messiah," (a major portion of the work, that is) will be presnted in George street United church tonight by a massed choir, composed of members of various churches in the city. This is almost looked upon as an annual affair, last year the oratorio being rendered in St. Paul's Presbyterian church. On that occasion 150 choristers sang this magnificent contribution from the mind of Handel. It is expected about the same number will be in the choir tonight. The Peterborough Male Voice Choir are sponsoring this concert.

The conductor on this occasion will be Martin Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and he will be assisted at the organ by G. F. Liddle, and R. J. Devey will be at the piano. Miss Mabel Clarry of Trinity Church, will conduct the first chorus, "And the Glory," and John Crane will be baton master, when the strains of the "Hallelujah" chorus will be the climax to the program.

The soloists taking part will be: Mrs. G. Byers (soprano), Miss Jessie Pattison (contralto), Mrs. W. H. Hohner (soprano), Mrs. G. F. Liddle (contralto), Mrs. Parish (soprano), and Messrs. Harold Lee (tenor), George East (bass), George Chandler (tenor), and G. D. Carlisle (baritone.)

The local artists, with the choristers are all qualified to satisfy their auditors with a fine rendering of this grand oratorio.

MINISTER PLANS RELIEF MEASURES

Settlers in Northern Ontario Hit Hard By Heavy Rains in Fall.

TORONTO, December 21. Canadian Press. — Plans for the relief of farmers and settlers in Northern Ontario were announced by Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, yesterday, following a meeting of municipal officials, district road engineers and road inspectors.

Although the district around Englehart was possibly "hit harder" by the heavy rains of last fall than any other district in the north, there had been no requests for any cash grants, said Mr. Finlayson. Arrangements have been made for the distribution of gravel, some to be put on immediately where the roads are free from snow, but the greater part of it is to be stock-piled for spring handling.

"Conditions are admittedly bad," Mr. Finlayson said, "but they show some improvement. As a relief measure, distribution of work appears to fill the bill at the present time."

CHRISTMAS

(By Ellah)

Christmas time is drawing near,
Always comes year after year,
What does it mean to this old earth?
Does it mean the Saviours birth?

Is old Santa Claus and toys,
The only thought, of girls and boys?
Every child of him can tell,
Is the Christ child, known as well.

Is it only a time of slaughtered beasts?
Only a time for having feasts
A time of joy when you have friends no doubt;
A time of gloom when you are without.

Many gifts we then exchange,
Gifts that are beyond our range,
For we cannot give great measure,
When we have not got much treasure.

No, Christmas is something within one's self,
Not something to be laid away on the shelf,
To be brought out and dusted, at the end of the year;
Then wonder and wonder it gives little cheer.

That peace and goodwill be found on the earth
Was the song of the angels, the time of His birth
If we wish that song, with us to remain.
We must sing it again and again and again.

For to love God and man, so we have been told
Are the greatest commandments, the same now as of old;
So if your gifts are few, or many or small,
Put in plenty of love, the world needs it all.

Hastings United Church Y.P.S. Hears Address on "Marine Missions."

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Dec. 21.—At the young people's meeting on Monday evening in Trinity United Church, Everett Fairman, vice president, conducted the devotional period, after which Miss Hazel McDonald, president, conducted a brief business session. The topic, "Marine Missions" was very ably delivered by Earl Fairman, who prefaced his address by drawing a map of Canada on the blackboard. On this map Mr. Fairman marked the location of the marine missions of the United Church, on both the Pacific and Atlantic coastline.

A reading entitled, "The Light in the Window," was given by Mrs. A. Brooks, after which Rev. A. C. Hiltz sang, "Let the Lower Lights be Burning." A solo that was also much appreciated was sung by Miss Rhea Preston. With the singing of a hymn and the repeating of the Mizpah benediction in unison, the program was brought to a conclusion.

Car Accidents.

Milton Beavis and Miss Evelyn Beavis were enroute to Peterborough on Wednesday in their car they collided with a sedan driven by a gentleman from Havelock. The accident occurred near Palin's Corners, where difficulty was experienced in getting the cars out of the ruts. The Havelock car was able to proceed but the Beavis car had to be brought to Hastings by the Hess wrecking truck. None of the occupants were injured.

On Wednesday a car came to grief when it collided with a threshing tank on the Westwood-Hastings road. The tank was being filled in a swamp where the road was narrow and icy, and as a coach suddenly crossed a knoll, close to the tank, the driver could not stop, for when he applied the brakes, the wheels skidded. The result was a ruined radiator. Fortunately no one was injured.

Has Hand Injured.

Albert Brooks had the misfortune on Saturday, while working at the tannery, to seriously injure his right hand. He was operating the tan bark grinding machine, when his hand was caught in the feed rollers, with the result that the nail was torn from the second finger and it was only by a very rapid and strong move, that Mr. Brooks escaped losing his hand. Dr. W. N. Campbell dressed the wounded hand, which is now healing nicely.

Personals.

Dr. J. H. Hess and Clifford Hess were in Oshawa on Tuesday attending a convention of General Motors salesmen and also attended the banquet given by the General Motors, Limited.

Rev. Archie Thomson, of Elora, will occupy the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, and will administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

IN LUMBER BUSINESS FOR HALF CENTURY

J. F. Lillicrap Commences as a Clerk in a Harvey Lumber Camp.

J. F. Lillicrap of Lakefield is one of the most widely known lumbermen in the district. For over half a century Mr. Lillicrap has been identified with the lumber business, which he knows from every angle. He got his first acquaintance with wood products when a clerk in a lumber camp in Harvey township, Peterborough county. He kept the books and also the time of the men, measured all the logs and square timber. For attending to all these duties he received $12 per month. The wages, which prevailed that winter for lumber jacks were $9 to $14 a month while a foreman received $25 and cook $20. The board consisted of pork, beans, bread and tea (without any sugar) and few if any potatoes. How different is the menu to-day. Mr. Lillicrap measured logs in the winter until 1882 and was then placed in charge of a large sawmill at Bradford, Ont., where he spent the summer for some years. During the winter he estimated timber on the limits, locating camps etc. In 1887 Mr. Lillicrap returned to Lakefield where he was employed by the Lakefield Lumber Co looking after their sawing and shipping. Then for several years he operated a planing mill in that village and, in company with E. R. Tate, built and conducted a sawmill which they sold in 1909. In 1912 he went to Toronto to sell for the Laurentide Lumber Company, Montreal, but went back to Lakefield in 1917 where he has since resided and is still engaged in the lumber line.

SHOT IN DUEL THUG DITCHES POLICE AUTO

Gunman Escapes After Exchanging Fire With Detective.

WOUNDS CAUSE CAPTURE

Robber Nearly Breaks Loose Third Time When He Wrecks Car.

STOCKTON, Dec. 21. — Captured after he had wrecked an automobile in which he was being taken to Sacramento, Theodore Kirk, twenty years old, desperate young holdup man, was put behind the bars the other night after he had twice escaped the police.

Kirk was arrested several hours before he wrecked the car while he was applying to Dr. L. E. Thretheway, of Manteca, for treatment for three gunshot wounds he had suffered in a pistol duel with a policeman in the business district of Stockton the other afternoon.

Forces Driver.

He had fled from Stockton in an automobile which he had commandeered at the point of an automatic, making the driver outrace another car in which Police Detective J. J. Joyce was pursuing him.

Captured eventually by Chief of Police C. C. Hitchcock, of Manteca, when he went to the office of Dr. Thretheway, Kirk was returned to Stockton and held to await the arrival of Detective Sergeant John Quinn, of Sacramento, where he is wanted for a number of holdups and the theft of an automobile.

Despite his three wounds, Kirk managed to reach the wheel of the car driven by Quinn and gave it a sudden wrench. This sent the car from the highway and overturned it in a ditch near the Western Pacific crossing, eight miles north of here.

Both Quinn and Kirk were buried beneath the car. In extricating them Quinn had to free Kirk first.

Kirk was fleeing up the highway when Quinn released himself and went after him, firing at the fugitive as he was making for a nearby orchard.

Recaptures Him.

By the time a police detail hurried from Stockton they found Quinn had recaptured his prisoner and was ready to start with him for Sacramento.

Joyce had arrested Oda Sanford, companion of Kirk, also wanted by the Sacramento police, a week ago. Kirk was with Sanford at the time, but managed to escape by running between two buildings that led to another street.

When Joyce saw Kirk on Market street, he motioned him into the doorway of a garage, where he began to question him.

Kirk suddenly whirled and fled, the detective firing over his head.

Market street was crowded with pedestrians and shoppers, and they sought shelter in doorways as they saw Kirk draw an automatic and return the fire of Joyce.

Joyce then began shooting to hit Kirk, who took refuge in a gasoline station, after running a block south on Market street to San Joaquin and over to California street.

Three of the shots of Joyce found their mark, one lodging in the left leg of the fugitive, another grazing his thigh and the third puncturing his right leg.

WANTED—A THOUSAND PETERBOROUGH KIDDIES TO ATTEND THE CHRISTMAS MATINEE AT THE CAPITOL TOMORROW MORNING — BRING NO MONEY—ONLY POTATOES AND APPLES FOR THE POOR KIDDIES OF THE LOCAL INSTITUTIONS.

Manager Stewart of The Capitol wants a thousand kiddies to attend the Special Christmas Matinee tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock—Bring no money—only potatoes and apples for the poor kiddies at the local institutions.

Putting it in another way, Manager Stewart is giving a special Christmas Matinee, for which a special program has been arranged. The object of this matinee is to raise several barrels of good things to eat for the Orphanage. To make this matinee a success the co-operation of the parents is necessary. The admission will be potatoes or apples. If any kiddie can only obtain one potatoe that will suffice, but Mr. Stewart would like the parents to send as many potatoes or apples as they can spare for thisw orthy cause, so that a goodly supply will be obtained.

As an extra inducement to make a success of this special performance, every child attending will receive a box of candy with the compliments of the Capitol Theatre.

SOCIALISTIC PROPAGANDA IS MISSING

Local Schools Are Found to be Free of This Kind of Teaching.

OTHING IN MAILS

Scheme is Financed Apparently From Russian Sources—Made Appearance Recently.

Authorities consulted by The Examiner during the past few days are agreed that Peterborough is free from socialistic propaganda in our public schools. Those consulted included A. Mowat, public schools inspector, K. S. Wightman, principal of Central School, Sister Patricia, principal of St. Peter's school and C. Lacheur, local postmaster.

In view of the disclosures that have been made in Toronto, North Bay and similar places recently, regarding the circulation and teaching of socialistic propaganda in their schools, these statements are reassuring. According to these authorities socialistic propaganda in the schools is confined to places where there is a concentrated foreign population mainly Finlanders. These people in some cases are not treated as they should be and they get a wrong impression of the Canadian people.

K. S. Wightman, principal of Central school, said that he had not seen or heard of any such propaganda in the city schools. In Peterborough there are very few foreigners and they do not cause any trouble.

Sister Patricia, principal of St. Peter's school, had neither seen nor heard of any such literature being circulated in the schools. "We have a few of the foreign element in our school", she said, 'but they are very quiet and do not cause the least trouble."

"Nothing of that nature has appeared in our schools," said A. Mowat, public schools inspector. "We are free from it all." In order to make sure, Mr. Mowat telephoned several of the principals of the different schools, who verified his statement. "Most of the trouble you have read about," said Mr. Mowat, "is caused by Finlanders and there are no Finlanders in Peterborough. These people sometimes feel they are slighted but they can be won over by kind treatment. When these people receive the Red propaganda, they absorb it and are ready victims."

No Literature Passing Through.

"There are no circulars such as those distributed by the red element passing through the post office," said C. Lacheur, local postmaster. "We are notified right off by the higher officials if there is any coming through and we take it from the mail. As far as Peterborough is concerned there isn't any of this literature passing through. So far the mail has been free from anything of this nature."

That there is a well financed and aggressive organization in Berlin, Germany, financed apparently from Russian sources, which is distributing socialistic if not anarchistic propaganda in different countries including Canada was shown some months ago by an editorial that appeared in Farm and Dairy, Peterborough's well known farm paper, and which was republished at the time and commented on by the Toronto Globe. The Examiner asked H. B. Cowan, of the Farm and Dairy, for further particulars about this form of propaganda. "For some months last spring," said Mr. Cowan, "we received through the mails, letters written in good English, from the editor of the "Farmer's and Peasant's International Correspondent", printed in Berlin, Germany, and also copies of the paper itself. The copies of the paper were printed in good English, evidently for circulation on this side of the Atlantic. An article in the Farmers and Peasants International Correspondent, purporting to give a review of agriculture conditions in leading countries of the world, goes about as far as it can to misrepresent conditions in Canada and the United States. The following extracts speak for themselves:

'The farming population is beginning to realize the necessity of united action and of creating real mass peasants (farmers) parties which would defend their interests. Increased rural taxation and the acute crisis in agriculture is accelerating events in such countries as Canada and the United States. The farmers have to pay three times as dear for industrial products, selling their own products at a ridiculous small price. The working farmers are becoming poorer every day and they are beginning to consider the necessity of creating an organization which would embrace large sections of working farmers, which would be capable to defend them. Having been disappointed in their old 'friends' they are seeking the support of the organized working class which is no less exploited by the same ruling class — the bourgeois and big landowners.

'Exploitation of the American and Canadians farmers by Stock Exchange speculators, corn brokers, banks, railways and elevator companies, etc., is reducing them to poverty and ruin, the result of which is that they are now endeavoring to create a strong farmers' front in order to resist the robbers onslaught.'

"Since the publication of the editorial in Farm and Dairy denouncing these circulars the organization sending them must have cut us off their mailing list as we have not received any further circulars."

SCHOOL BILL TO BE $100,000

United Counties Good Roads Have Cost $149,729.63 This Year.

WOULD CLEAR DEFICIT.

COBOURG, Dec. 21 (Special to The Examiner)—The good roads and better schools that are materializing in Northumberland and Durham counties are reflected in the treasury records of the counties council. In the report of the finance committee, of which Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook is chairman, the plain figures of expenditure were tabulated, but with the report of sound financial conditions behind them the members of the council indicated no cause for worry. The county school bill was not totalled, but it was said to be about $100,000 for the year.

The department of highways sent the information that Northumberland and Durham's indebtedness to the department is $149,729.63, as on December 31, 1928. And the committee recommended that the solicitor be instructed to prepare the necessary by-laws for issuing debentures for $125,735.46 for the larger county road improvement program carried on this year. Some of the items passd in the current accounts were: administration of justice, $5,456.02; county jail, $22,501.03; registry offices, $913.05; county officers, $2,613.86; House of Refuge, $6,597.05; mothers' allowance from July to November inclusive, $5,752.50; indigent patients, $1,847.75.

The highways department paid to the counties $61,174.95 for work done on the counties' roads in 1927.

Would Clear Deficit

The committee also proposed a "clean up" by debenture issue of a deficit that has been carried along from year to year. It will be included in the new county road debentures if the solicitor, Col. F. D. Boggs advises that this course may be followed. He was instructed to obtain information before the January session "as to whether the council may include in the $125,735.46 debenture issue an account to cover the deficit in the counties' accounts to date, and, if it may not, that he shall prepare a by-law for an issue of debentures covering such deficit."

Repairs to the House of Refuge this year cost nearly $2,000. Two items were, M. Jex and Company, repairs, $175.70; and W. J. Walter, painting, $450.

The request of the Trustees and Ratepayers' Association for a grant was left over to the January session.

Legislative Committee

The report of the Legislative and By-laws committee which was presented by Reeve W. S. Grills endorsed the resolution by the Oshawa council requesting the provincial government to assume 50 per cent. of the cost of the upkeep of county jails. It recommended no action on a resolution from the united counties of Stormont, Glengarry and Dundas, proposing an amendment to the Assessment Act to provide that lands and premises and their appurtenances exempted by local municipalities shall not be exempted for county purposes.

REPORTS TO CITY COUNCIL

We requetsed the Mayor to call a public meeting in regard to the Johnson Motor By-law and the By-law to purchase the gas plant which will be submitted to the electors on January 1st, and to ask the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to send to the meeting an expert to give information in regard to the gas plant, and that we, the memebrs of the Council, support the by-laws. We also gave instructions to have a circular sent to the electors giving information in regard to the by-laws.
